ONTARIO SYNOD BATTLES TAX
200 Delegates Take Unanimous Stand on Issue
Kingston, May 14.—Unanimous condemnation of the recent legislation brought down by the Hepburn Government extending further privileges to the non-Protestants of the province was expressed in a resolution passed at the 76th annual meeting of the Incorporated Synod of the Diocese of Ontario at St. George's Hall.
Introduced by Dean W. W. Craig of St. George's Cathedral, the resolution read as follows:
"That having in view the unanimous expression of the convictions of this Synod with regard to separate schools officially recorded at the last session, we do hereby express our unqualified disapproval of the legislation recently enacted which grants to separate school an extension of privileges to which we have declared ourselves wholly opposed and thereby inflicts serious injury to the public school system, the inalienable birthright and possession of the whole people of this province."
A standing vote was taken and the 200 clergy and lay delegates rose to their feet as the people of Ontario.
The synod refused to pass the resolution but a minute later passed unanimously the protest against increasing the Separate School share of taxes in the form of an amendment to the original motion.
"We want one national school in Canada for Roman Catholics and Protestants, Jews and Gentiles or anyone else," Archdeacon Cody of Shrubsbury declared in moving the resolution. "It will make a united Canada. We must do away with separate schools and that we can't get rid of them. I can't visualize a political party in the country to appeal for a change in the British North America Act. The Act as amended provides their share of corporation taxes be paid. It is only fair they should deal with them on that basis."

London, Ont., May 14 (CP)—Unanimous action was taken this morning by the Separate School share of corporation taxes as granted by the last session of the Ontario Legislature was given by the Anglican Synod of Huron at its closing session in Cronyn Hall.
The question of Separate Schools was introduced in the synod in the form of a resolution of protest. The proposed resolution declared that granting of Separate Schools to the Roman Catholics was not in the best interests of the people of Ontario."
The synod refused to pass the resolution but a minute later passed unanimously the protest against increasing the Separate School share of taxes in the form of an amendment to the original motion.

Tasty Tidbits Being Prepared by Residents for Deer's Birthday

Barnegat, N.J., May 14—(CP)—Residents of this town are saying in tasty tidbits, for the celebration next Monday of the first birthday of Pete, the omnivorous deer, that has become the pet of the community. Mrs. Raymond Beckett, whose husband found Pete, while fighting a forest fire, presumably the day he was born, will bake him a large white cake for the occasion.

That all contributions of the edible variety will be gladly received by Pete can be attested by spoon Paul Browker.

After hopping from the letterpress poster bed he occupies in his own room on the second floor of the Beckett home, and drinking milk from a nippled bottle, Pete munches into the Browker store every weekday morn.

"He won't eat much of anything" Browker said, "but he varies his diet every day. One day a few peas, another a mixture of some spinach, strawberries, a cruller or even a banana."

Under the guardianship of Pal, the bobtailed dog of doubtful breed also owned by the Becketts, Pete daily dallys all over Barnegat. He also visits the children in the schoolyard.

He won't cross the main street unless someone volunteers to lead him through the traffic. But wherever he happens to be when the hour for afternoon moans, Pete makes a beeline for home for another bottle of milk and some salt pork or a few hotdogs.

POISE, GOOD MANNERS

It's Fashionable to Be Lady-Like

REQUIRED OF BEAUTIES

KAY FRANCIS

A pleasing manner is an essential element of her beauty formula.

By HELEN FOLLETT

SINCE POISE and pleasing manners are important elements of the beauty formula, every girl should put her mind on them now and then. It is fashionable to be ladylike. That's a word dug right out of the Victorian period. It belongs with the stupid styles of the moment.

Along with short skirts and the boyish shape went the pretty one known as the life of the party. She was hoydenish, something of a show-off. A few of this type remain, with us still. It is time that some body told them that they are out of date.

They shrug shoulders, lift eyebrows, wave hands about, pose, offer all the gestures of the lazy cutie. It's waste of energy, a tax on the nerves. After the merry evening they go home too tired to undress, spangles, take off the disguise. If they are wise they ask themselves: "Do I make myself attractive, or am I just a spectacle and a bit of a bore?"

Men are a bit afraid of women of this type. They like to strut a bit, still a girl what fine fellers they are. That's why so many of them marry stupid women. It gives them a chance to display their superior intelligence.

When the operator at the beauty shop suggests the oil shampoo, the customer wants to know what that is mean. If she is persuaded to have one she will find that her hair is clean afterward and that she has a lovely sheen.

It works like magic, just as a cleaning oil will remove grease and grime from the hands of a mechanic. But the shine's can't get used to it. Because it doesn't foam up, requires a lot of rinsing, they are dubious. It works particularly well on locks that are brittle and dry.

Many Tempting Dishes Prepared at Cooking School by Mrs. McLean

A savory steamed dinner and several meat dishes were prepared by Mrs. R. McLean, Cooking School director, at the Hydro Demonstration Hall yesterday afternoon before an appreciative audience of women. The school this year, it was pointed out, has a different program as the final day, Friday would be given over to a class of vocational students of the Collegiate who would visit the school with their teacher, Miss Patterson.

In her interesting manner, Mrs. McLean gave many valuable hints in the proper cooking of meats. It was not always necessary to use a roasting pan, an ordinary cake pan was often more convenient for roasting. In preparing meat, only salt on the fat is necessary as the juice will be drawn out. The fine points of broiling were carefully explained by Mrs. McLean. Broiling, considered by many the finest way of cooking meat, is a simple art, once the principle is understood. Not only delicious steaks, but chops, sausages and, bacon can be cooked in this manner. To broil a steak without smoke, leave the oven door open. Broiled meat must be served immediately.

The use of the steamer, permitting a whole dinner to be prepared in one utensil was demonstrated. A variety roll was placed in the lower compartment; in the second, string beans and carrots were steamed separately and in the top part steamed apples could be cooked. The apples filled with honey, baked potatoes, a quick pudding, glazed sweet potatoes and rice salad were included in the delicacies prepared. To keep the skins of the potatoes soft, Mrs. McLean advised rubbing on a little butter.

Mrs. McLean also briefly prepared the many dishes she chatted with the audience in her charming manner and made the afternoon most enjoyable.

Mr. Everard Smith, representing the Belleville Hydro, gave an interesting address, requesting on his hearers the advantages of using electricity for cooking, the cheapest and most healthful. Improvements made in Hydro last year would be returned to the citizens of the city at a further 10% reduction on their gross electric bills while the cost of installing wiring for an electric stove had been so reduced that it was now a simple item in the cost of a new system of cooking.

At the conclusion of the class the visitors were invited to register questions with Mrs. McLean and to ask various questions about cooking by electricity and cookery problems.

The following won prizes at the Cooking School yesterday:

An active outdoor girl, she finds that fishing promotes vitality

By Helen Follett

Start a flirtation now with Al Fresco and plan to keep it up all summer. Outdoor life is essential to health and good looks. It creates energy and promotes vitality. The girl who goes in for it will never sit among the wall flowers. She will be alive and alert, hence will be good company.

Sunshine is good for the hair. Not so much of it, of course, that the color fades, but that's a worry of the future, not now. The skin likes the warmth of ultra violet rays, yet must be protected from burning which makes the cutaneous covering thick and leathery. Harsh winds do almost as much damage. Be faithful to your pot of cold cream; use soap only at night. Don't forget that powder forms a protective film against the elements.

Outdoor sports produce quicker heart action, blood streams move at a good clip. They create perspiration which cleanses the pores as will no external application. They put color in the cheeks, bright lights in the eyes, cherry tints on the lips. Best of all, normal exercises cook up a good appetite. Many a beauty ill is due to malnutrition.

My attention was caught at once by her open, obvious efforts to attract his notice. Can you imagine any male talking a second look at such a plain little brown thing? Or such an insignificant appeal? Or creature having the ego to dare a second look?

If he pretended any interest in her at first he would certainly grow bored before she had time to show him how brilliant female some along. In my opinion she was about to become a mother in such a condition in which all things are excusable. Mothers are compelled to quickly at home and for longer, and longer periods are left alone.

Occasionally I would watch him sitting on his front porch. How disgusted with his wife he grew then! His should have known perfectly well that such an unattractive little creature as he had wed would be motherhood as the consummate to bind him with all she failed.

However, his life seemed a little more peaceful now, for most I did not hear his wife's tongue. Perhaps she had learned her lesson and would not criticize him so caustically now.

I do not know when the babies came, but one of the neighbors children was in to tell me that its mother was bringing them out on the porch for an airing. I hastened across in neighborly fashion to offer my congratulations. I had already heard that she had twins or triplets but I was quite unprepared to learn that she was rivalling the Dionne record. The little mite was quintuplets over! How had they ever kept it all inside this long?

And then just as I was gazing in pleased astonishment, the tragedy occurred. One of the baby wrens fell off the tiny perch! Right down on the cement driveway at the side of the house. Its little life crushed out as it forever by the fall.

Frantic sorrow and motherly care are no avail when this brood is ready for flight. Happy the parents who can see some strong offspring take safely to the wing while they nurse the younger and weaker ones yet a little longer, as did our neighbor in the little house over the garage.

I know now that their understanding of life and each other is a well nigh perfect blend.

Toronto, May 14—(CP)— With a chill north wind whipping at its heels the mercury in Toronto bumped 40 degrees last night to the freezing point, and covered the ground with a light frost, but no frost damage was reported.

Official temperature, taken three feet above ground, was 36 degrees last night but ground temperature was 32.

ZEP SURPASSES ALL RECORDS IN CROSSING OCEAN

Municipal Reception Given Dr. Eckener on Arrival

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, May 14 (AP)—Surpassing all records for both eastward and westward commercial crossings of the Atlantic the giant German zeppelin Hindenburg sounded ground at 7:45 a.m., (12:45 a.m., Thursday, E.D.T.) to end its first flight from America.

The official flying time for the voyage from Lakehurst, N.J., was given as 49 hours, 3 minutes, during which the great air cruiser covered 4,168.75 miles.

The Hindenburg reaped the vast new harvest by 6:10 a.m., (1:10 a.m., E.D.T.), signalling completion of its maiden round-trip between Germany and the United States with passengers, mails and freight.

The same excitement as attended the zeppelin's arrival in Lakehurst after a flight of 61 hours, 51 minutes from Friedrichshafen welcomed the return of the massive fighter-than-air cruiser to its new base in even swifter record time.

(The Hindenburg's return flight in official flying time of 49 hours, 3 minutes, bettered the previous record for a lighter-than-air craft voyage from North America to Germany, set by the Graf Zeppelin in August, 1928, with a 54-hour trip. The previous westward record was 61 hours, 17 minutes, set by the Los Angeles. The French liner Normandie holds the ship record of 4 days, 3 hours, 4 minutes.)

Reception Given Eckener.

Municipal officials arranged a city hall reception in honor of Dr. Hugo Eckner, president of the Zeppelin Company, and Captain Ernst Lehmann, commander of the Hindenburg.

Crowds gathered to view the zeppelin before it leaves for the United States Saturday on the second of the projected series of commercial transatlantic flights.

After two days over the Atlantic, the airship crossed England thirty miles north of London last night, swung over the Netherlands and passed down the west border of Germany to Frankfort.

Dr. Eckener and Captain Lehmann were given silver cups from State Governor Jacob Sprenger in the background.

The Nazi governor, in the presence of other state functionaries, turned to Lehmann and welcomed him as commander of the Hindenburg.

The absence of Dr. Eckner's name from the press was interpreted by informed sources as a clear indication the German air pioneer was still out of favor after his recent differences with the propaganda minister.

Busy Fingers Sew for Relief Work of Society

That 362,641 articles for relief and hospital purposes have been made by volunteer women workers in 10 Red Cross workrooms throughout Ontario during the past year, the total is reported from Red Cross Headquarters today.

Too high praise cannot be given to these women states the Red Cross, who week after week for months on end freely and unselfishly give of their time, energy and ingenuity to the knitting, sewing and making of the thousands of articles for the relief of the needy, for the cheering of disabled soldiers in hospital and for the valuable work Red Cross Hospitals in northern Ontario carried on. Many of these articles, it was revealed, were made from samples, "cards" and cuttings donated by agents and manufacturers, and fashions fabrics, suits, quilts, and other clothing and bedding.

Close to 45,000 individuals have been assisted through this source during this period, it was reported. The high spot of the year for the Red Cross workrooms is Christmas. Months of labour are required for the preparation of the Christmas boxes, full of clothing and gifts for all members of needy families. These boxes go not only to the local needy, but many are sent to destitute soldiers' families on farms and out-of-the-way places, where Christmas cheer has no Christmas at all. During the past five years, some 13,500 families resident in outlying districts have received approximately 20,000 Christmas boxes to cheer and hearten them through this means. These boxes are not packed haphazardly states the Red Cross Intimate details regarding every family is known:—for instance the names and ages of the children and just what those children need to keep them warm and comfortable through a hard winter; the needs of the father and mother and what will best help them to weather the storm of their pioneer existence. Knowing these things, each box is prepared with care and loving, for individual needs, and everything possible to make them a real Christmas, from Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Frost gathered in the basement of St. Mark's Church and presented their eldest daughter Florence, with a miscellaneous shower.

An address was read by Miss Iva Brown expressing the best wishes of all for the happiness and prosperity of the newly wedded couple. Both Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt replied in a few well chosen words thanking all present for the many beautiful and useful gifts and inviting them to call upon them in their new home.

Fifth Rev. Canon Swayne acting as chairman, the following program was given: Musical contest—Mrs. A. V. Brown; Odeonian singing (various numbers); Impromptu Contest by Violet Hannah; Solo J. F. Baker.

A tasty lunch was served by ladies and a very pleasant hour of social intercourse was enjoyed by all.

COL. W. H. PRICE TO QUIT POLITICS

Will Not Allow Name Go to Convention For Party Leader

Toronto, May 14 (CP)—Before the next Ontario provincial election rolls around the Conservative party may have a new leader, but it won't be Col. William H. Price, fiery former Attorney-General. The 59-year-old veteran of Ontario's political wars will be on the sidelines.

His announcement with startling suddenness last night that he would retire from public life after the present term of the legislature. The announcement further opened the race for party leadership that will be decided at a convention opening here May 28.

The member for Toronto Parkdale since 1914 had been prominently mentioned as a candidate for the leadership. In pre-convention discussions his name and those of W. J. Stewart, former Toronto mayor; George S. Henry, present leader; Wilfrid Leighington of Toronto, James Lyons of Sault Ste. Marie and others were frequently heard.

"A lot of good friends all over the province have asked me to contest the coming election, but I shall not stand," Col. Price said. "As long as I am a sitting member of the House I shall endeavor to discharge my duties to my Parkdale constituency and to my province as faithfully as I have done in the past, but I shall not run again in the next election."

An Able Debater.

One of the most able debaters in the legislature, Col. Price engaged in several epic clashes with Premier Mitchell Hepburn at the last session and late in the session he was censured by the House for a remark concerning a Liberal member.

The vote of censure was moved by Premier Hepburn and was passed despite Col. Price's repudiation of the words attributed to him. It marked the first censure passed by the legislature in more than thirty years.

Native of Owen Sound, Ont., Col. Price was first elected in 1914 and successively contested the same constituency five times thereafter. His majorities ranged from 6,000 to the 213 scoorded him in 1934 when many of his colleagues in the last Henry cabinet were defeated.

In 1915 Col. Price was asked to form a battalion for overseas service and he later led the 204th Beaver Battalion to France. The battalion was broken up overseas and Col. Price served with the Imperial forces until the end of the war.

Under Premiers Howard Ferguson and George S. Henry, he served as provincial treasurer from 1923 to 1926 and as attorney-general from 1926 until 1934. He was prominently mentioned as a candidate for the leadership in 1931, following Premier Ferguson's resignation, but did not allow his name to go before the nominating convention.

TAKE POWER FROM VON STARHEMBERG

Abrupt Shakeup in Austrian Ministry Is Announced

Vienna, May 14 (AP)—Scholarly Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg assumed supreme command of Austria today after a cabinet upset, ousting his former "co-dictator", Prince Ernst von Starhemberg and other powerful Heimwehr (home guard) elements from the ministry.

Austria was quiet but tense, the populace recalling apprehensively that von Starhemberg declared in a public address only a fortnight ago the Heimwehr would be dissolved or deprived of influence "only over my dead body".

A Heimwehr official revealed Prince von Starhemberg had arranged for an airplane to fly to Rome late today for a discussion of his ouster from the government.

R. E. Synod Meets At Emmanuel Church

Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church is meeting today in Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, Victoria Avenue, St. Rev. George Marshall, Bishop, presiding.

The Synod opened on Wednesday, the standing committee meeting at seven o'clock, and divine service and Holy Communion were held at eight o'clock, the Rev. C. W. Boxall, Scalfe, Toronto, being the preacher. At the communion service Bishop Marshall who celebrated, was assisted by the Rev. C. W. B. Scalfe and the Rev. George S. Buckingham, Rector of Toronto. There was a good congregation.

At six o'clock last evening, Ladies' Aid held a reception tea for the delegates to Synod.

Port Dover, Ont., May 14 (CP)—Shortly after 7 yesterday was too modest to go home without his clothes, but while he was in the water, the fire department arrived, and extensive search for Jacob Sprenger, three, and Victor Gibbons, two. The lads had gone in bathing, and when found last night by searchers their clothes were there, but the boys were not. Port Dover is near Simcoe.

Here is an object lesson in crime These six young men, who range in age from 18 to 36, are shown here as they were sentenced to death in the electric chair for the murder of a New York Subway cashier. The young bandits robbed the cashier of $250 in nickels. The penalty of their crime is death, and the mass slaughter will be instituted in the history of New State. The men are, from Left to RIGHT: Salvatore Scala, 18; Joseph Solonia, 22; Theodore di Donato, 36; Dominick Bianco, 36; Salvatore Majone, 36; and Angelo Rivera, 36.

NEWARK BEARS DEFEAT ROYALS

All Other Games in The International League Rained Out

If the current Newark-Montreal series was to be staged in September instead of May, a few International League attendance records probably would be broken in the three games between the leader and runner-up of the circuit.

So far it's been a shameful mess two games have left the teams only one game apart with the difference showing in the losing column. After winning the opener on Thursday behind Orrin Pulli's three-hit pitching, 3-0, the Royals tried almost to talk the Bears out of it and came out on the short end of a 6-5 decision.

Both teams used three pitchers in an effort to stem the tide of extra-base blows and it wasn't until the fourth inning that the Bears showed much odd run.

Lauri Myllykangas, who looked more like the big guns of Mount Olympus than a baseball hurler in his first few games, was given credit in the opening inning as Newark scored three runs. George Grainger, who followed, did well enough until the ninth when Harry Smythe replaced him during Newark's winning rally. The Bears got to Steve Sundra, making his first Newark start of the season, for three runs in the eighth to tie the score and Marvin Duke and Ben Mallonee finished.

The other three games on the program, Syracuse-Buffalo, Baltimore-Rochester and Albany-Toronto, were rained out.

Boston Bees in Fifth Place Showing Reversal of Form Which Surprises Whole Loop

Hopeless Tailenders Year Ago But This Year Organized

TIGERS ARE BEATEN

Schoolboy Rowe Retires in Sixth With Sore Arm

One notch above all the other surprises of the Major League baseball season, which include the miserable showings of last year's world series rivals, the Tigers and Cubs, the uncertain performance of the Giants and the complete failure of the Browns' hiring corps, comes the showing of Boston Bees.

A hopeless tailender a year ago, the reorganized Bees have been showing signs of rejuvenation that can't be explained entirely by the new players they acquired. By taking an exciting 10-inning decision from the Pirates yesterday 4-3 the Bees moved into fifth place in the National League ahead of Chicago.

More orthodox performances were seen in the American League where the Yankees and Red Sox, running first and second, won the only other games that escaped rains which washed out half the major league program. The Yanks trimmed the Browns 4-1 behind Monte Pearson's flinging while the Red Hose defeated the Tigers 2-1.

Not only have the Bees won 11 out of 23 games thus far to place just a game behind the Cubs, but their two tie games and the overtime inning victory yesterday indicate they have what it takes to come through in the clutches. The first three Boston runs came in the fourth, when Al Lopez, smacked a homer with two on, and gave the Bees a 3-2 lead. The Bucs tied it up and sent John Lanning to the showers in the next inning as Lloyd Waner and Gus Suhr socked doubles. Then Wally Hoyt and Danny MacFayden hooked up in a relief hurling duel that wasn't decided until Hoyt gave up his first hit in the tenth.

Werber Rival For Pass.

"Deacon Danny" worked his rival for a pass to start the extra frame and took second on Bill Urbanski's sacrifice. At the crucial moment Lanning broke down in the mound through the infield to end the ball game.

The Phils, who also have shown the ability to do some real damage to the leaders, hit more effectively than the Reds although each team got 9 safeties. Now, Lee Handley and Ernie Lombardi of the Reds and Hart Grace of the Phils hit homers and six triples and five doubles were tossed in for good measure. The pitcher, however, came in the seventh inning when relief hurler Syl Johnson sent home a pair of runs to climax a three-run winning rally.

Monte Pearson had little trouble subduing the Browns with six hits and an equal number of strikeouts to gain his fourth victory for the Yanks. His mates piled out seven blows, but one of them proved costly when Ben Chapman, running out a two-bagger in the sixth, aggravated an old muscle injury and had to retire.

The world champion Tigers could get only six blows off Rube Walberg and Fritz Ostermueller, Boston lefties, but seven walks off Walberg made trouble until Bill Werber belted his first homer of the season with two aboard to bring in all the Boston runs. Schoolboy Rowe, who retired after six innings because of a sore arm, was the victim of the fourth-inning wallop.

A possible explanation for some of the Giants' troubles cropped up when the New Yorkers took advantage of enforced idleness to complete a deal sending Smoky Joe Martin, veteran third baseman, to Dallas more along with a bundle of cash in exchange for Eddie Mayo, a 22-year-old Clifton, N.J., boy who will have the job of filling Travis Jackson's shoes when and if he returns, which seems. Jackson has played every day so far but his batting average has been down around the .200 level.

RANKINE'S SHOWING IN TEN MILE RACE TO DETERMINE FUTURE

St. Catharines, Ont., May 14 (CP) —The third annual Miller ten-mile road race here May 25 will do something more than reveal the 1936 Olympic stock of Robert (Scotty) Rankine of Preston, Ont., should he stand. Race officials expect the mile to face high-grade opposition.

Among the more prominent in the field will be Harold Webster of Hamilton, British Empire marathon champion and several other distance stars. For both Rankine and Webster, the race may be in the nature of a tune-up for the Canadian Olympic marathon trial.

Rankine, recovered from a hernia operation, hasn't decided whether he will attempt to make his Olympic race over the 26-mile, 385-yard distance, but most critics believe his showing in the Miller events will determine his future.

Should the stocky Preston boy find the 10-mile race to his liking and should he whip his field handily, then it is believed he will go into forthright training for the marathon. Until this year he has defeated every good runner in North America over distances between five and fifteen miles.

Injury Kept Webster Out.

In the event he finds himself behind the 1928 Tartu, who is unbeaten in major competition, Rankine probably will concentrate on the 10,000 metres distance and leave marathoning alone.

Webster of Hamilton Olympic Club will come along with the 43-year-old Westdale veteran towards a shot at the Olympic marathon title. Webster's big chance apparently was lost in 1932 when an injury kept him out of the Los Angeles race, but the big fellow isn't far short of his best now.

New York State is expected to send a delegation from the Indian Onondaga Indian Reserve. Seven of the Indian runners entered last year's race under the impression that event was a marathon. This time they promise to send some 10-mile specialists.

SOFTBALL TEAMS SPONSORED BY SCREEN STARS

George Sisler, Famous as Batsman With Browns Interested

GIVING NEW THRILL

Sport Exists Almost Wholly For The Partici-pants

St. Louis, May 14 —For the price of an ice cream soda," George Sisler is bringing a new spectator sport to thousands of fans here, on the Pacific coast and in Hawaii.

Sisler, star first baseman of the St. Louis Browns for many years and American League batting champion in 1920 and 1922, is the main genius of softball, the diamond game that for five years has advanced from the sand-lot to big business.

Softball, in case you haven't heard, is played with what father used to call an "indoor ball," on a regulation diamond with a slightly shorter pitching alley. But unlike baseball, girls, as well as boys, play the game and star as it.

The fourth summer's play opened here recently and nearly 3,000 players on 120 teams, playing at six city parks, started the five and one-half month season that ends in October with citywide tournaments and the national softball meet, held in Chicago.

Sisler, well-established as a businessman in the city where he won lasting fame as a baseball star, is most proud of softball with little prompting.

"It's a swell game and the admission is the price of an ice cream soda," he said. "When you want to see a softball game you need only a dime, not 55 cents—the price of a baseball bleacher seat.

"But this doesn't harm baseball. As a matter of fact, I think that watching softball games at night makes the average man more interested in seeing a major league game in the afternoon.

"You hear a lot of talk about the promotion of baseball. Of course. This isn't so, they just about break even but most of them stay in the red. Baseball by like sport and have become interested.

In suggesting that perhaps sporting good dealers (Sisler is one) make more than just a little out of softball, Sisler replied:

"Of course, we make something but just in the same way that we'd make something on a boom in golf or tennis or any other sport."

The ex-star of the major league's first baseball nine selected in the arena in August, 1933. To-day he is the president of the American Softball Association with franchises granted in Canada, Hawaii and throughout California.

"The California teams backed by many of the Hollywood stars — Bing Crosby, Mae West, "Buck" Jones, Pat O'Brien and Joe Penner, to name a few—threaten to overshadow Middle West teams in color and fame.

Poor old Rabbit Maroville .... the best he can do is hit .406 for Elmira .... and field like the ole debbil himself.

Here is an example of life with the glorious dodgers .... Until yesterday Van Mungo has participated in nine of the team's engagements .... He was credited with five loses and one tie .... But with a little luck and a few runs, he would have won eight of the nine games .... Nat Fleischer, Editor of the Ring, had a sad experience in Washington .... Nat went from the radio station to the fight arena put the $100 down on Miller and lost every cent of it.

GRIEVANCE FILED HARDLY WILL SOFTEN "RIDING" TACTICS

New York, May 14 (AP)—Cleveland front office may be thoroughly mollified in trying to put a jinxing block on the "heckling" of Johnny Allen, the temperamental righthander obtained in a trade with the New York Yankees, but there are pretty good reasons for suspecting it may prove a boomerang.

In the first place the publicity attached to the grievance, filed with President Will Harridge of the American League, hardly will soften the rival attitude or tactics so far as Allen is concerned. Then, too, Harridge interfere without the risk of setting up a dangerous precedent of running counter to some of the most time-honored baseball traditions.

The none-too-gentle art of "riding" the opposition in professional baseball is firmly established as a part of the game. Custom and tradition have validated action on the diamond that would be outlawed in other walks of life. And the other team's signals and profit thereby.

Coaches Raised On Ashby.

Baseline coaches or "jockeys" are raised largely on their ability to upset opposing players, particularly the pitcher. The umpires, of course, have authority to curb too much "riding" from the baselines or the dugouts. But the umpires put little on the targets for abuse themselves and have not unwilling at times to hear it heaped upon the players. It's a sporting business where the competition is so keen, little consideration is given to the athlete with a sensitive soul. There have been instances where top-notch players cut because they could not stand the razzing. If, as in Allen's case, there's a psychological angle to getting a player's goat, it is not likely to be overlooked by the more rugged individualists.

Occasionally the "riding" of the opposition has had a reverse effect from the one sought. The Athletics of 1925 attributed their failure to win the pennant to excessive "jockeying". That year the A's led the league when they started their late western swing in August. They had one of the game's foremost jockeys in Wally French. But they made the mistake of turning French loose on Geoge Sisler of the Browns and then on Ty Cobb of the Tigers, the creation of both stars was to play their heads off and contribute largely to a string of setbacks which knocked the A's out of the running.

Umpires Get Break In Western Counties

Sarnia, Ont., May 14—(CP)—Umpires in the western group of the Western Counties Baseball Association will get a break this year.

At the last meeting of the group a resolution was passed to the effect "that the representatives of the various clubs, realizing umpiring is a thankless job, resolve to not as a stabilization force in our own clubs to quiet any disturbances caused by decisions of an umpire, and if necessary to take action because of an umpire's decision it will be done in gentlemanly manner through the proper channels.

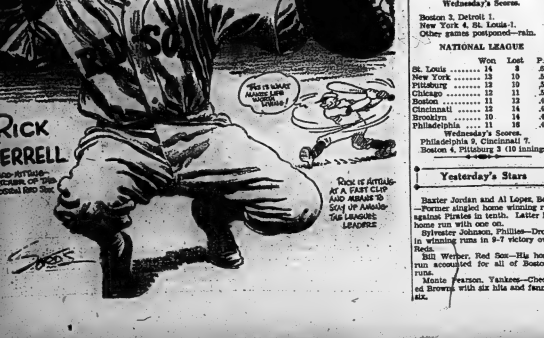
The New C·C·M· FLYTE

Patents applied for. Design registered 1935.

HERE, boys, is the most exciting news that you have heard for years—C.C.M. have made a brand new kind of a bicycle, the likes of which you have never seen before. A streamlined bicycle that has all the speedy lines of the new motor cars. It is called the "Flyte" and it looks as swift as a swallow.

The wonderful new "Flyte" has the advantages of the other well known C.C.M. bicycles, but in addition it has a streamlined frame and streamlined front fork (both made of chromol aircraft tubing)—streamlined saddle and special streamline enamelling effect.

The boys who ride "Flyte" bicycles this Spring will enjoy the thrill of their lives, because the "Flyte" is the smartest thing on two wheels and will be the talk of every group of boys in town.



When you go to boy a bicycle this Spring ask the dealer to show you the new "Flyte", and remember it has the famous C.C.M. Triplex Hanger (the power plant of the bicycle) that makes a C.C.M. so easy to ride. It has the sure-acting, powerful Hercules Coaster Brake and strong wheels with Endrick steel rims and rustless steel spokes. It has the C.C.M. straight-line drive and easy-running ball bearing Gibson pedals. It has Dunlop "Fort" Tires, C.C.M.'s super-Chromium plating and C.C.M.'s baked-on enamel finish. All the working parts are of special hardened steel, uniformly tempered by C.C.M. to give long and trouble-free service.

In these and many other ways the new and exciting streamlined C.C.M. "Flyte" is the smartest thing out this Spring.

The price of the "Flyte" is a little more than some of the conventional styles of C.C.M. bicycles because the cost of manufacturing is a lot more, but it is well worth every cent of its price. The price is $46.00. 119J

From the office of the secretary of O.B.A.A., W. J. Snyder, the following baseball bulletin was issued to-day:

The O.B.A.A. constitution and by-laws will not be available in book form for a few weeks owing to the printers' heavy lineup of printing, but secretaries should forward to the O.B.A.A. secretary their names, address and telephone number in order that the book be as complete as possible.

For your information the following announcements were passed at the annual meeting.

Affiliation Fees.

All leagues or associations must pay the same affiliation fee as in 1935 and one dollar additional for each senior or intermediate club who are members of the league or association. For instance—a league carrying ten dollars last year will pay the same fee this year and one dollar additional for each club in the league.

Birth Certificates For Minors.

Birth record cards as issued by the different branches of the Ontario Athletic Union of Canada will now be accepted by the junior, juvenile and bantam series.

"Paragraph 'I' on page 39 of the 1935 constitution is amended to read as follows. No senior or intermediate player, after playing in league games with his club, or junior, juvenile and bantam player after playing four league games with his club can be released and signed by another club in the same league, group or section. Piles Go Quick

With Dr. Leonhardt's Prescription

Many sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have found this that quick relief can be had with an internal medicine.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel is the cause of piles. The veins are congested and flabby, the bowel walls weak. That is why an internal medicine like HEMROID should be used. HEMROID stimulates the circulation, relieves the pressure or blood in veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

HEMROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who spent over 25 years of his professional life studying the cause of piles and the medicine that would remove them. His medicine succeeds because it tends to correct the cause.

No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them, if you want to try HEMROID, you have every ground to give you back your money if you do not find quick and satisfying relief after using just one bottle.

J. S. McKeown or any druggist can supply you.

Tony Staggered by McLarnin's First-Round Attack

ARSENAL CARRIES OFF FOOTBALL CUP

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Handball

Wednesday evening saw the completion of the first round of play in the singles handball championship tournament. In the two final games played, V. Weir won from F. Martin and A. Cole stayed in the running at the expense of E. Foulds. The second round of play is scheduled to commence at once with the following players meeting each other; E. Buchanan vs C. Birbeck, A. Tobe vs A. Cole, L. Marshall vs A. Black, V. Weir vs H. Johnson, St. Paul's, bye. The above players are requested to contact their respective opponents and arrange to play their games at the earliest possible date. Playing periods will be open on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week, on Monday and Wednesday evenings of next week.

Change in Class Schedule

For the balance of May and throughout the month of June the Senior members and employed boys will hold their regular class night on Tuesday and Friday evenings. This Friday a special outdoor programme is scheduled if the weather permits and the members are requested to be at the 'Y' at six-thirty or as soon after as possible.

Free To Hike on Saturday

Last Saturday the Junior School group went on a hike to Oak Leaf and every member who started out completed the distance without accepting a lift of any sort. This Saturday the Press will take to the highways and byways but will not attempt to cover so much territory.

Register At Once

All team managers in the Ki-Y Softball league are asked to hand in their players registration at once so that the secretary of the league may go ahead with the drawing up of the schedules. From previous experience it has been found, that a number of boys enter teams in the league only to find that they cannot get the players they want and to drop out. If however the various managers can produce their registration forms with sufficient players signed up to field a team, they will be included in their schedule.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

It looks as though the local junior baseball club is out on the well known limb and holding the bag. Futile efforts have been put forward on a few occasions to form a junior baseball league in and around the Quinte district this past month, Ernie Gibbard and Walt Gerow sat down at Napanee with a junior squad, while the local Kiwanis juniors marked time here in town. The out-set of the whole show blew off on Tuesday night when the Napanee juniors drew a bye and then entered the Lennox County intermediate loop along with Enterprise, Odessa, Adolphustown and Marlbank. The Napanee kids will retain their junior status and at the conclusion of the league schedule will be entitled to enter the junior O.B.A.A. play-downs. Looking at things from this direction—it looks as though the Gerow-Gibbard outfit stole a march on the local junior moguls.

Without broadcasting their intentions all over the province, the local junior sponsors have one of two alternatives left. They might try to procure a berth in the South Hastings loop or in Ben Sere a three teamed junior city league and play out a schedule, later picking the best material available and signing these boys in O.B.A.A. certificates and procuring a bye into the O.B.A.A. play-downs, as did the Napanee interests. If the latter plan is adopted, however, all certificates must be signed and in the hands of the O.B.A.A. before July 15th. Correspondence from Mr. Gilbard reveals, that the O.B.A.A. does not approve of picking so-called all star teams, but what's the difference between running a junior city league in Belleville and signing a dozen or so players before July 15th and operating a whole junior team in the intermediate ranks and later reverting back to the junior playdowns.

Doubtless there will be two local softball loops operating in Belleville this summer, an Industrial and a City League. The latter is to be affiliated with the O.B.A.A. however. The city loop has only three potential starters with Point Anne (Sonny Greek and company), Jerry Quinn's Tweed squad and a local team managed by Harold Bawden and Harry Knoll. There is no quibbling for another team, however. In the Industrial loop, that also will accept another entry with the deadline being tonight, there is Class, West End, Optical, Corbet Lock and the Belmont Restaurant already for action. Teams desiring to enter this league should contact Clem Bowler or Class. Tebworth early this evening. The Industrial loop also seems will play their games at the Yonans and College Sts. fields.

Reading between the lines of the lines of the Peterboro scribe's column, one would almost be led to believe that things are not so rosy in and around senior baseball circles in the Liftlock City. Manager Ross Kitchen, Tommy Foley, Red Kearns and Eddie Starr, all valued members of last year's Peles have yet to answer the call for practice, and some of these lads have even stated it may be impossible to get away from employment to play ball this year. Some of this ballyhoo sounds like so much sye-wash, but we must admit it is a better impression than is coming out of Kingston, where the question of the future of the Frontenacs is a deep dark mystery, that is if one is to learn of the Limestone City's baseball prospects through the sports columns of the Kingston press. Judging from the gossip crammed and written by the Kingston scribes, the 1935 champions are not experiencing any bed of roses this spring either.

The question of senior calibre infielders is worrying Manager Weir and Coach Fox these days. Chuck Barriage seems to have the inside track around the hot corner, his old whip having lost none of its zipp. Around short are Howard Dr Barrage, Red Johnston, Alex Weir, Red McDonald and a couple of other baseball players have been alternating of late. Yesterday Jack Yanover, chairman of the Belleville Peles' club, was in communication with Ernie Gibbard regarding the possibilities of getting Bill Prout, ex-Adolphustown and Picton infielder, to turn out with the Peles club. "I guess it will be o.k. We'll waver on him to pass through Napanee, but you'll have to get a release from the Picton club also," warned Mr. Gibbard. Prout is a splendid sticker and would be a great asset to the Peles' lineup for the past two years. Maybe he could be used as his batting ability might materially assist the Weir-McLean.

NOT THAT WAY, JOE

Joe Louis

Disobeying all the rules of form, Joe Louis, Brown Bomber, from Detroit exhibits some terrible golf technique in his training camp at Lafayetteville, N. Y. Louis is preparing to meet Max Schmeling in June in Yankee stadium.

Fox led outfit to no small degree. Street rumors today are to the effect that Johnnie Kerr, leading hitter of the club last season, has retired from active service in baseball.

The Oshawa sport scribber sometimes gives us a laugh. Following Saturday's meeting the Motor City scribe related to his many (?) readers the fact, that both Belleville and Oshawa were represented at the meeting and would be back in the league. The queer, but we don't remember any time, except 1937, when Belleville was ever out of the O.B.R.E. which is more than can be said of the Oshawa interests.

As for Kingston, however, there is still an air of mystery surrounding the baseball situation in the Limestone City. When queried relative to the personnell of the Ponies' new outfit, if any, Skipper Joe Daley only smiled and added—"As we don't need an executive, Sec., or correspondence, that is necessary to run a senior ball team in my pocket," haughtily slated the veteran Joe. Of course all of this still leaves an air of mystery surrounding the baseball situation in Kingston.

Daley's crack reminded us of the old days of Jake Solomon, Incidentally Jake ran his Petes, on the field and in executive and carried whatever correspondence was necessary in an old cigarette box. And, there's one for Ripley, believe it or not.

Congratulations are being received by the local Red Cap's bowling team, 1936 city bowling champions. The Red Caps came from behind to down Dave Tobe's Christie Cakes quints in the final play-offs. The members of the city bowling championships team are Pat Drumm, Harry Penn, Jerry Hurley, Evan Barlow and Legault, "Doll" Pointer and J. Hainsworth, Toronto Maple Leafs' pitcher, Walter Brodo, Here is Brodo doing his stuff. He was one of the factors which put Olympics the International Hockey League championship this season.

ALEXANDRIA BAY MAY BE CHOSEN AS TRAINING SITE

Brooklyn, May 14. — James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight boxing champion, will likely establish training quarters at Alexandria Bay the last two weeks in August to get in shape for a heavyweight title encounter which he expects to fight shortly after September 1. Business representatives of the champion have been in communication with a number of persons, relative to quarters for him to establish headquarters. Besides being an ideal training camp site, Braddock's handlers feel they would reap a good financial harvest from Island visitors who would be interested in watching him train.

GOLF

BY ALEX MORRISON

Golfers starting the new season probably have found their hands pretty soft. In spite of gloves or tape blisters form, the fingers split and the skin rubs off to harden the hands move against each other.

The player in most cases blames his winter golf-of for the punishment. The lay-off does have a tendency to harden the hands, but there are other things which make it tough for the hands starting the new year.

Cold weather is a big handicap. It makes your grip insecure, gives you the feeling that the club is turning around and slipping in your hands. This forces you to hold much tighter than you would ordinarily. When the clubhead lands on the ground it is invariably deflected so that the very thing you fear happens — the shaft turns in your hands.

All of this means a friction and rubbing between the fingers that the leagues in warm weather. A rise in temperature will enable you to control the club easier.

Anglers Report Good Fishing

Several of the local fishing enthusiasts have already tried their luck at the waters of the Trent River and report that the fish are biting exceptionally well for this time of the year. With such excellent fishing territory within three or four miles of the village it is unnecessary to take long fishing trips and for this appreciable being so close to Glen Ross where fishermen come regularly from as far away as Toronto and as far east as Kingston to indulge in the sporting pastime.

Early Hay Crop

Many local residents were quite surprised on Wednesday morning to observe Mr. Thos. Spry at work in the hay field on his farm with the mower cutting a crop of hay. Although Mr. Spry gave no indication of what he intended to do with the hay he was cutting he believed that cutting such a crop which in many places was about twelve inches high was a record for the first of the year. Never had he heard of any farmer within the district cutting hay on the 11th day of May and was quite surprised at the splendid growth brought on by the recent rains and warm weather.

Mr. Tice is well-known in Stirling for his musical talents and his return to the village will be welcomed by his many friends. Mr. M. Smith and family have moved from the Nicholson apartment on Front Street to the Spencer property on the Head property on Charlotte Street. Mr. Reid and family have moved from the Methodist Church parsonage to an apartment at the home of Mrs. Jas. Bateman.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the avertirements in the back of her magazine, saying to pop. How reticulous, did you ever hear of such bolesale exaggeration as that, Willyum?

As what, for instanst? pop said, and ma said, Here's a testimonial for Pronkies Facial Cream from Mrs. Clemmighton Trout Barkways, claiming that after the 4th application every wrinkle in her face had disappeared like the Arican snows. I mean after all, Willyum, there's such a thing as diring credulity too far. And who is Mrs. Clemmighton Trout Barkways, anyway?

Maybe she's one of the famous P. G. 'Is, pop said, and ma said, Who are they? and pop said, Figments of the imagination.

That's impossible, because her picture is here and it's all in natural colors, ma said. She's certainly well dressed, and she must be somebody importance, because they wouldn't have every Tom, Dick and Mrs. Harry. The idea of a woman like that lending her publicity name to such a preposterous statement. The world must be full some very gullible people, thats all I can say. Wrinkles dont spring like mushrooms and they cant be cut down like willow the wisps 4 applications or even 44 Well, pop said, I certainly have the courage of their convictions, I advertise a sample jar for 25 cents I believe I'll send for one ma s

You'll what, for Pete, sakes! said. I thawt you were convinced that the whole thing a fake, a bish, balderdash, and a pop-poppycock and hooey, he said, ma said, So I am, so it is. I just am I going to prove it to myself that I'm rite unless I send a sample jar for 25 cents, what little or nothing, whereas a full jar costs 4 dollars, if anyfool foolish enough to throw away dollers after reeding that ad so called testimonial.

Its a wimmins weird and tis proberly deserve it, pop said.

Red Lake District—Optimistic Geological Report Written Ten Years Ago Being Proved

In connection with the many interesting developments now being carried out in the vicinity of Red Lake, it is of interest to note that the information obtained by the late but by provincial geologists, as shown in the 36th annual report of the Ontario Department of Mines for 1927, and the deductions and probable findings as outlined in the report are being proved up remarkably well as a result of actual mining operations. It simply shows how very important the work done by these government geologists is to the mining industry at large and the various governments are certainly to be congratulated on their efficiency and long sightedness on their part in striking out into new territory so as to furnish prospectors and these interested in mine development with as many essential possible information as to the character of the country as well as the best means of access to these areas. Among other very interesting statements in the report above mentioned, one of the most definite statements of sufficient interest to be quoted here. In discussing the probability of the richness of ore found in the stringers leading to a reasonable depth, the report notes that "Experience in the Porcupine will not occur suddenly as the ironstone dikes are approached but any change in tenor of the vein will be so gradual that it may with certainty be said that ahead of the surface values are sufficiently high to be mined with profit, values approximately the same will be found at any depths to which mining operations can be carried; for, should the fracture zone pass from greenstone to porphyry the same general of the fractures and of the mineralization will be found, but the angles and probably would be different."

The following should be note is that these and other statements made almost ten years ago have been proved to be correct in the case of every property in the Red Lake district in which any real development program has been carried out.

This line of reasoning places some of the best properties in that district such as Gold Eagle, Red Crest, May Sipiers, Paulore and Lake Rowan Gold Mines in the very favorable position and the progress being made in developing these properties will be watched with considerable interest.

No Step Up at Pickle Crow Until More Ore Developed

The forecast step-up in tonnage at the Pickle Crow mill from its current rate of 300 tons daily to 400 tons must wait at least a year, shareholders were told by H. E. Bodgson, director of mining at the annual meeting. He estimated reserves at approximately 350,000 tons of ore indicated and blocked from the 350-ft. level down to the 750-ft. level.

Setting the bigger stocks were by far the outstanding features in yesterday's local trading, with Distillers-Seagrams assuming the leadership in the heavy volume. From the action of these stocks it would appear as though the American tax claim against four large Canadian distilleries is nearing an adjustment, as has been fully settled.

Nothing of an official character has been given out in connection with the above claim. At first press reports the claim for back taxes, the amount involved was $150,000,000. This was later reduced to $100,000,000 and the latest information is that the United States Treasury is willing to settle for $40,000,000 as owing to the United States Government. It can be confidently assumed that when final settlement is made, the amount will be considerably under $40,000,000.

A large number of traders have been tied up in the liquor stocks for the past month or so, and the better securities will tend to release a substantial amount of "frozen" funds which will no doubt find their way into other securities. The distillery and liquor stocks have lost a great deal of their glamour, a factor which will be in evidence for a year or so ago.

Just as the severe reaction of the past month broke the rising trend that had been in progress for more than a year, so last week's recovery indicated that the buying power temporarily withdrawn during April has again become a market factor. This does not mean that conservatism should be thrown to the winds but it does mean that immediate further sustained advance, but merely that the market has corrected in large measure an unhealthy internal situation.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, May 14—Lack of uniformity in the movement of the stock market today was typical of all in the base metal shares marked today's trade on the mining section of the Toronto exchange today. Among spots in the yellow metal group were Paymaster, McLeod-Cockshutt, McKenzie, Perron while Hollinger, Sylvanite, Lamaque, McWatters, Chibbougamau, Sylvanite and Malartic.

Base metal stocks shared in the interest on the mining section, stimulated by the good showing of Noranda in the first quarter of 1936. Noranda was active around 56, up a point, Rouyn, Hudson Bay and Sherritt ruled higher. The golds were steady to strong with the volume picking up from a little better than of previous sessions of the week.

Hard Rock and O'Brien continued to change hands at steady to firm prices holdings. McKenzie was in demand at a better quotation. The big golds and the oil shares were watched with considerable interest.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS CLOSE

Toronto, May 14.—(CP)—The big trade on the Toronto Industrial section was in the liquor shares today. Distillers-Seagrams, Brazilian Traction and some of the oils showing fair turnover. Prices were mainly higher at the close though a fair proportion of the early gains, particularly in the distillery stocks, had been dropped under profit-taking. Distillers-Seagrams held a gain of about 3-4 and Brazilian Traction about a point. Industrial Alcohol A were little ahead on the day. Trade in Brazilian picked up much in evidence a year or so ago.

Cheered by the removal of their differences of contention with the United States Government, Canadian Pacific claims, the stocks of the big liquor companies were subjected to a fairly heavy volume, showing the main interest in the industrial section. The general tone was firm to strong.

Distillers-Seagrams touched 26 1-4 and was holding at 26 this afternoon for a net gain of 1-4. Walker-G and Industrial Alcohol A forfeited most of their gains under profit-taking. Ford A improved slightly and other interlisted issues were generally unchanged. Steels, Foods and Utilities were quiet and firm.

ONE WAY STREET

by JOSEPH McCORD

INSTALMENT XI.

"Very well," Blythe said. "But you can't leave me out of it. Just because you fell for that pathetic line about—Oh, you're an idiot! If you think my father would have stood for your lacing him down that way about sending me away from the store, if I hadn't made you? I'm sorry to spoil your heroic role. But I did it for your sake, I wanted you to be a success and everything. And all I've done is make a fool of myself."

"Please don't."

"You might at least spare me your sympathy, Mark. Can't you understand——" A little bit of the sauce sank lustlessly, starry eyes at Sturges with wide-open fear. Eyes brimming with anger and chagrin.

"Just the same, I am sorry," he insisted quietly, "There's nothing to my offer did, if you'll excuse me——"

"Mark——can you go away like that?" Two big tears rolled unchecked down Blythe's cheeks. "I'm," he said steadily, "It's the best way now. You know it."

"All right." He felt completely belittlement, she was smiling as she said it. "We're still friends, aren't we?"

"Of course——Blythe."

"Thank you." She rose and faced him. "We must be friends always. Good night."

NEXT

Coming from a morning conference in Henry Stewart's office, Jean was hurrying through the dress department to her own workroom.

As she circled a display rack, she narrowly escaped colliding with a woman inspecting a gown lifted from the assortment.

"I'm sorry!" Jean apologized breathlessly. "I——"

She was looking into Blythe Cannon's eyes.

"If it isn't Jean Sawyer! I haven't seen you——in ages." Blythe smiled in a friendly fashion as she passed the gown into a nearby model. "I'm on a hunting expedition."

"May I help you?" Jean was a store employee now. Addressing a customer.

"Why, no." The curious appraisal in Blythe's glance that swept Jean from head to foot was in odd contrast to the drawling answer. "I was looking for——inspiration. They tell me you've become very clever."

Jean made no reply.

"Clothes are so tiresome," Blythe shrugged. "It seems to me that all your advance showings here are atrocious."

"It is a little early for the fall showings," Jean suggested quietly.

"That's always a good excuse, but you give me an idea, I wonder——" She strolled her former schoolmate beside.

"Yes?"

"I don't know why it didn't occur to me before. You must have a fine collection of the advance styles. Drawings or something. Have you?"

"I have all the better magazines."

"Let me see them."

Jean led the way to her studio, opened the door and stood aside for Blythe to enter.

"Well! You have a very cozy little place for entertaining friends, too."

Without answering, Jean drew a chair close to the table and produced a number of magazines which she laid within easy reach of her visitor. Blythe seated herself leisurely, scanning the room as she drew off her gloves. Then she took her cigarettes from her bag and offered them to Jean.

"Will you have one?"

"Thank you, no."

"Don't Indians? I suppose you don't mind if I smoke in here."

"Of course not. I hope you'll excuse me if I go to work. I have a sketch that Mr. Stewart wishes."

"Of course. Don't let me interfere with your progress."

Blythe made no move to inspect the magazines, but sat watching Jean who was bent over her table, pencil pouring hastily.

"Do you like that sort of thing?" She visitor inquired abruptly.

"Very much."

Jean did not raise her head. Her heart was beating uncomfortably, despite her outward composure. She had a growing feeling that this encounter with Blythe Cannon had been rather carefully planned. It became a certainty when the latter left her chair and strolled over to the window. After a moment of silence, Blythe turned quickly to say:

"Miss Sawyer, I was hoping I might meet you this morning."

"I thought so."

Jean laid aside her pencil and looked erect. Her chin was lifted in a fashion that seemed vaguely familiar to the girl watching her from the other side of the board. Jean was relieved to find that she had perfect control of her voice.

"Please don't flatter yourself that I was the only reason," was Blythe's cool rejoinder. She dropped her cigarette to the floor and ground it out viciously with the toe of her shoe. "I have to see about some new clothes——quite a few. I expect to take a trip this fall. Abroad, I suppose."

"That will be nice."

"Oh, there's nothing exciting about Europe. But this trip may be ——different."

"Yes?"

"Quite different."

"And that was what you wished to tell me."

"No. It is not." The drawl vanished. There was a sharpness in the words. "I'm a very little, if any, older than you are, Miss Sawyer. But I have had considerably more experience, I dare say. I'm going to be perfectly frank. Are your own good?"

"Yes?" It was said in the same impassive tone.

She was going to be brazen then, Blythe concluded. It would make it easier.

"It is only natural that I should be interested in my father's business——in the store. That is why I am going to suggest you might be more judicious in your associates."

"I'm afraid I don't understand."

The color was slowly leaving Jean's face. It was the only sign of feeling that she betrayed.

"Yes, you do. I always have believed that girls in business were inferior to accept attentions from their employers.——And when it comes to sitting in parked cars——well, my dear, people are very apt to draw unpleasant conclusions."

Something she saw in the depths of the clear brown eyes gazing into hers made Blythe suddenly conscious she might have ventured too far.

"I'm only trying to help you," she resumed. "Men are inclined to be careless in such matters. They create impressions without intending to. You'll find they're all alike." She attempted a friendly smile.

"I see. Did Mr. Sturges ask you to——correct some impression?"

"Certainly not! I'm sure he would not wish to hurt your feelings to such an extent. His friends are his own concern. We never discuss them." Blythe explained loftily. "It did seem to me, though, you must have experienced enough trouble here without adding to it. Of course I don't expect you to thank me."

"I'm afraid I don't."

Blythe stared at Jean suspiciously. There had seemed the faintest suggestion of an apology.

"Have it your own way," the caller snapped. The situation seemed to be slipping from her control. "But if you wish to know what I think——"

She paused in sheer amazement. She had forgotten the existence of those two mischievous dimples.

The door had no sooner closed upon Blythe's angry exit than the pencil dropped from Jean's shaking fingers. Her head bent low over the board. Her face was buried in her two arms.

For a long time she sat there, motionless. Until a hasty rap on her door caused her to sit up and stare in bewildered fashion. A sidelight threw her head into the studio.

"Somebody wants you on the phone outside, Miss Sawer."

It proved to be Nan Gamble.

"Sorry to bother you during hours, Gorgeous."

"That's quite all right."

"Can you drop in here on your lunch hour…… before you eat?"

"Why, I think so."

"Fine, I want to see you."

Jean hung up the receiver mechanically. What now?

"Hello," was Nan's cheery greeting when Jean came into the shop. "I've been upstairs playing around with a new salad. You're going to help me discuss it, as the books say. Are you game?"

"Of course. It must be that you're not very busy today."

"Just so-so. I think your place is beginning to get my trade. Think I can get a job there when the worst comes to the worse?"

"I'm sure you can. But there's no danger of that."

Jean was glad to find her friend in an unusually talkative humor. She had attempted to put some color in her cheeks before leaving the store, but it would be a difficult matter to disguise her shaken nerves should Nan become suspicious. The older woman was uncanny at times in her perceptions.

However, Miss Gamble rambled on in a garrulous fashion until the salad and coffee were out of the way. Then she startled Jean by demanding suddenly:

"How's the old chin?"

"My chin? Gracious! I look all right?"

"Much better than your cheeks." She scrutinized the girl on the other side of the little table shrewdly. "I'm going to do a job of butting in. Do you mind?"

"Of course not, Nan."

INSTALMENT XI.

"What it's like this." Miss Gamble seemed at a loss to express her idea quickly. "You know, Gorgeous, this job is a sort of clearing house for scandal. I never try to clamp a lid on it……too interesting," she conceded shamelessly. "But I've heard something lately that started me to wondering——"

"And that was?" Jean asked it calmly.

"About our friend Sturges. The story is that he's all set to marry his job. I should say, Edythe is all set to marry him……at least that's the way it was slipped to me. Heard anything like that?"

"Yes."

"Think it's true?"

"Blythe told me as much……today."

"What!"

She dropped in for a little chat this morning! Jean met Nan's gaze without flinching.

"Ah!" Miss Gamble nodded her burnished head sagely. There was a sudden light of understanding in the hazel eyes. "Can you feature a face like that?" she demanded softly. "So that's what all the outburst of rouge is about. She's not so sure about the boy friend after all. Told you keep your mitts off him, didn't she?"

"Of course not. Why should she?"

"Because you've got her worried," Nan declared with a grim chuckle. "She needn't be. It's no concern of mine."

"See here, Gorgeous…… don't try that on me. I wasn't born last year. That Sturges man thinks a lot of you. He doesn't try to hide it. But I never would have put him down for a double-crosser. I don't get it——"

"Please, Nan." Jean pushed back her chair and stood up. "It doesn't concern me in the least, I must go. The salad was lovely."

"Yeah!" Nan came over and laid one plump hand on the girl's slim shoulder. She placed the other under Jean's chin and looked steadily into the brown eyes. They met her scrutiny bravely, but there was a lonesomeness in the young body that did not escape the gentle hands.

THE TARZAN TWINS

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Despite Intanco's plea that the Tarzan Twins be killed at once, Chief Caila Galla shook his head and ordered them returned with their two fellow captives to the prison pot. The boys noted that Bualala was acting strangely, as if he had beheld some ghostly apparition.

In the but he had no time telling them the source of his horror. "Me hear Chief and witch doctor. They know Tarzan him come look for you. When he coming, somehow they kill 'im. Then they kill 'em you!" Dick and Doc stared at each other in wide-eyed, terrified silence.

Slowly the realization dawned upon them that not only their own lives, but the life of Dick's cousin, Tarzan, he who drawing nearer and nearer to the district where the warrior-couriers of the wicked Caila Galla were scouring the wilderness to conquer the mighty ape-man!

At that moment, Tarzan was in no danger, but in his feverish search for some trace of the Tarzan Twins, he was drawing nearer and nearer to the district where the warrior-couriers of the wicked Caila Galla were scouring the wilderness to conquer the mighty ape-man!

FAMOUS WAR HERO ADVOCATED

His Tuesday Dinner

Toronto, May 14.—Field Marshal Viscount Allenby was a guest of honor with Admiral of the Fleet Sir Geoffrey Phillpotts at the Canadian Corps reunion in Toronto Aug. 12, 1925.

The distinguished officers inspected the Corps camp at Exhibition Park and reviewed the massed battalions of returned men. Viscount Allenby was received with enthusiastic demonstrations and esteem on all occasions.

The Field Marshal carried out all his many engagements in connection with the reunion until the evening of Monday, Aug. 4, when he was stricken with a bad attack of bleeding at the nose while taking dinner at the Royal Canadian Yacht Club.

Removed to the Toronto General Hospital he was under the care of Dr. Jerry Goldsmith for about four days. He left Toronto with Lady Allenby, motored to England, on Thursday, Aug. 6.

Cathedral Service

At 12:30 p.m. today (7:30 a.m. E. D. T.) the Viscount was in his study when he collapsed. He died almost instantly, a member of the household said.

Three other prominent British war-time military leaders have died within the last twelve months. They were Viscount Byng of Vimy, a former Governor-General of Canada; Earl Jellicoe and Earl Beatty, who in turn held during the war the post of commander-in-chief of the British fleet.

Viscount Allenby's character was strikingly illustrated when he entered Jerusalem with his successful invading forces. In respect to the associations which the Holy city has for Christian and other faiths, Allenby entered the city on foot, instead of riding.

Title of "Gold Stick".

Allenby took little part in public life after his return from Egypt in 1925 although, with Field Marshal Sir William Birdwood, another famous war commander, he remained a prominent figure on the occasions so gold stick-in-waiting.

The picturesque title was derived from the gold-headed staff first presented by King Charles the first to the captain of the band of gentlemen waiting in 1676.

He lived with Lady Allenby in a quiet ordinary-looking house in the South Kensington district of London. There he had a wonderful collection of birds and spent most of his time in the study he had fitted as an insectaria lay in music and the theatre, which he also favored considerable sums to the British National Opera Company.

Captain At Dover.

From 1920 to 1926 he was captain of Dover Castle, but resigned with the comment: "There was nothing between me and sea but the white cliffs below except Cologne Cathedral and that wasn't very effective. The authorities refused to stop the draught or install central heating, so I packed up."

Fifteen years after his triumphal entry into the Holy City during the Great War, Allenby returned to Jerusalem in 1933 and spent his 72nd birthday attending the dedication ceremonies of the new million dollar Y.M.C.A. building there.

His title goes to his nephew, Dudley Jeffrey Hyman Allenby, an officer in the 11th Hussars. Allenby's only son, Michael Hyman, was killed in action in France, July 1917.

A. & N. VETERANS HOLD OPEN NIGHT

Celebrate Fourth Anniversary of Occupation of Memorial Hall

Open night was observed at the Memorial Hall last evening on the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the occupation by the Army and Navy Veterans of the headquarters. Returned veterans from throughout the district attended the meeting in force. Invitations were extended to all veteran clubs to attend.

Chairman Jack Simpson, president Queen's Boyd, of the local Army and Navy branch, extended his congratulations to those present, with a particularly warm welcome to the visitors and distinguished guests, including Mayor Harry Hill, Rev. H. Bedi, Provincial Commander, D. Murchie, Captain Stratton, K.C., past president of the Provincial Command, Lt. Col. R. A. Geen, Sergt. Major Wrberly of the Royal Canadian Air Force Camp, Trenton, and others.

On minutes reverend silence was observed as the start of the meeting in honor of departed comrades by the veterans, after which a brief program of vaudeville was delivered by Mayor Harry Hill. The meeting was preceded by a series of lantern slides and a travelogue talk delivered by Bev. Harold Reid of his experiences and scenes observed during a recent trip to the Mediterranean. Singing was led by Sergt. Major Wrberly who also gave several clever instrumental solos and recitals, basing his experiences and army days.

As guest speaker of the evening, Captain Stratton of Toronto of the provincial command, delivered an illuminating address on the re-establishment of veterans in civil life, voicing some time also to topics connected with the pensioning.

A banquet and a social evening culminated the most successful evening.

MAN IS STRUCK BY M.P.P.'S CAR

Cross-examined by W. . Nickle, K.C., counsel for the accused, Mrs. Ross declared he was not in accident from a window of a residence 100 yards east of the garage opposite which McAlonan was hit. The noise of the car passing the residence attracted his attention and on looking out the window he saw the accident.

Referred Must "Strike-out"

Continuing his cross-examination of Shannon, Nickle drew from the witness the statement he (Simpson) believed McAlonan had seen the car approaching and "stiffened" up noticeably from his slightly stooping walk across the road. The accident was north of the centre line of the highway and Mills swerved his car in that direction just before McAlonan was hit.

At the conclusion of the cross-examination Simpson was compelled by the Judge on the evidence of his testimony.

Lawrence Leadbeater, Bosley's Bay —sixth witness for the crown, was with Shannon, he testified. He heard the crash and on looking out the window saw a man's body lying in the road and a car swerving on the north side of the pavement to the shoulder. The car continued on and was brought to a stop crosswise of the pavement. By means of a sketch submitted as evidence by Constable Downley, Kingston, Wednesday afternoon, Leadbeater gave evidence as to skid and oil marks on the road and the position in which McAlonan's body lay.

Dreary Mills Scene

He told also of the damaged headlight on Mills' car after the accident. Leadbeater knew deceased for many years. The hearing of the deceased was considered good for a man of 70 years.

Leadbeater, in cross-examination, changed his evidence from the preliminary hearing by saying the oil spot on the pavement was 40 feet from the body rather than 15 feet.

Miss Marjorie McAlonan, daughter of the deceased, said she was in an upstairs room of her home and heard the approaching car and the crash directly opposite. She saw the car swerve across the pavement but did not see it stop as she had run out to assist in giving her father care. Later she talked to S. A. V. Martin, Odessa, a passenger in the car with Ellis, and the defendant.

She asked Ellis how it happened but she could not recall his reported reply he thought she could smell something off Ellis but would not say he was intoxicated. He was very nervous. She saw a party filled glass in bottle in Ellis' car after the accident but "nothing wrong", otherwise.

Under cross-examination Miss McAlonan said that May 24 was the day her father had been ill. He was attended by Dr. Young, Bosley's boy and Dr. W. T. Connell, in Kingston. In the six or eight months prior to the accident her father was "tired" but she noticed no change in his way of walking.

Other than a "smell" off Mills she detected nothing to indicate liquor served any part in the fatality, she testified.

NOT RECEIVING ATTENTION

EXTEND SCOPE

Radio Autocracy

Mr. Ashcroft referred to the Canadian Radio Commission as "that celebrated radio autocracy now under investigation." He said he had arranged the first broadcast of the British Parliament and the first Christmas Empire broadcast, subsequently he said the Radio Commission was claiming for itself.

Radio Commission activities had been constantly "punctuated with blunders," he continued. This was particularly evident in the political broadcasts.

Senator R. Woodsworth protested the witness should not be permitted to criticize or make charges against the Radio Commission.

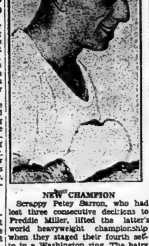
Mr. Martin (Lib., Essex East) agreed in principle but thought the "personal recriminations" could do no harm and were rather diverting.

Mr. Woodsworth moved that Mr. Ashcroft be called upon at once to proceed with his recommendations for improving broadcasting and omit criticism. Mr. Martin seconded the motion and it was carried.

Step 3 Days Before Vote

Mr. Ashcroft suggested that political broadcasting should stop three days before polling, with the time on the air equitably divided on the last day among the various parties.

Referring to difficulties between the Canadian Performing Rights Society and the commission, Mr. Ashcroft suggested a portion of the license fee be set aside to compensate the holders of rights in those compositions necessary to broadcasts.



Any governing body set up to control radio in Canada should be non-partisan and disinterested, Mr. Ashcroft said. Actual supervision should be by a competent general manager and the government should own no station other than a powerful short-wave receiving station.

Harry Sedgewick of Toronto, representing the Canadian Association of Broadcasters operating 14 stations from Halifax to Vancouver, was the next witness.

Radio and Public Interest

Mr. Sedgewick not present his brief because, he said, it was similar to those presented previously by representatives of the associations of Canadian advertisers and advertising agencies. He was not prepared to express an opinion other than a powerful short-wave receiving station.

Radio advertising engendered newspaper advertising it combined able volume, Mr. Sedgewick said, and most radio campaigns were conducted in conjunction with newspaper campaigns.

NEW CHAMPION

Scrappy Petey Sarron, who had lost three consecutive decisions to Freddie Miller, lifted the latter's world featherweight championship when they staged their fourth setto in a Washington ring. The hairy Petey battered Miller. His game's most active kingpin, with a terrific two-fisted attack to take the verdict.

FLOOD WATERS AT HIGH PEAK

Ottawa River Highest For The Past Eight Years

Ottawa, May 14 (CP) — Flood waters of the Ottawa River today reached their highest peak in eight years and at many points wharves, roads and beaches were flooded and bridges menaced. At the same time the Gatineau River also rose to a peak and the water was within inches of the floorings of several bridges, some of which were believed to be in danger of being swept away.

While the situation along the Ottawa River was most alarming, some residents of a summer resort at Hartfield, 40 miles west of Ottawa, were obliged to use boats to get to their houses.

Other sections of Hawkesbury, Ont., 50 miles east of Ottawa were flooded and residents were ready to move to higher ground should the condition arise. Earth dams have been placed on railway bridges to prevent the structures being swept away.

At Gatineau Point, four miles east of Ottawa, water continued to rise at the rate of about nine inches a day. The residents had moved to the second floor of their homes and others were prepared to leave should the water rise much higher.

The flood situation in the upper Gatineau district was also regarded as cut off by flood waters.

DAMAGE CLAIM

The Privy Council in March 1933, granted leave to appeal from the reserved decision last March in the case.

What the next move in the legal battle would be was not known immediately here. It was understood that the case would be taken eventually to the Supreme Court of Canada by the appellants.

When the case was before the Ontario Court of Appeal, Mr. Justice Dunlop, K.C., for the Exchequer Court of Canada, had awarded $1,000,000 damages, the recovery of the money.

CNR. Is Provincial Interest.

Their Lordships find that the Ontario National Railways has no beneficial interest in the lands on which was only received for the purpose of forming the right of entrance. The only person who—if the stock still exists and the claim of the plaintiff succeeds—would be deprived of the stock would be the Crown.

Mr. Justice Kerwin (of the Ontario High Court), dissenting, very much further, the finding said. The action brought by the plaintiff originally sought also relief by way of damages against the defendant company, but this part of the claim in removing the plaintiff's name from the register.

Ottawa, May 14 (CP)—Government comment on the decision of the judicial committee of the Privy Council allowing the appeal of George Lovibond on behalf of the Grand Trunk stockholders, was withheld today pending study of the judgment.

New York's Legislature Ends Longest Session With Two Hour Sitting

Albany, N.Y., May 14 (AP)—New York's legislature ended its longest session since 1911 as the sun rose today, passing a 41-hour burst of bill pearing and filling.

Nevertheless, both Houses approved reducing age pensions requirements from 70 to 65 years.

Weary legislators, harassed by 19 weeks of consecutive sessions, had to be led back to their seats time after time as they voted on hundreds of last-minute bills.

The session's closing required treatment at the Capitol hospital, for exhaustion, but there was no serious illness. One or two had minor injuries.

Plan is Removing Irresponsible Drivers

Philadelphia, May 14.—(AP)— J. P. Bickell, registrar of Motor vehicles for the Province of Ontario, said yesterday the financial responsibility plan is removing irresponsible drivers from the highways.

He recommended adoption elsewhere of the plan in an address at the convention of the eastern conference of motor vehicles administrators. Bickell said the plan was adopted in Ontario after a study disclosed its advantages over the system of compulsory insurance legislation.

Any driver involved in an accident resulting in damage to persons or property must file a statement of financial responsibility.If the driver is unable to do this, his license is suspended and revoked if claims are not paid.

INCREASE IN DEPOSITS

Ottawa, May 14 (CP)—An increase of $3,482,904 was shown in deposits by the Dominion government with the Bank of Canada in the week ended May 13 compared with the previous week, according to the weekly statement of the bank issued today.

In the same period deposits by chartered banks declined by $11,462,235.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Thirteen Hours By Air"

A dramatic story of romance and intrigue aboard a speeding transcontinent plane, opens at the Belle Theatre to-morrow, (Friday), for two days, matinee daily.

Fred MacMurray and Joan Bennett play the leading roles in the film and play them for all they are worth. The two leads are supported by a big and extremely capable cast including Zazu Pitts, John Howard, Bennie Bartlett, Grace Bradley, Alan Baxter, Brian Donlevy, Sloth Donnelly and Fred Keating. Mitchell Leisen, who made "Hands Across the Table", directed the new film, and as in his latest respect, his latest effort has all the speed and smoothness of the former.

On th same program the No. 1 Stuff or Jack Arnar's "Prize Winning Canadian Amateurs on Parade" presents with the big act starring the stars of the Amateur Contest conducted at Loew's Theatre, Toronto. It is a truly satisfying program which has been heralded with wide acclaim throughout Ontario.

One of the most interesting of the amateurs is Audre Bourne, the sixteen year old personality girl who took them by storm on the Shea stage only a short time ago. Audre was born with a song in her heart which has found expression in her vocals and dancing feet. When she was seven she appeared on the stage at the Imperial Theatre, Toronto, at a time when Helen Kane was making a name for herself. Encouraged by the excellence of her imitation of the great radio and screen star that she literally brought down the house and won the prize. For the past year Audre has been playing the accordion and does it exceptionally well.

Although they resided in the Toronto neighborhood in Toronto from Mitchell, 32, Harry Templar, 21, Tom Stewart, 22, and Al Anning, 23 George Boyd, 18, and Al Anning, 23 had never met until they found themselves assignment at the same

AT THE CAPITOL

"Magnificent Obsession"

It is difficult to attempt a dispassionate review of "Magnificent Obsession," Universal's John M. Stahl production which opened an engagement at the Capitol theatre yesterday, with Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor in the starring roles. Harsly has the screen shown a more touching motion picture than this, filled as it is with heartquickening drama and delightful comedy—a skillful blending of light and shade, revealing the story of the compelling power of a great love. Here, indeed, is a picture which will be remembered for years as an outstanding example of screen artistry.

The charming Miss Dunne plays the greatest role of her career, and her performance even equals the best of "Cimarron" and "Back Street." During a part of the picture she is blind, and her experiences brought tears to the eyes of almost everyone in the audience. Taylor is revealed as a dramatic actor of exceptional ability and fully justifies Hollywood's assessment that the handsome young man is the most important screen discovery of the year. Scenes between these two are presented with stirring dramatic realism. Osborn is the cad who do especially good work are Charles Butterworth, whose comedy is de-

MAYOR BUSY AS QUADS' MANAGER

Four Babies Drawing Away From Perils of Premature Birth

Passaic, N.J., May 14 (AP) — Dr. Frank F. Jani was pictured today as the guiding spirit behind the careers of the Kasper quadruplets as well as the guardian of their health.

As the babies entered their sixth day of life, slowly drawing away from the perils of the premature birth under the physician's watchful eye, Mayor Benjamin F. Turner disclosed that it was the 32-year-old Dr. Jani who induced him to become business manager from the tiny but lusty-lunged quintet.

Turner has found his new duties require plenty of time.

One firm, he said, has paid $50,000 to the Dionne quintuplets, and is now negotiating with him for the right to feature the Kasper quadruplets in his advertising. No figure has been set, the mayor said, and the offer has not been made by a newspaper syndicate which, under its contract with the family, has the right to censor endorsements.

The newspaper contract and a freewill gift of $600 down and $100 a month from a California woman have already showered on the babies more prosperity than their father, with two other children, has ever known. Kasper gave up the luxury of heading in their reflection to return today to his $22-a-week job in a railroad round house at Secaucus.

So assured of the babies' progress were the nurses at St. Mary's Hospital that they dispensed with the afternoon weighing ceremony yesterday. Three of the four had shown gains in the morning.

FATE OF 2 PRISON GUARDS UNKNOWN

24 Convicts in Break From Oklahoma Penitentiary Take Guards as Hostages

McAlester, Okla., May.14 (AP)—The fate of two prison guards was hidden today on the cold trail of a ruthless band of convicts who quickly killed one hostage in a dash from the Oklahoma State penitentiary.

Bloodhounds baying through the brush country west of here throughout the night, but picked up no scent for the scores of officers in pursuit.

Twelve hours after 24 convicts flashed knives and escaped from the prison brickyard, eight of them remained at large.

Five of the armed fugitives—robbers and slayers—were believed to be in one car, from which the bullet-pierced body of A. D. Powell, brickyard foreman was tossed. Search for three others was concentrated in a wooded section northwest of here, where a prison ice truck was found abandoned.

The two guards at their mercy were Tom Cope and Victor Conn. Another hostage, W. W. Gossett, was wounded in an exchange of shots as the fugitives sped away from the brickyard towards yesterday.

Vancouver, May 14 (CP)—Rev. W. H. Gale, in charge of Japanese missionary work here, believes Buddhism and Shintoism is sweeping British Columbia. "Some Buddhist temples are springing up in different parts of the province," he said an Anglican meeting here yesterday.

2 PROPOSALS TO AMEND B.N.A. ACT BEFORE COMMONS

Subject to Severe Criticism by Former Premier And Hon. Cahan

HOUSE IN FURORE

Statement Made by Social Creditor is Expunged From Records

Ottawa, May 15 (CP)—Proposals looking to an amendment to the British North America Act respecting the financial relations between the Dominion and the Provinces were subject to severe criticism in the House of Commons last night from Conservative leader R. B. Bennett and Hon. C. H. Cahan, former Secretary of State. The debate continued today with Mr. Bennett continuing his speech.

Amendments to the act, which is the constitution of Canada, must be made by the Imperial Parliament and the question came before the House in the form of an address to the King asking for these two suggested changes.

The first would permit the provinces to impose indirect taxation on retail sales and the patronage of hotels, restaurants and amusements. Hitherto the provinces have been restricted to direct taxation. The second would empower either direct or indirect levies. The amendments would be submitted in order to remove any doubts as to the validity of existing provincial taxes.

The second would authorize the Dominion to guarantee provincial bonds of any province and to enter into agreements with provinces as to conditions under which assistance to the establishment of loan councils to control provincial borrowing.

The two Conservative veterans claimed the proposals were unnecessary and even dangerous. Mr. Cahan, who was fighting political battles in Nova Scotia not long after Confederation, said the British North America Act represented long and careful thought and to interfere with it in the provisions, such as the division of the field of taxation was something to which should not be done lightly.

While Mr. Lapointe, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance, held a ministerial conference Mr. Bennett assailed both proposals.

Dominion Loses Right.

As to the first, he said, by granting to the provinces the right to impose indirect taxation on retail sales the Dominion lost the right to impose the taxation itself. The provinces had already exhausted the debt right to impose taxes on gasoline and amusements by a direct levy on the people. They needed no further power.

House In Furore.

John Blackmore, leader of the Social Credit group in the House, into a furore by relaying anonymous charges that an American clique is to place Canada under the control of Wall Street.

The former school teacher from Lethbridge refused to accept responsibility for the statement or disclose the author, finally withdrawing it after a storm of protests arose. The incident was climaxed by Deputy Speaker Sanderson ordering the statement expunged from the record and proceeding unheard or in years.

While attacking the government resolution, Mr. Blackmore first gave a caution to "money power" was attempting to enslave all mankind.

30 MILLION GAS MASKS FOR PEOPLE OF BRITAIN

London, May 15 (AP)—Geoffrey Lloyd, Undersecretary of the Home Office, announced today, that the British government plans to produce 30,000,000 gas masks to safeguard civilians against any type of gas in war time.

He told questioners in the House of Commons that the final design for the respirations had not been decided upon but models of the best ones all would be of British manufacture.

BULL FIGHTER USES RED CAPE AGAINST HUMAN ENEMY

Toe recent political upheaval in Spain with its aftermath rioting, did not affect the nation's national sport, bull fighting, and a few days ago, when, at a carnival of several sections of the stadium raised a commotion. The dispatches stated that holders of low-priced seats invaded the higher-priced seats and battled with attendants who asked to leave. The climax of the afternoon came when a spectator jumped into the ring, seized a sword from one of the bull fighters and put on a one-man show. The award-wielding rioter is pictured in the ring, and in action against one of the bull fighters, who is using his red cloak (capa) as a shield; waiting in front of his attacker, as he would wave it in front of a bull. The result of the riot and ensuing scrambling exercises is not recorded in the dispatches.

FLASHES LIGHT, IS SHOT IN LEG

Constable Finds Man in Abandoned Plant At Petrolia

Petrolia, Ont., May 15—(CP)—Police early today shot down a man in the abandoned Petrolia Wagon Works when the man, ordered to throw up his hands is said to have flashed a powerful flash light on police and made a move resembling the act of drawing a gun.

The man, Arthur McTwish, 23, of Appin, was slightly wounded in the leg, and is held by police under guard at the Charlotte Englehart Memorial Hospital here, pending developments.

For some time articles have been missing from the unused factory, including metal, equipment, porcelain sanitary conveniences and other moveable goods. Recently it was discovered someone had gathered up a quantity of electric wire and other articles and placed them in large sacks.

Last night Constable George Parker and Constable Thomas Thompson, hid in the darkened building and saw a man enter and come through the window. When he was near the sack Fowler ordered him to put his hands. When the man put on the flashlight and made a threatening move, the officer reported, he fired, hitting McTwish.

A. ELLIS, M.P.P., FREE OF CHARGE

Judge Says Nothing to Show There Was Gross Negligence

Brockville, Ont., May 15 (CP)—Arthur Ellis, K.C., M.L.A., Ottawa South, was free of a negligence charge today for the first time since Nov. 24, the day his automobile struck and killed Joseph McAlonan, 69, on the highway in the village of Seeley's Bay, Leeds county.

Summing up the evidence of 17 witnesses in 35 minutes last night Judge M. B. Hudspoe found Ellis not guilty on a charge of criminal negligence and immediately discharged him.

His Honor found Ellis had not been driving at an excessive rate of speed at the time of the crash near McAlonan's home. There was no evidence, he said, of liquor entering into the case. There was no condition of gross negligence and Ellis had done nothing nor omitted to do anything, that would bring him in or near a condition of gross negligence.

Ellis, taking the stand in his own defence last night said he saw McAlonan when he was about 50 feet from him. He sounded his horn twice, he said, and when he saw that McAlonan was not going to step he swerved his car sharply to the left in an effort to avoid him. He did not apply his brakes as they were broken and the shock was fractured.

Both Arms Broken And Skull is Fractured

Stadhampton, Oxfordshire, May 15 (CP)—T. Pattison Moss, Oxford University undergraduate and a native of Toronto, was found dead today in the remains of a burned haystack on a farm near Stadhampton.

Cause of death could not immediately be ascertained and an investigation began to determine whether or not Moss had met foul play.

Authorities, however, surmised that Moss had dropped asleep on top of the rick. They believed he fell off the rick and was knocked unconscious. His presence in the district also remained a mystery.

The fire was discovered in the middle of the night by a farmer on the vicinity. Investigation later revealed the badly-burned body of the six-foot student, who has lived in Great Britain for some years. Both arms were broken and the skull was fractured.

Mushroom Poisoning is Fatal To Mrs. J. D. Philp, Warkworth

Eating morels, picked near Warkworth and believed to be non-poisonous by the gatherer, brought death to Mrs. J. D. Philp, 52, of Warkworth in the Belleville General Hospital, yesterday evening, where she was brought in an unconscious condition on Wednesday. Dr. G. H. Stobie was in attendance.

With her sister in that village, the two went to the woods on Sunday and gathered a number of morels and bringing them home prepared the meal, which was eaten on Sunday evening. On Monday Mrs. Philp took ill and gradually became worse until she lapsed into unconsciousness late on Tuesday. Morel poisoning is quite common in this district according to those conversant with the mushroom family, although the symptoms clearly there have been a few cases reported similar to the one in Warkworth. The sister of Mrs. Philp also took ill but as she had not consumed as many of the fungi will recover. She was not brought to the hospital. Dr. G. H. Stobie attended Mrs. Philp.

HUGGARD CASE IS DEVELOPING

Toronto Broker Bonded to Appear as a Witness

Seaforth, Ont., May 15—(CP) Search for John J. Huggard, Seaforth lawyer, missing since April 1, continued today with authorities having investigated his affairs to the extent they had learned securities missing from his safety deposit boxes totalled $127,000, and the pronouncement an unnamed Toronto broker was "connected" with the case.

Crown Attorney Dudley Holmes, of Goderich, refused to say anything further about the matter beyond the fact, that a Toronto broker who he refused to name, was "connected" with the case.

His statement followed development in Toronto, where Gordon C. MacLaren, an investment broker, appeared before General Victor Williams, Provincial Police Commissioner, and was handed to appear as a witness in the Huggard case, whenever he might be called.

Some Bonds Recovered

Toronto police refused to discuss their connection with the case or reveal how far their investigations had proceeded. It was said, however, between $20,000 and $40,000 worth of certificates, believed to have been part of those in Huggard's vault, have been recovered.

Crown Attorney Holmes would not comment, when asked if the Toronto broker he refused to name was the man, who spoke to Huggard over the telephone from New York Monday. Huggard, who left his car at Port Erie, is believed to be in the metropolitan area.

Noted Aviatrix Flies London-Cape Coarse in Three and a Half Days

London, May 15 (CP Cable) — Amy Johnson Mollison's reputation as one of the greatest women fliers today as the wheels of her airplane touched Britain's Croydon field at 2:30 Greenwich Mean Time, ending a brief but brilliant achievement in breaking three long-distance records.

Mrs. Mollison flew from Cape Town, South Africa, four days 19 hours 17 minutes to break the old record by the long margin of nine hours 24 minutes and 46 minutes.

She completed the round-trip flight from London to Cape Town and back within 11 days 19 hours elapsed time.

Her actual time (not counting three days spent in Cape Town between flights) for the round trip was seven days 22 hours 46 minutes.

Her third mark was set on the south-ward flight, which began when Croydon, April 4 and ended May 7 at Cape Town airport. Total leg of the flight she covered in three days six hours 29 minutes, which broke the record held by Flight-Lieutenant Tommy Rose in his round-trip flight of last February 10 days.

Amy Mollison never had a more enthusiastic reception than when she arrived at Croydon at 1.36 p.m. Each flight today, hooters and wildly-shouting crowds were held back by police with difficulty as her plane appeared.

"Here Amy" is Cry

The airdrome was plastered with handbills reading "Bravo Amy" and the cheering greeting was echoed by thousands.

Officials, without waiting for the motors of Mrs. Mollison's plane to stop, hauled the machine to a raised platform from which were the Mayor of Croydon and his wife, Lady Mollison, mother and father-in-law.

She also received congratulations from J. G. Gibson, Associate-Director of Civil Aviation, in the name of high officials of the Air Ministry.

A battery of cameras clicked and Mrs. Mollison stepped from the cockpit to make a speech.

Then she kissed a man an unscheduled halt last night at Graz, Austria, that had delayed her on fly direct from Athens to Croydon but good weather per the Alps forced a change in plans. After an overnight stop at Graz, she hopped off from there shortly after 5 a.m.

Will G. H. Ferguson Contest Leadership of Conservatives?

G. Tyrrell, Organizer, Hints There is Possibility

REFERS TO MOVEMENT

Toronto, May 15 (CP)—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, former Ontario Premier and Canadian High Commissioner in London, is expected to address the Ontario Conservative convention here May 27-28-29 and Carrrel Tyrrell, organizer, today said there was a possibility Mr. Ferguson would contest the leadership of the party.

Mr. Ferguson retired as High Commissioner last fall and is now on a world cruise. He will land at New York May 16 and Mr. Tyrrell said he was expected at the convention where he might enter the leadership race.

"Some things have happened lately that make it a possibility," said Mr. Tyrrell regarding Mr. Ferguson appearing as a candidate for head of the party. As fact there seems to be a strong belief, even in that direction, quite noticeable throughout the province.

Mr. Ferguson was Ontario's Premier from 1923 to 1930.

EARL WILLINGDON WARDEN OF PORTS

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 15.—(CP Cable)—The Earl of Willingdon has been appointed Warden of the Cinque Ports, an honor long associated with India whence Lord Willingdon has just returned after relinquishing office as Viceroy.

A previous Lord Warden was the Duke of Wellington, of Waterloo fame, and also once famous in Moscow as the Saboy General. His immediate predecessor, the late Marquess of Curzon, Lord Willingdon—was a former Viceroy.

The Cinque Ports are an association of Maritime towns in the South of England—originally five in number, but now including a number of other "ancient towns". Formed about the time of the Norman conquest, the duty of the Cinque Ports until the reign of Henry VII was to furnish nearly all the ships and men needed for the King's service, in return for which the ports enjoyed extensive privileges.

Former Resident of Belleville Killed

Miss Mary Doyle, Celebrating 18th Birthday at Time of Death

Cheery notes of the "Happy Birthday" song faded under the over tones of shrieking tires on early Tuesday morning at Rochester, N.Y., when a skidding roadster carried Miss Mary Doyle, pretty dream model, and former resident of Belleville, Ontario, and her escort to instant death and critically injured another couple. It was the end of an impromptu birthday party for Miss Doyle. The speeding car careened in a 60 foot skid, jarped curbing, and cut down a concrete light pole on Lake Avenue. Parts of the car were strewn 300 feet from the place of impact.

The late Miss Doyle was the daughter of Patrick and Mrs. Doyle and was born in this city and about eight years ago moved to Rochester, N.Y. with her parents. Mrs. W. Shannon, 122 Dundas Street, east, of this city is a cousin.

Rev. George S. Buckingham Tells of Work Among Young

At chapel at Albert College this morning there was a link with the past and of a generation ago as Rev. George Hill, Rev. George S. Buckingham of Ottawa, now Canadian representative of the Daily Vacation Bible Schools Association. Mr. Buckingham was introduced to the staff and students by the Rev. A. C. Sinclair.

The graduate of the old Albert brought greetings to the new school his principal, its staff and its student body. He congratulated the college on its progress and wished the students success in the approaching examinations.

Mr. Buckingham said that this year he was marking his twenty-fifth year in the ministry on behalf of children. He related how he was interested by John Ranson to the work for children in connection with the vacation study of the Bible. He had been moved by reading how it was possible to change the attitude of the world in one generation.

Rev. Mr. Buckingham believed that he could secure the best results in giving his study to the lives and development of children. "Just as God revives nations every spring so He revives humanity in every generation", he remarked. "If we do not work for it we do not get mission and still, then let us work with the children."

The speaker was given a warm welcome by Principal Best Howard and the staff and student body.

Mr. Buckingham left at noon today after attending the St. Andrew's Church Synod which has been held in Belleville for two days. Right Rev. George Marshall, Bishop presiding. Next week he goes to New York City to spend the summer there on the invitation of the Daily Vacation Bible Study Association of which Dr. Storlie is the founder.

RIBBON IS CUT AT FOOTBRIDGE

Ceremony at New Structure Takes Place This Afternoon

Under towering skies today Mayor Harry Hill, with a snip of the scissors, severed a band of ribbon on his west end of the newly completed footbridge, shortly after two o'clock this afternoon, declaring the new structure officially opened for traffic.

The new bridge, declared lighter in weight and stronger than the former wooden structure, by Mr. Fulton Anderson, of the Fraser-Brace Construction Company of this city, contractors, is built complete of steel, with wooden floor surface, and is lashed to the same heavy cables which when the old bridge was suspended. Designed by Thos. Byron, engineer of the Disher Steel Co., Belleville, who collaboration with Mr. Patterson, the new bridge is an example of the latest and most improved form of steel bridge architecture. Skilled mechanics of the Disher Steel Company were engaged in its construction.

The new bridge is approximately 130 feet and is slightly less than three feet higher in the centre than the old wooden one.

W. HEIGHINGTON IS A CANDIDATE

Favors Settling School Question in The Courts

Bodbury, Ont., May 13.—(CP)—Dagger Wm. Heighington, 32-year-old Royal Military College graduate and war veteran, was definitely in the race today for leadership of the Ontario Conservative party, he had written a letter definite policy concerning Separate Schools.

Announcing his candidature for the May 28 convention in Toronto, he declared last night that Premier Mr. Davida told the Young Canada Conservative Club of Bodbury last night, that he favored settling the school question in the courts, eventually in the Privy Council Chamber in London.

"This Orange family row," he declared, "must be settled on the Ontario family hearth and, instead of shouting over the fence to our provincial neighbours or sticking the rest of the family on the nose, I think I can settle it myself. I'll go into the family hearth with authority and finally and without leaving the party to apostolically greet without a peddle."

Unlike several other candidates for party leadership, who favor repeal of the Religious Instruction Act, new legislation granting Separate Schools a greater share of Corporation taxes, Mr. Heighington urged a series of questions be placed before the courts.

One of them would be: "Does the 1863 legislation unconstitutionally affect any right or privilege, which the public school supporters had by law in the province at Union?"

Says Brain Operation Cure For Epilepsy

Kansas City, Mo., May 15.—(AP) —A Rochester surgeon devised which points to brain surgery—the removal of just one inch of "nerve" part of the brain—as a possible cure for epilepsy, was reported to the American Medical Association here.

For more than a year at Harvard Medical School this robot detective has been tracking down brain waves like electrical currents flowing from the brains of epileptic attacks. In them it has found clue after clue to the place where epilepsy seems to be generated.

This place now appears to be the frontal lobe, a section of gray matter in the forward part of the brain, which can be safely removed by surgery. Moreover, due to other brain diseases or head accidents, it has been demonstrated that removal of this area does not seriously affect the mind.

MODERN SLUMS WORST SAYS HON. CHAS. G. POWER

TO OFFER, April 15. — Ancient Rome was further advanced in public health practice than were some of Canada's greatest cities when viewed from the standpoint of slums Hon. Charles G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, said last night.

The Federal Minister was speaking at the twenty-second annual convention of the Ontario Health Officers' Association. His reference to present-day slum conditions and his comparisons with Rome were brief, but they reminded the two hundred doctors before him "the citizens of Rome could have a daily bath, which is not possible in our modern slums."

"So long as I remain Minister of Health in Ottawa I will go every length of my way in co-operating with the Ministers of Health to the Provincial Seat of the varied public health bodies." the Minister promised the association.

Trenton and District

Trenton, May 15th.—(Special)—John Wallace of Dundas St. East, who for forty-five years plied the waters of Lake Ontario, celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday here. Mr. Wallace was born in Iroquois, Ont., May 15, 1856, the son of the late Silas Wallace and Rosanna Darling. Mr. Wallace did not attend school, although he has obtained himself since and as well as being able to read and write is a very good figurer. He began at an early age to sail the lakes. He worked hard the first few years of his sailing and was rewarded with his master's engineer's papers. He spent nineteen seasons on the D. H. Van Allan and four seasons on the Maggie Hall for the same company. Mr. Wallace told The Ontario Intelligencer that he had many narrow escapes while sailing was the night. He and his wife spent on Lake Erie, when fifty-two people were drowned. Ninety-four lives were lost on all the lakes on that night.

It was on the night of the 11th of October, 1871, during the first season of the Chicago World's Fair when that calamitous happened. "Well do I remember," stated Mr. Wallace, "for that night Dr. D. H. Van Allan's boiler dropped nine inches and after her saddle irons I had to shut down the boiler and block it so that it would not shift. I then proceeded to put the boiler before I blocked it. We were on our way to Georgian Bay after a load of lumber and had gotten past Long Point on Lake Erie, when the storm broke. We had to turn back as the tow barge, which we were towing, broke her lines and one hour rest of water got into her. We made the Welland Canal, while the tow barge limped into Buffalo. "I'll never forget that time", said Mr. Wallace. "For John never had a wink of sleep for seventy-two hours". Mr. Wallace was on the Stoney Lake, which officially opened the Trent Valley Canal. Mr. Wallace married the former Miss Jane Gibson, daughter of John Gooden of Prescott, Ont., fifty-four years ago at the Anglican Church, Kingston.

They have been the greatest of friends during their long married life and enjoyed every year of their married life. Mrs. Wallace in her modest way says", that John is just like a kitten and cannot stand to be chained a bit. He works every day around the house, drives the car and does all the errands so can see just as far as you can". Mrs. Wallace also seven to think that eighty years of age is so very old because she feels as young as her father, who was ninety-three rowing a three head boat race. Mrs. Wallace is also a keen bowling fan. The races took place on the St. Lawrence and just out from the "Locust". "Father would have been in the walk with a cane," said Mrs. Wallace. Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were married they moved to Trenton, where they have lived ever since. For the past twenty years Mr. Wallace has been living retired but during summer his spare time he makes very beautiful boats, one of which he has his own designs.

LORD ALLENBY

Great figures whose names were on everyone's tongue in the far-near days of the war and of the post-war years, are fast becoming legend. Latest of Britain's mighty war men to "have gone west" is Viscount Allenby, one of the most romantic figures in British military history. He served in a theatre of war which was more romantic than the hard-and-bitter West Front, but is also had difficult problems of its own. He managed over a land more ancient than any in Europe, a land which is a second home to the western world. Palestine, the centre of interest to three religions, Judaism, Christianity and Mohammedanism.

"Sleep, soldiers! Still in honored rest
Your truth and valor wearing;
The bravest are the tenderest,
The loving are the daring."

These lines fit the great conqueror of Palestine.

Warrior, who achieved what others had achieved but what the great Coeur-de-Leon, Richard 1st of England did not achieve—Jerusalem! He did what King Richard never did, he served in the land of the ancient Egyptian Kings as British High Commissioner. He served in other capacities and he served the cause of education. He also served the ways of peace, recently deploring the ultra-nationalist spirit of some nations which he saw threatening the peace of the world and forecasting a world federation of states, protected by an international police force.

He is numbered among the great soldiers, and men of military genius but he does not go down to memory as one who sought renown for his own sake, but rather as one who served in the interest of his country and then of the world. He was not one who dreamed of "seeking the bubble reputation in the cannon's mouth."

Of him one may say in the lines of Sir Walter Scott who knew the mettle of British heroes if ever man did—

"Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er,
Sleep the sleep that knows not breaking,
Morn of toil, nor night of waking."

Viscount Allenby has long since ceased from active service, and it was a peaceful world he contemplated for he like a true soldier knew peace is an ideal superior to war, and that war can only be the last resort to a people which respects honour.

With Allenby a new day has dawned for Palestine. It is becoming prosperous and its last few years have not been darkened with depression. Jewish people world over have been cheered and thrilled as they see the march of progress in their homeland.

NEXT AIR DEVELOPMENT

Is the world at the stage of witnessing the arrival of transoceanic and transcontinental travel by lighter-than-air machines? The Hindenburg Zeppelin has made another record, cutting the time from Lakehurst to Friedrichshafen to a minimum quite unexpected. Word from the Zeppelin company is that the Hindenburg is definitely on the route.

A balloonist promises to take his balloon across the Atlantic shortly. He has twice won the Gordon Bennett balloon cup.

Airplanes have not quite reached such security as the gas-bags have attained, for the primary reason that they are heavier-than-air machines.

It begins to look as if the air is going to bring the next news of transportation progress.

Such elimination of time as has been won by constant effort is one of the greatest signs of the age in the opening up of the entire world.

Yesterday it was said in the British Commons that Britain was making thirty million gas masks for the British people to be used in the event of air raids. This is proof of the long range and speed airplane squadrons. That civilians should require gas masks is a sad commentary on the result of the narrowing of the world of today, but while it is that, it is also evidence of the air-mindedness of people whether in the theatre of war or in peaceful undertakings.

We bereaved are not alone. We belong to the largest company in all the world—the company of those who have known suffering. When it seems that our sorrow is too great to be borne, let us think of the great family of the heavy-hearted into which our grief has given us entrance, and inevitably we feel about us their arms, their sympathy, their understanding.—Helen Keller.

Shall we call ourselves benevolent, when the gifts we bestow do not cost us a single privation.—Degerando.

You cannot have religion after you have bowed God out of the universe.—Rev. W. H. Spence.

WHEN THE BIRDS COME HOME

There is joy in my heart when the birds come home;
As they wing their way 'neath the azure dome,
I love the glint of each flashing wing,
My heart is atune with the songs they sing;
O'er field and fallow and furrowed loam
I watch their flight when the birds come home.

There is cheer in my heart when the birds come back
As they wend their way o'er the airy track,
For the songs they sing drive the gloom away
And the memory drear of a winter's day;
And the spirit soars as on wings to roam
In that glad hour when the birds come home.

There's new life in my heart when the birds return;
Their presence answers my spirit's yearn;
And faith returns, like the morning light
To dispel the gloom of sorrow's night;
I can trust His care, who o'er land and foam
Guides their weary flight when the birds come home.

MOTHER'S DAY WAS WELL OBSERVED IN BELLEVILLE

If the reports from merchants, advertisers in this newspaper, can be taken as criterion. Florists sold completely out after preparing vast quantities of various varieties for the occasion, and the demand for candy in Mother's Day boxes exceeded every previous record by many pounds. One advertiser sold 900 pounds of a popular brand, well advertised in this paper. Merchants also benefited by other purchases on Mother's Day account and many a mother wore a new dress or coat or hat to church. Mother's Day stimulates trade while it also stimulates that kindly sentiment of love and affection which makes life seem brighter and more worth while to those who have faced the heat and burden of the day in the battle of life to make a home and provide for the future of the children. Mother's Day is worth while.

TWENTY-FOURTH OF MAY IS THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY

and if they don't give us a holiday we'll all run away. Remarkable how the kindly spirit of good Queen Victoria lives on—she good she lived lives after her, surely. GRAND RELIEF

National Executive Committeeman Ray Hardy of Michigan tells of a sergeant making his way about his platoon one dark night. He heard the roar of a G. I. can overhead and fell into a shell hole. It was already occupied by a private, who was hit full in the stomach by the sergeant's head. There was a tense moment of silence, except for some long, deep breathing. Finally the private asked:

"Is that you, serge?"

"It's me all right."

THE TALLEST YET FROM OXFORD

The guard noticed a piece of fluff in his whistle as he was about to signal the train out. In shaking it, the pea fell out. Hastily he sent a porter to purchase some. On his return, however, he disgustedly noticed the porter had brought split peas. There was not time to exchange them, so he hastily put one in his whistle. He blew lustily, but imagine his horror when only half the train moved out.

ICE

Ice generally stays around too long in winter and disappears too soon in summer. The latter part of January may make the weird intriting but it's up to us to make it comfortable.

Among the most popular places for ice are on the top of a lake and in the bottom of a glass of lemonade, and among the least popular places are in your bed and down on their way home by getting slipped in your back.

A bucket of water needs more room when it's ice than what it did when it was water on account of water expanding when it turns into ice. For this reason the most uncomfortable sensation a person could have would be to be chock full of water and then suddenly freeze inside.

Ice saves millions of peoples lifes every year by forming on top of deep water and keeping ice skaters from falling through and getting drownded. On the other hand it is libel to brake the same peoples legs when they least expect it.

This proves if we're not writing to take the libel with the sweet it's libel to be forced on us.

The smallest cakes of ice are hailstones and the biggest are icebergs, and the world would be a much unsafer place to live in if the 2 ever changed places.

Cannot Force Backward Child

Special Handling is Required to Make Him a Normal Type

By LISA GRENELLE

AFTER THE [illegible] test) the doctor remembered Alfred's mother on Alfred having retained his sense of security, in spite of his handicaps.

The doctor meant that Alfred, in spite of being mentally handicapped, was not conscious of his retardation. He was confident, eager and friendly, instead of being shy, sullen and afraid, which, the doctor said, is usually the mental attitude of these handicapped children.

Mother was pleased and justified at last for following a course of action not recommended or approved by other members of the family, or even the world at large.

You see, Alfred, though mentally handicapped, was not mentally deficient. He was not an idiot by a long way. No blank or goofy expression had ever crossed his face. He was simply abnormally slow. His mind idle, easily frightened, and he couldn't shift his thoughts from one subject to another without time and difficulty.

Of course, Alfred's family didn't understand all this in the beginning. They did not realize that Alfred was really handicapped at all. He had been slow in toddling, walking and talking, but that, the baby specialist assured, usually didn't necessarily mean anything.

Unhappy at School

So Alfred was sent to school at the normal age and was very unhappy and upset. He learned nothing, of course, and developed, apparently a defiant attitude, and he was removed at the school master's request.

He was then put under a tutor, whom he learned to read a little. But his parents, especially his father, who was anxious to make a normal boy out of Alfred, kept him from the care of the tutor and put him back at one of the city's normal schools.

There he appeared to be somewhat happier, but at the end of three years, not only had he learned nothing at all, but he had developed with the reading he had learned under the tutor.

Having no other child of similar age with whom to compare him, Alfred's parents still did not realize that the child was suffering under a definite mental handicap, but they tried to place Alfred in a commercial boys' school, where fortunately the head master refused to accept him. He suggested and insisted that the child be put under a certain woman teacher.

Mother Insisted

These and family were horrified. Alfred was by this time ten years old. Remove him from all normal contact of his own age and type, and bring him up at home under a governess? Why, the child would grow up a sissy, they said.

But mother, at least, had begun to wake up. She insisted that the plan be followed, and Alfred was stopped trying to make a normal boy out of him and to make him heed a normal life, and was put in strategies toward building his self-confidence and sense of security, and moving his consciousness of inferiority and sense of failure into confidence. She gave him little responsibilities, asked his advice, persuaded him to go out alone, and then praised and praised him.

Alfred is now five or three years on abnormal life, narrow, unessential, without any future. But by the end of that time, he could read fluently, spell, do long division; and what was much more important, he had regained his confidence.

For, heaven's sake, if your child is normal, don't take him out of school. Encourage him to lead a normal a life as possible. But if your child shows signs of backwardness, don't force him.

WEDDING RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the proper form of acceptance to an invitation to a wedding reception?

Is it necessary to wear anything on the head to the wedding which is to be at 8 o'clock in the evening?

Should one give greet the person in the reception line when the bride is the only person she will know?

4. When leaving, is it necessary to thank anyone for an acceptable time?

1. If the reception invitation is the usual formal engraved one, we acknowledge it by sending a "Mrs. John Brown" form for to that the person will not be confused about the correct title. In other words, we write that is our card for the person as possible.

2. It is a very small gathering of friends, one would have opportunity of going to the hosts of the bride's mother, or the bride's father) to say good-by and to thank them for the party, and that the "happy time" one has had. But if the reception is a large one the hosts will probably be very busy greeting arrivals, and this would not be necessary.

SILVER WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend has told me that they will keep open house the day their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary falls. After that they will close it. It is the custom to send a gift or attend their hop open house?

Since silver is the symbol of this important anniversary, what is proper for you to send or to take a gift or attend the celebration? Of course it is not at all necessary to choose silver for a gift on this occasion—any kind or gift for the home is appropriate, of linen, china, glass, silverware, leather.

3. Let us suppose that the first person in line is the bride's mother, whom you do not even know by sight. You might say: "I am Mrs. Hillhouse, and I have heard Polly speak of you often. I'm delighted that you could come to Polly's wedding....and I hope you will enjoy the party as much as I shall."

Since these words of greeting, the bride's mother will introduce you to the person next in line, and it will be simple after that. One special suggestion: be sure to articulate the name clearly when you tell the person will "catch" the name correctly. Under these circumstances too it is best to give the "Mrs. Hillhouse" form for to that the person will not be confused about the correct title. In other words, you say that is our card for the person as possible.

Fashion Flashes

GO OUT after one of the new coats with elbow-length sleeves, for they are flattering. Fur trimming a coat is of black duvetyne, has silvery length sleeves wide at the cuff, and is trimmed with bands of Persian lamb. Narrow fur bands make a weskingtonish revers.

FEEL WELL in one of the new hats, for the new millinery was never more flattering or becoming. A hat of finely woven navy blue straw, with a deep crown and turned up brim at the sides, has three tiny purple pansies posed directly in front, held by a cluster of pink roses.

TWEED RIDE are the new fur trimmed suits. One of straight three-quarter length coat of Indian brown woolen is lapped by a gray fox collar which matches exactly the dress of gray crepe. Accessories are in the Indian brown.

OUT TO DINNER means a smart dinner dress. A charming model is of black crepe with a high neck, shaped flanges ending gracefully fullness in the long slim skirt. Dark pale pink chiffon petals form a wide yoke.

NO DOUBT about it, black with white is still the finest color scheme. Lelong makes an exquisite dinner suit of fine white woolen and outlines the edges with narrow bands of black paillettes.

TOWERING HATS OF ART are those new bolero suits that have taken the town by storm. A nice modal is is worn with the frock.

SHANNONVILLE W. M. S.

The monthly meeting of the W. M. S. of Shannonville met at the home of the treasurer, Mrs. W. S. Dier, on Thursday afternoon, May 7th. Mrs. Arthur Enright, Group Leader, was in charge of the meeting and Mrs. Dalton Bleckner presided at the piano. After the opening hymn and lesson Mrs. Enright called for repeating the Lord's prayer. The Scripture lesson from Micah was read by Mrs. Dier, the president. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark then also read the Scripture lesson, and Mrs. L. E. Mills led in prayer. The roll was called by the secretary and brought forth a good response of verses containing the word "Prayer." After the business from Mrs. McBourne and her daughter was read by Mrs. (Rev.) Clark for card sent during illness. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and adopted.

It was decided to have the "Old fashioned choir" from Salem come here and sing their old fashioned songs this month that is convenient for them. Mrs. Philip Knight gave the appearance reading for the Mrs. Dier T.U. paper, the White Ribbon Tidings, and Mrs. Arthur Enright the next chapter of the Study Book of the Bible which she has very ably been reading. The attendance was twenty-four and the regular collection was taken and $1.26 for the Dore fund. Thank offering at this meeting. After the closing hymn all repeated the Mizpah benediction. The hostesses and her helpers served a delicious lunch and then a much enjoyed at the social half hour which follows all the meetings.

Give a thought to warm Summer nights for they will soon be with us. For cool comfort there is a dance frock of eyelet embroidered white organdie in the style pictured. A pointed collar, short flaring sleeves, and a long bow matching the pale pink taffeta slip are other accents.

There's nothing like animation to give the complexion / a good color and to make the eyes shine. And how, asks Doleful Dora, does one get animated when the poor soul is a bit horrible victim of fish? Oh, bo! No use talking to Dora. If she feels that way there's no use in her scrambling along the path of gaiety. She'll never get any place.

Good health, fresh air and exercise—these are the things that inspire one to paint out and to do things. There is also another thing. It can be found in the brain that functions, that gets up and goes round like a wheel. It is a dynamo producing forces that are reflected pretty well in the feminine countenance. It is a broom that sweeps out old grievances and other dirt and rubbish.

Friend's Illness Made Her Realize Emptiness of Career Without Love

Dear Miss Fairfax:

At 36 years of age, I never gave much thought to men or marriage. My work is fascinating, and I put in some pretty keen years before anything like success caught up with me. My work ground should have given me the inward peace that lives on thrills, which mislead so many people. Then one of my friends was taken ill, and in the quietness of the sick room I had time to think. I realized that I was empty of love and its many gifts. Then I began to dream.

When I finally got to college I studied the first year. The second year I met a boy named Jack, and he invited a girl to dance; told her beforehand I didn't know how to waltz and glide on a ballroom floor. She gave me some lessons in her home before going to the Prom.

She tried to dance with me twice on the fatal evening, and I guess it must have been a nightmare to encore for her, because I took my partner home and never asked me to ed to the wife of one of the profs. Later I found she had been amused at my awkward and terrible imitations of my dancing.

It may be a rotten dancer and a farm boy, but I know this young lady's manners are worse than any I encountered in the "sticks".

New Neighbors

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:—

Several years ago I visited a friend in this city and a couple I knew called on me at this friend's home. Shortly has visited on some home below. I called on Mrs. T. to say we were resting in town, and she said that they "would be over very soon to spend the evening". Since then I have not heard from them, and as we have no telephone and could not be located in the City Directory as yet, I am wondering if perhaps they feel our slight.

1.—I am giving a dinner party very soon. Would it be proper for me to invite them?

2.—Would it be good form to invite another couple, whom we met recently at a dinner party, at a mutual friend's house?

3.—Are dinner calls rightly observed to at the present time?

R.

1.—I don't blame you for being hesitant about giving this invitation since up on the present you have made all the social advances. However, in these informal days, we don't gauge these matters on a social importance, and we invite guests to dinner in our home if we find them especially pleasant people and would like to know them. I would enjoy coming. Add, as you say, they might have found it impossible to get in touch with you, also there is a definite problem in getting several established couples in a new community.

So I refer especially wish to invite them, I suggest, that you do so. They will probably be delighted in turn and if after all if they don't wish to come, they have the pre-text of pleading "a previous engagement". Then, if they do "return" your invitation, it is proof that you until they make the next gesture of an invitation or a call.

2.—Yes, it would be well to add in the first answer applies to this question also. If you invite this couple, but be sure also to invite the same dinner party, the friends at whose home you met them before. This is an unwritten social law to be observed under these circumstances.

3.—Dinner calls are pretty casual about paying dinner calls. In these busy and hurried days. But, let me add, they are, increasingly careful about writing notes of appreciation after a party a dinner party or any kind of party. And the busier these people are, the more punctilious

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

When Engagement Is Lukewarm—

Why Go On?

Once on a time the things we used to call "boner" obliged a couple to go on with an engagement, even if they had lost interest in each other. This iron-clad rule held good, also, if only one of the parties realized a mistake had been made and it would be best to be quit of the agreement.

In either case, the ticklish thing called "honor" obliged them to walk grimly to the altar and keep to the pact, even if the prospects were they would live unhappily ever after.

Today, thank goodness, we do not hold to these false standards of the Neanderthal age. The following letter is typical:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"For the past three years I've been engaged to a man I have known all my life. In fact, we went to school together.

"He's as steady as the Rock of Gibraltar. Also he has a good salary and cares for me as much as he is capable of caring for anyone. But he's just about as thrilling as his cup of lukewarm coffee we get in a remote railroad station.

"He is what people used to describe as a 'bromide,' and when he comes to see me I swallow yawn after yawn. He yawns, too, and seems incapable of any real feeling for me.

"Last winter I met a man who is hot in the bean, like a cup of lukewarm coffee. He swept me off my feet. He has invited me out, and I've gone with him, and the delight I've experienced in his company is a revelation.

"I didn't speak. I just went along and said nothing to my fiance. The man knows I'm engaged, but that makes no difference at all to him. He makes love to me, and I'm delighted that he does.

"His profession—he's a civil engineer—will soon take him to a far distant state. My mother says he's just passing the time away with me until he can get back to the oil wells. I can't believe this. Even if it's true, I feel like the verse which says something like—'I quote from memory'—'Glad to have lived a little while before I die forever.'

"I'm an IF, and feel that I know my mind.

"Susan".

At twenty-three, why talk of dying forever, even if you happen to be engaged to the wrong person? Granting your mother's dismal forebodings are correct, and the fascinating man will also sweep you off your feet when he's serious, it's much better to have discovered that your fiance seems like a lukewarm cup of coffee before you've both said the fatal "I will".

I can't help having a crumb of pity for the lukewarm-coffee-fiance, but feeling the way you do, my child, it would be a fatal mistake to marry him, more unfair to him in fact than to yourself. Take a chance on the dashing engineer, and tell your fiance as tactfully as possible that you feel your marriage would be a mistake.

In beauty shops of any considerable size, the cash customer has a choice of any number of permanent wave methods. Which one to choose is a problem that might not to be. The smart thing to do is to ask the operator which method he finds most satisfactory. The worker may get the best results with one machine, another will prefer a different method.

A new machine is being used. There is no tie-up and no cords; borders are toasted beforehand, clamped on each ringlet covered with. It is comforting to the scarcely cat who doesn't like to be in close contact with electrical currents.

The main difference in methods is in the lotion that is used to moisten the hair.

Crocodile waves make nice ringlets because the strands are wound from the ends upward. The older method is more likely to give a better wave pattern and is to be preferred for women who have hair if there are any.

Before having a permanent have three or four hot oil treatments. These cause the hair to wave from the previous wave. The new one will be strong and durable.

New shades in nail polish are on the cosmetic counters. One channel offers an interesting group of three wines, ruby and rust. The rust looks lovely with gowns of pastel pink, lavender or blue. The ruby with a rich dark jade is ornate with black, white, gray and beige. The rust-and-jade will go well with about that. Designed for fillies brown hands, looks grand with a henna frock or a green one.

If you no like brilliant clear paint you can buy the colorless or a faint coral. Glazing vermillion tints don't suit all types.

Liver spots and moth patches are caused by changes in the skin pigment. Liver patches are close relatives of freckles, often disappear in the winter season. Moth patches tend to grow into the autocracies, and soon do a fade-away. Medical men advise specialties in bleaches of the skin have ways of treating them. Home treatment is not safe. If a bleach is strong enough to affect them, it is strong enough to do serious damage to the tissues.

Nurses' Alumnae Entertain Graduating Class of Hospital At Delightful Dinner Party

Dr. G. H. Stobie Gives Address on State Medicine in Russia

E. WRIGHT PRESIDES

Miss Jennie Ives Voices Appreciation of Class to Alumnae

In graceful tribute to the 1936 graduating class of Belleville General Hospital, the Nurses' Alumnae entertained the twelve young ladies at a delightfully arranged dinner party held last evening at the Hotel Quinte. The guests of honor were beautiful shoulder bouquets the gifts of their hostesses, presenting a charming appearance on their lovely gowns.

Miss Beath Goutar, Miss Edith Wright and Miss Helen Fitzgerald received the guests, who numbered about seventy, at the entrance of the dining room. The tables were centred with roses, a silver basket of which adorned the head table. Dinner music was provided by Mr. Leslie Lennox, violinist, and Mr. Charles Allen, pianist. Miss E. Mrs. G. H. Stobie were greatly appreciated. Mr. Leo Higgs acted as accompanist for Mrs. Stobie.

The toast to the King was proposed by Miss Edith Wright, president of the Belleville General Hospital Alumnae Association, who presided. In a gracious address, Miss Wright welcomed the guests at this second annual banquet of the Association. To the ranks of the profession, she welcomed the nurses who have now concluded their years of training and pointed out that they had chosen a career in which the monetary consideration was not foremost. Their wealth would be found in the satisfaction in rendering service to mankind and would not be measured in dollars and cents.

Alumnae Appreciated

In reply, Miss Jennie Ives of the Class of 1936 expressed deepest appreciation to the Alumnae for fellowship shown by the Alumnae to the graduating class, both as individuals and as an organization, she said, and always to encourage them after they left the nurses in training. Tasks would often be met more cheerfully and it not been for their encouragement, which had stirred them to reach for further achievement.

Dr. G. H. Stobie, the guest speaker of the evening, congratulated the nurses on the splendid organization of the Alumnae Association, and encouraged and advised them to ever keep up the standard of the organization. The tremendous upheaval in Russia in connection with affairs in the past ten or fifteen years has resulted in many changes and more drastic changes in the outcome which will affect the economics and of the whole world, he declared, not be found lacking organization in the face of such a crisis as the situation in which the medical profession now finds itself.

Remarkable medical science has so rapidly progressed in the past twenty-five years, Dr. Stobie said, that it has become a difficult matter for the profession to keep abreast of the times. Dr. Stobie, said, that it has become a difficult matter for the profession to ordeal to diagnose disease, employing the scientific instruments available. People must be hospitalized, and only a small per cent. can afford to pay for the privilege, he declared. The state will pay for the hospitalization for the indigent, but the fees of the doctor or nurse are ignored. Yet, he pointed out, they give their services free, because in the past they have not been remunerated. Under state medicine, individuals and the government seem to believe that it is part of the oath, that doctors and nurses take upon graduation, that they will give their services free of charge to the indigent. This is not the case of the profession, but the medical men have been willing to do it until recently when the number of unpaid cases outnumbers the paid until it has become a financial burden that can no longer be carried. Still, the government is very reluctant to re-imburse the doctors.

Some Form Coming

Undoubtedly there is coming, some form of state medicine, At present in Ontario a percentage of health services are paid for by the state . . . the care of the mentally ill, the tubercular, public health and preventive medicine. The doctors employed in state institutions have regular hours, are paid well. After all state medicine may not be such a terrible thing as people are led to believe. It should be considered and if it develops, no one is better able to direct these measures than the doctor and the nurse.

Dr. Stobie continued with a thoughtful discussion of health programs as practised in Europe. Forty per cent. of the medical service in Great Britain is controlled by the State to the entire satisfaction of the medical man and the public, seventy-five per cent. in Germany, ninety per cent. in Denmark and one hundred per cent. in Russia, which has state medicine.

"To get a complete picture of governmental medical service one should consider the things which have happened in that field entirely, and Dr. Stobie reviewed in a comprehensive and interesting manner, what the Soviet had done to improve health conditions in Russia, in his address "Medicine in Modern Russia".

It was far better, he said, to dwell on what has been accomplished in Russia rather than on how it had been accomplished for the history of the complete re-organization of the country is a terrifying story of agony and suffering. The

DESSERTS FEATURE COOKING SCHOOL

Desserts of many delectable kinds were demonstrated by Mrs. K. McLean, who has been in the city the past few days conducting cooking at the Belleville Hydro building. The demonstrations afternoon class for the ladies of city who attended in large numbers.

Pastry making, one of the exacting culinary arts, can be acquired with practice and the exact observance to the basic rules, especially Mrs. McLean pointed out. Measuring by rolling out dough on a piece of waxed paper, the guess work which would remain on the cloth and not be taken up in the dough. A handy bit of information was given when the dough is to be rolled out from the bottom and not through the top. Rolling off the extra dough with the fingers, the edges will be smoother and better job of the operation, Mrs. McLean said, and also helps avoid holding over.

The way of a cook with a sponge cake was shown when Mrs. McLean enumerated the many uses which the sponge cake can be put in this manner. Graham cracker crust for cheese cake was served and the delicacies prepared by the demonstrator.

In making tarts much time can be saved if the pastry is placed over the tins and filled out of the whole piece. Danish pastry completed the demonstration.

Mrs. McLean then gave a brief talk concerning the Hydro, and Mr. Everett Smith of the local Hydro extended a cordial invitation to all with an address on the advantages of cooking with electricity.

The next cooking course, also free, will be given by Mrs. Harbage surmounted all the difficulties, work and hardships necessary to qualify for the coveted position.

And she was quite indignant when newspapermen approached her for a story. She didn't want any publicity.

In addition to unattractive markets in the U.S., home beef continues unchanged. Inward by warm weather and packers had a large surpryor of live cattle at the close of the week.

Buffalo reported Canadian steers and heifers, weighing 700 to 1040 pounds, selling from $6.00 to $7.80 per cwt. Receipts there on Monday 96.75 to $6.00 with a top load of choice heavies at $7.25.

The heavy hog run sent prices down 25 to 50 cents Monday and the market held unchanged for the balance of the week. Car hogs were bought generally at $7.75 f.o.b. for bacons and $8.50 off cars. Truck hogs sold mostly at $8.00 to $8.25 cwt with some long hauls slightly higher.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS CLOSE

Toronto, May 13—(CP)—The Industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange changed little in fractional changes from the previous close. Traction, and closing prices indicated a small advance for the day. Leaders, however, will report remained in the up side and gains outnumbered losses in the Utility Department, Bank, Food and Investment groups. Canadian Malartic, with a gain of about two points after showing better than 3 for the good in the early trading. The jump was due to the announcement of a dividend, the first in four years. Changes were narrow in the oils. Imperial, Pailspec and McColl common firmed 1-8 to 1-4 each.

Announcement that Distillers-Seagrams will pay $1,500,000 to the United States Government to settle duty claims failed to turn traders to the buying side and mild profit-taking on the rise of the last two days were continued. Noranda common showed a loss of around 1-2. Walker's Common and Industrial Alcohol A also showed a loss by narrow fractions.

Higher prices were posted for Dominion Coal Pfd., Steel of Canada, Dryden Paper and United Grain. In the Building Group, Cement Pfd. was up a point and Gypsum was a little stronger.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 13 (AP)—After a morning session of irregular profit takers, the stock market later today showed signs of resuming the advance begun in the previous week.

Issues up fractions to around two points included International Harvester, Deere, Caterpillar Tractor, Westinghouse Electric, Homestake, Johns-Manville, Commercial Credit, Packard, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific. The steels, Westinghouse, Electric Corp. and Anaconda were about unchanged.

Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, May 13 (CP)—Mining share prices churned about today and at the close of the Toronto market the average showed little change from that of the previous day. The morning prices were the best of the session and some of the early gains were lost in the late trading. Base Metals displayed a little more strength than the golds and silvers and oils continued slow and steady.

Buffalo Ankerite gained two and Pickle Crow 30. Lake Shore lost about a point. Braldorne and Dome were unchanged. Hollinger and Dome were unchanged while Little Long Lac sold up 15.

McLeod-Cockshutt slipped down 30. Sand Rock fell a little better. McKenzie added a cent or two and Gunnar was higher by about 5 cents. Wendigo, a new find, also reached but a net loss for the day was noted. Sherritt-Gordon and Consolidated Smelters were collected by San Antonio Explorations.

Falconbridge, Sherritt, Sudbury Basin, and Ventures closed up. The golds moved slowly at steady prices. In the oils Texas-Canadian was stronger and Homestead was off.

Toronto, May 13—(CP)—Receipts from Ontario's new income tax totalled about $3,300,000 today, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said today but all returns are not in and that figure is expected to be doubled.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Ron Church and Fred Healy, Picton baseball maestros, proved splendid salesmen at the annual meeting of the Lake Shore Intermediate loop on Wednesday night with the result that Picton was admitted into the Lake Shore loop. The league operates as an intermediate "B" group and will include Picton, Grafton, Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville. Pickering was represented at the meeting but objected to entering a team if Picton was included. It was at this point, that Messrs Healy and Church staged their super-sales talk. After the meeting, however, there was a feeling that Pickering would reconsider and come back into the loop, thus assuring the loop of a six teamed set-up. There was considerable discussion relative to the financing of the league with the ultimate result, that all visiting teams will collect 40 percent of the gate to help defray expenses. The western clubs were of the opinion that Picton would out-draw them through the turn-stiles and therefore should be in the senior classes. With the new set-up, baseball should have a keen year in the Prince Edward County capital.

Apparently the Peterboro sept scribe can portion it out, but he can't eat. For the past six or seven months the Liftlock key-pounder has ferociously, and without reserve continually blasted local C.O.B.I. umpires until my subject has become saddened, and is far past the point of a joke. Whenever a Peterboro team loses at any sport, the heretofore sport jester does assumedly can't say a good word for the officials. In fact, he says there always a series of adds, that continue for months and months through his columns. Here recently he turns his attentions in our general direction and complains, that we have been misquoting him, regarding the Liftlock City scribe, he says—"The Belleville scribe in a positive genius at the art of misquoting and there is nothing more unethical than to deliberately misquote." Just how he gets that way we cannot imagine and have definite proof there were no misquotations. But we have in support of the Oshawa scribe, whose interpretations of the Peterboro writer's attacks were identical to that of our own. Quoting the Oshawa scribe on the same subject he says—"Apparently the Belleville scribe has become fed up with the continued slams, which have been, and still are thrown at Belleville umpires. In order to draw attention to the words—"continued slams which have been and still are," which are used by the Motor City scribe. (Thanks George.)

A few squawks and jabs directed at various officials of late. In order, but when they are continually hashed and rehashed until it becomes monotonous, well, there's an old proverb—"Send words don't wear out the tongue" and also we should remember—"wide will wear, but narrow will rot." Goodness knows it's tough enough to umpire in Peterboro, along the banks of the Otonabee, without the home town sport scribe exciting the fans into a preseason state of heated minds.

Preparing for the fast-approaching season, the Napanee Oldtimers of the C.O.B.I. will play the Enterprise intermediates in an exhibition game at the Gibbard Memorial Park on Saturday. Maybe a scrub game between two local squads would not come amiss on the same date.

Secretary Newton Thompson of the C.O.B.I. today released the tentative 1936 C. O. B. I. schedule which includes 60 playing dates from May 23rd to Sept. 2nd inclusive. In the schedule Belleville has seven Wednesday dates, two Saturday dates, one with Oshawa and the other with Kingston, May 25th with Kingston and Civic Holiday at home versus the Peterboro club. Besides these, on Monday, July 13th sees Napanee here. It has been seen fit to allot a C.O.B.I. game was played in Belleville on a Saturday date and maybe this year's experience will prove profitable. If so other dates could be changed to the week end day.

Oshawa and Peterboro open the league by alternating next week end. Then Belleville pays off the id on the morning of May 25th versus the league champion Ponies, who later journey to Napanee for an afternoon game. The fixture, thus getting through with five games in two days. Doubtless Secretary Thompson's proposed schedule will be adopted by all clubs. The dates being allotted as fairly as could be humanly possible.

Local wrestling fans who desire big shod matmers should be in high spirits following the announcement of the class of wrestlers that Jack Corcoran has signed for his next Tuesday night's show at the Arena. Not counting Al Tremko and Dan Petroff, the Russian Lion, who clash in the preliminary, the remaining four to appear locally are all top-notch wrestlers, who have been mainbouters in Chicago, New York, Boston and all the larger centres within past two months. When Matchmaker Corcoran will go out of his way to procure the services of none the caliber of "Irish" Jack Donovan, Andy Moon, Blue Sun Jenahago, the Indian with the fallen grandeur, and Algernon Blakgnate the latest Italian wrestling sensation, to appear locally the fans are getting the very best talent of modern mauleurs procurable. Each and all, there aren't any better in the business. Tuesday Night Jack's head coach will be presented in Toronto, Montreal or any other larger city and he would get a capacity house. Following the Monks-Moon bout of two weeks ago, however, we believe the fans will now appreciate the calibre of bouts now being presented by the matmen here.

At a recent meeting of the lawn bowling clubs for Provincial District No. 8, Belleville was chosen as the point to hold the annual district play-offs. The dates of the district play-offs have not been announced as yet, but may be sometime in July. The local lawn bowling executive hope the district play will be postponed long enough to allow their four rinks sufficient time for mature growth. The new greens that have been seeded and look splendid, President Geo. Watkins announces, but they will not be ready for play until the middle of July at the earliest date. When the four new greens are officially opened, the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will have 18 of the finest reversible greens in the province. By reversible greens, we mean greens, that can be played east and west and also north and south. At the district meeting Belleville was allotted the following tournament date— July 1st, 6coch Doubles; July 29th — mixed rinks and Labour Day, 3rd trebles. As the Provincial finals open on July 24th, however, the district finals will have to be played prior to that date.

When it comes to being moneyed players apparently Dave Tobe's Christie Cake bowling team are the heroics. Copping the winning of the city bowling championship by "Ali" Whitton's Red Caps, a post-season tournament was played last night with the stakes being one-half of a "C" note. Four major league teams qualified—the Grads, Belleville Fruit, Christie Cakes and Carlings' Red Caps. The final score saw the "biscut squad" 53 pins up on the Red Caps and first money was hauled away by Dave Tobe's gang.

Lakeshore Int. Schedule Given

Five teams will compose the Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League for the current season, as added to Port Hope, Bowmanville and Cobourg Lions will be two new clubs, Picton and Grafton. Pickering intermediates at first entered to form a six-team loop, but dropped out when Picton came in, claiming that the trip to that town would be a severe financial strain. All contests will be played on daylight saving time and the complete schedule is as follows:

SOFTBALL

Chalking up nine runs in the initial two frames the O.S.D. "mushballers" defeated the Albert College nine by the score of 14 to 12 in free scoring senior Interscholastic softball league game played on the home diamond yesterday afternoon. Both pitchers Hodder for Albert and Bostnari for the O.S.D. were hit freely.

Albert staged a hectic rally in the last inning to come within one run of knotting the score, but the "deaf lads" settled down to pull out of a difficult hole. The O.S.D. win elevates the winners into a tie for second place with the Albert nine.

Meiunk, Major and Hemphill were the big hitters for the winning blue and white, Burgess and Hodder swung the heavy bats for Albert.

The lineups:

O.S.D.: Hogge, cf; Hemphill rf, Major ss, Lavalle 1b, Alexander c, Bostnari p, Storring 2b, Kosil 3b, and Meiunk lf.

Albert College: Clouse 3b, Sylvester cf, Burgess 1b, McCrie ss, Jones c, Hodder p, McDonald 2b, Vale lf and Wardley rf.

TORONTO LOSES FOUR STRAIGHT TO ALBANY CLUB

Both Matusak And Burke Able to Go Route With Senators

CHAGNON DEFEATED

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Albany, May 15.—Albany's new International League Clubs got to play in their own and in their neighbours back yards for a while after a double round of interesting games, that have not improved much except, that Buffalo Bisons can slug with the best of them in their home park.

A month of play has not given any indication as to the outcome of the Newark-Montreal race for the pennant lead. Newark torpid ahead at home; dropped back on the road and finally reached Montreal's mango to ten points yesterday by defeating the Royals at Montreal, 7 to 6, to take their series 3-1. This result left the rivals virtually tied for the lead.

Rochester, Buffalo, Baltimore and Toronto have been waging a free scrap around the middle of the standings, winding up in that order. The Bisons climaxed an eight-game winning streak, marked by terrific batting by trimming Syracuse twice yesterday and the Maple Leafs took a double gefeat from the Albany Senators, who recently lost 15 straight.

Firm Grip on Third

Rochester's Red Wings took a firmer grip on third place with a 7 to 4 decision over Baltimore. They pounded a former teammate, Johnny Berly, in the early innings, starting with Paul Crabtree's home run and collected enough runs to survive a late Orioles rally, that drove Nubs Kleinke out.

Collecting a total of 39 hits in two games, Buffalo trimmed the Chiefs 14 to 8 and 17 to 4 with Bill Kelly and Ken Ash going the route although touched for two homers apiece. Frank McGowan again led the assault.

Newark batters pounded Buffalo 101 runs in seven games. He accepted two homers, a double and three singles in nine times up.

Make Clean Sweep

Albany, making a clean sweep of its series with the Leafs, won 9 to 5 and 5 to 0. Two pitchers able to go the route, rarities in the Senator Camp, turned up in Harry Matusak and Bob Burke. Matusak got the backing of 13 hits, while Burt Cook's strikeouts aided Albany in the six-hit handicap.

Leon Chagnon, Montreal mound Ace, suffered his first defeat of the season as the Royals belted him for three in three innings then continued to pound Jake Wade, Albany relief pitcher. Dutchie turned arm-bit ball for the winners.

TERRIBLE TURK IS QUITE HUMAN WHEN NOT IN THE RING

Toronto, May 15—(CP)—Artem Ikirian, or All Baba, whichever you prefer, may grunt and growl when he's in the wrestling ring, but outside he just coos.

At least he does when "Little Coco" is around, he confessed, "I just wish you could see my little Coco," he said. "Two years old, he is. He is 37 inches tall and strong, so very strong. He is the swell little boy. I call him. I say 'come on, Coco,' and he puts out my finger. Little Coco grabs it and swings himself up.

"Ha," he said, "I love babies."

After saying little Coco was home in Detroit with his mother, the "tough guy" who sat on Ed Strangler Lewis and earned the title "world's champion" for himself, told this story of his life:

He was born 32 years ago in Kurdistan, which makes him a Turk although his parents were Armenian. His religion is Greystan. He started to wrestle when he was "a little punk wrestling in the sand." His sister had gone to the United States so he came here, when he was 16. In 1923 he enlisted in the United States navy, served four years as a fireman, re-enlisted in 1927, and served three more years as a master-at-arms.

He claimed he had the United States navy's wrestling title for six years as Harry Shtlan. He was discharged in 1931 and turned professional.

Rhodes, Castoff of Red Sox, Most Effective Hurler in Loop Since Joining Philadelphia A's

Turns Back Cleveland With Three Hits And Wins 4-0

CARDS GOING STRONG

Lefty Grove Chalks up Sixth Win, Defeating Tigers

(By Andy Clarke)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Gordon Rhodes, the Athletics pitcher, has joined the honored legion of men, who have come back.

Rhodes was traded to the Athletics by the Red Sox last winter in the deal, that sent Jimmie Foxx to Boston. He had won only two games and lost 7th, while toiling for the Boston team and he was believed to be in the autumn of his career.

Under the patriarchal hand of Connie Mack, however, Dusty has become one of the most effective pitchers in the League to date. He has won four games while losing two and in one of the losing games he allowed but five hits. He turned in his best performance yesterday, when he held the third-place Cleveland Indians to three scattered safeties and blanked them 4-0. He made the slugging Hudlow pop up repeatedly and although the Indians managed to reach third base, they were stranded there.

Real Hurling Job

Rhodes' feat of his best pitching job turned in on a day, that saw Robert Moses Grove, Detroit Tiger to five hits as the Red Sox won 3-1, and Carl Hubbell give the same number of safeties to Chicago Cubs as the Giants won 5-0. It was the second shutout season Grove had held the Tigers to five hits and it gave the range hander six wins against a single Hubbell's pitching gave the Giants their fourth straight victory since coming back from their disastrous western tour, and it notched the fifth straight defeat against the men of Charley Grimm. For the fifth time in six starts, Lee Wareham failed to finish his game, being relieved by Row Henshaw in the eighth.

Rookie Joe Dimaggio of the Yankees, belied out a resounding rebuttal to skeptics, who said he wouldn't continue the fast pace he set in his opening games, when he hammered out three doubles and a single in the Yankee 6-1 conquest of St. Louis Browns. Dimaggio now is batting .378.

There was some lusty walloping in Brooklyn where the Cardinals got 16 safeties, 10 of them for extra bases, to beat the Dodgers 13-4, and in Chicago where the White Sox notched their fifth straight victory with a 13-1 decision over Washington. Stuart Martin and Joe Medwick whaling out homers as Cased Stengel sent four pitches to the mound in a futile attempt to halt the deluge of hits.

The White Sox held a 10-1 lead going into the fourth inning after Jack Russell from the mound in the opening round, when they sent eight runs across the plate. The Senators came back to pound the offerings of Monte Stratton, however, scoring five runs in the fourth. The score was tied at 10 all in the sixth, Fred Marberry, the former Umpire, was responsible for the winning run being scored, when he threw wild to third, allowing Mule Haas to cross the plate.

While Judge Kenesaw Landis and Ford Frick, National League President, in the stands, the Pirates downed the Boston Bees 5-2, scoring all of their runs in the eighth inning.

The Cincinnati-Phillies game was postponed because of cold weather.

DONOVAN, MOEN IN MAIN BOUT

Queensbury Club Offering Best Card Ever to be Seen in City

Irish Jack Donovan and Andy Moen, two wrestlers as popular as ever have appeared here, will be opponents in the main bout of an all-star Queensbury Club show at the Arena next Tuesday and should produce some exceptional mat work. The red-headed Donovan looked every bit as effective as The Unknown at the last Queensbury show while, on the same card, the speedy Moen was an impressive winner over Ed Meeks.

Many of the fans deplore the rough and ready tactics used by so many of the wrestlers and these will be delighted by the kind of grappling they will see in this bout, both men are noted for their speed and cleverness and there is no doubt, following their previous matches here, about the fact, that they are exceptionally well matched both physically and in their knowledge of the sport. The big task of the fans will be to decide, which of the pair is better for when the action gets under way.

Promoter Jack Corcoran has signed Alphonse Bulgnano, the new Italian sensation for the semi-final in which the opposition will be provided by Blue Sun Jennings, 235-pound Oklahoma Indian. Jennings is rated by many well-informed critics as the best of the several Indians, who have made good in the mat game.

Rochester Cardinals May Become Detroit Farm

Detroit, Mich., May 15 (CP)— A possibility that the Detroit Hockey Club might take over the Rochester Cardinals as an International Hockey League farm club was seen here in the visit of Manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings, President John Chick of the I. H. L. and Lou Giffels, general manager of the Detroit Olympia, to Rochester to check over the financial affairs of the minor league club.

Giffels said that the visit was made on behalf of the league in general. He said it has been proposed that Detroit take over the Cardinals, but no action has been taken on the proposal "since we already are represented in the league by the Olympias," and added that it is doubtful whether James Norris, Jr., owner of the Detroit teams, will consider a second farm club.

Puerto Rican Takes On Tough Customer

New York, May 15 (AP)—Pedro Montanez, the Puerto Rican lightweight, who has fought his way up to a place among the topnotchers with 14 consecutive victories, takes on a rather tough customer in Leonardo Del Genio, tonight in an effort made him a great favorite among the fans at the smaller fight clubs and it's an accepted fact that Okhonori would rather fight him than Lou Ambers, the only other outstanding challenger.

CLEVELAND INFIELD RUNS DOWN ROLFE OF YANKEES

Cameras recorded this run-down play when New York Yankees pulled against Cleveland's slugging Indians at Yankee stadium, and the action is clearly indicated. BOLD VENTURE IS MADE FAVORITE FOR PREAKNESS SATURDAY

By ORLO ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Baltimore, May 15 (AP)—Lured by the second of the three-year-old turf classics, the racing clans today gauged this city for the 46th running of the Preakness at historic Pimlico tomorrow.

Every train and bus brought new arrivals, indicating that more than 40,000 spectators either would be jammed into "Old Hilltop's" rambling stands, packed like sardines on the spacious lawn or standing in the infield, when the bugle calls "Boots and Saddles" at about 3 p.m. (E.D.T.) (5 p.m. (E.S.T.).

While admitting Bold Venture is the horse to beat and that he'll be a strong favorite at 2 to 5 or less, Granville is the big question mark. His trials at Pimlico have been none too impressive since returning from the Downs, but he never has been known as a good work horse.

Truffel, from the Wheatley Stable and stablemate of Granville, the Bomar Stable's mud loving Grand Slam and Mrs. Silas B. Mason's His Maj also will take another crack at Bold Venture. Truffel and Granville also will have the speedy Wheatley colt, Snark, as a running mate.

BEHOLD THE BUSHERS

JIMMY GLEESON — CLEVELAND INDIANS

The Cleveland Indians, many admit, have just about the best outfield in baseball. With Joe Vosmik, Earl Averill and Bruce Campbell patrolling the outer fringes, there wasn't much to ask for. Any new talent added to the outfield roster must be good. That brings us right down to the story of James Joseph Gleeson. When Campbell was stricken with an attack of spinal meningitis his third inside two years, Mr. Gleeson moved on to the scene.

To get Gleeson, who has all the makings of a rookie who'll last, the Indian management reached down to their New Orleans farm.

Collegian

Jimmy is a college boy. After attending Rockhurst High school he went to Rockhurst college. There he started in football, basketball and of course, baseball. A Kansas City, Mo., boy, Jimmy put in his time on the sandlots of that city. In 1933 he was lifted to Zanesville in the Mid-Atlantic league, also a Cleveland farm and in 1934 and '35 he stayed with New Orleans.

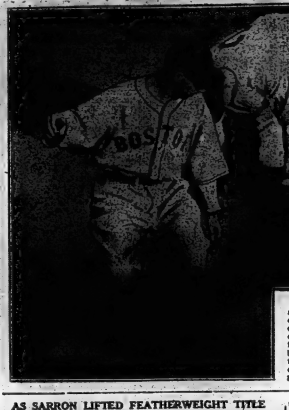
The New Orleans rookie is a right-handed thrower but a switch hitter. Swinging from either side of the plate, Jimmy socked for a .313 average with the Pelicans in 1935, driving in 104 runs on 179 hits in 138 games. He scored 100 runs himself. His runs-batted-in mark was the best in the league.

Dad Is a Fan

Gleeson is 22 years old, six-feet-one-inch tall and weighs 180 pounds. His dad is a real baseball enthusiast, following the young man around the country on his base-ball trips. It was one of the Indians' trips to St. Louis that resulted in a near tragedy for the father, however, an automobile accident hospitalizing him and sending Jimmy rushing to his bedside.

When not playing baseball now, Jimmy helps to coach athletes at Rockhurst college. With Gleeson on hand the Indians still have a mighty outfield.

Jimmy Gleeson



WORRY FOR SORIDES

Ray Ratajczak

His name, Ray Ratajczak, is a bit like a college yell, but Ray is more than a yell, according to Jeff Tercero, former Giant pitcher who is coaching baseball at Dartmouth U. Tercero says the Dartmouth shortstop, who hit .375 last year, is one of the big league stars of the future.

WASHINGTON INFIELDER'S MUFF — FERRELL SAFE ON THIRD

Dust clouds rise from the infield as Rick Ferrell, ball-slugging catcher of the Boston Red Sox, comes into third base standing up during a game against the Washington Senators. The Senator third-baseman is making a wild stab for the sphere, but Rick is already safe on the base. Washington captured the game, however, 12 to 9.

AS SARRON LIFTED FEATHERWEIGHT TITLE

FIRST ORHOUT OLOUT

It was a historic occasion when Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee outfield rookie, scampered over the plate with this run for it recorded the first home run from Joe's bat since he broke into major league company. Even against as a terrific hitter one his coast league record, he has been living up to advance billing. Joe can be seen completing his first circuit trip.

GOLF

BY ALEX MORRISON

During a visit with Henry Picard the other day, I learned that the winter tour just finished was perhaps the toughest on record. Henry tells me that almost every tournament was played in high winds and cold driving rains.

Comparing the past winter with former winters he said that any player who was able to average as little as one or two strokes higher this year equaled any lower average that he might have had in former years. This isn't hard to believe because there are no greater handicaps for the golfer than wind and rain.

Few players have mastered shot-making in the wind. Hagen, Picard and Sarazen have demonstrated an edge over the field playing in the breeze that keep most players from finding the fairways and the greens. The wind is a player's worst enemy because of the way it affects his swing. Even a healthy breeze can put him off balance, and without the balance which affords him a comfortable and smooth body action, his game is bound to be pretty much of a struggle.

A club official who generally plays in the 70's recently lost a match to a player who seldom breaks 90. The outcome of the match was decided in the bunkers.

On the course where the game was played the bunkers have sides with a very gradual slope. This sloping side permits a player to roll the ball out of the sand, a habit which many high scorers have formed. During the match in question the 90 shooter used his putter regularly and successfully out of the bunkers. The par shooter was so upset by his opponent's practice that he missed such simple shots as he had to play, causing his score to mount.

DEAD ON FRIDAY, RODE FIVE ON SATURDAY

On Friday, Ralph Neves, 19-year-old jockey, was pronounced dead at Bay Meadows racetrack, victim of a bad spill. On Saturday, the same Ralph Neves rode in five races booting his mounts into the money in each fixture. When a doctor could find no sign of life after the Friday spill, they carried Neves to the track infirmary. Adrenalin was injected as a last emergency measure. In ten minutes they had to hold him down to keep him away from the starting gate. The doctor stated Neves' heart had stopped and he believed him dead. "Well, I'm still here," commented Rider Neves on Saturday evening, as he unsaddled this mount.

HARRY GUMBERT — NEW YORK GIANTS

If you happen to see a big right-hander on the mound for the New York Giants and exclaim, "Say, that's Paul Dean, the other half of me and Dizzy," hold your astonishment. For the big right-hander is not Paul Dean, but Harry Edward Gumbert of the Giants' staff.

Harry came to the Giants at the tag end of the 1935 season from Baltimore of the International League, having previously been given a trial with the Phillies and sent back to Baltimore. With the Giants he won one game and lost two.

Gets Off to Good Start

With Baltimore, Harry heaved them up from the slab for 19 wins and 10 losses, hurling a total of 242 innings and finishing with a 3.55 rating. He struck out 114 men with the Orioles.

Possessing a dandy curve ball, Harry got off to a good start with the Giants this year by winning two of the first seven games won by the New Yorkers. He is a big fellow, standing more than six feet and weighing 185 pounds. As a pitcher, he is a poor hitter, having garnered but a .133 average with the Baltimore club. It's his pitching the Giants are after and if looks as if they will get it, too.

Harry is a Pennsylvania boy. He was born in Elizabeth, near Pittsburg, and makes his home on a farm in Ellsworth. The Pittsburg eagle had an old trick Harry says he hadn't even been in the Pirates' ball park before he came up to the Giants. In fact, he claims he had seen only one major league game before his New York debut.

THESE WRESTLERS DO SEEM TO BE ACTIVE

It's practically foul weather when the wrestlers get together. Here Hardy Kruskamp and Vincent Lopez—the latter mooted along the Pacific coast as a world champion—are rolling out of the ring in unison during a match in the Dreamland Arena at San Francisco. Just to show it wasn't unusual however, both lads fell out of the ring five times during the brawl — Lopez ended up the victor.

ONE WAY STREET

by TOSHIO MORI

"Okay, Gorgeous," was the quiet verdict, "But I think I could kill anybody who hurt you. That's what I wanted to get at.

"No one is going to hurt me, Nan. Good-bye."

X X X

The several days following the concert had been highly unpleasant for Mark Sturges.

There had been no call from Blythe. No reason why there should be. Yet he started each time his telephone rang. Eventually, he would have to meet her. But the more time given that last scene to fade, the better. Better for both of them.

His conscience bothered him vaguely.

He could not see that he had given Blythe any reason for that outspoken declaration. It still amazed him. He should have prevented it, ought to have let her know in some way that he had no interest in her. But the thought of that made him feel more uncomfortable..... sounded as if he should have warned her. Not such a presumptuous ass as all that. A nice situation he had let himself in for.

And there was Jean.

The thought of her worried him afresh. He had encountered her once or twice in the store and fancied there was something chilling in her reserved greeting. What did she think of him? What should she think? Blythe's interpretation of the concern incident was exaggerated—her saying that he did not take his eyes off Jean. Blythe was angry. And perhaps Jean was hurt. He had tried to tell her how much he valued her friendship.....then let her sit a whole evening and watch him apparently enjoying the company of another. That scarcely was his fault. Jean had made it plain that she could not accept his attentions.

His reflections got him nowhere. Damn the Iron Hock, anyway. He wished he might never have heard of it.

More and more, however, he came to a conclusion that he must have a visit with Jean. If anything was wrong, he must know it. He would have a frank talk with her if necessary..... try in some way to make her understand.

How?

The problem was still unsettled when he entered his car one evening and grimly set a course for Bridge Street.

Mark rather ouidid himself in his efforts to carry on an amiable conversation with Mrs. Sawyer and her three daughters. But with each succeeding minute he sensed a change in Jean. She laughed and chatted with the others but something was lacking. Her former reserve had returned and Mark was unable to locate the overlay.

When the other members of the group had vanished one by one, he turned to Jean with a sudden determination in his face and voice.

"Would you care to drive for a little while?"

"I don't believe I'd better tonight."

"Some other time then. I still have your promise, you know."

Jean looked at him steadily for a moment, then replied:

"I think it would be best, Mr. Sturges, if there wasn't..... another time."

"Do you mean that?" he asked quickly.

"Yes."

"I'm sorry. Does that apply to future calls as well?"

"I think it should."

"Miss Sawyer—I'm going to ask you something. Has anything occurred recently to influence that decision?"

"Oh, no."

"Then it's just the matter of..... of Gorham's village complex?"

"I think so."

"Do you think you're quite fair?" he burst out. "I realize that the situation is unfair. I don't know how to express it exactly. I wouldn't do anything in the world to make things difficult for you. You must know that. But I.....

"Please let's talk about something else, Mr. Sturges." Her eyes were beseeching.

"Of course," he replied instantly. "I understand. I'm very grateful to you for being frank and for everything. Please do not let it make any difference."

"Of course not."

"Perhaps I'd better say good night."

X X X

There was no sleep for Jean.

For hours, so it seemed to her, she lay in the grateful darkness of her room. Thinking. Remembering. Conscious of a dull ache in her heart. Life these past few months had been different, so very different. The goods had lifted at last. There had been contentment..... almost happiness.

And now.

Back where she had started from. Everything undone..... wrong. Even now, she dared not let herself look closely at the old dreams. Vague longing. Crushing disappointment. Why did it have to be that way always?

Suddenly, she found herself sitting erect in bed and straining every nerve to listen. There had come a faint sound. It seemed to Jean it might have been the doorbell. There it was again.... It was the bell!-Oh..... She remembered now. After Mr. Sturges had gone, she discovered her father had forgotten his lunch. Jean had left the package on the living room table with a note for John, asking him to carry it down to the garage before he went to bed. That 'was it. John had come back.....forgotten his key.

Hastily throwing her robe over her nightdress, Jean pattered down the stairs intent upon reaching the door before her mother could be disturbed by the insistent ringing.

"You're a nice one!" were her first words.".....

"Excuse me, miss. Is your name Sawyer?"

"Yes....yes," she stammered. "What is it?"

"Sorry to tell you. There was a mixup in the garage where your father works and.....

"Is he hurt? Quick..... tell me!"

"No. He's all right. It was your brother, I guess. Not serious. Shot in the shoulder.....

"Where is he now?"

"Thank you so much. I'll get dressed and go down..... right away."

"I'll wait till morning if I was you, miss. He's under guard..... Just while they're getting things cleared. They might not let you talk to him yet."

"I see. Where is my father? Are you sure he wasn't hurt?"

"What I tell you. That's all."

"Wait a minute, please," she called as he turned away. "Is my father under arrest?"

"Yes....yes," she stammered. "What is it?"

"Sorry to tell you. There was a stickup in the garage where your father works and.....

"Is he hurt? Quick..... tell me!"

"No. He's all right. It was your brother, I guess. Not serious. Shot in the shoulder.....

"Where is he now?"

"I'll wait till morning if I was you,

INSTALMENT 24.

"Jean said you forgot your lunch. She asked me to bring it down when I came in."

John Junior deposited the package on the corner of his father's desk in the office in the Central Garage. He stood waiting uncertainly.

"That was very thoughtful of you, Son," John Sawyer looked up with a smile from the pile of fuel slips he was checking. "I must have been a little mixed up tonight. They asked me to come in two hours later than usual and stay on a while in the morning..... The day seemed wasted some time off. I was beginning to think I'd have to go hungry tonight."

"Would you like to sit down and keep me company for a while?"

"Guess not." John glanced apprehensively at the clock. "It's pretty late," he admitted.

"So it is. I didn't realize it was quite so late. Everything all right down at the paper?"

"Sure."

Several weeks before, to the delight of the Sawyers, Don Browne had succeeded in getting the boy a position in the circulation department of The Times.

"That's fine. Good night, Son. And thank you for coming down."

"All right. I'm going out this way ....to the schoolroom."

"I know where the key hangs, don't you?"

"I know." He disappeared through a rear door into the car storage room.

Sawyer looked after him, a wistful expression in his dark eyes. If only John would let him get a little closer. They could do so much for each other these days. He must wait. No use trying to hurry the boy, after all that had happened to drive them apart.

With a sigh, the father turned back to his work. He completed tallying the slips and was reaching for his parcel of lunch when the door opened.

Two men entered.

They had one light burning, a lamp under a shade directly above the desk where Sawyer sat. His rays fell upon one of the newcomers standing on the other side of the long counter. His companion lingered in the shadowy background.

"Looking for service?" Sawyer inquired with a smile, as he left his chair and came forward. He was looking into a swarthy face, but by a grim mouth. The stranger's eyes were concealed by his hat brim.

"Yeah," was the swift answer. "Stick 'em up, you!"

John Sawyer found himself looking into the muzzle of a pistol. Slowly his hands went up. He was dazed by the suddenness of it all, so much so that the second man had slipped swiftly through the gate at the end of the counter. The light was extinguished, leaving the office illuminated faintly by a street lamp without.

"Now then, pop.....back over to your chair and sit down. Keep your hands where I can see 'em, too."

Sawyer obeyed in a daze. A thousand thoughts seemed to race through his mind.

SCHUSCHNIGG GAINS POWER

"The continual rivalry between Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Prince Ernst von Starhemberg finds the former the decisive victor in over the potential Fascist dictator, the handsome prince. As vice-chancellor, Starhemberg had been virtual dictator of Austria through the threat of his private army, the Heimwehr. Schuschnigg's new coup ousts Starhemberg and his Fascists and sets up a more democratic form of government. The coup is said to be a blow at Italy, virtual ruler of Austria. Schuschnigg is shown UPPER LEFT; Starhemberg, head of the Heimwehr, UPPER RIGHT. The Heimwehr army is shown BELOW.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"12 Hours By Air"

They are here in person.

Jack Arthur's "Prize Winning Canadian Amateurs on Parade," fresh from triumphs in Ottawa, Kingston, Peterboro and Oshawa and other points arrived in Belleville this morning ready and willing to prove to eonoiseurs of what is good in shows that Canadian talent is every bit as competent and entertaining as that of our southern neighbours. A bevy of charming young women and personable young men there isn't a doubt in the world but that they will capture all your hearts when you see and hear them this afternoon as well as at their repeat engagements tonight and tomorrow (Saturday), on the Belle Theatre stage. The unit comprises vocalists, instrumentalists, dancers, an imitator, an impersonator, and a ventriloquist, who bring to the stage of the Belle Theatre a brand of entertainment that will win the enthusiastic acclaim of all who are fortunate enough to hear and see them.

To those who did not attend this afternoon's matinee I would like to introduce Alfred Segrod, who was born in Geneva, Switzerland. Whether or not he learned that Canada was the "Land of Promise" from the conclave of the League of Nations who make that historic city their meeting place, the fact remains that Segrod decided to emigrate to Canada. That was seven years ago. He married an English girl and now has willing assistance quickly mastered the English language. Soon he became a proficient that he took to imitating peculiar noises as a hobby. His imitation of a dentist's drill at work would almost have you believing you were in the dreaded chair yourself, while the fluted calls of both wild and animal life come as second nature to him. His splendid stage personality and imitative genius easily earned him the prize at a recent contest at Shea's.

Our introduction would not be complete unless we brought to your attention Mrs. Stella Wilson, who acts as chaperone of the girl members of the tour. Mrs. Wilson was born in Orangeville and for some time lived in Erin, near Guelph. Her career is housewifery, of which there is none harder, although she now adds a substantial amount to the family exchequer since her success with the Amateurs. The possessor of a lovely soprano voice she has pleased hundreds of Canadian folk with its beautiful tonal quality. At one time she was soloist in Trinity Baptist Church, Hamilton, and has appeared in concerts in Hamilton, Brantford and Woodstock. She learned two of Galli-Curci's songs by listening to phonograph records.

Drama in the sky is the theme of "Thirteen Hours By Air," which opens at the Belle Theatre on this same program. Everyone who enjoys his drama in tense, punch-packed doses will have the time of his life at the film, for "Thirteen Hours by Air" starts off at a terrific pace and like the New York-Pracadoo plane on which most of its action takes place, roars on at high speed up to the very finish.

Director Mitchell Leisen, furnished with a grand cast and equally grand script, has made the most of every opportunity to build up suspense and thrill. Fred MacMurray, that casual young man who has risen spectacularly to stardom in a little over a year; pretty, blonde Joan Bennett; Sidney Zeke Pitts; and Ingrid Bergman Howard, to mention a few. His script is by Kenyon Nicholson, who wrote it around Rupert Hoger's magazine serial.

"Thirteen Hours By Air" is the story of romance and intrigue aboard a transcontinental passenger plane. It's an oddly-assorted lot of passengers the ship is carrying—a girl, who says she's a socialite, a nine-year-old heir to a fortune of millions, a doctor who reveals a surprising lack of medical knowledge, and two other suspicious looking male passengers who...well you must see and learn. Two complete show will be presented on Saturday afternoon, first at 1 p.m., and the second at 3 p.m. Performances start each evening at 7.00 and 9.10.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Comin' Round The Mountain"

"A new balance has been attained in western pictures.

"Comedy and music have been added in equal importance to the old rule of pure action."

That is the illuminating comment made by Director Mack Wright in an interview on the set of "Comin' Round the Mountain," Republic's new Gene Autry romantic action picture at the Capitol theatre Saturday only.

"This picture is the first western I have seen", he pointed out, "that is made up of just about one-third action, one-third music, and one-third comedy. The great popularity of Gene's cowboy singing has forced the inclusion of a constantly larger share of music, while all the boxoffice pictures of recent months have had a generous share of laughs. But the rip-roaring features of the western has not suffered. In my opinion this addition of balance among the three elements has improved the action. Western pictures move with even more speed than before because there is no room to fall in involved story. In the past westerns generally have been burdened with too much plot, too many ramifications, whereas in the directions of such stories as "Comin' Round the Mountain" there is greater force and certainly sharper entertainment."

Vivacious Ann Rutherford plays the role of the charming Spanish senorita who attracts Pony Express rider Autry. The tall and handsome Roy Mack, the Three Smiley Burnette contributes delicious humor as a cheerful hillbilly, as a gay and limeful fiesta, while four new lilting cowboy and Spanish love songs are sung and played by the two leading men.

Bettina Agnes

Leslie Howard, now co-starring with Kay Francis in "British Agent" the First National drama which comes to the Capitol Theatre, on Saturday says his role is the most difficult he ever played.

On account of its relation to recent history and to personalities still alive, the changes of a single word of dialogue might have serious consequences.

DEBTS SETTLEMENT MOVE EXPECTED AT LONDON

Frost Causes Heavy Loss to Fruit and Vegetable Crops in East

British Leaders are Said To Favor Talk With U.S. France Hears of Move

Government And Diplomatic Officials Scoff at Report

DEBTS NOT MENTIONED

Denial by Authoritative Circles of British Move

London, May 16 (AP)—The long Germani war debts issue came to life again today with reports that certain British leaders favor a settlement with the United States.

The question was revived here just a day after Leon Blum, France's Socialist leader and premier-to-be, announced he would like to see the debt "misunderstanding" erased.

With Paris indicating the first move was more likely to come from London.

While government and diplomatic officials scoffed at reports a new move was afoot for settlement of war debts, the Daily Herald said an "influential group" of British politicians was urging a reopening of negotiations with the United States.

Authoritative sources said Britain had made no backhand dealings but indicated any approach to United States on the debt question, with October installment due June 15.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain provided no money for war debt payment in the new budget. The debts have been mentioned in the House of Commons since W. H. Morrison, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, defended non-payment against Labor opposition criticism that the budget was balanced only because the debt was unpaid.

GARDEN, FARM CROPS NIPPED

Ice Forms in Many Centres as Mercury Falls Low

The mercury dipped in Ontario overnight producing a heavy frost in some districts. Early vegetable, fruit and vegetable crops was feared. Eastern Ontario suffered most from the May frost.

Lowest temperature for May since 1931 was recorded in Belleville last night, the mercury dropping to 20 degrees, 12 below freezing. It was reported practically all cherry blossoms would be killed and that all garden crops hard hit by the frost.

Six degrees of frost hit the Peterborough district last night. Severest May damage was caused to plum trees and apple blossoms. Early strawberries may also be affected but bud gardeners said it would be a couple of days before the extent of damage was known.

Ice appeared in Brockville where the thermometers recorded unprecedented low marks for the 13th day of year. Extensive damage was done to flower and vegetable gardens with farmers predicting bean blooms this morning were blackened and wilted.

In Western Ontario Kitchener reported no serious damage to crops was caused as the mercury slipped to 30, a drop of 32 degrees from yesterday's maximum. Temperatures in the Niagara district escaped the frost but small gardens were touched although ice will not be heavy. Temperature at St. Catharines went to 31.

Two degrees of frost were registered at Simcoe with the mercury going to 30. No damage was reported. The mercury temperature prevailed at Galt where only tender garden plants felt the frost bite.

Question Preacher During His Sermon

Bishop of His Synod Principle But Other Preachers Disagree With Him

London, May 16 (CP)—The novel suggestion of Dr. Bernard Maxwood, Bishop of Ely, that members of a congregation should be entitled to put questions to the preacher during the course of a sermon does not receive much encouragement from prominent clergy and laity, whose view have been sought upon the suggestion.

Archdeacon Lowe of Bradford thinks the atmosphere of the service would thereby be destroyed, and as an alternative suggests gatherings to follow.

Moose River Rescue As Lesson in Courage

Regina, May 16—(CP) The Saskatchewan Commission investigating the on-to-Ottawa trek of striking relief camp workers a year ago found a lesson in courage and valor in the recent Moose River, N.S. gold mine rescue.

At the close of its lengthy report, the Commissioners declared:

"The unemployment problem . . . will be solved only by sincere, intelligent co-operation on the part of all classes of society.

"A splendid illustration of what can be accomplished by this latter method is impressed upon us in the triumph of the rescue work at Moose River, N. S."

DREW CANDIDATE FOR TORY LEADER

Former Securities Commissioner Announces His Aim

Windsor, Ont., May 18 (CP)—Demanding that the bulwarks of democracy be strengthened against the advance of fascism, and declaring that British institutions be upheld that veterans of the Great War get the preference in employment, Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, K.C., has announced his candidacy for the leadership of the Conservative Party in Ontario.

Former Ontario Securities Commissioner made his announcement in an address to the Essex County Conservative Club after coming here from Toronto by airplane late yesterday.

He declared that the convention of Ontario Conservatives at Toronto May 26 should be the most important convention "since Confederation—or either party". He asked the delegates to go there with their minds untied, free to choose the man whose ideas are most vital to the future of the party. He asked them not to attend the convention committed beforehand to vote for any leader.

GATINEAU FAMILIES MENACED AS FLOOD WATERS RISE

While floods are things of the past for certain localities, the town of Gatineau Point, Que., is taking on a venetian appearance. Lower sections of the town are entirely flooded, and if the water of the Ottawa and Gatineau rivers continues to rise, several residents will be forced to move from their homes. Bread and merchants are obliged to deliver their goods in rowboats. There are about 200 houses which are surrounded by water, and some of the residents have already moved from the ground floors of their houses to the upper ones. Scenes from the flood area are shown here. Right, two cows on a raft. Left, children wading in the flooded doorway of their home.

TRIED TO GRAB FALLING WORKER

Fellow-Workman Testifies at Inquest Over Roy Garrison

Cobourg, Ont., May 16 (CP)—Accidental death due to a fractured skull suffered in a fall from a scaffold, was the verdict returned last night by a jury probing the death of Roy Garrison, of Camilton. Garrison was killed Friday at Cobourg when he slipped from a scaffold and fell 35 feet to the bottom of the steel gas storage tank on which he was working.

Coroner D. G. Ferris presided and Col. T. D. Boggs, K.C. acted on behalf of the crown.

Milton Benson and Burt Bedenham, fellow workmen, said Garrison was standing on the scaffold, a bracket slung platform bolted to the tank. In putting his shoulder to press a plate in place, Garrison fell from the platform, they said.

"I saw him fall and grabbed at him but missed him," said Bedenham.

Neither of the men could account for his falling. Following the inquest his body was taken back to his home in Belleville.

News of 'Forgotten Artist' Always Late, Even of Death

Committee Once Forgot to Invite O'Brien to Fete in His Honor

Denver, May 16 (AP)—Michael Stroud O'Brien, the "forgotten artist" of Denver, is dead but the announcement of death, just as the news of most of the great things of his life, was delayed for days. He died Tuesday in hospital, listed only as "Michael O'Brien, hod carrier, 62".

Last year a committee of artists, viewing paintings at an exhibition here, decided O'Brien was the "best artist" in Denver. But O'Brien, living in a rude shack, did not know of the honor until several days later. Denver's artist colony decided to hold a big reception in O'Brien's honor and almost every artist in the city was there but the host earlier. The committee forgot to invite him.

When he entered the hospital several weeks ago no one remembered he was officially Denver's outstanding artist.

O'Brien had carried bricks in Denver since 1883 and had painted as a "hobby" in his spare moments. After he won his award last year trunks in his home were found bulging with paintings by his hand. Artists said some were outstanding.

Fresh Japanese Forces Streaming Into Tientsin

Tientsin, China, May 16—(AP)—Fresh contingents of Japanese troops streamed today into the enlarged Tientsin garrison.

Departing from their previous explanation that the reinforcements were necessary because of Communist activities in North China, Japanese militarists said their forces were being augmented to protect a large number of Japanese.

Peiping, May 16—(AP)—Foreign diplomats began a study today of the serious situation arising from Japan's strengthening of its North China garrisons which caused the Nanking government to protest to Tokyo.

Diplomats pointed out the Boxer protocol, concluded after the Chinese uprising of 1900, permitted Japan and other signatories to have troops in only protective forces.

Japan's present North China troop strength of nearly 10,000, diplomats emphasized, was sufficient to occupy strategic air fields, railroad stations and great wall passes.

No Danger Foreseen

In connection with a Japanese military attache's statement that the reinforcements were required to protect an increasing number of Japanese residents in North China, foreign diplomats declared no danger existed.

Diplomatic sources said no "incident" had occurred to warrant such a large force as was formed by the arrival yesterday of 7,600 additional Japanese troops.

Chinese sources insisted the reinforcements had a twofold purpose:

1. To encircle North China with a view to ultimate occupation and subjugation by Japan.

2. To prepare for an eventual war with Soviet Russia, which Japan might regard not only as a menace to Manchoukuo but also to its own island empire from the air.

The Draegermen went to Parliament Hill after dinner and called on the Prime Minister at his residence, their friend, Benny St. Maurice, a Liberal member of the Commons from Picton. Maritime members joined them in his office and soon the conversation turned to reminiscences of Nova Scotia mining history.

Simpson and Morrell were ready for leaving to work and also looked forward to fishing and hunting trips. "Besides, once a man has worked in a coal mine, he never wants to do anything else," said Simpson.

KILLING FROSTS VISIT DISTRICT

Mercury Drops to 20 Degrees And Small Crops Suffer

Killing frosts which hung over this district in a great part of the night and early this morning, ridden on counties which touched 30 degrees at their lowest point today caused hundreds of dollars damage to young and rapidly growing stuff in back yard gardens of the city and farm plots in the rural areas.

Damage to strawberry plants now blossoming, will be especially heavy, it was reported today by a number of rural residents.

The cold wave which capped several days of cold weather during the week-end, was the first of the slow and quieter waiters of the months and in addition to further orders booked by coal dealers as residents again turned to the winter's fuel, the sale of oil stoves and boilers, just one year ago, on May 22nd, it was recalled today by local historians, a previous killing frost was noted which destroyed a considerable amount of green stuff in gardens.

T. Shanford, vegetable grower, stated today he lost 30,000 tomato plants by the frost. Mr. Fred Mountain also reports many plants destroyed.

In the Camnitton and Foxboro districts damage, especially to pea crops and tender vegetables will be heavy, it was stated today by residents. Prince Edward County also suffered damage although temperatures were tempered by the water surrounding the county.

According to records kept by the local waterworks department the early and cold wave and drop in temperatures registered lowest temperatures in May records since 1921. Lowest temperatures since that date given today are:

BROAD VISION OF RED CROSS WORK TOLD CANVASSERS

Appeal For Funds Will be Launched in City Next Week

MR. HEFKEY PRESIDES

Treasurer Announces Large Sum From Appeal by Letters

A broad vision of Red Cross activities in the province was brought to campaign workers who met at the home of the Vice President, Mrs. F. S. Lazier, by Mr. N. R. Vinton, field secretary of the Red Cross yesterday afternoon. The meeting marked the annual campaign for funds, which opens on Monday and Dominion Day, when it is hoped Belleville will raise one thousand dollars to carry on.

Mr. T. G. Hefkey, president was in the chair and was introduced by Mr. Vinton in his remarks to the workers. Mr. Hefkey, campaign treasurer, brought the first meeting news, that a $177.70 had been subscribed that had been received by letters sent out, and this included many new and several larger subscriptions than in previous years.

Miss Hurley, secretary and ardent supporter of Cross, for many years, wished the workers every success and said, that the Red Cross was making new friends every year, which showed well for a successful campaign.

Mr. Vinton in his opening remarks dwelt on the splendid achievement of the local Red Cross, the only branch in Ontario to be selected with a food emergency situation, and how the organization was able to deal with it. He paid tribute to the work of Mr. Hefkey and Leader Lazier, and their assistance to the situation with the co-operation of other committees which made it a splendid accomplishment for relief of those sufferers. Dr. Ketchum referred to the wonderful work Miss Hurley has done for Red Cross.

Special Services

Some of the Red Cross special services in the district have been the care of the quintuplets for one year with funds subscribed from all over the world for this special purpose; and the translation of the Mossie River subscription.

Services for soldiers were still a paramount duty of the Red Cross and would be as long as the veteran stood in need of such aid. Women workers visited military hospitals and brought cheer and touch to the lonely and often bitter sufferers. Soldiers' Clubs now operated in Toronto, Ottawa, Halifax with plans for buildings in Ottawa and Kingston. Such a venture could not be met with splendid success, of interest to this city, as to the small pensioner.

Junior Red Cross members cared for 2,000 crippled children in the last ten years by tiny sums collected by pennies. Dr. Ketchum and Dr. F. E. Robertson was one of the committee of experts on the subject and was tireless in his work of medical treatment, free of charge to children.

The outpost hospital work administering to the needs of those in northern districts, the Hospital for Sick Children, and the Victorian Order of Nurses, all were helped by those out or touch with even the outposts of civilization. Red Cross nurses brought care to children of the north, whose teeth were in an appalling condition, and the operation of the Rag Cross activities in the province. The Outpost Hospital ship on the Red Cross campaign were supported by the Red Cross and other Red Cross ventures. Response to appeals this year in other cities had been splendid, especially in Toronto, assured that Belleville citizens would respond as whole-heartedly as in the past.

Many Thanked

Special appreciation was expressed to Mr. Hefkey, Mrs. Lazier, and the Canadian Department Store the Boy Scouts and the Ontario Intelligencer for their assistance in connection with the coming campaign.

Mrs. Leslie Ketchum closed the meeting briefly gave in detail a report of the week's campaign including the flood and following it, and the president concluded the business of the meeting by thanking the committee members and the canvassers for their co-operation.

The following ladies will act as canvassers next week: Mrs. A. B. Collins, Mrs. Thos. Holland, Miss I. Thompson, Miss Clara Wallbridge, Mrs. C. B. Smith, Mrs. Ross Archibald, Mrs. H. W. Ackerman, Mrs. C. S. Argue, Mrs. H. Mackenzie, Mrs. F. Potter, Mrs. L. M. Hove, Mrs. F. Chamberlain, Mrs. Alex. T. H. Crozier, Mrs. A. E. Kimmerly, Mrs. W. Pepper, Mrs. G. A. TUBERCULAR TEST COMPLETED

In introducing Dr. Orserly, Chairman Hefkey, the local Collins Institute lately among pupils has been much interested, Rev. Hazel Read paid special tribute to Trustee Mercieff for his work in connection with the Collins Institute with which Dr. Orserly is concerned.

During the clinical tests a total of 763 pupils were inspected, of this number 63 were found positive on tests and X-ray. Twenty-three pupils besides the 63 mentioned were found to have advanced symptoms. was sent to a sanitarium, while two children were advised to take a lengthy rest. Three pupils, who were found to have definite symptoms were advised as to care and treatment. Parents of these children were interviewed personally by Dr. Orserly.

In the report of Dr. Ernest Orserly, of the special clinic it was revealing that 421 fillings, 23 removals, 25 extractions, 28 treatments and 324 treatments had been given since the start of the present year. A grand total of 1,864 children had been examined.

Trustee Mercieff, a former student of the new addition to Queen Mary School will be engaged in by members at the adjourned meeting on the 26th of May.

"In the matter of this school addition," declared Mr. Geo. Cashman, chairman.

Brief discussion last evening of the matter was occasioned by the reading of a letter received by the Board from city council in which it was pointed out that the by-law regular meeting of city council held, Wednesday, was not considered legal.

"With the application of the Board of Education for $60,000.00 for the cost of an addition to Queen Mary School has been granted without the approval of the ratepayers", said Mr. Cashman, "We must look into the matter and discussed it thoroughly", declared Mr. Delaney. "We have given a courteous reception and felt the matter in their hands. We have waited for two weeks, and so far no action has been taken, although we did not expect it to come that something should be done. At the last city council meeting it is for years, that the matter was simply set aside."

"It is too late to include it in the estimates", reminded Trustee H. Wilson.

"What will we do with that letter we have received from municipal questioned Rev. A. B. Payne, chairman in committee of the whole.

"Frank it", advised Trustee W. J. Harrison.

Rivals Club to Assist

Two male supervisors will be appointed to look after the school grounds on the east and west sides of the city, it was agreed by the board. They will be helped in their duties by feminine assistants. This move was agreed upon in the contingency that aid will be given by the Rivals Club whose executive has announced its intention of providing shower baths, dressing rooms and other incidental aids.

A recommendation passed by a committee meeting of Victoria School Management Committee, that all teachers receiving less than the maximum salary be given an increase of $50.00 each, subject to the satisfactory report of the school inspector, was passed. It was also moved and seconded that an increase of $50.00 each be made to the Collegiate teachers for 1936-37.

Under the authority of the Board the Secretary has been instructed to advertise for tenders for work to be done in schools during the summer holidays, chief of which will be the painting of the interiors with a separate prize being asked for each room. Prizes for painting and finishing the floors of the George School, varnishing the woodwork of Queen Mary School and resurfacing the floors of the Collegiate gymnasium to be asked for.

It was moved by Trustee H. J. Allin, that a committee of three including the Chairman of Finance, the School Management Committee, and the Separate School Board appointee be named to investigate the necessity of a Board solicitor. The matter will come under discussion at the adjourned meeting the 26th.

This year the largest class of High School entrants in the history of the city will try examinations. It was revealed by Mr. E. J. Jones, Supt. Some 1,200 candidates will be given examination papers.

FRANCIS THOMAS CALLERY

Marmora (Special)—The death occurred on Friday at 6 a.m. of Francis Thomas Callery, son of and Mrs. Bernard Callery at his father's home near Deloro. The deceased was in his twenty-first year. He had spent the greater part of his life on the family farm with the exception of a few years in Detroit. Popularly known as 'Red' he was a general favorite with the young people of his age. He had a cheery, laughing disposition with a pleasant word for all who spoke to him. Well known in Marmora and Deloro, he was most favorably regarded by all who knew him. Before leaving for Detroit about a year ago he was a familiar figure with the young people and enjoyed outdoor sports, such as hockey during the season. He was a devout member of the Sacred Heart Church.

Becoming ill about nine months ago, he returned to his home in Marmora, Township of Marmora, and resided there in a very poor state of health.

Besides his sorrowing parents left to mourn his loss are eight brothers and three sisters. They are: William, and Bernard of Detroit, Joseph, Murtagh, Michael of Marmora, Fred and Vincent of Schumacker, Mrs. R. Saint-Amour, Marmora, Zela of Detroit and Edith at home.

She was an active member of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church and an ardent and enthusiastic worker in the Women's Missionary Society of which she was a life member. Though never of robust health, Mrs. Wright was an effort of marked ability and entered whole-heartedly into whatsoever she formed the real things of life. She was a member of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire and was an ardent worker in all their undertakings.

The church will miss Mrs. Wright and the community as a whole will miss her cheerful and ever ready help. Her life was crowned with perfect sympathetic understanding endeared her to those who came in contact with her.

"Beaver had she need to coat her skin,
Or skunk the drom of earth,
For as she walked in the world all day,
she walked she from her birth;
In gentleness in honour and clean mirth."

Prayer closed this simple and impressive service. Interment took place at Lakeview cemetery.

The charges were read against the accused by Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C., at the opening of the examination. Following the conviction Blackadder was released on bail, but was remanded to jail and remanded in custody.

The two teen-aged girls upon whom Blackadder was alleged to have committed his crimes were called to give evidence, who testified he witnessed the former crime, all gave evidence against the accused.

Sergeant H. Nicholson, of the O.P.P., and Chief Hayes of Tweed, both produced statements which they had taken from the accused, which were admitted. T. D. Ruston, Children's Aid Society Inspector for this district, also testified as to previous character of the accused.

A charge of illegal flailing, laid against Charles Mcdonald, Thurlow Road, was to have been presented for trial, but owing to the almighty police court docket, His Worship, enlarged the case until May 26th. The charge of illegal flailing was laid by Game Warden Herb. McCabe of this city.

GRADUATES DINED AT ALBERT COLLEGE

In honour of this year's graduating class at the College, Principal Alford an occasion for judging the best orator in the school, a splendid banquet was prepared last evening in Ackerman Hall of Albert College.

Principal Howard, as chairman, began the toasts of the evening by proposing a toast to the King, which the King, whose loveable personality permeated the world-wide Empire in a spirit of peace and concord. This was followed by a toast to the graduates proposed by Dr. McDonald who called attention to the splendid spirit of co-operation and co-ordination among this year's students, who have been eminently successful in their social, athletic and academic activities. Lloyd Hinson responded on behalf of the graduating class stating, that their was vision of the future that was greatly influenced by the "art of living together", which they had learned at Albert.

In offering a filling toast to Albert College, Harold Kennedy admitted that they were reluctant to leave the institution with such a fine background of tradition where so many sacred and cherished friendships had been set up. To this Reverend Howard replied that the year's class was not to be considered as the "swan song" for those graduating but as a mighty challenge for those to whom, from falling hands, we hold the torch. Three of the world's greatest motivating influences, the home, the school, the church, he stated, happily meet in the harmonious life of Albert College.

After College What?

The annual oratorical contest in which all students followed the toast-making, the winner of which was to receive the coveted John McD. Kerr prize of twenty-five dollars, was carried out. All subjects and orators of outstanding merit, the Judges, Wm. J. Morrison, Commander Gordon Boyle, Miss Ella Deaf, Rev. I. B. Naylor, Thurlow Church, and E. V. Illsley, Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, unanimously in the winner, Joe Clarke, whose subject "After College, What?" was ably delivered. "Why should a man," he queried, "run risks and hazards by land and sea all these days, that their children might be safe and lazy all their life? It is so difficult," he continued in his appealing manner," to be ourselves in existence. The radio does our speaking, the paper does our thinking and popular opinion changes by minute. He had an answer to his subject and it is found in the statement, "the preservation of individuality discovered at College." Two others in the contest, Lloyd Hinson and Hector Allaire received honourable mention, a distinction which gave each a volume donated by the Principal and Mrs. Howard. Stirling Kincaid, Harold Kennedy also delivered very creditable addresses.

During the delightful evening which formed a prelude to the annual graduation, ceremonies conducted early in June, entertainment was supplied by Miss Clare Cairns and Mr. Anglin, both of Belleville.

POLICE BLOTTER

Provincial Police today received complaints from farmers residing in Thurlow Township, and north of the old rubber plant, relative to two large dogs chasing cattle in the fields. The dogs were described to Constable McBrien as a large hound and a bull dog. The authorities are issued warnings and added the owners of the dogs would be prosecuted and the dogs destroyed as they are a public nuisance and molesting domestic animals.

Gladstone Terry, Trenton, reported the theft of seven small rugs to the local police last evening. The rugs, measuring four feet by two feet in size, were left in the basement of the vehicle. Mr. Terry informed police that he had stopped at the Trenton Airport enroute to Belleville, later parking his car on Front St. It was upon his return he found the rugs missing. Mr. Terry was unable to offer the authorities as to whether the rugs had been removed prior to his arrival in Belleville or not.

Local police authorities were asked to be on the look-out for a 1936 Nash coupe reported stolen at Kingston last night. The vehicle bore license number 6-A-39-30.

One lone inebriate was picked up on Bleecker Ave. early this morning and taken to the police station. Shortly before noon he was allowed to return to his local home and told to go no more. Seven transients occupied the cell here and were afforded warm sleeping quarters last night.

RADIO STAFFS FILL DUAL POSTS

Used "Stage" Names in Commercial Programs Committee Told

Ottawa, May 15 (CP)—Members of the permanent staff of Canadian Radio Commission studios had assigned to other program activities under "stage names" and received additional pay, it was disclosed yesterday by witnesses before the Parliamentary Committee on Broadcasting.

Col. R. P. Landry, secretary of the commission, produced minute books which showed use of stage names by commission workers had been disclosed to the Commission in a report from the accountant. It showed that "many members" of the permanent staff in Toronto were working under other names on commercial programs produced by the Commission. They were getting their regular salaries and extra pay under assumed names, all from the Commission.

Denton Massey (Conn. Orionwood, Toronto) said he had personal knowledge that such practices were not unusual among artists and that in the circumstances the question there had been no violation of arrangements existing between the Commission and artists.

Col. Landry said he did not know what salaries the commission took when the dual roles of the permanent staff were disclosed. Ernest Lucas, one of those named, was still with the Commission.

For the fiscal year 1934-35 the Commission had a deficit of $67,000, Col. Landry said.

1,800 Skin Grafting Operations Performed On Tennesse Youth

Dayton, Tenn., May 16 (AP)—19-Year-old Marvin Smith was recovering in a hospital here today from what doctors hoped would be the last of 1,800 skin grafting operations on his right leg.

On October 26, 1933, the youth was injured in an automobile wreck. A spinning wheel of the wrecked car rubbed the flesh from his leg from the knee to ankle. Doctors estimated about 180 square inches of skin were torn off.

He spent two birthdays in the hospital while Dr. A. C. Broyles grafted a total of 1,740 patches on the injured flesh, using skin taken from various parts of the patient's body.

He was dismissed three months ago but while working in a potato warehouse at Carp, Tenn., a few weeks later he was bitten by a rat on the patched up leg.

Infection developed and he was forced to return to the hospital where sixty more operations were necessary to restore the member to normal again.

TAYLOR MYSTERY OF 1922 REVIVED

Butler Reported Seen in Long Beach This Week

Los Angeles, May 16 (AP)—An intensive police drive for a Taylor in the slaying of William Desmond Taylor revived interest today in the grim 14-year-old enigma of the movie colony.

Informed that Edward F. Sands, discharged butler of the film director, had been seen four times in Long Beach this week, police said investigators from the District Attorney's office searched beach towns for the long-missing man.

Sands disappeared shortly before Taylor was found shot to death in his apartment in 1922, and just after a warrant for the butler's arrest had been issued, charging him with forging and uttering. Taylor was the complainant.

With the noted director's death told in sensational terms, Mary Miles Minter and the late Mabel Normand, then screen stars, were questioned concerning their relations with the victim. The Mackaire name never was solved.

Officials inclined to the belief that Sands wanted to avoid testifying was really the director's brother.

Taylor's real name was William Cunningham Deane-Tanner, and that of Sands, authorities said, was Dennis Deane-Tanner.

Squatters on Lakes Must Pay Rentals

Toronto, May 16 (CP)—Walter Cain, Ontario Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, today said that "squatters" who have built wharves, boathouses or other structures out into provincial streams or lakes will be compelled this year to pay the regular rental.

Ownership of riparian rights only as far as the high water mark, he explained, and beyond that and underneath the water land. Persons who use this land must obtain permission from the government department.

"The trouble," said Mr. Cain, "is that many of them think there isn't a tax but rent for land that doesn't belong to them. Now in the shoreline area will be checked particularly," he said.

Lake Timiskaming Is Free of Ice Today

New Liskeard, Ont., May 16 (CP) —After having been in the grip of the frost king for 147 days, Lake Timiskaming was free of ice today.

Strong breezes yesterday completed the disintegration under way for some days past and navigation was open again, four days later than last year. The lake froze over on 17 last. Reports from further north along the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad indicate that ice is still holding in places. Seaplanes have not yet being clear.

"Most Comfortable car I have ever Driven"—

SAYS MR. WARREN R. COULTER, TORONTO

"MY '36 Plymouth is the most comfortable car I have ever driven, owing to the chair-height seats and soft springs. Gas mileage is between 20 and 22 miles per gallon, steering is exceptionally easy and free from road shock. Brakes, as always on Chrysler built cars, are positive and easily operated. I am thoroughly satisfied with the car in every respect."

From all over Canada reports similar to that of Mr. Coulter are pouring in from owners whose 1936 Plymouth cars have more than measured up to expectations.

The proof of the genius and soundness of Chrysler Engineering lies in the service and satisfaction every Chrysler-built Plymouth renders its owner.

Statement after statement stresses the low operating cost of the new Plymouth. Owners report 21 to 27 miles to a gallon of gasoline—together with phenomenally low oil consumption.

Comfort, safety, easy-steering, smooth effortless power—all the features you expect in a motor car you will find at their best in Plymouth.

Floating-power engine mountings that smother engine vibration, redistribution of weight with passengers riding between the axles, safety-steel body mounted on new, twice-as-rigid frame, safety glass in all windows, genuine Chrysler Hydraulic brakes with two pistons at each wheel—these are just a few of many reasons for Plymouth owner enthusiasm.

Visit your nearest Chrysler-Plymouth-Fargo dealer. He will be happy to have you DRIVE a Plymouth—that's the one best way to judge its superlative performance. Why not drop in today?

ADVISED TO EAT BRAN FOR HER CONSTIPATION"

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helps Miss Hanson

"Read this enthusiastic, voluntary letter: "Just a line to let you know how much I appreciate Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I was troubled with constipation. I asked my doctor what to do. He said to eat bran.

"I tried other brands but they weren't so good, so I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and it is just wonderful. It makes delicious muffins, too." Miss Agnes Hanson. (Address upon request.).

ALL-BRAN provides mild "bulk" to help relieve the average need. This delicious cereal also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. It is often more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this natural food pleasanter than patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Sold by all grocers. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

COLONIZATION OF ETHIOPIA

Mussolini's plan to leave four hundred thousand soldiers as colonists in Ethiopia indicates a reversion to the old colonial principle of the Romans who established garrisons, members of which became part of the country and its development as well as guardians of peace. This 400,000 means many more because wives and families and in the case of unmarried soldiers, sweethearts and brides will come. This will mean several times the number 400,000 it is estimated. Such will be a great relief on the large population at home, which is five times that of the new "Italian Empire" Ethiopia, which is also five times the size of the Italian "boot."

It is reported that 200,000 families of the men already in Africa are on a list for colonization.

This transplantation is considered a heavy undertaking, calling on all the resources of Italy. But such colonization has nothing like it in history, even in Roman history, for the Roman garrisons of the Caesars were small as compared with the many colonial families who are to go in and possess the land. Facts show that few Britishers go out to the Malay peninsula and few Japanese go to the mainland of Asia, as colonists. A century has passed and only half a million Frenchmen are in Algeria.

The world will watch Italian colonization. It Duce intends no doubt to make this scheme pay as he once decides upon it. It may mean enforced immigration. This contrasts with British immigration, which in its earliest days was the most successful in history as in the instance of the colonization of America, especially North America. Spain, France and Holland were other colonizers of the past few centuries.

FOOTBRIDGE

One route will hold its own—the footbridge. Blocked for two months because of the destruction of the wooden structure in the flood, the way over the river has been missed as one of the things which are the apple of the eye of the people.

He who first thought of a footbridge was a farseeing man. Many men can see some distance ahead but the man who can offer such a suggestion as a bridge which will be carried down the generations was a man with a vision. There is no end to that vision, for there will be a footbridge as long as the Moira River divides the city in two and water flows down the stream in summer and ice forms in winter. The only possibility of the disappearance of the footbridge might be its expansion into a heavy traffic bridge with pedestrian walk. At present that seems unlikely and it seems unlikely for many years.

Though motor cars developed in numbers greatly in recent years, it is doubtful if more persons do not use the footbridge today than ever. Merchants on Front Street, residents of the West Side and also many of the East side find the footbridge the absolute necessity everyone believes it is.

Again opened, though in a new form with steel applied to the purpose formerly served by wood, the footbridge route is the popular way for those who walk. It is claimed that this way is used by more persons to walk over than cross the river by the two heavy traffic and highway bridges.

To those who knew older Belleville before the past few years launched vast changes in the main streets and in the buildings, as have modified the city's appearance, the footbridge even in its new dress is a reminder of the older Belleville.

With the bridge again in use, the hopes that there may be many a winter before the present structure is buffeted by the ice in a spring break-up.

THE ARBUTUS TREE
By Lois H. Gilpin

Along a rocky coast, some years ago,
Where mists and salt sea winds in freedom blow,
We came upon a small arbutus tree
Cut down to earth. But struggling to be free,
It pointed three green shoots to reach the sky—
The will to live, to grow, to be—not die.
Brave little tree! With stronger hands to help,
I bound its long tap root in drifting kelp,
And gathered what I could of its home soil—
Making a joy of grimy, earthly toil.

Home in my garden many miles inland,
I planted it with kindly, hopeful hand,
And o'er the surface of the fresh-smoothed loam
Laid cool, grey rocks to make it feel at home.

I think it felt my garden's sympathy
To grow so far away from its loved sea.
A canopy of beauty in the blue,
Its honey-colored blooms, with honeyed dew,
Spreading in clusters o'er green, glossy boughs,
Poised on curved branches, glowing red and bronze;
Its life fruits growing so luxuriantly
It offers to the Eternal Majesty.
High in its shelter, where no foe may roam,
Come songs at dawning from a feathered home.

ALVIN KARPIS, UNCLE SAM'S PUBLIC ENEMY No. 1, charged with murder, kidnapping, etc., has been captured. This is the man who sent Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-Men a threat that he would shoot him on sight. This, together with a taunt from a congressman, that Hoover never made any arrests personally, induced Hoover to go out after Karpis personally and capture Karpis, whom he in turn, taunted, with his failure to shoot on sight, although he was armed when arrested. Several other Public Enemies with many notches in their guns have been rounded up by Hoover and his merry G-Men since Karpis and the going seems to be getting harder for the crime specialists all the time.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

But Talk Was Meant

Mrs. Jones was entertaining some ladies at a select five o'clock tea; and Tommy, who had been very well behaved, was in high feather.

"Ma," he said, as cake was being handed round, "may I have some tongue, please?"

"There isn't any tongue, dear," replied his mother.

"That's funny", commented Tommy. "I heard Pa say there would be plenty of it!"

His Strong Point

The young man was seeking a position at an aerodrome, but did not seem very sure of his own qualifications. He wanted to be a pilot.

"But," said the chief, "if you've never had anything to do with aviation, what on earth is the use of you asking to be made a pilot?"

"Well," replied the young man, "I just want showing how to go up. Once up, I'm all right. I've been a carpenter, so I'm used to 'planing down'!"

Running No Risk

Some years ago our King (then Prince of Wales) had promised to attend the County Agricultural Show which was being held at a provincial town in the West of England.

Several police were requisitioned from the rural districts for the Royal visit with strict instructions that the roadways must be kept clear, no groups to be allowed to congregate other than on the foot-paths.

At last one burly Robert, evidently feeling the importance of the occasion, saw his opportunity, hurried up to three men who had stopped to admire the decorations, and threw the following order off his chest: "Now then, move on, move on, please. One can stand together, but two or three mustn't."

Handicapped

Because he had lost his job on the farm, and he couldn't get another, an Irish agricultural laborer trudged to the nearest town and applied at a big works.

"I can find you a job all right," said the head foreman, "but you'll have to work in a night shift."

"That's hard luck," said Paddy "Oi only have a pair of pyjamas."

Parliament Hill Hears
By Wilfrid Eggleston

The wheat inquiry recently concluded was most fascinating from a bystander's viewpoint because of the clash of two outstandingly able men.

James R. Murray, chairman of the wheat board, has a Celtic nimbleness of wit which flashed repeatedly during cross-examination by the leader of the opposition. Some of the edge of these encounters is lost in the official record. It is necessary to be there, to hear the thunder in the counsel's voice, and the velvet smoothness of Mr. Murray's rejoinders.

For example:

Mr. Bennett, menacingly: "Do you mean to tell me that no minute was made of that meeting?" (Enough to make the most innocent man quail, levied in those tones).

Mr. Murray, lazily: "I did not say no minute was made of it."

Mr. Bennett, insisting: "I am asking you?"

Mr. Murray, equally firm: "I would rather that you asked the simple question. The question as you put it, 'Do you mean to tell me....?' is hardly fair."

Mr. Bennett: "Anyway, I thought you told Mr. Perley, who asked about the minute, that there was not any?"

Mr. Murray: "No."

Mr. Bennett: "Was a minute kept of the meeting?"

Mr. Murray: "There is a record of it in the minutes, yes."

* * * * *

The atmosphere got pretty warm on the Friday before the inquiry ended, and the shorthand man took down this:

Mr. Bennett: "You are not concerned about that. Your business is this: On these records did the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited buy that wheat or not?"

Mr. Murray: "I am glad to have you tell me my business, but I did not know it was a fact. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde act. I simply read from the record."

Mr. Bennett: "You will not get away with it that way. As a gentleman said the other day, there is no reason why we should have a lecture after each question."

Mr. Murray: "Is there too much competition?"

Mr. Bennett: "You may think you are clever!"

Mr. Murray: "I am not."

A moment later Mr. Bennett objected to the manner in which a question was answered.

Mr. Carlegy (a member of the committee): "The witness has the right to answer in his own way."

Mr. Bennett: "He has not. He has the right to make the answer responsive to the question, and when I ask him a question that can be answered yes or no, he should do so."

Mr. Murray: "Is the witness limited to answering yes or no? If that is so, I hope nobody will ask if I have stopped beating my wife, to use an old example."

* * * * *

There have been some exciting Fridays in that committee room before. No one who was there at the press table on Friday the 17th of July, 1931, will ever forget that day. After a few remarks about excavations and canal measurements, Mr. R. O. Sweezey was recalled to the witness stand, and Peter White came out with the following ominous sentence:

"Mr. Sweezey, we have now arrived at a stage in these proceedings when I wish to take up with you the question of contributions of campaign funds?"

Mr. Sweezey: "Yes".

I recall another Friday, and this time it was the 13th, when the fur flew. R. B. Hanson, of York Sunbury, was in the chair. Dr. Manion was seated beside him. Mr. Arthur Meighen, reconcile of the Canadian National Railways, was on the stand. The subject was a very touchy one, of the contracts, and Mr. Meighen was in a distinctly fighting humor. "Shibby" Power, "Commodore" Duff and other doughty Liberals were down the line committee members. They were getting the whole business with disapproval. A statement made by the witness failed to agree with something the Minister of Railways had said, and the chairman turned to the witness; curtly:

"Your information was faulty."

Mr. Fairweather, indignant, rose: if it was going to cost him his job. "It was not faulty."

Chairman: "Excuse me. It was faulty."

An uproar followed, the chairman then said, loudly: "No official of the C. N. R. is going to come here and take charge of this railway committee."

Several of the Liberals were on their feet at once protesting. It all calmed down again, I remember when Dr. Manion took the responsibility for the failure of the statements to gibe.

* * * * *

It was in the committee room, too, that a curious farce occurred which probably is not in the records at all. It was after the high tariff increases of late '30 and early '31 had been passed. Mr. Bennett, chairman of a Tariff Board, or something else, had been met at last by Mr. Bennett with the announcement that he would engage in the tariff committee room, on a given date, to hear representations against existing schedules.

Members of the press gathered expectantly. The hearings were to start, I think, at 10 o'clock. Mr. Bennett, 'Bob' Breadner and others were there five minutes or so early.

Big Ben boomed ten times.

Mr. Bennett said: "Does anyone here wish to make representations against existing tariffs?" (The words to that effect).

No one rose.

Mr. Bennett: "There being no representations, we shall adjourn."

Followed by 'Bob' Breadner and others, he thereupon set off down the Hall of Fame, leaving amazed lawyers with weighty brief cases in hand, hurrying toward the Railway Committee room for a Tariff hearing which had adjourned!

I suppose the moral of that one is: It pays to be punctual!

Letters Written by Mrs. Geo. M. James Conveying Impressions of His Travels Across The Continent to The Land of The Golden Sun

No. 6

LOS ANGELES, THE CITY OF ANGELS

These lines were written in Los Angeles on May 8th, 1936. When we were in Miami, Florida, two years ago, we acquired that Miami was the Spanish for "My lovely home". Now we find that Los Angeles in Spanish for "The City of Angels". Both titles are appropriate as we shall endeavor to explain in due time.

Before dealing with the greatest mass of interesting newspaper material ever in the possession of the writer for our next place, it will be necessary to bring the history of our wonderful journey from Kansas City, where we left off in our last article to this ideal city of sunshine and plenty.

As we were about to continue our journey from Kansas City we met the streets all torn up and down hill like undulating waves, we met a fine looking gentleman who was to be a fellow traveller. In true American fashion he was immediately friendly and communicative.

"When I arose this morning, both my eyes seemed to be shut up tightly as if I were a blind man," he informed us.

"We feel like that too, often, but an application of cold water, even a shower bath, proves very beneficial and invigorating," we replied cheerfully.

"Not a suitable remedy for me; water is only fit for navigation. I drank a favorite cocktail, but, contrary to custom, it only opened one eye and I was compelled to have another or go cockeyed all day."

Our observations convince us that the American people prefer cocktails to all other beverages, but that the Englishman holds the record for drinking power. Neither person seen to be at their best without their favorite beverage. As a result we find that about one-fourth of all the stores in American towns and cities sell liquor and that you can have a squirt or a snort in almost every restaurant and drug store.

DESERTS AND MOUNTAINS

It is seventeen hundred miles from Kansas City to Los Angeles, and as most of this journey is through sandy deserts and snow-capped mountains, the time required to make the trip is approximately forty-eight travelling by night bus with the result that we covered the course from Saturday night to Monday night, or in nearly fifty-one hours, an average of thirty-three miles per hour. The sleeping arrangements are similar to those of a pullman and just as comfortable and convenient with individual and double compartments. Half of the seats are on the usual level, while the rest are raised several feet for observation purposes. Both sides of the bus consist chiefly of large panes of glass set in a strong steel frame. With the exception of cushions, curtains and bedding the bus is fireproof and runs over good paved highways. This type of travel has been in operation about one year, and constitutes a serious menace to pullman car travel. The only hope for the railways is a rate of less than two cents a mile, such as is likely to become effective soon on the American continent. Two years ago we reported the railway rate throughout Manitoba as two cents a mile, and even at that low cost the buses found getting nearly all the business. People like to see the country and cities through which they pass and stop off for a night or two wherever fancy leads them. Drivers and porters point out and explain everything of interest, an advantage which cannot be overestimated.

Our night bus had a capacity of twenty-five, and as a rule reservations must be made a day or two in advance, so great is the demand already for this mode of travel. Food is obtained about every five hours in the daytime by stops of from ten to thirty minutes at suitable places along the route. This time we found the food invariably excellent, and quite reasonable in price. Pretty waitresses often gave us their names and addresses, and wished us to secure positions for them in Ontario. True, they were lonely places, where the romance of love is almost entirely absent. Your heart would ache for these lonely maidens.

On Sunday the spacious bus ride gave us a comfortable and plenty of good music such as we often received at home on that day.

AN UNUSUAL PORTER

Our porter was a deep chocolate in color, and we called him John. Of all the porters or stewards we have ever known, was the most willing to perform in all particulars of constancy, cheerfulness and helpful attention. He explained everything of importance along the way, anticipated our every need and comfort, and frequently met the drivers to stop a few minutes that we might view a striking landscape picture. At the end of the journey in Los Angeles, every passenger gave John a one dollar bill with a smile and a kind farewell, and John modestly replied: "God bless a cheerful giver."

This significant reply explains John's great success as a humble porter. His wife is a devoted Christian, and John has come much under her spiritual influence with the result that he exemplifies in his character the doctrine, "by their fruits ye shall know them". After a few minutes acquaintance you would discover that John was not different from the ordinary and you would not be long in discovering the reason.

After one stop in the desert John showed signs of agitation as the bus rushed on its course again.

"What's the matter John?"

"A rattlesnake went under the bus at the last stop and tried to bite me. I struck at it with my foot but it got away."

We then learned that throughout the desert regions of Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona, through all of which we passed, three deadly poisonous snakes are common: the rattlesnake, the bow snake and the adder.

On Sunday afternoon our porter amazed his passengers by the following questions and others:

1. What is the Bible?
2. What is the church?
3. How many books in the Bible?
4. How many writers of the Bible?

Few could give correct answers as his.

But the greatest test of John's character came when cards were brought out and John showed a darky love better than to gamble, and that is to eat chicken. John showed that he knew as much about cards as he did about the Bible, but he stood steadfastly by his principles. Twenty-five persons will never forget this kind, cheerful servant, and his influence and example cannot soon pass away.

"I'll be in the city for two days before going out again; if I can show you around the city, Colonel, during that time, I shall be pleased to do so." These were his parting words to us.

BUS DRIVERS

All the bus drivers we have met so far on this journey from home have been handsome, sturdy, young men, the pick it might be said of any army. There were two drivers on our night bus, and every eight hours. These drivers have an enclosed compartment to themselves in the front of the bus.

Soon after leaving Kansas City we ran into a considerable sand storm in the State of Kansas, where the deserts began for us. John promptly closed every window and ventilator to prevent us from being covered with sand or perhaps worse.

From Kansas City almost to the city limits of Los Angeles, we passed through millions of acres of land in the various states above mentioned that were covered with dry sand or with mountains that mocked at the puny hills of Kentucky or Pennsylvania. The desert was level and was sparsely dotted with sage-bush, cactus or other desert vegetation, which is the almost only sign of sustenance, barely maintained an existence. About every fifty miles or perhaps less, we saw a small hut and a flock of a score of sheep eating what desert vegetation they could find, a small cavity of stakes (a corral) near the sheep-hut showed where the sheep were protected at night. We saw similar scenes on the moors of Scotland, and again thanked Providence that our lot had not been so unfavorably cast.

In the State of Arizona the desert was fairly well covered with three interesting plants:

1. The cactus of two varieties, one with segmented parts rising about three feet, while the other was the pillar or fence post variety rising ten to twenty feet like a stout green post. The segmented plants have numerous large yellow flowers, but the other was forever barren.

2. The Palo Verde, a shrub about the size of our spiraea, and densely covered with small yellow flowers. This shrub as we neared California became very numerous with a beautiful mass effect.

3. Interspersed among the Palo Verde, was the Ocotillo. This desert plant grows up to about five feet and consists of about a score of rigidly erect shoots from a common root, each shoot resembling a rosebush stem. On each stem appears a beautiful red flower at the tip. The plant is beautiful, and doubly so in a dreary, desolate desert.

Scattering all the above desert vegetation, wonderfully scattered and interwinged, has a mountain, embrouded in a blue or purple haze, for a background, and the sightseer exclaims in admiration: "Isn't Nature very wonderful!"

The mountains of Colorado and New Mexico are marvellous for several reasons. They rise in some places to a height of ten thousand feet above the sea level, whereas so far in our journeys prior to this desert route, three thousand feet had been considered colossal. Such great altitudes can be reached by trains only by ponderous windings and real hair-pin turns. To ascend one mile, you must really wind, twist and double back several miles. Every minute changes some of the most picturesque scenes to be viewed throughout the world. For these many reasons the journey from Kansas City to Los Angeles was one of the most interesting we have ever known. We followed the Santa Fe railroad all the way, and never once saw a train of any description. The traffic on the highways was only a car or two to a hundred miles.

At Trinidad, Colorado, we saw lilacs in bloom on May 3rd. Eggs there were 39 cents a dozen.

The finest mountain views were at Raton, New Mexico. Painted or colored rocks due to natural forces were very beautiful in this region. The red soil of New Mexico reminded us of that of the cotton states of Georgia.

Near the border line between New Mexico and Arizona, we came upon a motion picture studio (Paramount's) among the mountains. "Texas Rangers" was being filmed with hundreds of Indians in the cast and with romantic mountains as an environment. It should be a good picture as far as scenery is concerned.

It was at about this point that a young married woman shed many tears, and told us that she was so unhappy that she wanted to go to sleep, and never again wake up. A breaking heart years for a world of sympathy. She was a blonde with blue eyes and a smile that would melt the hearts of most men.

"We were married a few years ago and lived for a time happily in New York. Then my husband was led away by bad company and began to drink and then to gamble. He lost his position and I was compelled to seek employment. As an artist of some attainments, I became a retoucher of photographs and colored them so well that I was soon earning enough to keep us. But my husband soon demanded and squandered my wages, and beat me severely whenever I refused. I have left him, and am going to live with my people in Los Angeles, but I do not want to live, everything has turned out so dreadfully."

We think we succeeded in cheering her up, and in advising her as to the right course to pursue. We expect to meet her here soon again. We meet cases which cause us to laugh heartily, but more that call forth the sympathetic tear.

MONOPOLY

The reader understands that monopoly means the total absence of competition, and that under such a condition human nature is greedy and demands the highest price possible. We have pointed out this principle before but a case came to our notice within one hundred miles of California. We stopped at a lonely gas filling station with only one restaurant stand in sight. Nine medium bananas cost 35 cents and an ordinary glass of orange juice required 15 cents. In California fine oranges are less than one cent each, and bananas are in ordinary period. Such incidents are interesting to the thoughtful student of economics. At this same place we saw white and pink oleanders blooming in gorgeous profusion. They were of the double variety, like small roses, and reminded us of Florida, the only other part where we ever saw such superb bloom. We gathered a few and took them with us. Palm trees now became more and more numerous until we finally saw them everywhere.

As we left the State of Arizona, we crossed a river into the State of California, where we again underwent inspection by state officials. The car was an immigration officer with a huge revolver conspicuous on his belt. I handed him our passport.

"I see at once you are from Canada, and I do not intend to even open it. Canadians never give us any trouble and we are always pleased to welcome you to California. We hope you will enjoy your visit because a thousands and thousands of our people, who visit various parts of Canada, always speak in the highest praise of their reception there."

This is it about to be, and we are very happy to be back everywhere we go in this great land American officials and citizens are models of courtesy, consideration and kindness. Four years ago we had a very different story to tell about our homeland in France, but we forget ignorance and gross but utterly unnecessary rudeness. We even wondered at the wisdom of saving such a nation from extinction.

Then Mr. Jesse H. Pritchett, an inspector of fruits and vegetables, examined our baggage to see if we had infected or infested plants or fruits.

"The value of our fruits and vegetables in California is half a billion dollars annually. We wish to protect that vast resource from pests or diseases because an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Canada grows superb apples but cannot grow the coddling moth. This insect is the cause of the apple moth which infests them. Similarly Canadian potatoes are excluded because of the potato beetle (bug). None of these pests and many others have entered California."

Mr. Pritchett was a perfect gentleman and kindly gave us much official information (printed) about California which we hope to use in future articles. We hope that Ontario will take precautions so common all over America to rid our province of insects and diseases, otherwise prevalent, otherwise no country will buy our surplus of fruits or vegetables. Eucalyptus trees, tall like our poplars, are common in California.

Shortly after entering California we saw ripe grain, either wheat or barley not certain which, in the fields. Ripe grain in May will strike Canada farmers as very unusual.

The State of California is about 750 miles from north to south, and about 300 miles on the average from east to west. We will have much interesting material in our next article in a few days not only about California in general, but about some Canadian-born people who are famous here. One of these is none other than Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, whom we have already heard and met personally. Don't miss our next article.

The temperature here is between 70° and 82° and just right due to constant ocean breezes, similar to those we reported from Florida.

Best wishes to all.

A large number of guests were present and were welcomed by Mrs. Margaret Hayes, president, and Miss Emma Murphy, diocesan president. Euchre was enjoyed during the evening and a handsome prize was won by Miss Gladys McDonald, first; Mrs. J. Lafferty, second, and Mrs. Alex. Geyer, third. The "plate" prize was won by Mrs. P. Flagler, and the door prize by Mrs. Little. Dainty refreshments were served by members of the executive.

Mrs. A. Moore's group of St. Andrew's Church held a very enjoyable and successful tea at the home of Mrs. W. F. Cook, Charles Street, at which Mrs. Chadwick and Mrs. Moore received the guests, about fifty in number. The tea table with its lace cloth was beautifully decorated with Spring flowers in shades of pink and yellow, the host and hostess at it. A McOhie poured tea ably assisted by Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Bell. The home cooking was most efficiently looked after by Mrs. Naylor, Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Cole. The guest of honor was Mrs. Cook, a very interesting lady and in spite of her four score years is as active and keen as a person half her age and interest in the welfare of both her old friends and those of the younger generation. The members of the group appreciate Mrs. Cook's kindness in giving them her home for the tea.

Weddings

FORRESTER—PARKER

The marriage took place at noon on Saturday, May 16, in New York of Miss Ann Elsie Parker, only daughter of Belleville and Puerto Rico, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Bower Mitchell and the late Lionel Montrose Parker, to Dr. James Harold Forrester, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Forrester of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Frederick W. Cooper at Sherwood Episcopal Church, with the Church of the Ascension, Miss Clifford Bowman of Toronto, sister of the bride, acted as matron of honour, and Mr. Donald Forrester of Toronto was his brother's best man.

The bride was gowned in champagne embroidered lace with a sash of champagne and dusty rose taffeta. She wore a hat of orchidbleu georgette and carried a bouquet of Spring flowers. The matron of honor wore an orchidee-bleu chiffon gown, a leghorn hat and carried red roses. A small wedding breakfast at 14 East 60th Street followed the ceremony. After a trip to Bermuda, Dr. and Mrs. Forrester will return to Belleville.

John Gunther has produced in "Inside Europe" just the thing for a reader who wants to understand the personalities behind the daily cable news. He has spent most of his life as a foreign correspondent in Vienna, has travelled extensively in Europe and is thereby exceptionally skilled to explain political currents, intrigues and social movements in Rumania, Hitler, Mussolini, Laval, Dollfuss, Beneish, Stalin, their associates, underlings and rivals are clearly portrayed, more interesting by the inclusion of anecdotes about them. The personal touch although, at times, actually egged with wit or malice. Laval was "clever enough to get himself born with a name that could rhyme the same reading from Left to Right or Right to Left." Rumania is "Dracula's Inferno." "Mussolini is built like a steel spring. (Stalin is a rock of sturdy granite by comparison, and Hitler a bob of octoplasm.").

There is a timely shrewd assessment of the situation in France. There is a picture of the French Casimir de la Rocque, chief of the Croix de Feu, who, threatening so often to follow in the footsteps of Hitler and Mussolini, has three times failed. He names the most dangerous man in France, Jean Chiappe, a Right-ist, "what the Left-ists French needs is leader. Bergery is not quite the man. Daladier is almost impossible and Herriot is dead. (In Number Three, Thoreau and Cachin, the Communist leader, are pictured.) Not only does Europe live from day to day, anybody except Communists, in uncertainty, but the difficulty of a man looking for a job is reversed. There is a job looking for a man."

Gunther's second book "Inside Europe," "a dramatic entertaining and informative record of the Europe of the moment, which published "is being a political Baedeker."

It is customary to regard every ghost as a lazy lubberly dreamy fellow who loves the open road because he leads every day the same weary way, never to it. Mrs. Hodgson, who gave us with the pure-blooded Rumanian Zingaris of the Danube, paints a modern picture of the ghost in his book, "A Romany Life." This is his autobiography centering around the Romany life in England, episodes of which he broadcasted over the British Broadcasting network. Petulengro under Hendrik Zerkel, is a typical industrious gipsy, and a powerful influence on him as a boy. He made a living selling pots of wood, make a horseshoe quicker than an English blacksmith, kill and dress a pig, snare every known species of game, tell fortunes, carpets, pets, baskets, fiddles—and go around the taverns playing the same for coppers. But his work was never perfect; in everything he did, Petulengro says, "there was a fault. That was one of the earliest things I learned, and that is to be taught in our work. In all our work, therefore, there was a fault, its intention being that the one side less straight than the other, or the hole where there should be only three. We never compete with the gorgios (gentiles) in our work. He alone may permit Himself perfection." His wife Vashti "always abounds with tenderness about the Romanies and the "gorgios"; it is Christianity at its best and purest." A McOhie poured tea ably assisted by Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Bell. The home cooking was most efficiently looked after by Mrs. Naylor, Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Cole. The guest of honor was Mrs. Cook, a very interesting lady and in spite of her four score years is as active and keen as a person half her age and interest in the welfare of both her old friends and those of the younger generation. The members of the group appreciate Mrs. Cook's kindness in giving them her home for the tea.

"Contrasts and Problems" is a capable study of the present-day problems, administration, native education, the native and his land and political future of the Colony. There are also fascinating chapters on the history of Kenya, wild life and nature, and safari. The book is of special interest now as it discussed questions bearing on the financial affairs of Kenya, which Sir Alan Pim, K.C.I.E. recently went to investigate.

By way of a spring tonic, read "Wake up and Live," by Mrs. Alden Hatch. It is a very practical elaboration of an idea that revolutionized her life by convincing her that it is possible to conquer the "mid-life fatal", under which we all unconsciously succumb, and achieve success.

PRESENTATION

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie, 55 Hillcrest Avenue, at a miscellaneous surprise shower, entertained a number of friends Friday evening, May 15, in honour of Miss Annie Allison, Leslie, whose marriage will take place some time in June.

A very happy evening was spent in contests and games. Miss Iva Barr read the following address:—

"We, your old friends in Belleville, are gathered here tonight to give you a little surprise. We would not let you get away without giving you what is rightfully yours.

"We will certainly miss you but as you are not going very far away we will expect to see you often and are looking forward to spending many happy hours in your home.

"We brought these little gifts and hope you will find use for each one of them and that they will have a long and happy married life.

Martha Mosley,
Mamie Lott.
Shirley Wannamaker."

After which the many useful presents were opened by Miss Allison, who afterward expressed her appreciation and all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

A delicious buffet lunch was served. Her friends joined in wishing her many years of wedded life. (Bancroft Times please copy).

Going-Away Gift.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman: I would be pleased to have some suggestions as to a going-away gift for a woman friend who is going to spend Christmas on a visit. I am in doubt as to what would be appropriate. She is my boy friend's mother, and I would like to give her something as well as my dear friends.—P.

A generous sized purse is one of the best of gifts to one who is to travel. It should have many well-planned compartments, to hold the various items that one has to carry from a compartment for the passport, one for the traveler's checks, one for bills, one for change, and so forth. This season purses are so ample in size and compartments that any gift of this kind is adequate. And the leather should be durable but not needs or a delicate leather, but something as strong as alligator, for instance. And have the purse open not only for beauty but for identification. It is wise to give a gift that will be serviceable for a long time, so that other plans for buying this purse may be discarded.

A small compact would be an excellent gift too, for this can be had in the most glorious style while traveling on land. It may be equipped with soap, lather-cup, razor, and shaving-stick also, and with powder-puff, rouge, and lipstick for the feminine.

Any item for the traveling-bag is appreciated, such as a cloth clothes brusher, or a leather case into which a regular clothes brush may be put. Sets of cases for the traveling bag, made in different sizes, and of, say, the same color motif, are a good suggestion; a pen and pencil set, initialed, would be very effective with the initials. Or a leather cover into which a book fits. Or a book about one or more of the countries which she will visit.

Wedding Marriage.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman: I am to be married in June and although I do not intend to have any time after the ceremony except that I shall go and groom and the two attendants this informal wedding will go out to supper.

1. Is it necessary to invite both mothers to the supper?

2. Is it a proper gift and out invitations to the wedding at the church if we are being married in everyday clothes? How should they be worded?

3. Should we have music—is it proper?

4. Would corsages be correct to wear with an every-day dress?

5. Would it be proper to invite my first mother-in-law to the church?

6. Would jake and blue satin dresses and white accessories be correct?—G.

1. It would be most ungracious not to include both mothers (and fathers, too, if the fathers are living) in the supper party after the ceremony. Certainly those close relatives are more important guests than the wedding attendants. And if they are not included in this invitation, I can sympathize with how they will feel at being left out of all part in this most important occasion!

2. Yes, it is proper to send informal invitations to this informal wedding. Your mother, who is the hostess of the occasion, should write these invitations. Like this:

Dear Jane: Mary and Tom are to be married on Tuesday, June tenth, at five o'clock in The United Church. It is to be an informal wedding, for only the family and relatives and a few close friends. Of course we all want very much to have you and Jack with us at the ceremony . . . so do, please, say that you will come.

Dearest love from us all.

Mrs. Devereux.

3. Yes, it is correct to have music, simply planned.

4. Yes, corsages would be best form, most appropriate with day dresses.

5. It would be a gracious and friendly gesture for you to invite your first mother-in-law to the ceremony.

6. It would be vastly better taste for you to plan to wear your going-away suit or ensemble, for this informal wedding.

SIDE-STEPPING 'TROUBLE' HELPS REAL LOVE WOMANS

Crooked church, blossoming with spring flowers, a special musical program — but no one looking particularly happy. The occasion, a wedding service in a blessed manner, who was going to minister to its intended mate, the congregation which boosted two or three of the country's surviving millionaires.

Then came the bombshell: The deputy minister announced that a flock of lacking dope, of living on the streets of Toronto, and that they lacked the courage, to face facts, to stand up to life in the raw and to live it.

When a woman discovered her husband was a dope fiend, she rushed to the dope which made her forget. Then a little child, victim of unemployment and poverty ground the soul of a young man, and he grilled his body with dope, to anesthetize himself against the misery around him.

The reverend gentleman didn't happen to like movies. Some people do, though. Couldn't like them, being or radios. Why feel superior to those who do like such simple sports and means of forgetting, for a breathing space, ever-present burdens?

That particular clergyman has more expensive tastes. He collects fine old editions of the classics. Finds reading and poetry summer and he keeps a limousine.

So I couldn't resist the temptation of saying to him, later: Have I hope the wife who is worried over a philandering husband, the boy who is unhappy because he can't marry the girl he loves, and the young people who grow tired and stale from routine and fatigue, will keep right on seeing their movie dope in larger doses.

And his wife, very tactfully, said: "That's what I keep on telling him —women know." And I couldn't keep from wondering if the good lady needed a little movie dope of her own now and then.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Lieutenant Born Landed" Monday

The screen career of Lew Ayres has been distinguished by many noteworthy performances, but his role in "The Leatherneck Have Landed," which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre, stands apart.

Of course, the new Republic production gives him more opportunity of a hard-boiled marine with a penchant for free-for-all fists and feminine championship of the lighter variety, but Ayres has also given credit for his outstanding interpretation of the part.

Opposite Ayres, in a part which will match her new talents, is Isabel Jewell, smacking the role of a hard-boiled, wise-cracking girl of the seaports.

Jimmy Ellison, an up and coming star, plays competently the role of a young marine who strikes up a friendship through thick and thin. James Burke, Ward Bond, Marmel Talk, Maynard Holmes and Clay Clement all turned in excellent performances.

Fine production values have gone into the background for the hard-hitting scenes in Havana Harbor, aboard the battle cruiser, and the Chinese Village are most authentic. Particularly is this true in the Yim Kling and International Settlement scenes for one can almost feel the Chinese life as a reality.

Enough praise cannot be given to Howard Hawkes, who has directed a fine production—for the production of the sensely amusing climax—and for his perfecting the story to dramatic without being maudlin.

AT THE TIVOLI

Gene Autry, the Singing Cowboy with new songs, excitement and a new hide to ride, appears in "Comin' Round the Mountain," intriguing title being the name on his lips, your ace cowboy star rides the same old trail.

COOKING SCHOOL BROUGHT TO CLOSE

Girls of Domestic Science at Collegiate Hear Talk

Bringing to a close a particularly interesting Cooking School, Mrs. E. Deacon Bedford, Belleville girls of the Domestic Science Department of the Collegiate Institute, gave a Demonstration Hall yesterday afternoon, Mrs. E. McKean, before a very interested audience, gave a miscellaneous demonstration, acquainting her hearers with many interesting points in the art of cookery.

Mrs. McKean's talk was followed attentively and her lecture on the principles of electrical cookery was most interesting. The visitors were welcomed by Mr. Everett Smith, representing the Belleville Rotary.

At the conclusion of the Class the cooking prizes were awarded to the holders of lucky tickets—

Lamp—Shirley Brown, 276 Foster Ave.

Radio Lamp—Jean Pigden, 271 Ann Street.

Tea Biscuits — Margaret Alyea 224 Charles St.

Cream Puffs—Jean Taylor, R.R. No. 6, Belleville.

SUNRISE

(By Veronica M. Spafford)

The night steals out on silent feet
And all unheard the sunlight creeps along.
Each tiny dewdrop softly glows
And all is peace.

A sleepy rooster greets the morn
And only makes the gentle silence heard.
The growing sunlight brightly beams
On gems of dew.

May your new day as sweetly dawn,
And sunbeams warmly glow your heart within.
Filling the world with lightsome joy
Like sun on dew.

AT THE BELLE

Jack Arthur's Canadian Amateurs

They more than lived up to advance notices.

Jack Arthur's orders to none other than Jack Arthur's "Prize Winning Canadian Amateurs on Parade" who are making a province-wide personal appearance tour and who are now in town on the stage of the Belle Theatre. The troupe made their initial bow at Friday's matinee and later played to packed houses on the evening programs, presenting a musical bill of fare that was entertaining beyond measure, fast moving and replete with diverting features, including the trend of the lighter vein.

Those who did not see them on Friday be sure not to miss them either this afternoon or this evening for they're worth the price of admission their brand of entertainment is alone. Who will ever forget the impersonations of that seventeen-year-old youngster from Kingston, Jim Bobbin, a natural mimic, he takes off Jack Benny; Ray Perkins, the New York comedian; the radio tenor and vaudeville Mae West; Jimmy Durante; Durante; Eddie Cantor and a host of others, to perfection.

Another high spot was Jack Oldfield's ventriloquism. His "Talking Dolly" is a honey and is made all the more effective by his boyish personality. Chester Sutherland, a newcomer to the Belle Stage and screen, acts as company manager and master of ceremonies and incidentally is an excellent stooge for Molly (Helen Kane) McHale, who takes off the boop-boop-a-doop girl to the life. Alfred Begonal, stalwart from Toronto, has many marathon medals but deserves to add another string to his bow for impersonations of Lanny and city life and Swiss yodeling. As for Betty Cunningham, she is just a hot "Burlington Bertie" role while Audre Bourque, of the Jack Hylton Orchestra, thrilled with her blues singing, dancing and accordion playing. Her voice would seem to describe Mrs. Stella Wilson's singing. It would be safe to say that Mrs. Wilson's soprano voice of great beauty, volume and range and her selection of "Indian Love Lament" is "wow" is truly satisfying to the lover of real music. Bill Gilday, the band's music accompanist, fits into the whole set unobtrusively but with a musical ability which adds much especially to the smoothness of the entertainment. Ted Hall, the master beat, are the "Four Ragamuffins," instrumentalists and harmony singers who have oddness and style of personable and tuneful, they are worth hearing.

"Splendid" does not rightly describe the unit. One must needs see it to get the full flavor and appreciate them. You must see for yourself.

A dramatic and interesting story of romance and intrigue abound a speeding transport plane in "Hell's Transport, Hitherto Known By Air," which opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre and was given enthusiastic appreciation from the audience.

The leading roles in the film are played by Fred MacMurray, that most casual of young men, and Joan Bennett, baby of the Bennett clan. Needless to say they do full justice to their roles and full advantage of the possibilities afforded them by the director and there for all they are worth. A big and extremely capable cast supports the two leads including Rumsey Zanu Pitts, John Howard, Bennie Bartlett, Grace Bradley, Jan Sauber, Brian Donley, Ruth Donnelly and Fred Kohler, Sr. Hall Hamilton is the director, and as you might suspect, his latest effort has all the speed, thrills and human interest that summer success, "Hands Across the Table." Thirteen thousand feet of the dramatic chronicle of the airways with its thrilling climax calculated to keep you on the edge. The entire program will be repeated again this afternoon and evening.

"Three Three" Here Monday

Should Child be Allowed Secret from His Parent?

(By Lisa Grenelle)

To a questionnaire sent to one hundred mothers asking if a child be permitted a secret from his parents?" the answers were almost unanimously in the negative.

Now it's very understandable that any parent should want to know at least something of what is going on in a child's mind in order the better to guide and the more adequately to protect the child. But how on earth can you make any child tell you his secrets? How do you even know that he has any?

You can forbid Johnnie to leave the house or his room, and you can or catching him if he disobeys you. But you know that, for all that, he remains in his room. Even as air he knows pretty well what he can get away with and what he can't. He knows that physically you are the stronger and can force him to do your commands. Any action or his that meets with your disapproval you can arrest.

But mothers, also, in all probability, that you cannot read his mind that you cannot force, and you know of knowing, what he thinks and feels. Occasionally you can catch him, of course, or make a pretty good guess, but not nearly as often as you suppose.

Though Johnnie may be closer to you than are most little boys to their mothers, though he may have more confidence in you, he has a dozen secrets from you all the same. He is feeling and thinking things all the time of which you don't even dream.

Has Inner Life

Every human being, from the smallest baby to the oldest man, has an inner life of his own. Everyone of every age experiences hundreds of thoughts and feelings that no one outside themselves knows anything about. Everyone, no matter how young, has a need and a right to a certain mental and emotional privacy. No one, I think, not even a mother, has a right to insist that her child tell her everything. She hasn't the power to make him, and I don't think she has the right to ask him.

But by this I do not mean that children should not be encouraged to be frank with their parents. I think a parent should do everything possible to encourage his children to feel free to talk to him, to ask advice about any matter whatever. But he never should force a child to tell his parent, or anyone, of every thought and feeling. To be superficial, but it is natural and helpful if he feels free to unburden his mind of anything that oppresses it. A child should not be bullied or nagged into confiding in his parent, but he should be encouraged to do so.

Encourage Confidences

By never making little of a child's confidences, by being always ready and interested to listen, by never laughing at him or appearing shocked and disapproving, a parent can encourage his child to feel that he is far away from him that he will be welcome to his confidences.

Providing the parent doesn't dominate his child or make him help dependent, the closer and franker their relationship the better and the happier for all concerned. This closeness can never be attained by forcing confidences, however, or by forbidding the child to have a secret from you. There is nothing that a child so resents, nothing which, if at readily put him on the defensive against you. And only by taking him off the defensive, allowing him his right to privacy, can you get really close to him. Only when he feels comfortable and free will a child truly reveal himself—what about, from time to time.

Something like you or me, eh?

Yankee Clipper Is Batting .500 After Seven Games

Rookman was the only man on the Washington team not to get a hit against four Browns hurlers but he more than made up for his lack of batting effectiveness. He fanned the impressive total of 11.

Van Lingle Mungo, the Dodgers' No. 1 twirler, was the victim as Weaver went to victory. Mungo lasted seven innings, during which all of the Reds got a turn at bat. Weaver shut out the opposition until the eighth inning when Linus Frey banged a homer with one on to give the Dodgers both their runs.

Johnny Burnett was knocked out of the box in the third inning as the Indians outdrubbed their adversary for seven hits and five runs as his surgeons, Earl Averill and Hal Trosky hit homers, Trosky's being his seventh of the season.

Joe Cronin, Washington rookie who is more than living up to prediction, continued his amazing batting with two doubles and two singles.

Johnny Broaca, the former Yale star who was expected to be an important member of the Yankee pitching staff this year, was knocked from the box for the fifth time this year.

Hal Schumacher polished five ball as the Giants won, allowing the Reds only five hits, but he was taken from the box in the fifth inning. He developed a streak of wildness. Paul Derringer, who relieved Schumacher, retired after giving nine hits in seven innings.

Tommy Bridges, one of the mainstays of the Tigers' pitching staff, gave way to Lawson in the seventh inning after he had been nicked for seven hits, including two home runs and two doubles. Vernon Wilsberg, former Indiana University southpaw, was given credit for his first letter victory, it being his first win of the season.

Leroy Parmelee of the Cards was slugged for 10 hits and all but one of the Boston runs before giving way to Ed Heusser in the fifth, while seven batters saw duty in the Cubs-Phillies slugging match.

OPEN ON MAY 26TH.

Belleville Lawn Bowling Club members are looking forward to one of the finest seasons in the club's history. Many improvements are being made to the club membership, which will include a number of new members, is expected to be larger than last year.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the bowling season, with the club-house being ready for occupation very shortly. Since last season improvements have been made and the club-house and grounds today are among the finest in the country, and include four new greens.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

Conducted by GEO. E. WATKIN

Eight more days and away we go. The greens are in excellent shape and with good weather on the 26th we should have a perfect day. Men and his staff were busy yesterday dressing the lower green and a good crew of lady and men ladies are holding their general meeting in the C.O.F. on Tuesday afternoon and early all reports it looks like a real season for the club. There are about twenty-five married couples in our club at present. This year we ought to make twenty more. Charlie Doran spent several days this week helping to get the ground in shape. Thanks, Charlie. And by the way it is very much members of club need a little exercise next week just report to Mac at the club house. He will put you to rights and get you in good shape for our opening. Starting on Monday, May 18 and continuing until May 23 a drive will be made for new members. Each new member hopes to get at least one new member. This is not a hard task for us all to do, so get down to work and by next Saturday night our membership should be closed. If you have not received an application form phone the president or secretary and they will send one. The membership committee will get in touch with all members early next week so get your prospect right away. Our expenses are very heavy this year and we must all do our share so that at the end of the year we will need a new roller. We start with a clean slate and the way to do this is bring in a new member. I have had no word from the games committee to date but hope they will put on a good program for our opening game . . . Hurry for information. What about it? Bob Wray, our chairman of the greens committee, is more than satisfied with the condition of our greens this year. Both Fred Black and Fred Tarper are both very eager to get going and have their woods all polished up to kill. But what I'll do not the look of the wood, it is how they deliver them. Well, here's hoping we get good weather. All will be well.

JACK DONOVAN ONCE A BOXER

Will Appear Against Moen in All-Star Wrestling Card

It will be news to local fans but Irish Jack Donovan, the colorful Boston Irishman, who is to oppose Andy Moen in the main bout of the Queensbury Club's wrestling show at the Arena next Tuesday evening was a boxer before he started wrestling. That was some five years ago and, having both boxed and wrestled as an amateur, he soon decided that that future was to be in the mat game.

Unlike some of the ex-boxers in wrestling, Donovan didn't become rough in his tactics. He stuck to clean, clever grappling and only when matched with some of the bad men of the game has he called upon his hitting ability.

(IRISH JACK)

Moen weighs 226 pounds and there are few in the game of his weight who can match him in speed. As a matter of fact he is just as fast as the majority of the lighter men and possesses the power to match the strongest of the heavies.

Donovan and Moen are as closely matched as it is possible for any two wrestlers to be and in view of their previous starts here, there is little basis for calling either one as the likely winner.

Al Bistgnano, flashy Italian who will appear in the semi-final bout in the semi-final, will soon make a hit with the fans. A clean-cut, beautifully-developed athlete, he is something of a sports hero in New York, where he has had his most important bouts.

Jack Dunlop and Dan Petroff are a pair of aggressive, rugged heavies and would do as the main bouters on any ordinary card. However, promoter Jack Corcoran has gone to considerable expense in an attempt to make this the greatest show ever seen in Belleville.

BUFFALO BISONS IN 3RD PLACE IN INTERNATIONAL

Defeat Rochester 4-2 by Properly Bunching Their Hits

GOOD HOME STAND

Orioles Trounce Eleven Innings to Defeat Senators

Now that they're under way, the Buffalo Bisons evidently intend to stop slugging until they get right up in the International League leaders.

During their recent home stand in the Bison performed acoustically at the plate, belting out an average of thirteen runs per game as they won eight in a row and clambered out of the cellar entirely. The batting was less frequent when they moved on to Rochester yesterday but the blows were more effective and properly bunched to defeat the Red Wings 4-2 and put Buffalo two places in third place.

Playing in a light rain, the Bisons combed the offerings of Les Munns and Doyle for 10 blows and put over their runs in four separate innings. Bob Kline went the route for Buffalo for the first time this season although touched for nine blows.

The victory put Buffalo a half game ahead of Rochester and only two behind the Montreal Royals and Newark Bears, who remained virtually tied for the lead as the Newark-Syracuse clash, slated as the season's first night game, was rained out. Montreal and Toronto put over their contest to form a doubleheader today.

The only other game saw the Baltimore Orioles carried to 11 innings to defeat Albany's regular nine innings of a mound duel between Sheriff Fred Blake and Alden Benton. In the 11th four Albany errors and a base hit gave Baltimore two runs and the Senators pushed over one and had another one denied when Hargrave was put out at home.

Ab Wright, Oriole outfielder, was banished for kicking on a strike called by Umpire Ray Van Grafian in the sixth and later the club announced he had been fined $25 for "loafing".

If Tuesday night's wrestling card does not pack 'em in, well it would look like the Belleville sport fans are not wrestling-minded. Matchmaker Jack Corcoran has gone to considerable expense in the business for this pre-holiday card and has paid for the two of the final and semi-final bouts have a string of titles involved for the heavyweight championship of the world, Irish Jack Donovan and Andy Moen, Billings and Alphonse Bisignano are matched for a bout for the Canadian title and although unsuccessful at making a match for a title bout at times nearly topple it off the champ's head, Jack Moen, the fourth holder of the quarterlie of stars, is a contender for the honors and is a dangerous rapidly in his chosen profession. Moen in each time proved to be a crowd-pleaser and a thrilling provider. Jack Dunlop is especially versus Al Dunlop is also a favorite, as Petroff and Dan Dunlop is Belleville wrestling circles.

Now that the Industrial Softball League schedule has been released the various team managers are scurrying around the town signing players on the dotted line these days. This year's industrial league is to be a real well balanced group and should provide a good brand of softball for the fans, despite the lack of daylight saving.

Elmer LaBarr, owner of Royal McKillop, has just returned from Orangeville where he watched his charge being prepared for the races by Doc Cain, one of the best known trainers in the province and stated his horse is in the pink and will be hard to beat in the open class stakes for which he is eligible. This horse was converted to the pace last fall and right now he is pretty keen and very oily in his way of going. Elmer LaBarr has in training Springtime McKillop, who won five stakes last summer including the Futurity at Toronto, Catherine Grattan, owned by the Orr estate of this city and a half sister of Springtime McKillop, who is being prepared for the trotting stakes this summer. Doc thinks he has another Springtime in Catherine Grattan looks splendid, said Mr. LaBarr, and will be tough to take in the fast classes. The horses will all be raced at Orangeville on June 25th and 26th and then brought to Belleville for a week before proceeding to Fonthill and Malone, N.Y., for the summer meet. While in Orangeville Mr. LaBarr visited the vast width of the last eighth of a mile with Springtime McKillop in 15¼ seconds.

At last local baseball fans to attend senior C.O.B.L. games at the local Fair Grounds are to get a break. Last autumn when the Belleville baseball team left the Fair Grounds, the baseball diamond was removed and the baseball field. When the ball issues appeared for early practice this season it was found the dug-outs could they find. The matter was brought to the attention of the Parks Commission and a benefit was called at the time and the dug-outs are to be erected. Some seasons past the ball team has been compelled to change their uniforms in the dug-outs owing to the lack of room and the dressing under the stands, but without results.

Today, however, it looks as though the new dug-outs will be erected in front of the grandstand and in the schedule. Players will be cut at each end of the fence in front of the grandstand. They will be about below the level of the floor of the grandstand and in front of the stands. This will bring the players into more closer contact with the patrons in the grandstand and in front of the grandstand in order to get into their uniforms during lunch. This new move looks like a splendid break for the patrons who like to get a close look at the individual players as they parade in and out of the dug-outs during positions between innings.

If this new suggestion is carried out, and we understand both the ball club and the Parks Board are in favor of moving the dug-outs into the paddock, it will be a great boon to the fans who like to rass the players with remarks during the game. In addition to this there will be many a verbal battle between the fans who sit in front of the grandstand and between the irritated players and their critics.

The latest reports along the street are to the effect that "Bud" Wilkins of the Cards and Jim Parks Hamilton are in favor of moving the dugouts into the paddock. Eyes of Race World Focus on Pimlico For the Preakness

Baltimore, May 16 (AP) — The eyes of the racing world were focused today on Pimlico, where Bold Venture, Kentucky Derby winner, and Granville, Wood Memorial victor, in the $25,000 Preakness.

There was no Brevity in the 46th running of the historic 1 3-16 mile test but four of the three-year-olds which trailed Bold Venture and Granville home were ready to take another crack at Kentucky Derby runners-up honors in a half-dozen others.

Nineteen were named in the overnight entries but not more than 10 or 11 were expected to parade at the barrier at post time.

Leading the beaten Derby delegation was Brevity, Calumet Farm Woodward's son of Gallant Fox which threw his rider at the start of the roughly ridden derby and Grand Slam from the Bomar Stable. The Belmont winner, Johnstown, Jamaica and Conquistor of the stretch drive Derby finishers, the regular Wood Memorial, and Mrs. Silas B. Mason's He Did, winner of the Derby Trial Stakes, completed the contingent.

Mesnery Rook May Upset Pope.

At the head of the list of specials for three-year-old honors stood Mesnery Rook, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable. Jean Bart, son of Man o' War from Wallace Gray, Jamestown and E. R. Bradley's Bow and Arrow, seeking to match the Derby victory of stable mate Bold Venture, only Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood, back where he won the Pimlico Futurity last year, and Swing Low, another Calumet colt which has not raced this year, were considered starters. Mrs. Marion Du Pont Somerville's Transmute, Mrs. C. W. Vaughan's Knight Warrior, Edward Bruner's Asterold and Glanz Killer, stable-mate of Jean Bart, were not expected to accept the issue.

He scored over Top to draw a crowd of more than 40,000 to the rambling grandstand on the outskirts of the city.

With the weather man promising fair weather and a fast racing strip, the record of 1:58 1-5, set by High Quest two years ago, was in danger.

Despite Bold Venture's Derby victory there were many experts who predicted that he would be beaten—either by Mesnery Rook or Granville. The latter, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable, was the choice when passed while Calumet's Bold Venture was the favorite.

DR. BLAKELY TO COACH FOXBORO

Popular Player of Seniors in Belleville Will Make Good

Foxboro, May 16 (Special)—Under the very capable leadership of Cayton Hamilton, the boys from Foxboro district are out every night tossing the ball around, limbering up their arms and sharpening their batting eyes in preparation for the opening date of the South Hastings Baseball League.

Dr. Harry Blakely has very graciously consented to coach the boys for the coming season and from the interest that is being taken in practice, it would seem that the advice which is being thrown their way is not wasted.

The infield has been skinned and scraped and is in a condition that would do Gutteridt to a big league park. Fences are being erected as usual outside the base lines from the screen to first and third.

All Available

All of last year's roster are on hand with the possible exception of "Bud" Johnston, who is practising with the Belleville Intermediates and while Bud has the best wishes of all the boys, he would be welcomed back with open arms. The newcomers are Dr. Harry Blakely, who a few years ago played with Belleville Nationals; Don Williams, with Hamilton last year; Gordon Harrington, Faulkner and Breese, who has moved to the village from Buffalo, N.Y.

Available for infield duties will be Cayton Hamilton, Gordon Ashley. Seeley will undoubtedly get the call for pitching. "Doc" Blakely will give his old position at short and the way he steps around shows he has lost much of the skill that made him C.O.B.L.'s stellar short stop. The boys are looking after the care of by either Williams or "Bud" Johnston, if the latter doesn't catch the Intermediates in Belleville. The outfield will be chosen from E. Faulkner, Wall, Ray V. Cayton Guay, Gowell, Scott and Faulkner.

Manager Hamilton has the regular catcher in on hand again and Breese is reported to be a first class receiver. The batting order will be made up of Ashley, Stewart, H. Vicheers, Breese, Parrott, a southpaw, all of whom appear to be in first class form.

The club as a whole and on paper this appears to be about the strongest team that has been scrapped together in Foxboro for quite some time and will certainly make things interesting for the other teams in the loop 'ere the play-offs come around next fall.

TERMS CONCURRENT

Hamilton, Ont., May 16 (CP)—Jailer Gallagher of Cumberland was sentenced to six months in jail for passing counterfeit money. The term will run concurrently with one imposed at Cobourg.

He counselled Reynold Yeates, said the cheques were passed while Gallagher was under the influence of liquor.

GOLF

BY ALEX MORRISON

A practice harmful to both the player's swing and the golf course is that of failing to use an artificial tee on short holes.

Most players figure that they can play the shot better without using the wooden pegs and that, since the ball is being hit with an iron club, it is better to play it off the turf, where they can take a divit. Such a procedure is harmful to the player's swing because it gives him an extra job to get the ball up off the turf.

By making use of a wooden peg, no matter how low he tees the ball, he can swing with assurance that the ball will be lofted. Obviously the ball off the turf occasionally harms the course because it doesn't take many such shots to ruin the teeing ground.

Most players indulged in this practice are much too generous with the divots they take. When you can tee the ball as low as you like with the artificial tee, and there is no advantage in digging with this tee, there is little excuse for a practice which damages the course.

LAVERNE FATOR KILLED IN FALL

King of Turf in His Day Jumps From Hospital Window

New York, May 16 (CP)—The race is over for Laverne Fator.

The little jockey, king of the North American turf in his day, died early today of injuries suffered in a fall from the window of his hospital room yesterday.

He had been in the institution since Monday with septic appendicitis and was irrational part of the time. The authorities said they were unable to determine whether he jumped or accidentally tripped the 45 feet to the ground. His skull and right leg were fractured.

The pleasant-tongued, gentleman-ly little horseman, brought east from California by Sam Hahn when he rocketted to stardom.

Laverne's first big chance came through an accident, in 1918. Johnny Loftus, then driving for jockey-to-be, failed to show up at Empire City to ride Harry Sinclair's horse, Out of the Way. As the last ride-up ride the "green" Fator was thrown into the saddle, and he won an unprecedentedly the next day brought him a contract.

Fator did not succeed in hooting home a derby winner, but he won almost as many as Earl Sande, who trails by 25 with Pompey and the following year with Snaps Flow.

His lifetime record, over a span of twelve years, is 1,000 winners in 5,000 mounts accounted for purses totalling approaching like $2,-300,000.

SNUFF RETURNS IN GT. BRITAIN

Old-Timers Take Fresh Hold on Habit of Other Days

London, May 16—(CP)—Snuff is "come back" in the United Kingdom, and snuff-taking is on the increase. In the shops of some well-known tobacco merchants and dealers in snuff in London, it is stated that by the past three years snuff-takers have increased by nearly 1,000 per cent.

The new snuff-takers are grouped into two classes—those in their old family customers who had taken snuff in their snuff orders for a generation or so and have now returned to it, and the younger men and women.

The result has been that new brands and blends have had to be revived, though it is largely left to the old and the very young to support these pedigree blends which have come down unchanged in their recipes from the 18th century.

GRANNIES AT 30 CLAIM RECORD

Australia Also Boasts of Aged Men Who Are Actively Working

New York, May 16—(CP)—The two youngest grandmothers in the Empire are claimed by Australia, according to vital statistics recording the vital statistics of the Australian Press Bureau.

Mrs. Michael Ryan of West Melbourne was married when 13 years, 11 months old. Her husband was born 10 months later, married at 18 and had her first child a year later, the bureau says. The mother was 30, Mrs. Ryan is now 34, Mrs. L. Mayberry of Balaclava is a grandmother at 33. She is now 47 and the eldest of her seven living children is 14.

In the matter of longevity, Australia mentions Harry of Tasmania, Victoria, who at 82 still drives a buggy; Samuel of Casurina Downs, Cradle or Bordertown, South Australia, who chopped wood up to the age of 104, left 14 grandchildren, 30 greats and two great-greats living.

SIX MILLIONS FOR ONT. ROADS

Ottawa And Toronto Governments Split Costs For Road Program

Toronto, May 18.—Three million dollars is the amount the Dominion will contribute this year to the Ontario Government's road relief program in old and new Ontario, it was announced at Queen's Park yesterday. An additional $300,000 will be put up by Ontario against the provinces in the construction of roads into established producing mining areas.

In the first case, according to agreements reached at the recent Ottawa conference attended by Premier Hepburn and Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, the province will match the federal contribution dollar for dollar. But in the case of the mining roads, it will be required to expend only $300,000.

Locating these mining roads will be done with great care, it was learned. No decisions in regard thereto have yet been reached although the roads into the Pickle-Crow area and the Little Long Lac district have been under consideration for several years, and are almost certain to be built in some form or other. They will not be of very high standard, it is understood, but will be laid down for the sole purpose of facilitating transport of materials to the areas they tap.

In connection with the general road program of Mr. McQuesten's department, considerable survey work remains to be done, it is said, before any start is made. Trans-Canada Highway construction will be entirely suspended. In the southern half of the province one of the chief new pieces of construction which Queen's Park has under consideration at present is paralleling Yonge Street, running west of that north from Lake Simcoe through Brown's Line, Schoonberg, etc. into Barrie, to provide a new route of approach to the Muskoka district.

Injured Helping Father When Team Bolts

Chatham, Ont., May 15—(CP)—Suffering from a fractured left leg and other injuries received when thrown from a roller being pulled by a runaway team, Stanley, the 12-year-old son of Frank Tricole, a farmer who lives near Blenheim was in the hospital today.

The boy was helping his father with the work on the farm and was engaged in rolling some ground when the team bolted. When the horses became restive, the young lad was unable to control them, and in an instant, they started to dash.

Footbridge Piers Praised As Fine Piece of Masonry

Mayor Hill Declaring Bridge Open Refers to Its Impressive Appearance

PERMANENT STEEL

With the snip of scissors, Mayor Harry Hill, cutting a band of ribbon on the west side of the foot bridge at a two-thirty o'clock on Friday afternoon declared the structure officially opened for traffic.

"It is time," as Mayor of the City of Belleville, a sincere pleasure and satisfaction to be present here today and declare the reconstructed and remodelled foot bridge open for pedestrian traffic", declared Mayor Hill, who was assisted in the opening by fellow members of the city council.

"Those of our citizens who daily used the foot bridge as a most convenient place for crossing the river probably failed to realize how important a feature it was in our daily life until its destruction by the disastrous flood in the Month of March. Then it was terribly brought home to them that the footbridge so inconspicuous and so little prized, was a convenience and utility which meant an essential saving of time and effort for those who went from home to perform their daily duties and who would, in the ordinary course of events, desire to return by the same route.

"The Footbridge was erected nearly three-quarters of a century ago. It was an excellent piece of work. The piers are fine specimens of the stone-cutters' art. The original cables are still doing duty. The wooden part of the structure is now replaced with permanent steel. We hope the new bridge will not only be flood-proof but will withstand the ravages of time and serve many generations to come.

"I now officially declare the Footbridge formally open for public use, and while doing so I wish to compliment the contractors who have delivered over to the city an excellent and graceful a design in so brief a period of time", declared Mayor Hill.

Scores of residents were on hand to witness the formal opening of the new bridge.

Although an invitation had been extended Mr. Patrick Hayes, one of the first to cross the old wooden bridge about sixty years ago, he was not present to take part in the dedication, being unable to attend.

Religious Teaching Sought in P. S. Schools

Toronto, May 15—Inclusion of Christian religious teaching in the curriculum of public schools of Ontario was recommended by the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto yesterday.

It was decided the recommendation will be referred to the Metropolitan of Ontario "to be dealt with by the provincial council with representatives of other communions in the province."

LUNG POWER AMAZES

Washington, May 15—(CP)—Mrs. G. Adams Beal was soloist at musicales performing an astounding number of difficult selections on her gleaming golden trumpet which she plays for breath control.

Mrs. Beal climbed to a pinnacle over the Grand Canyon to play "The Last Round-Up" in memory of Will Rogers. Her breath power at that altitude (8,000 feet) was a matter of amazement to the cowboy guides who accompanied her.

SOCIAL SERVICE ASSOCIATIONS

Jennie Evelyn Tres, Colborne.

The highest award of the school Dr. Ponton Board's Medal was presented to Miss Jennie Evelyn Ives, who also obtained the largest number of prizes in the course. The Medical Staff's Medal for outstanding proficiency was won by Miss Evelyn Ann Sidney.

Women in their smart uniforms and carrying bouquets of crimson roses made a lovely picture on the stage banked with flowers and fern. After the chairman left the evening, Mayor Harry Hill, and the Superintendent, Miss Mc-Lindoo had taken their places the audience stood to sing the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past" which was followed by the invocation by Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor of Holloway Street United Church.

Mayor Hill in a brief address spoke of the pleasure it gave him to be present to pay his tribute to the young ladies now entering their careers, to the training school which had equipped them for their place in the nursing profession, to Miss McIndoo for her guidance and instruction during their student years. Belleville might well be proud of the hospital and its efficient superintendent.

Rev. J. J. Collins, congratulating the nurses on having persevered in their studies until their work was crowned with success, administered the Florence Nightingale pledge.

Touching Tribute

A touching part in the proceedings was the tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Connor, who for many years had taken a prominent part in the life of the hospital and the annual graduation exercises. A sincere expression of the thoughts of the audience was made by Miss Ethel Burke referred to her as a dearly beloved physician whom it was a privilege to know. Unselfish devotion to duty and the care of sick humanity characterized this gentle soul, whose life was an inspiration to all. She clearly loved the student nurse, the city physician, the more confident graduate and as each graduation day came, Dr. Connor was there to cheer, to give a message, that inspired the nurses always to aim for the best and highest in her chosen profession. Miss Soucier announced that the Nurses' Alumnae planned to pay tribute to Dr. Connor's memory with a suitable memorial.

Presentation of pins and medals to the graduating nurses was made by Mrs. R. J. Bell, president of the Women's Christian Association who added a heartfelt tribute to the memory of Dr. Connor.

A group of songs by Mrs. Hoxton accompanied by Mr. C. Templer, with Violin obbligato by Mrs. Lennor, was greatly appreciated by the audience. A reading by Miss Muriel Vermilyea and a solo by Mr. Norris were also much enjoyed during the evening.

Presentations Made

The presentation of the Hospital Board's medal to Miss Jennie Evelyn Ives was made by Ald. Thomas Cushing; and that of the Medical Staff to Miss Evelyn Ann Sidney by Dr. W. O. Morgan. The prize in science won by Miss Helen Mae Wallace was presented by Mrs. Osmond Shaw. The prize given by Dr. G. S. Cronk for the highest marks in hygiene and sanitation was won by Miss Jeanie Lowe and presented by Miss McIndoo. Miss Adela Marion Leslie won the prize for highest marks in gynaecology, presented by Dr. Morgan. McIndoo presented to Miss Lowe, the prize for the highest marks in medicine presented by Dr. R. Dr. Emmi and Dr. Van Blaiskie's prize for the highest marks in surgery. Miss Burke's prize for the best dietary work was won by Miss Helen Mae Wallace and presented by Miss McIndoo, who also presented to Miss Doris Lillies Hyde, the superintendent's prize for neatness. In memory of Dr. Connor, who annually made such a gift to the graduating class, the nurses were presented with the supervisors' gifts of cook books by Miss Hilda Collier.

Minister of Health Present

The Honorable Dr. J. A. Faulkner was welcomed to the city by a storm of applause from the audience. He spoke of his pleasure in being home again and at being given the opportunity to congratulate the class of 1936. Paying respect to the memory of Dr. Connor, the speaker said, that one man's loss, or honor her, not by shedding tears but by living one's life in emulation of the principles, which characterized her soul.

Dr. Faulkner spoke of the spirit of charity, which had prompted the building of the hospital fifty years ago by a noble group of self sacrificing women, who gave their services unstintingly. The history of the progress of the medical profession and of civilization itself one finds, that same spirit which prompted the voluntary support of the hospital by women, the same spirit, which has impressed itself on the national life of the world. In Canada the first contribution which was brought by noble ladies of France, who left beautiful homes to join the order of the Ursuline Sisters and come to Canada to minister to nursing care to the wounded soldiers. All through Canadian history, devoted women have taken their place in the pages of fame through heroic self sacrifice. Florence Nightingale's glorious career followed through the decades of heroic women, who dedicated their lives to the nursing profession, the profession which has twenty thousand adherents in Canada and to whose ranks...ike twelve young graduates had been added.

Introduces New Plan

He introduced to the audience a plan dear to his heart, that of each hospital instituting a Social Service Association of women to supplement the work of the governing bodies by bringing to the social work of the hospital a direct contact with the patients, looking after certain needs that can come within many cars. Such an organization would be a valuable adjunct, similar to General Hospital and the speaker felt, that a superintendent would welcome a helpful and sympathetic ale with the work of the hospital, especially with the future welfare of the discharged patients.

The speaker reviewed the progress of hospitalization in the province of Ontario and in conclusion, addressing the nurses graduating, urged on to be true to the ideals fostered by the training school. He hoped that their future might be bright, for many avenues of service opened to God Our Help in Ages Past of Nurses, public health nursing, occupational therapy. Their school supplied the highest grade of service and a world of opportunity was ahead of them.

Mayor Hill at the close of the program expressed appreciation to Dr. Faulkner, to all those who assisted during the evening and to Miss McIndoo for her careful preparation of the program.

WEIRD LOVE STORY FINALLY CLOSED

Doctor Shot Five Years Ago Dies at Last of Injury

New York, May 16—(CP)—Death wrote the concluding chapter in the weird love tragedy of Dr. Milton Thomashefsky, who five years ago was shot down by pretty young nurse after she previously was accused of having performed a mutilating operation on him.

Dr. Thomashefsky, who was a wealthy young Brooklyn surgeon five years ago, is dead from the effect of the bullet wound which splintered his spine and left him an invalid.

The nurse, Agnes Birsyev, who had been employed in his office, died of a self-inflicted bullet wound a short time after the doctor was shot.

Police reports of the shooting s local sensation at the time, said Miss Birdseyev and Dr. Thomashefsky had been in love and that the nurse shot him in a fit of rage because of attentions he had shown another woman.

RELIEF CUT IS 7½ PER CENT.

Toronto, May 15—(CP)—Passing on to the municipalities the April 1 cut in federal relief grants, the Ontario government has reduced the Dominion-Provincial relief contributions to municipalities 7½ per cent. for April, May and June, it was announced at Queen's Park today.

Prior to April 1, the provincial government paid the federal grant-in-aid, agreed to pay 75 per cent. of all relief costs so long as the Dominion continued its $1,650,000 monthly grant.

NEW DEVICE AIMED AT REDUCING GRADE CROSSING MISHAPS

The "antostop" illustrated in the accompanying two photographs, is a new safety device that has been installed by the Long-Island Railroad at the road's Hicksville road crossing in New York State. The device is built into the road paving. At the approach of a train it rises into the first block, 2,000 feet from as a barrier across the road, and the crossing. When the train reaches the second block, 1,000 feet from the crossing, the barrier rises to 30 inches, and locks into position. The opposite—or exit—side, rises to a height of 7 inches, but does not look, so that cars which have passed over the crossing are locked in. Flashing lights and reflectors are built into the face of the barrier for night lighting.

BUY GOOD WIVES PRICED ON PIGS

Mission Bishop From Solomon Islands Says Twins Unlucky

Montreal, May 16—(CP)—"A good wife might run as high as 25 pigs," said Rt. Rev. W. H. Baddeley, Anglican Bishop of Melanesia, in the course of an interview on the native customs existing in his diocese. Bishop Baddeley, who has headquarters in the Solomon Islands of the south-west Pacific, was returning home after spending several months in England.

The bishop added that all the men had to buy wives in the Solomon Islands. Marriage payment consists of shell money, feathers or pigs. Top prices for a wife was 25 pigs, while a widow might bring five or 10 pigs.

Bishop Baddeley said the natives were no clothes because experience had shown that if they were dressed and got wet they caught pneumonia.

Some parts of the "north" were pretty wild yet, the bishop said. Natives stuck to such old customs as strangling widow, as soon as her husband died and expelling unwanted children. In the case of twins, which were considered unlucky, one of each pair was unvariably left out to die.

Women did all the gardening work, Bishop Baddeley said. In some parts they had more say in the native councils than the men have.

FIND MATRIMONY HELPS STUDENTS

Iowa City, Ia., May 16—(CP)—"Marriage helps students," says University of Iowa officials in approving the fact that more than 300 couples at the institution are wedded and working toward graduation.

Harold E. Relnow, dean of men, and Adelaide Burge, dean of women, agree that marriage has a "settling influence upon students and helps them attain their graduation goal. "Nearly always the grades of students married improve after they acquire the responsibility of marriage," the two deans say.

The Lone Wolf's Son

SYNOPSIS

Michael Lanyard—formerly known as the "Lone Wolf," world-renowned celebrity, but now a respected artist, living double life for America and the S.S. "Navarre". Aboard ship, he meets Detective Crane, of New York, who hunted the "Lone Wolf" years ago. They talk of Lanyard's retirement, preceding his marriage, and the tragic death of his wife and children while he was at war. Also aboard Lanyard is young Mamie Barry. Checking over the passenger list, Lanyard wonders why Crane had made a hasty departure from a stateroom on A Deck when his own cabin is on C Deck. That night, Lanyard goes in search of the youth and finds him in a fight. Purser Percy Dunder confides in Lanyard that she bought the Hatsburg cavalier and kept a secret to avoid official duty. Pay shows Lanyard the jewels, which he surreptitiously returns. He promises to try and retrieve the genuine gems provided she turns from her life of crime.

CHAPTER VI.

One of the players, and not the least skillful or the most judicious, was young M. Parry, flying every available card in his hand, every ruse, including a disposition to push his luck to the limit. He played his hand cards with the judgment even when on the defensive, that final test of a bridge-player's real mettle, and with a bit too optimistic in his bidding, a bit too confident in his play, but always without wincing a couple of cruel sets which occasioned his partner not a little anxiety, and twice lost a game that had looked, when the dummy went down, like a rubber for his side — loss on points of sharp play by the two opponents, Mr. Parry, Lanyard, seemed strangely inspirational. In the end the rubber was scored against the pair of Lanyard, when the total was added up, observer of that fortune-favored pair of bridge-but two rubbers, was more than a thousand points to the good.

His partner by this time had had enough and said so — asked his losses in cash and, when these were drew from the table. M. Parry, a good-natured lad by no means a violent-tempered loser, frankly wanted a chance to recoup, and his late opponents were willing to oblige him, but the fourth was lacking and the size of the stakes enough to daunt any of the little group of onlookers from offering to fill in.

In this plight the youngster lifted eager eyes to Lanyard.

"Perhaps you might care to cut in, sir?" he courteously asked in English slightly inferior, as was covered by the French inflection. "I really should like a chance!"

"I don't mind," Lanyard said with no more enthusiasm than refusal's once—and promptly forgot that that lighted of a sudden in Crane's regard, "I'll partner you if you like with me till I get the hang of his bidding—"

He was promised that much instance at least and introduced to Mr. Parry, to whom Mr. Crane had talked through a New England nose, and to a Mr. Thwaites, a hard-bitten eye in a plump and ruddy countenance and the clipped speech of the upper-class Englishman.

"I must warn you, monsieur," Lanyard presently, lightly resting the tips of his fingers on the backs of the cards nearest to the cutting, "I have very little peculiarities. They will come out, naturally, as we play. I trust you will overlook my bad leading."

Mr. Clay and Mr. Thwaites had cut respectively an ace and an eight-spot, M. Parry the three of diamonds. Lanyard as if by leadership once drew two cards toward him. One is the appropriate answer to a touch, pulled a little, the other slipped more smoothly. The latter, then would be a low card, less sticky with applied pigment. It was the ace of diamonds. Lanyard laid a bland smile to the watchful eye of Mr. Clay, which were not to be deceived anyway by a flying doubt.

"Well, then," he said to the young man, "you have yourself to thank if you lose on my play. You asked for it."

Mr. Clay dealt, and, swiftly scanning his hand, passed. "Not for me," as though the two words were one—"Nubbled!" At which Mr. Thwaites declared a hopeful diamond. Mr. Thwaites with hesitation a spade.

Then Lanyard, holding false support for his partner's bid, called two diamonds. Mr. Clay doubled, only overruled with four hearts. M. Parry was pained to pass but did so. Mr. Thwaites bid four spades.

"Let me review the bidding, please," Lanyard temporized.

"I doubt and passed," Mr. Clay replied, tapping the table.

"One moment, by your leave," Lanyard interrupted in a pleasant voice but with unmistakable vigor. "You said 'Nubbled' instead of 'pass,' didn't you?"

"What's that got to do—

"You know I have been standing by for some time and listening to your bidding. It would have been stupid of me indeed not to have observed that, when you wished to call your partner of a worthless hand, you said 'Nub!' with careful, subtle decision; whereas, if you wished to pass, you hesitated, and added 'Nubbled.' Is that correct?"

"Sir, I am not in a stammer. —you were going to tell me how you—

"It's quite simple," Lanyard replied, turning to the other opponent, generals to restore to Mrs. Innes Crosier and we will say no more about the matter."

Maurice Parry put out a hand to-ward Lanyard, his face full of relief and support, and all at once sat down on his chair.

"Sorry, sir! But I don't think I quite follow."

"I am sure you do, monsieur."

"I mean—I don't understand how you—

"Why, simply," Lanyard explained, "I was sure you were going to say, 'I don't think,' and so I was ready to call you up in the starboard passageway of A Deck, where I am living in stateroom A 1, and meeting Suite 39 in a fashion unbecoming to a gentleman. I am sure you do observation, just before dinner. Later in the evening Mme. Crosier dines with me—we are old friends—did me the honor to consult me. I am too well versed in thieves' ways, monsieur—

"So," the young man interrupted in a flash of reviving spirit, "—so they say."

CHAPTER VII.

"It is true: what you are tonight, I

"In my time was — a common speech-child," Cecil Lanyard indended, smiling thinly —"if you will forgive my saying so, if you will pardon my seeming to say what rarely is ever stronger than shame in the mouth of a man — that I was a burgler. Having done what you have seen, monsieur, I should, I am sure, have covered my knees more certainly."

"Perhaps," Maurice Parry allowed. "But then you wouldn't have been living with your wife against Lone Wolf's."

Lanyard looking in that, perhaps. Still, you are mistaken. I am not to be got round with flattery tonight. I have myself too old and hired, distrait. This interview begins already to happen between us. I fear that it will be good enough to hand over the emeralds, I shall be glad to end it."

"But what if I tell you I haven't them, sir, that I have not got with them, stowed them in a safe place where nobody will ever find them?"

Lanyard's gaze was level.

"You appreciate that what you are saying is equivalent to a confession?"

"Oh!"—the boy's head jerked back in nervous defiance and his mouth took on a mocking sneer—"I see you are sure."

"I trust monsieur will not regret obliging me to end this interview in my own way," Lanyard said, quietly, adding, "for take it too much to heart when I tell him that the hiding-place of the emeralds is a mystery to me. Monsieur does not believe me, then?"

"I don't think you are quite the devil himself, sir—if that's what you mean."

Lanyard had a half-smile, which is a heavy-lidded look of malice you have over there." He nodded in-ward a moment, then, with a sudden flick of attention. "With its screw top and its cork lining, a bottle could hide, if not, perhaps, the best place to secrete loose jewels, is not it all a bad one."

The young man with a groan of impatience swung about to snatch up the stick and, hastily unscrewing the silver cap, inverted it over the table. Out, somewhere, one after another, seven superb green stones rolled and lay still at the end of the dome-light.

The questioning well he made. Lanyard dropped three words like pebbles into a dry well:

"Stolen, monsieur."

"What!" Maurice Parry gasped, and sprang up one of the stones only—after the briefest inspection—to drop it from his fingers, exclaim, "I suppose you think you're clever!"

"It is true," Lanyard affirmed without emotion, "I am clever. I pretended to dine. Crosier while you were in the purser's office. They are now in the purser's safe."

"I?" The boy collected himself and his voice grew bitter. "Mme. Crosier—that girl's mother!"

"Monsieur is mistaken. It is the most lamentable that you had not Penno before you robbed her mother."

"And now they know—"

"Not yet, monsieur. They know nothing more than that the emeralds and the stones restored to the stateroom safe. I am waiting, assuming for the sake of the argument that you came by the stones honestly—"

"You didn't tell Mme. Crosier it was I?"

"No, monsieur. I told her nothing—yet."

"Why not? What right do you imagine you've got to protect me?"

"Monsieur is mistaken. I protect myself. I am not a fool, for all of its urbanity, was unreadable.

"Surely, sir," the boy delighted!"

M. Parry made a nervously abrupt gesture of impatience. "You passenger!

to Statroom 67, switched on the lights, stood back to permit Lanyard to precede him and, followed in and shutting the door, faced him with his back against it.

"Now, sir," he asked with some hesitation — then remembered his manners. "I'm sorry! Won't you please sit down?"

"Thank you."

Lanyard took the one easy chair in the cramped room, but M. Parry remained on his feet.

"Now, sir," he said in a stammer, —you were going to tell me how you—

"It's quite simple," Lanyard replied, turning to the other opponent, Mme.

ONE WAY STREET

by JOSEPH McCORD

With sickening pang he remembered that the door of the small safe under the counter was closed, but not locked! In a fool act, had been for not thinking of that, Saturday night.....Sunday morning, now. The afternoon and evening receipts in the cash drawer. Temptation broke out on his forehead.....

"Yeah....."

"Shut up!"

The man who snarled that over his shoulder was down on his knees in front of the safe. There came a slobbering sound. That was the compartment holding the cash drawer. The intruder got to his feet.

"Okay!" the man on the other side of the counter raised guarded.

"Sure. Get over and watch the door. I'll fix him my way."

Sawyer's upraised arms felt as if they were made of lead. His employer was being robbed before his eyes. Utterly helpless. He had failed in his first position of trust. It meant the police..... A feeling of utter terror possessed him. He wet his lips with his tongue as he saw the safe's robber coming towards him.

"Listen, boys....."

"Pipe down if you want to keep on livin'. One more yip and I'll drill you....Gosh! Is it you or you'll say quick. Shove that chair back and make it snappy. Keep your mitts up!"

The man dropped to his knees. His hands have had a cord in his hands. Sawyer felt it bite cruelly into his ankles as they were jerked against the chair rung.

There was a slight sound nearby. The bandit at Sawyer's side squatted motionless, listening. His confederate evidently shared the alarm and shifted his position to peer through the glass door panel into the street. A motor car, then a near, its engine running.

John Sawyer's confused recollection of what happened after that. He fell rather than heard a dim form appear out of the darkness. One of its arms was upraised. Something crashed down on the head of the kneeling man. There was a stab of flame from the front of the office. A stunning blast. The gunman dashed out through the door. The car's motor raced as it started.....the sound faded.

Aroused by this startling turn of events, Sawyer's arms fell. He pushed frantically at the heavy shoulder sagging against his pinioned legs, thrust the inert body free, gave it topple to the floor. Trembling with excitement, he caught at the desk with both hands, dragged himself and his anchoring chair to his feet. He raised himself with some difficulty, groped for the cord to obtain with one hand. A low cry burst from him.

"Benny!"

John Junior lay on his back at the end of the cord, his face in the circle of light cast by the swinging light. His eyes were closed, their heavy lashes against the colorless cheeks. Sawyer slumped in his chair with a burning necessity for his pocket knife. Two frenzied slashes and he was free. In an instant, he was jetting his boy in his arms.

"Son!" he groaned. "What have they done to you?"

John's eyelids flickered. He started into the face bending over him as one roused from sleep.

"What's the matter?" he demanded querulously. "What are you.....Oh, I know now. My head hurts."

Sawyer passed his hand gently over the smooth hair. There was no sign of the wound he feared. His fingers encountered a lump behind the boy's ear.

"Ouch!"

"You must have struck yourself there. I was so afraid you were shot!"

"I think I was, Dad. My shoulder burns like fire. No.....the other one."

Sawyer made a cautious search inside John's shirt. When he withdrew his hand his fingers were red.

"They did hit you, Son," he said quietly. "Nothing very serious."

"Yeah.....I'm all right." John turned his face wearily against the arm that encircled him. "I feel blinds sick at my stomach," he muttered apologetically.

"I'll see if I can't make you more comfortable. You must lie very still."

John Sawyer suddenly realized his situation. In his anxiety he very nearly had forgotten. Those fleeting bandits might have the money for all he knew. Easing John gently to the floor, he snatched at the desk phone.

"The police. Hurry!" A brief wait. "Hello! Central Garage calling. There's been a holdup."

He laid down the phone and turned once more to his patient. It was strange that no one seemed to have heard that shot. The police would be coming in a minute.

He loosened John's shirt and slipped it back from the shoulder. There it was.....a flesh wound. Blood oozing slowly. Sawyer hurried to the water cooler and moistened his handkerchief. He paused long enough to inspect the bandit lying behind the chair. The man gave no sign of consciousness.

"There, Son. Does that feel better? Can you tell me about it?"

"I've been in the washroom. Your door was open a little and I heard that guy talking to you. I saw the bad go out and I slipped over and looked in. here was a wrench on the floor and I grabbed it. That's all."

"Johnnie....." Sawyer slipped his arm under the boy's neck again. "You did that.....for me?"

"Aw....." John mumbled faintly. "Sure, Dad."

Car brakes squealing shrilly in the street. The office swarmed suddenly with blue-coated men.

"What's happened?" A burly sergeant strode to the counter and peered at Sawyer. "You in charge?"

"Yes, sir. Two men held me up. One of them is lying over there on the floor....."

Before the words were fairly out of his mouth, he sergeant and two patrolmen were inside the enclosure.

"He may have a gun," Sawyer cautioned. "I almost forgot."

"Go through him," the sergeant ordered. He came over and looked down at John. "This one of 'em?"

"No, sir. This is my son. He....."

"Never mind that now. Tell me just what happened. Make it snappy."

INSTALMENT 25.

Sawyer told his story.

"The man who ran out the door may have the money. It was rather dark and I couldn't see."

"I guess this is it," remarked one of the policemen, coming into the circle of light and exhibiting a wad of bills. "He had it in his pocket."

"May I send for a doctor?" Sawyer ventured. "My boy was struck in the shoulder with a bullet."

"We'll attend to that." The sergeant gave swift orders to start pursuit of the bandit car. He turned again to Sawyer. "What's your name?"

"Sawyer.....John Sawyer."

"Yeah? Say! Didn't you get out of stir a while back?"

"Yes, sir." It came out steadily. "They lied you up, eh?"

"Started to.....Just my fist." Sawyer pointed to the cord still trailing from his ankles.

"Just your feet. Umph. Well, Mr. Sawyer, you'll have to go down to headquarters with me. We'll send these two over to the hospital first. I'll have somebody here in charge. Who do you want him to report to?"

"Mr. James Ferris."

The ringing of his room phone broke in Teddy on Mark Sturges' slumbers.

"Hello, was Jimmy Ferris.

"Sorry to bother you," he apologized, "We had a little trouble at the garage this morning. A holdup. I thought you might like to run over and see me."

"What.....I get you. I'll be there in a few minutes."

Ferris looked up with a grin when Sturges walked into the garage office.

"Well, boss, you came near having to ante up for your protege to-day.....to the tune of three hundred bucks. Almost."

He told the story of the robbery as nearly as he was able to piece the facts together. Mark listened intently.

"You're sure the boy wasn't badly hurt?"

"Only a flesh wound, so the copper said."

"Where's Sawyer?"

"In the clinic, I understand. Had for questioning. That's what I thought you'd want to know about."

"Thanks very much, I do. If you'll have somebody roll my bus out for me, I'll run over there and see what's doing."

As Sturges hurried into the police building he was surprised and relieved to encounter Don Browne.

"I'm glad I happened to run into you, Browne. Maybe you can help me a little. What do you know about the garage holdup? I've just come from there."

Don confirmed the story Mark already had listened to.

"It's a rotten break," the young newspaperman added gloomily. "I only happened to hear about it. I'm not on the police beat any more. But I know everybody around here. Sawyer's locked up. The won't let me see him. Three dumb guys....." Don lowered his voice. "They've doped it out as an inside job. They'd frame Sawyer in a minute if they figured it would do any good. It's the thing I've been afraid of all along."

"Would you mind introducing me to whoever's in charge here?"

"Sure, Lieutenant Mitchell is on the job this morning. Come back here."

The lieutenant, portly and red of face, reposed in a chair tipped back against the wall of his office. He did not move as the visitors entered.

"Well?" Mitchell inquired perfunctorily, after Sturges was introduced. "What can I do for you?" He passed a wadded handkerchief across the top of his bald head.

"I want to talk to you about that holdup in the Central Garage," Mark answered promptly.

"Why? If it's for the papers, we've given out everything we have."

"This is personal. I understand the garage night manager, Mr. Sawyer, is being held."

"Maybe." The officer's small eyes contracted slightly.

"Is there a charge against him?"

"Not that I know of."

"Then why is he being detained?"

"If you're that much interested you might see how you like a paroled convict. Anything else?"

"Yes. Has he seen an attorney? Is anyone looking after his interests?"

A slow grin spread over Mitchell's round face.

"You can't expect things to move too fast, This is Sunday."

"Well, they're going to move!" Mark snapped. "Right now. Come along, Browne."

"The magistrate's likely to drop around," the lieutenant conceded. "If you want to stick a while."

Sturges turned on his heel without replying. Out in the corridor, he appealed to Don.

"I don't know much about these things," he confessed. "I want to get in touch with somebody who does. Right away quick. Who would you say was the best lawyer for us?"

"Elijah Stinson..... But I don't know." Don shook his head doubtfully. "The old man doesn't take every case that come along. He doesn't have to. And he comes high."

"Then he's the man we want. I'll go and rout him out now. Do you know where he lives?"

ETHIOPIA
THE SAVAGE

(By Veronica M. Spafford)
Shall we commune with corraged
The dark-hued savage groping for Thy crown;
This ancient fury striving to be free,
This infant soul emerged from desert sand?

May, for he sits upon the Master's throne,
This untamed child within whose heart is love,
Forbear to judge, forbid him not,
but suffer him to come to Me.

With patriot zeal despotic grown
Beware lest thou to savage ways descend;
Learn, learn from splendid heights
you fall,
The Lord of love is greater than the great.

SEED POTATOES AT $2.25 A BAG

Fresh Vegetables in Quantity Offered on Local Mart

Potatoes, particularly in demand at the present time for seeding purposes, held their own today on the regular Saturday market, but in spite of the demand for quality, practically little change in prices over those noted one week ago.

Today the outstanding variety offered by both dealers of the city and rural vendors commanded prices of from $2. to $2.25 per 80-pound bag. Choice table varieties were offered in more abundance at from $1.80 to $1.85 per bag.

Cabbage, lettuce and carrots plants were offered in profusion selling at an average price of 10 and 15 cents the berry box. Green onions, larger in size and heavier were tied, together with fresh rhubarb, lettuce and radishes at five and 10 cents the bunch. Tomato plants in their boxes had been carefully protected last night and early this morning from the killing frosts, which hung over the district.

Little change in the price of dairy produce was noted at this section of the market, with butter being quoted from 22 to 25 cents the pound. In some instances the two-pound roll was sold at 46 cents. Eggs again ranged from 15 to 18 cents, with the smaller, pullet eggs selling in some instances for as low as 13 cents. Chickens ranged from 30 to 35 cents a pound, with an average price of $1.35 and $1.50 per pair.

High winds of the past week have done considerable damage to their daily jobs on the lake, with a consequent noted scarcity of trout, whitefish and other varieties. Markets, however, were fairly plentiful, although at the present a low price of two pounds for 25 cents. A few smelts and perch also found ready purchasers.

Little pigs hold the spotlight on one corner of the market, although better prices of from $4 to $7 each, according to size, decided change in grain or meat prices were noted.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 16 (AP)—Efforts to stir up a rally in today's stock market met with little encouragement and prices, generally, finished with a moderate irregular trend.

Stimulus for a substantial rush to either direction seemed to be lacking. Gains in the majority of closings dwindled to around 200,000 shares.

Columbian Carbon got up three points on a few brokers lot of 2,000 shares. Gains were by U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, Montgomery Ward, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Columbia Gas and North American.

The mining were a trifle heavy, Anaconda, American Smelting and U.S. Smelting losing a point or so each. Rather backward also were American Telephone, General Motors, Liggett and Myers "B" and International Harvester. Numerous others were virtually unchanged at the close.

Bonds were narrowly mixed. Foreign gold currencies gave ground in terms of the United States dollar. Commodities held to a restricted area.

Among Canadian stocks, International Nickel was a little lower, while a steady price trend was maintained by McIntyre, Distillers Seagrams and Canadian Pacific.

Government bonds were quiet. Canadian funds gained 1-16 of a cent at 99⅝ cents.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, May 16 (CP) — Trading in volume that left the rest of the list in the shade, Mard Gold bulged to 200 today on the Toronto mining market and closed at the top 1.98 for a net gain of 83.

McLeod-Cockshutt advanced 45 to another new high of 1.75, dipped to 1.55 and recovered while slightly higher prices ruled for McWatters, Macassa, Hollinger, Dollyvarden, Vanville, Gunnar and Perron. Central Patricia, Pamour, San Antonio, Coniaurum and McKenzie were unchanged to slightly lower. Anglo-Huronian, Hollinger, Teck Hughes, Little Long Lac and Lake Shore boarded narrow gains.

Noranda weakened a fraction and Sherritt and other of the cents varieties dropped 5 cents.

Texas-Canadian gained 15.

GRAIN PRICES LOWER

Winnipeg, May 16.—(CP)—Reflecting weak Liverpool prices, futures prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today broke to new lows in the first hour of trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, with May at 77 1-4, July 77 7-8 and October 79 1-4 cents.

Export business in a dull opening session was of minor proportions, with sentiment on the bear side in the lower trend.

RADIO REPORT TO SUGGEST GENERAL HEAD

Board of Directors Will Serve in Honorary Capacity

LEASE LAND WIRES

Will Extend Coverage of Canadian Stations And Improve Programs

Ottawa, May 18 (CP)—After 17 public hearings totalling nearly 1,000 Hansard pages of oral evidence, supplemented by voluminous submissions and much correspondence, the special parliamentary committee on radio has settled down to prepare a report upon which parliament will be expected, at the present session, to enact new legislation for the control of broadcasting in Canada.

Chairman Arthur L. Beaubien, (Lib., Provencher), announced at the conclusion of Friday's sitting, there would be no more public sessions, and he named a sub-committee to prepare a draft report to parliament. The sub-committee will start work Tuesday, and it is anticipated a final report will be ready for submission to the House some time next week.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King had already announced in the House that the government intends to bring down all legislation recommended by the special committees, during the present session.

Government Control.

What the main recommendation will be remains to be seen but if it follows the lines of the evidence contained in the submissions it will be for a reorganization of the form of government control by placing broadcasting policies in the hands of a representative board of directors or governors serving on an honorary basis, with a general manager appointed to carry out administration of these policies.

There was also unanimity among the submissions that the government should not take part as a competitor with private stations in commercial broadcasting, but that efforts should be made to encourage the latter to improve their standards of chain broadcasting to commercial sponsors.

Outstanding features in the public hearings were the investigations into the so-called "Aird Scrap" broadcasting broadcasts last fall on behalf of the Conservative party during the general election campaign, and the submissions by a committee of the Canadian Press asking co-operation in the more frequently broadcasting of news with the Canadian Press furnishes free for that purpose. There was also some sharp passages over Commission expense accounts.

Wild Dogs Shot on Sight Police Order for Sheep-Killers

Armed Hunt For Animals Which Escaped Into Thicket

DOGS FIRED AT

Armed with rifles and service pistols, provincial police today scoured parts of Sidney township, directly north of the city, in search of three vicious dogs which have been attacking sheep and cattle in that district of late. Unfortunately the wild dogs escaped in a nearby wooded thicket. Following an hour's search, how-

Provincial Police Frank Fraser returned to the complaining farmers and instructed them to shoot the dogs on sight, if they returned.

Early today Fred Mossman and Mrs. E. Brougham, farmers, reported that three large dogs, one a Newfoundland type, had killed sheep and cattle causing the animals to be frightened while others were so badly hurt as to be bitten. One small lamb was brought down by the dogs but fortunately not killed due to the speedy arrival of the farmers. Armed with high powered rifles and service revolvers, Inspector Gardner and Constable J. Carr hurried to the scene of the trouble. In the meantime, however, the dogs had retreated to a distance of some 200 yards from the cattle. Using their fire arms to the best of their advantage the officers fired at the fleeing dogs, but without results.

"We instructed the farmers of the district to arm themselves for future attacks and also informed them to shoot to kill if these dogs returned and attempted their cattle and sheep," added the inspector.

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—John J. Huggard, Seaforth, Ont., lawyer, sought on a theft charge, was adjudged bankrupt by a receiving order made in Osgoode Hall today by P. Gordon Cook, registrar in bankruptcy. Mr. Cook appointed the Guaranty Trust Company of Canada custodian of Huggard's estate.

The registrar acted on the petition of Roy Cossitt, Kippen R. W., Huron county, which was filed on his behalf by B. Luxenberg. Cossitt claimed Huggard was indebted to him to the extent of $1,900, two Dominion of Canada Government bonds of a par value of $500 each, which he had deposited with Huggard.

He also said his mother also had a claim for $2,000 in bonds which she had deposited with Huggard. Cossitt alleged Huggard had left Canada without intention of returning, that he had absented himself from his Seaforth residence and had removed the securities left in his custody.

Mr. Luxenberg announced a meeting of creditors would be held in Seaforth.

MYSTERY PLANE PUZZLES BORDER

Canadian And U.S. Officials Watch

Mas-

Albany, N.Y., May 18 (CP)—Customs officials here disclosed today they had been watching a "mystery" plane which frequently circles the Albany airport but never lands.

Ralph Spear, manager of the Glens Falls airport, described the ship, also seen over the Glens Falls field, as having wings "which looked big enough to lift a barn."

The plane has never landed at the Glens Falls Field and on all flights in which it was observed, had flown so high altitude in either a northerly or southerly direction. Canada lies 150 miles north of Glens Falls.

At Malone, near the Canadian border, the plane aroused the curiosity of state police last March.

Officers Malyce Sgt. James MacNeice, Royal Canadian Mounted Police commissioner, said today the only preventive service was watching for a biplane believed engaged in smuggling liquor into Canada from the United States.

Sir James said the force did not know the registration number of the machine and could not say if it was the same machine, sought by United States authorities after its pilot struck a New York airport police man yesterday.

The commission explained his men seize a few planes yearly and confiscate them if they are found to be used in smuggling.

103 Year Old Mother Prays For "Her Boy" 83 While He Goes to Windsor Hospital

Says Her Son Isn't Old Enough to Look After Himself

AFRAID OF A SCOLDING

Blacksmith is Relieved His Mother Cannot Come to See Him

Windsor, Ont., May 18 (CP) — Mrs. Felice Meloche, 103 years old, couldn't go to the hospital today to see her boy, Joseph, aged 83, who has both his legs broken, but in her bedroom at home she prayed to the Sacred Heart to spare her baby whom she says isn't old enough yet to take care of himself.

Joseph, she said, was a bad boy. He had been sick with the flu and she should not be working in the blacksmith shop, but along comes a man whose home he has been absent-ing for 18 years. The owner of the horse will not let anyone but Joseph shoe him.

And Joseph, still sick, goes out to the blacksmith shop. The horse slipped and falls on him. Now he is in the hospital.

Mrs. Meloche is not well enough herself to go to the hospital and see Joseph. Joseph, however, who still can swing a heavy sledgehammer around like a toy, is quoted from his hospital bed as being a little relieved that she can't come. He's afraid of the scolding he will get.

Joseph Meloche has seven children, 37 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. Most of them today were declaring in no uncertain language that the husky senility, who is both patriarch and son, would never have been injured if he had not been a sick man.

Brand-dad was still sick with flu when he went back to work. It wouldn't have happened that way if he was well," one of his grandsons explained.

Bear Chases Seven Fishermen Up Tree

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 18.—(CP)—It was a successful fishing trip for seven members of a young men's club here until a female bear and her family of cubs took a hand in the proceedings.

The seven youths had enjoyed a pike casting one game for a walk in the woods to find a suitable place to eat lunch. The bear chased all seven up into trees and refused to leave the scene until all seven had tossed down not only all the fish they had caught but their lunches as well.

DESPERATE LEPERS KILL SEVEN MEN

Escape From Compound and Bring Terror to Inhabitants

Manila, May 18.—(AP)—Six desperate Moro lepers fled before the constabulary today after killing seven men in a bloody dash from the Culion Island Leprosarium.

The armed lepers, under the leadership of one called himself "Abdugah," killed four fishermen, seized a boat and fled the colony of 5,000 on the north coast of the island, where their ruthlessness spread terror among the inhabitants.

Stopping at Jalumpang, on Aboabo Island, the marauders killed three more persons and robbed fifteen more. Then they proceeded to Bonobono, where they attacked another Chinese merchant, but were driven off. The town drove them away. They seized another boat and escaped to sea.

A call for constabularymen brought the soldiers to Bonobono a few hours later. They were told that the lepers said they were sailing for Tagale, Cuba.

Culion Island, about 200 miles southeast of Manila, is approximately 13 miles long and 10 miles wide. Although more than 5,000 lepers are in segregated community they are not imprisoned.

The Culion Island Leprosarium is the largest of its kind in the world.

Mussolini Will be Named Chancellor

Rome, May 18 (CP-Havas)— Premier Mussolini will be proclaimed Chancellor of Italy next Sunday on the 21st anniversary of this country's entry into the Great War, usually reliable sources reported here tonight.

Count Constanzo Ciano, now president of the Chamber of Deputies, will be made Vice-Chancellor.

VONSTARHEMBERG LOSING FAVOR

Disbanded Heimwehr is Said to be Turning Against Him

Vienna, May 18 (CP-Havas)— Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, deposed patriotic front leader, may find his disbanded Heimwehr turning its resentment against him when government funds stop, political observers said here today.

Meanwhile the position of Chancellor Curt Schuschnigg as Austria's strong man was seen to be growing more secure, with the powerful support of both Premier Mussolini and of the Austrian army behind him.

Absence of any serious developments in the wake of Chancellor Schuschnigg's announcement of his intention to disarm the Heimwehr, Prince von Starhemberg's semi-military Fascist organization, was considered as evidence that coolness toward their deposed leader may be developing among the Heimwehrmen.

Stripped of his cabinet post as vice-chancellor, von Starhemberg no longer will be in a position to sign the government subsidies for the Fascist organization. Money more than sentiment was said by some commentators to be the determining factor with the Heimwehr.

Tourists Crowd Into Trains, Fear R. R. Strike in Mexico

Extra Coaches Required to Accommodate Rush For North

SCENES IN MEXICO

Mexico City, May 18 (AP)—Hundreds of American tourists, fearful of being stranded, crowded trains today in the wake of 18,000 employes of the great Mexican National Railways made ready to strike tonight for wage increases.

The general exodus of visitors from the north making necessary extra cars on all out-going trains, Edward N. Hyrne, American consul general belief the projected strike would be officially adjourned "legal" and workers given 24 hours to return to their jobs.

The strike was strengthened after the National Revolutionary (government) party newspaper El Nacional, in its leading editorial today, declared flatly the strike call was "entirely illegal", economically unjustified and an outgrowth of "irresponsible" labor leadership.

The railway syndicate, with 67,000 members, yesterday was solidly behind the strike. The equally powerful miners' and oil workers' unions voted "solidarity" with the movement.

Apparently unimpressed by warnings of "illegality", the workers, led by Juan Gutierrez, secretary-general of the syndicate, cheered speakers who urged them at mass meetings to enforce the strike, and completed preparations to quit.

Col. Pedro Lopez Blamed As Notorious Purveyor; Eden Tells Whole Story

Munitions Firm Induced to Supply Samples, He Charges

GRANDI WARNED

Invoice Includes, Dumdums, Unnoticed by Ethiopian Minister

London, May 18 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden charged before the House of Commons today that forgery, deception and trickery were used to obtain "fabricated evidence" of Ethiopian dumdum bullets suspected to be made in Great Britain.

He said the evidence was obtained by Col. Pedro Lopez, whom the British knew as a "notorious purveyor of false information."

Stung by Italian allegations which were withdrawn from League of Nations headquarters at Geneva last week, the Italian cabinet made a question in Commons to tell the story of Lopez' activities.

Eden said, was a British subject of Polish origin and was well-known to the British police as a friend of aliases. He posed in London as an Ethiopian arms purchaser, the Foreign Secretary declared.

Says Samples Used.

Then he resorted to forged letters and trickery to induce a munitions firm to supply him with ammunition samples, Eden charged.

These samples, the Foreign Secretary went on, were used to persuade Italian authorities that such ammunition was being supplied to Ethiopia with the official connivance of the British Kingdom.

According to Eden's statement, the British appeared to have had Lopez under constant surveillance.

Aware that Lopez was in touch with the Italian Embassy, Eden said he warned Ambassador Dino Grandi of his plan. The continued employment of a man of his disreputable type would not assist in the maintenance of good relations between the two countries."

Letter Is Quoted Staff.

Subsequently, however, charges based on Lopez' activities appeared in the Italian press. Eden said Lopez was known to have made contact with members of the staff of the Italian military attache in London within the last few months.

The Foreign Secretary said Lopez presented a forged instruction from the Bank of Egypt to the Bales Company in which he was represented as the purchaser of the Ethiopian government. He asked that ammunition samples be sent the Ethiopian Minister in London together with a letter purporting to be that of a British manufacture.

Free Tells Story.

Lopez then took possession of the samples and the next the British knew was the appearance in Italian newspapers of stories that the British were supplying the Ethiopians with dumdum bullets.

"I have learned," said Eden, "that neither the package nor the letter was ever delivered to the Ethiopian minister."

Meanwhile, said Eden, Pedro, under the alias of Col. Custav Meier, called on the Ethiopian minister with the promise of supplying munitions in return for concessions.

Three Million Ordered.

He succeeded in obtaining authorization to buy supplies in which 3,000,000 soft-nosed cartridges were included. Eden said W. W. Martin, the Ethiopian minister, failed to notice the listing of the dum-dums in the supply invoice.

67 MILE CHASE ENDS IN ARREST

Police And Fleeing Car Do Ruling 85 Miles an Hour at One Time

Lindsay, Ont., May 18 (CP) — Frank Laplerre of Peterboro, 28,, Toronto, was arrested late Sunday night by Corporal J. T. Woods, in a farmer's yard near Unionville, after a 67 mile chase at speeds.

Lindsay police received word from Peterboro that a car had been stolen. Corp. Woods and Constable Hodgson saw a car carrying Lapierre speeding up Kent Street and gave chase, dodging heavy traffic.

As the two cars sped past the Lindsay hospital, Corp. Woods emptied his revolver in the fleeing car, which sped up. The two cars dashed through Fenelon, then Manilla, 14 miles distant, then Bethany, 20 miles away. The police car almost came to grief on a sharp curve.

The police say, that every time they tried to pass, they were forced off by the car in front. Myrtle was passed in a flash and Lapierre, in the stolen car, had a race started as both cars were doing 80 and 85 miles.

Sideswipe Pole

At Unionville, the men in the fleeing car tried to make a sharp turn, but they left and sideswiped a telephone post, but bobbed up on the highway again and kept on their mad dash. They turned the next turn so sharply, that one man was thrown out of the car, but escaped unhurt. He took to the fields with Corporal Woods after him with a flashlight. Lapierre was surrounded by farmers and others attracted by the chase.

The driver of the car was unable to make the turn and plunged into a farmer's field. Forsaking the car he took to the fields. The car was badly damaged, having stripped its fenders on one side, and a tire was blown away. Fearing fear, Lapierre stated, that he didn't know his companions, police say.

SPIRITUAL SOWING SERMON THEME

Rev. Dr. Semple at Bridge Street Church Tells of Requisites

Marking Rural Sunday at Bridge Street United Church, the Rev. Dr. James Semple preached at the morning service on spiritual sowing basing his sermon on the parable of the Sower, and one that is close in touch on a number of the problems which face the rural community. The essential place of the agriculturist was taken in the life of the nation was stressed.

In the morning, Dr. Semple spoke of the four types of ground into which the seed according to the parable fell, some by the wayside, some into stony places, some among thorns and some on good ground.

The wayside ground was he deemed an apt description of those whose minds exhibit a object in hearing the Word, those who wish sermons and services shorter. Thains a condition of mind which preparation for the message. "What a question did you listen to to-day?" asked the minister, "Did you how your mind was the same into the service? Have you an open heart to receive the message, or are you to guide you?"

He remarked that those typified by the wayside ground did not often read the Bible and were unfamiliar with the study of God's purpose. They did not cover over the message with indifference.

The greatest sin of the twentieth century has been that of indifference. Many influences are at work to hinder the Gospel. There are two forces in life, power from above, something and power from beneath, Satan's and the moral system.

Those who hear the Gospel with gladness but are shallow, though hopeful and worthwhile, typify the stony ground. "If there is something superficial in your life, it is because that you are not going deeply enough spiritually."

The thorny ground is indicated by those whose minds are occupied with the love of money, the love of pleasure and mammon has stolen into the place where Christ has no place for religion.

The minister pointed out that love for strong drink is not the only great sin which eats like a cancer into life. Some commit sin openly on a sunday or a city in a fog.

The fourth ground is the United Church had not made a place for the Lord Jesus Christ.

He noted that often good impulses became forgotten things.

As to the sin around it was prepared, said the preacher. So it is with the Gospel. It must be pre-

There are two thoughts to be considered, the minister pointed out. God expects a suitable return for His benefits. God help man if he be withheld.

Then there is the importance of coming to the Gospel with a free mind, knowing that God is the source of truth an honest reception.

Finally, the preacher spoke praised the sociability of the rural people and many other aspects of life in the country.

BOY KNOCKED TO PAVEMENT BY CAR

Douglas Robinson Escapes Serious Injury in Impact

While running across East Bridge St. at Bleecker Ave., Douglas Robinson, 57 Hamilton Road, crashed into the side of a passing motor car and was knocked down. At first it was believed that young Robinson had escaped injured, but upon his being taken to the office of Dr. J. J. Hamilton no serious injuries were reported.

Apparently failing to observe a car being driven easterly by Albert Edward Bellamy, Mr. Bellamy, Robinson ran into the side of Mr. Wallbridge's car, his head striking the left fender and he was thrown to the pavement. Mr. Wallbridge immediately stopped the car. Sergeant Bowerman and Constable Evans and Arnott were near at hand and investigated. The incident was reported to the Provincial police and young Robinson fortunately not seriously injured.

Mr. F. Mordon, of the local branch of the Massey Harris Company, reported the theft of a tire, tube and rim. The stolen articles were used as a spare for the company's truck, Mr. Morden reported. The articles were stolen on Saturday night.

Apparently testing the strength of the new footbridge two teen-aged youths were caught in the act of swinging the bridge on Saturday night. Following complaints, that two boys were swinging the bridge and causing an unnecessary amount of inconvenience to foot passengers crossing the bridge, Sergeant Harman went to the east entrance of the bridge, while Motorcycle Patrolman W. H. Delaney approached from the western entrance. The lads were caught in the act of swinging the bridge. Their names were taken and they were instructed to make a personal visit to Chief Kidd's office this afternoon.

"A total of 20 transients slumbered in the cell block last night," the station over the week-end, 14 on Saturday night and six last night signing the register.

William Stanley, Sidney Township farmer, complained to the Provincial Police regarding the theft of a vest calf from his pasture. The animal was removed some time the latter part of last week. 3 MONTHS FOR L. C. A. CHARGE

Transient Arrested For 'Panhandling' and Having Liquor

A transient giving his name as Joseph LaPerle, no address, was sentenced to three months in the common jail by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court. The transient reported had pleaded guilty to a charge laid under the L.C.A. The companion of LaPerle's who gave his name as James Garry, was charged with vagrancy and also pleaded guilty to be allowed to leave the city, was remanded to appear in court today.

LaPerle and Garry were arrested on Bridge St. on Saturday night following complaints of persons of panhandling and annoying citizens by soliciting funds. After his arrest he was arrested by Constable Thomson, LaPerle was found to be in possession of a flask of liquor which resulted in a charge,) of illegal possession of liquor in a place other than his residence.

This practice of panhandling in Belleville must stop. Take action. I recommend a stiff sentence be imposed in this case as a lesson to others?" suggested Chief Kidd. Garry pleaded his own case in a few words, stating he should be given an opportunity to leave town. The magistrate ordered that he leave while LaPerle stated he was financially embarrassed at the moment and could not raise a few dollars, the minimum fine under the L.C.A. for illegal possession of liquor. The three month sentence automatically followed.

The charge of breaking, entering and theft of four purses from the clothing room of the Belleville Arena was dismissed against James Morton, of this city, today. "Upon the evidence previously submitted I cannot find this man bulky and will therefore dismiss the charge," commented His Worship before informing Morton he was free to go. A similar charge regarding an alleged theft at the Tabernacle Church was dismissed against Morton one week ago in the local court.

RADIO REPORT

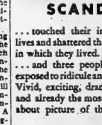
Strongly Defended.

The Canadian Radio Commission, subjected to criticisms on grounds of inefficiency and bad business operations, was strongly defended by chairman Hector Charlesworth, and his associates, who claimed that the files of the Commission told ample evidence of the efforts of the body, since its inception in 1932, had been in the popular approval of Canadian radio listeners.

Out of the great bulk of evidence and submissions, gathered from more than thirty witnesses and thousands of letter writers, the committee will render a report which will probably touch upon the following main points:

1. Reorganization of control control and administration under a single head, assisted by an honorary board of governors.

2. Concentration of the government's efforts toward extending coverage of Canadian stations to reach all points and improve the quality of programs, leaving commercial broadcasting to private initiative.



3. Leasing of land wires for carrying network programs, the transcanada telephone system claiming to have been refused an opportunity to compete for this business, which is exclusively contracted for by the telegraph companies.

4. Prompt regulation covering the handling of political speeches and programs during the general election campaigns, arising particularly from instances involved in the Commission for its connection with the campaign of last fall.

5. Closer co-operation with respect to the question of national broadcasting control of radio as a public utility, and the status of the privately owned stations.

It was noteworthy that new members of the House of Commons played a large part in the examination of witnesses and conduct of the inquiry. Prominent among these were Arthur Slaght, (Lib., Parry Sound), Paul Martin, (Lib., Essex East) and Denton Massey, (Cons., Toronto Greenwood). More experienced members who took a leading part included Colin Campbell, (Lib., Prince Edward-Addington). Mr. Slaght was taken ill during the inquiry and was succeeded by Mr. Martin as chief questioner of the witnesses.

TAX COLLECTOR GIVEN ONE YEAR

Failed To Deliver Rolls When Called Upon to Do So

Lindsay, Ont., May 18.—(CP)—Clifford Puffer, tax collector of the Township of Minden, who was convicted in Minden police court of failure to deliver the 1934 and 1935 tax rolls of the municipality as demanded by the Reeve and Council, was sentenced Friday by Magistrate R. A. Gee to one year determinate in the reformatory at Guelph.

Accused failed to deliver the tax rolls to two councillors who went to his home February 1. It was said accused remarked: "I don't think you're getting the roll," and had said that he, on the authority of "one of the best lawyers in the province" was allowed 30 days in which to deliver the book.

Cross-examined later, Puffer admitted that "the best lawyer in the country," was nothing more than the "Municipal World" from which he stated, he got the information. On February 1, the Minden Council allowed Puffer until February 6 to return the rolls.

The accused blamed his failure to return the rolls on a fire which took place on the night of February 8, while he was on his way to Minden to deliver the rolls to the Treasurer. Puffer claimed that his car was burned on that occasion, and the records destroyed.

MODERN MAGIC . . .

THOSE PERFECT CIGARETTES you smoke, made by the Imperial Tobacco Company, fully and evenly packed, firmly rolled—not too loose, not too tight—are produced by modern machines, which turn out thirteen hundred and sixty cigarettes every minute of the working day, approximately twenty-three every second.

And this is modern magic.

Here is the way it is done. First, various types of time-mellowed tobacco leaf are blended according to the exact formula of the cigarette being produced. The tobacco is humidified, stems are taken out and the whole compressed into a solid "plug" for cutting. After sharp, flashing knives have sliced the plug into fine, golden shreds, any loose scraps are removed under forced draft. Then, following a period of further conditioning, the tobacco is ready for the cigarette machines.

Hour after hour, batch after batch of the fragrant tobacco goes into the machines. There it is again cleaned by suction, fluffed into a soft carpet of uniform thickness and showered onto the cigarette paper. Rapidly unwinding from the whirling bobbin, the strip of paper is printed with the name of the cigarette, passes on to receive the tobacco and then into a tapering device which forms the cigarette. It comes out at the other end, rolled into an endless cigarette and passes on to the cutter, where it is clipped evenly, cleanly into cigarettes of the required length by a circular, razor-keen blade revolving at mile-a-minute speed.

A series of careful inspections follow, and there, at last is your perfect cigarette.

LONGSHOREMEN OUT ON STRIKE

Shed Hands And Crews Unload Vessels in Toronto Harbor

Toronto, May 18.—(CP)—Cargoes of two ships were being unloaded by shed hands and crews today as a strike of union longshoremen partially held up shipping in Toronto harbor.

Early today 350 men were called out on strike by the Union and three companies are affected, the Tree Line Navigation Co., the Toronto Steamship Lines and the Canadian Rail and Harbor Terminal.

A. H. Beal, district manager of the Tree Line Navigation Co., said he did not think the strike would last out the day and W. J. King of the Canada Steamship Lines was to confer with union officials today.

Longshoremen were picketing the "front" from the Tree line sheds to the foot of Yonge Street, while two policemen and a police radio car patrolled the waterfront.

J. Egan, Secretary of the Longshoremen's Union, said today none of three affected companies' ships would be unloaded by longshoremen until new agreements regarding working conditions and wages were signed. Higher overtime pay and holidays are also asked by the men, said Mr. Egan.

BELIEVE DEATH WAS ACCIDENTAL

If Undergraduate Murdered Regarded as 'Masterpiece Murder'

Stadhampton, Oxfordshire, MAY 18 (CP)—Several theories have been advanced for the death of T. Paterson Ironside, undergraduate at Balliol College, Oxford, but the balance of evidence, police indicated today, leans towards accidental death.

If Moss was murdered—and there is not an iota of evidence so far any clue. The only evidence that might point to foul play was that of a Mrs. Bowden, who lives near the sign-pole on the village green, who stated that about 2.30 a.m. Friday she heard men talking loudly in a car drawn up outside her house.

Watch Stopped At 2.10 a.m.

Detectives discovered the remains of Moss' wrist watch yesterday. The hands had stopped at 2.10 a.m. This narrowed down the period of inquiry to three hours and twenty minutes as Moss was seen in Oxford, eight miles from here, late Thursday night. His body was found in the afternoon ruins of the hayrick the following day.

The student's remains were removed to the chapel at Balliol College yesterday but will not be disposed of until the police inquiry has been completed. Then they will be cremated according to the wishes of the young man's mother, who came to this county from Toronto just three months ago.

Hundreds of cars visited the scene of the tragedy yesterday, at times blocking the country lane leading to the farmhouse. No one was allowed to approach the hay-rick where the body was found.

MYSTERY PLANE IS BEING SOUGHT

"Air Policeman" Nearly Dragged into Air Trying to Question Pilot

New York, May 18.—(CP)—Police of Eastern States and eight states on this side of the border were on the lookout today for a mystery airplane believed engaged in border smuggling operations. The alarm was sent out after it nearly dragged a policeman into the air, when he sought to question its pilot here Sunday.

Aerial policemen Otto Kafka was at Holmes Airport on a "Busman's Holiday" when the plane, a four-place two-seater, landed and attracted his attention by taxiing back and forth at one end of the field.

Kafka recalled a warning to watch for such a plane believed, in the words of the United States Customs circular, "to be operating a smuggling racket between a field somewhere near Glen Falls or Saratoga, N.Y., and a point in Canada."

Canadian police had reported the plane as sighted over Granby and St. John's Que. It disregarded regular airport traffic rules, and landed in obscure fields. The possibility of it crossing with a load into Canada was considered.

Kafka ran across the field and seized a handle of the cabin-door as the plane taxied away. The pilot struck at the "air-cop" through an open window and gave the mystery ship the "gun", Kafka let go just before it left the ground. He was thrown heavily and had to be treated for lacerations.

CONSERVATIVES FAVOR REPEAL

School Tax Discussed at Party Committee Meeting

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—The resolutions committee of the Ontario Conservative Association adopted a resolution Saturday in favor of repeal of the Hepburn government's Separate Schools tax legislation, the Mail and Empire said today. It will be dealt with by a party convention here May 27.

W. J. Stewart, candidate for the leadership and former Toronto mayor, was a strong supporter of that resolution, the newspaper said, and C. A. Seguin, former member of the legislature for Russell, urged unsuccessfully that adoption of the resolution be deferred until the convention could discuss it.

In addition to Mr. Stewart, A. H. Acres, M.L.A. for Carleton and Hon. Earl Rowe, member of parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe, were other leadership candidates in attendance at the committee meeting. The previous leader, George S. Henry, also was present.

EMPIRES

New York Times writer has been meditating on empires since Italy set up hers a few days ago in Ethiopia with 350,000 square miles and a population of nearly ten million people swelling the Italian greatness appreciably if numbers and size count.

That is the first and present view, he says. But he looks forward between suzerainty and dependency and says "In the best empires it has been the rule that the tail should wag the dog, so to speak. Alexander the Great started with a few thousand square miles in Macedonia and ran up his stake into an empire extending from India to the Sahara. All of ancient Italy had perhaps 5 per cent of the area of a Roman empire of 2,000,000 square miles and perhaps 10 per cent of the Roman Empire's 80,000,000 inhabitants."

"A mere speck in the mists of the North Atlantic, known as Great Britain, has an area of 90,000 square miles, or less than twice the size of New York State. It rules an empire of 13,000,000 square miles, or 150 times as big as itself. It rules over 500,000,000 people, or more than ten times its own population.

"Holland, slightly bigger than Vermont, has an empire of 800,000 square miles, or nearly seventy times its own size. The 9,000,000 inhabitants of the Netherland homeland have no fewer than 60,000,000 fellow-subjects in the East Indies, not all of whom have been spoiled by American tourists on round-the-world cruises stopping off at Bali.

"Holland's 60,000,000 colonials are commercially a bigger asset than the same number of people in the French colonial empire, which is scattered over more than 4,000,000 square miles of territory. It means twenty times the area of France and one and a half times her population.

"Portugal at home is two-thirds the size of New York State and has two big slices on either side of Africa aggregating nearly 800,000 square miles. On them she has only ten African subjects to the mile, which is rather thin. But for a big ration looking for glory, no square miles can be too sandy or stony or swampy. All kinds of soil are adapted for raising prestige."

LAST AND GREATEST CRUSADER

The world saw probably the last of the Crusades for the Holy Land when Lord Allenby wrested the land from the Turk to bring it freedom under mandate. Unless there is a vast upheaval of world politics crusading for Palestine is likely at an end. The Allenby campaign may be called the greatest of crusades for though part of the Great War tactics, it did revive many of the thoughts which have been in men's minds for many centuries. It achieved what the first crusader desired.

Crusaders date from 1096-7 when a great army from the west took Antioch and Jerusalem in 1099, when a Christian kingdom was set up with Godfrey as head and Baldwin ruling as Prince of Upper Mesopotamia and Bohemund at Antioch. Godfrey died in 1100, succeeded by King Baldwin and Bohemund was taken by the enemy. A great French expedition was destroyed and for the next half century the Christian rulers were hard pressed.

To assist in the defence of Jerusalem the orders of the Hospitallers of St. John and the Knights Templars were formed. In 1185 the monarchy of Jerusalem was offered to the kings of France and England, to come to the rescue but they did not accept. Then came the great Saladin on the scene sweeping from victory to victory until Jerusalem fell. New crusades at once were launched, one by Richard the First of England, who went as far as Acre and quarrelled with his allies who then left him. Richard made a truce with Saladin. Another crusade was started from Venice but this did not reach Jerusalem. A 'children's crusade' in 1212 resulted in the enslavement of the 30,000 children led by a French boy named Etienne. Jerusalem remained in the hands of Saladin until Frederick II won it by diplomacy not by fighting. Among other crusades was that led in 1270 by Prince Edward later Edward I of England who got as far as Acre but achieved no permanent results.

The Crusades actually failed in their purpose but worked great effects upon Europe. While the warlike quarrelsome men were away in the east fighting, the rulers were solidifying the reign of law in Europe. Intercourse with the East developed trade and widened vision, opened up the West to romance and story, which deserves credit for the great Renaissance movement, with its freedom of thought and action. Readers of mediaeval history know how trade was stimulated as the crusades brought to the West intimacy with the quite high civilization of the Near East. Travels of Marco Polo and his father Nicolo in the East were a direct outcome of those crusades.

LOVE'S ROSARY

Sweet names, the rosary of my evening prayer,
Told on my lips like kisses of good-night
To friends who go a little from my sight,
And some through distant years shine clear and fair—
So this dear burden that I daily bear
Mighty God taketh, and doth loose me quite;
And soft I sink in slumbers pure and light
With thoughts of human love and heavenly care;
But when I mark how into shadows slips
My manhood's prime, and weep fast-passing friends,
And heaven's riches making poor by lips,
And think how in the dust love's labor ends,
Then, where the cluster of my hearth-stone shone,
"Bid me not live." I sigh, "till all be gone."

MOTOR CAR PARKING IS NOW RESTRICTED IN BELLEVILLE BUSINESS SECTION

to one hour. This was made law by the City Council Monday evening. Needless to say the new parking bylaw does not suit everybody. In fact, some of the merchants are so much against it that they signed a petition asking the council to repeal the bylaw instead of giving it a third reading. This was later changed to a petition asking the council to delay bringing the bylaw into force until all the new parking plots were put in condition. However, the one hour parking is now in force and bids fair to get a try-out at least. Some conjectors are against any parking restrictions, on the principal that it is the visitors belong the spoils and the first to grab good parking spaces should be entitled to them—for the duration. Such was the condition of things up to the introduction of the one-hour parking. It was estimated that upwards of one hundred cars, owned by Belleville business men and commercial travellers were parked on Front Street every day, which did not leave many choice parking places unfilled. Some profess to be in favor of no parking at all in the business section, others think two hours should be the limit, to accomodate the most leisurely shopper. Others have other ideas. However, one-hour parking is now the law and the intention is to encourage trade in Belleville, to help visitors from outside who come here to shop to find places convenient to the stores they wish to patronize, so that they will not have to carry their parcels very far. It is said that some of our out-of-town neighbors who visit Belleville regularly to shop and enjoy entertainments think one-hour parking is too short. Now the idea of any legislation to benefit the great number of people but no legislation can benefit all of the people. It is desirable that shopping in Belleville be made easy and pleasant for all who wish to indulge in it, and the stores are certainly worth visiting and patronizing. If the one-hour parking is not beneficial to the greatest number of people concerned then it can be discharged but in the meantime it is on trial and should not be condemned until it has had a fair and honest trial. The one-hour parking by-law is the result of much consideration and enquiry on the part of City Council, the members of which believe that this parking by-law is for the greatest good of the greatest number—and there certainly can be no ulterior object on the part of any alderman in coming to this conclusion.

"West is West"

A Los Angeles car owner was having his eyes tested for a driver's licence. Pointing to a chart on the wall, the examining officer asked the man to identify the things he saw.

"What is in the large circle in the centre?" he asked.

"That is the figure 18," the man replied.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was in her room getting ready to go out and the doorbell rang and I answered it and it was Mrs. Yardle, and I went up and told ma and ma said, O dear.

She said she was only going to stay a few minnits, ma, I said, and ma said, I know her few minnits, they're as endless as the sands of time.

Well why dont you give her a little hint by putting your hat on and wawking in the front room looking at your wrist watch? I said. It would be a big hint, at least, but it would hardly be polite.

And she went down the way she was and acted glad, and I went watched the clock for 15 minnits, thinking, Hay, that's a lot more than a few.

And I stuck my head in the front room, saying, Hay ma, what time is it please?

It's 20 minnits to 3, dont interrupt, cant you see Mrs. Yardle and I are tawking? ma said.

Wich they kept on doing, and after a while I stuck my head back again, saying, O, ma, it's exactly 3 o'clock, wasn't that quick for 20 minnits?

Mersey, I never saw a child so concerned about the time, Mrs. Yardle said, and ma said, Dont mind him, he has a new watch and he keeps practicing on it. But imagine, 3 o'clock, it is remarkable how time flies, isn't it, I mean in pleasant company, naturally, her bee.

Perhaps you have an engagement, Mrs. Yardle said, and ma said, O no, that is to say nothing that means life or death, please dont go.

Well perhaps I better, Mrs. Yardle said.

Wich she did, ma saying, Now Benny, that was a very rude thing to do.

What was? I said, and ma said, I'll explain later, I'm late as it is.

And she went down the way she was and acted glad, and I went and pouring she wasn't mad.

Says Science to Mark End of War Motive

Detroit, May 18 (CP)—War will be eliminated by science, says Dr. George B. Harrison, Director of Applied Physics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"In what are sometimes called the good old days," he said yesterday at the second Dearborn Conference of Agriculture, Industry and Science, "war, famine and pestilence were considered inevitable. If half of a man's family were wiped out in a week by diphtheria, it was the will of God. Through science, more than of the pestilence have been wiped out. War is next.

"Although it is said that you can't change human nature, and that wars will endure until the end of time, war is going to be eliminated because it is economic in origin, and natural science, physics and chemistry and agriculture and industry, are gradually raising the availability of mankind's necessities and luxuries by wresting more and more from the chaos of nature. And it won't be social science, or political science, or economic science that will do this, but the good old natural sciences which are fundamental to them all."

SYMPATHY NOTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please send me a general letter which might be used to send in a floral piece for her or she has lost a "dear one".

S.

It is a pretty large order to suggest a letter of condolence that can be used "generally", but I would like very much to give you some fundamental suggestions that may be helpful.

Letters of condolence are of two classifications, generally speaking: the letter concerning someone we know well; and the letter expressing a natural sympathy for the person who has suffered a loss of someone near and dear.

Let's take as an example of the first type of condolence letter, a letter of sympathy to a close friend who has lost her husband.

Dearest Mary,

The shocking news has reached me, and my heart-bows in sorrow for you, dear friend. I am thinking over all the years that I have known your dear mother, thinking of the beauty of her thoughts and life, thinking of her great love of you, and of her understanding and appreciation of your friends. It was a great privilege to know her, and a great privilege to have shared her friendships. With you all of good things will tenderly cherish her memory, and will think of her always in the sunflight, with God's work done.

If I can be of service to you, please let me come, Mary. I wish so much to help.

My heart full of love and sympathy and understanding.

Affectionately,

Next, for a letter of condolence to an acquaintance or to a stranger—

Dear Mrs. Allen,

May I tell you, please, with what sorrow I learned of the death of your husband, and may I offer you my deepest sympathy? Mr. Allen was one of the finest of men, and to us who worked with him in the office his death is a great sorrow and a great loss.

Very sincerely yours,

There are many occasions too when the following type of wording would be appropriate for a note of condolence or for a message written to be sent with flowers:

Dear Mrs. Gibbs,

All my sympathy and all my thoughts are with you, in deepest friendship and understanding, in your great sorrow. I would be so grateful if you would let me be of service to you.

Devotedly,

Or this:

Dear Mr. Thompson,

I want to tell you with what sorrow I learned of the death of your wife. We who knew her share in your loss and in your sorrow. Please accept my deepest sympathy, Mr. Thompson, and my deepest condolence.

Most sincerely yours.

Married Love Can't Live on a Diet

The other day I happened to listen in the vicinity of a radio when I told a questioning wife, when her husband was raging, to slip up back of him, throw her arms around his neck and kiss him. Nothing was said about talking out an accident insurance policy before this highly successful method was tried.

Now, While I may claim to be fairly well acquainted with the moods of men, having an entirely masculine, I should be the last woman to claim that I know all raging male.

But with safety, not to say common sense, should warn a woman not to like a man's manner of assert, she might avoid driving him to frenzies, by always being considerate of her husband's manner. Never was a truer word written, than "a soft answer turneth away wrath," and if the soft answer is seasoned with a dash of humor, the situation is saved.

Most of the disillusions of marriage spring from men and women going back to the ways standard. Actual fault-finding with the mate may be renounced, but in manners demanded arguments often antedate the horse and buggy days.

So many people feel that their good manners are not meant for home, but for home use. Bernard Shaw pointed out years ago that many wisecracks in a play with which you were familiar in your families.

It's a sad, sad commentary on home life to think that if people, living under the same roof and sitting down to the same table at meal time, must behave quite only be as polite to each other as to chance strangers, a little Rhythm would be established on earth.

Another very good tip for people who live under the same roof and share the same meals, is to have some corner to which to retire to after a case of mild rage. Something that sets most men and women to talking or laughing that are being watched, and that the home is built from which they are not free to come and go.

It is punching the time clock on each other that has wrecked many marriage. "Where have you been," "What did you do?" "Whom did you see?", "Why were you out so long?", are all the questions that upset the domestic apple cart.

Whereas, if not a single question were asked when the wanderer returned, it is more than likely that he or she would give a nightly digest of the news of what happened when A. W. O. L.

"I had really nothing to give my self on a wedding present," a woman wrote me the other day, "but in my letter, telling her every happiness, I said: 'Please don't turn your home into an Aid Club; don't demand the details every time your husband is late for dinner; don't let the first thing day to be good companions and good mixers, and I think you will always be lovers.'"

The day of the motto over the parlor door has passed, but it seems to me if some of this "sanitary advice could be given to every bride, lots and lots of trouble would be saved.

The announcement of Miss Connerly's first recital hour reminded of the booking of about forty engagements between the twentieth of April and the thirtieth of June. The type of programme she renders is different from that of the ordinary concert. She confines herself to the dramatization and interpretation of popular literature. The bookings have been entirely with Church societies and Women's Institutes.

ZION W. M. S.

The ladies of Zion W. M. S. were entertained at the home of Mrs. Haley Thursday afternoon. The meeting opened with the president in charge. Hymn 118 was sung and Mrs. Everson offered prayer. Mrs. Percy Hay gave a splendid address on Citizenship during the devotional period. Minutes and business followed. It was decided to hold a constructive day the Missionary Monthly at each meeting to stimulate a greater interest in this book. The Roll Call was well responded to with the keyword "Love". Prayer for our missionary in Africa was offered by Mrs. Hay.

"Sermons", the topic for the study was taken by Doris Bunnett. Mrs. Beards told a very interesting story of a Japanese mother and Mrs. Tufts gave a paper on Rhinoceros. The second chapter of the Study Book was very ably given by Mrs. Denyes and was followed by a solo by Mrs. Bunnett. Hymn 365 and the benediction by Rev. Everson brought the meeting to a close.

University S. S. Dedicated At Impressive Ceremony

Keys Presented by H. W. Ackerman For Albert College Board

DR. SEMPLE SPEAKS

The services of University Sunday School at College Hill, the former gymnasium of Albert College, on Sunday were of a very special nature. In the afternoon a beautiful service was conducted by Rev. Dr. James Semple, President of Day or Quinte Conference, during the dedication of the Sunday School room for Christian worship. A very impressive sermon was delivered showing the attitude of Jesus toward children and our duty to them and Christian workers. Quartette of Holloway St. Church, Mrs. Hagerman, Mrs. J. Cordes, Mr. A. Cordes and Mr. H. Aldred sang, furnished very fine singing accompanied by Mr. G. Templer and Mr. James Cordes sang a beautiful solo, "Open the Door". In the evening Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker gave a stirring message from Engel Every Shall Be Done." Splendid music was under the direction of Professor Bam English and the Albert College quartette. The presence of Principal and Mrs. Howard and many other students seemed to link the present day with happy memories expressed of the past. Rev. R. Farnsworth, superintendent, presided at both services and kind expressions were made of the College Board, who so kindly and liberally gave this splendid building for Sunday school work. Many improvements have been made and now we have a spacious inviting building. There are 105 names on the roll with an average attendance of eighty. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers and a good attendance at both services.

During the afternoon ceremony Mr. Harry W. Ackerman on behalf of Albert College Board presented the keys of the building to Rev. Dr. Semple who handed them to Rev. Mr. Farnsworth.

FRANCES LANGFORD

Sitting properly, she knows, is a requirement of health and beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVERY WOMAN is not a pretty sitter, but every woman should be. The correct position means a lot to grace and deskworkers, and it will stave off that four o'clock slump that is due to strained muscles. Sometimes a girl gets mad at her job when she should rightly get mad at herself because she hasn't learned more about the needs of her anatomy. She has tired muscles, tired nerves and jumpy disposition.

The chair seat should be wide enough to accommodate three-quarters of the length of the thighs; high enough that the feet rest comfortably on the floor. Shoulder blades should touch the back of the chair, the chair back should have an inward curve to give support at the waistline. This means that the body is held erect. There is no commanding ol'-time slump when you're starred for air in their lower cells, or sagging muscles in the abdomen and eyes droll.

The desk and chair are placed at the proper distance from each other, two-thirds of the forearm will rest on the desk when the arm is lift of the shoulder. The distance between the chair and desk or work should be about twelve inches.

This is not as interesting a beauty subject as lips and ringlets, but it is more important as it has to do with health, and health is the first requirement in the composition of good appearance.

Exercise is your best development: Place the hands on the breasts, lift and lower the elbow slowly. Then massage gently. Don't take a chance of injuring the delicate glands.

Close the fingers, hold the hands straight out in a shoulder lift, then slowly with a strong muscle pull, then back to first position. The breasts will lift along with the hands, muscles will be strengthened, tissues made firm.

AT THE BELLE

"These Three" One of Year's Best Dramatic Pictures

The havoc wreaked in the lives of three innocent adults by a whispering campaign begun by a spiteful child provides the theme of Samuel Goldwyn's powerful drama "These Three" featuring Merle Oberon, Joel McCrea, and Miriam Hopkins which comes to the Belle today for three days, matinee daily.

From the pen of Lillian Hellman, the famous Broadway playwright, the story of "These Three" is so skilfully developed and so brilliantly acted out along by the stars, but by the supporting cast as well, that the result is one of the most gripping and magnificent pieces of entertainment in the memory of the writer.

Briefly, the story is that of two college girls, Martha (Miriam) and Karen (Merle) who, with the help of a young doctor, Joe Cardin (McCrea) gets a dilapidated New England mansion into a charming school for girls.

A romance develops between Karen and Joe, as Martha conceals her own love for him. The school prospers, but there are two disturbing factors. One is Martha's ailing spanish aunt, who installed herself as a vocation instructor; the other is Mary Tilford, a vicious, lying child, who bullies the other chuuren and will go to any lengths to escape her school studies.

One night, Joe happens to fall asleep in Karen's room, while waiting there for Karen, Martha's aunt sees him leaving and the children eaves-dropping, overhear the aunt's unutterable insinuation. On these, the cunning Mary builds her plan to get away from school, forcing her chief victim, Martha's Wells, to confirm her wicked lie.

Events succeed in convincing her grandmother that evil is afoot at the school, with the result that an ugly scandal ensues and all the pupils are taken away. Martha sues Mrs. Tilford for libel, but the case is lost, and the romance between Karen and Joe broken.

After a time, however, Martha succeeds in winning a confession from little Rosalie, the lie is uncovered and Karen and Joe are reunited.

The film introduces a truly great cast, world actress Ina Claire, Oberon and Joel McCrea in the leading roles, outstanding artistry, and Martha Sleeper, Catherine Doucet, as Aunt Lily and Alma Kruger as Mrs. Tilford are superb.

William Wyler's direction is a brilliant feather in that young megaphone-wielder's directorial cap. "These Three" is a dramatic marvel of the season.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.15. "These Three" starts at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.15 p.m. All other treats will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Leathernecks Have Landed"

Devotion to the Marine Corps, a spirit which transcends all personal considerations on the part of its present and former personnel, provides the inspiring theme of "The Leathernecks Have Landed", the Republic production now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Lew Ayres is starred as a Marine; who has a way with the women and also a way of getting himself and his best friends into trouble. Isabel Jewell will be seen in the leading feminine role with Jimmy Ellison featured in the part of Ayres' buddy.

The exotic seaports of Havana and Shanghai and the interior of China furnish the background over which the story moves. Seton I. Miller, who has had such screen successes as "Mr. Moto", "Paco the Scarface", "The Crowd Roars" and "The Big Parade" to his credit, wrote the screenplay.

Summed up in a few words, "The Leathernecks Have Landed" is the story of what happened to Woody Brown after he was kicked out of the service at the result of the latter's fighting in a cafe brawl, and the long hard road he had to take to make a comeback, aided by Brooklyn, the girl who had "been too many boats."

Among the other well known names in the large cast are James Burke, J. Carrol Naish, Ward Bond, Maynard Holmes, Clay Clement, Ray Benard, Claude King and Paul Porcasi.

Also every Monday and Tuesday a Free to the ladies, a beautiful piece of genuine Nutasi ovenware.

O'Brien Gold

Recent discoveries at the property are now accepted as of a spectacular nature. On the 700 and 1,000 foot levels a length of ore of about 100 feet, to date, is reported to have been opened up by drifting yielding exceptionally high values, unofficially but reliably reported as averaging $300 per ton.

Read-Authier

The company's holdings of shares of Montauge Gold Mines and Magnet Mines give the stock an asset value of more than $3.00 a share. If and when both these properties are established on a dividend basis, Read-Authier should benefit from its assets in the distributing form, as shareholders on an approximate basis of a Lencourt and a Bagamac for each 10 shares of Read-Authier held.

Sullivan

One of Quebec's most promising junior producer today. Ore reserves are steadily growing and the company is ing up of two new levels down to depth of 625 feet this Summer should result, according to preliminary diamond drilling indications, in a substantial increase in ore reserves.

Siscoe

Quebec's first "straight" gold producer continues to add to ore reserves. The company up now regarded as a speculative-investment of considerable merit.

Two important developments of the past week tended to call attention to the industrial market. Both were, first, settlement of the American dollar, paving the way for distilleries for taxes on distilled spirits for bottling purposed. The adjustment of the claim was arranged for considerably less than what was demanded by the United States Treasury.

Second the declaration of a 30 cents a share dividend by the directors of Brazilian Traction, which came as a complete surprise to the Street and brought about a substantial rise in the stock on heavy volume.

Most of the information of recent weeks, from a business viewpoint, has been favorable. International Nickel has been steadily increasing its dividend payments and the current rate of $1.50 per share is the highest in the company's history. Normally earnings are around $2.50 per share for the first quarter of which only one dividend is paid company. The majority of annual reports coming in have been quite favorable, but intimation by the President that the outlook is promising for the year.

As long as the business news continues to be up-turned, the steady rise of quarters feel that the bull market will continue and gain in momentum.

Increased attention has been given in the newspaper securities the past few days. The month of April reveals not only a new record high in production at 258,721 tons, but shipments exceeded the output, thus making for a healthy condition in the ore position. The steady increased demand for newsprint is bound, in time, to result in higher prices for the company's product. Development urgently needed if the various companies are to show any profits.

Commercial Alcohols Limited, whose 100,000 no par common shares are listed on the Montreal Curb Market, reports net profits of $19,298 for the year ended March 31, 1936, as against $1,535 shown for the previous year. This was transferred to Profit & Loss, reducing the deficit from $68,835 to $53,236. Commercial Alcohols also operates five Preferred Stock, of which $360,000 is outstanding, is in arrears to Dec. 31, 1936.

Commercial Alcohols is not interested in the beverage Carbonate insulating material. During the year, 1936, a substantial reduction in expenditures which increased amount of cash position to $16,119. Major portion of this amount was to provide for additional plant for the Magnesia Insulation Department.

Veranda Mines

Recent publication of the quarterly report of earnings for the first three month of 1936 shows that Veranda had the best quarter in its history. Earnings of $7 cents a share indicate an annual rate of 28 cents, as against 9 cents in 1935 and 2½ cents per share. Such earnings were obtained with the average of gold and copper sold at $35 an ounce and 9 1-4 cents respectively.

Although the increase in the price of gold may be looked for at least for the next year, the increase in copper is sufficiently encouraging to warrant the opinion that a continuation of improved business conditions will be carried over. Veranda should average at least, and probably more than 9 1-4 cents for the balance of 1936.

It thus appears reasonable to expect 28 cents per share, or better, for the balance of 1936.

Second Quarter Investment in Pamour shows a very appreciable profit. Norands is now producing over 1,500,000 shares at a cost price of less than 70 cents per share. Dividend payments are expected. Pamour show Noranda a paper profit of $1,000,000 on the investment. Pamour is expected to be in production within the next three weeks on an initial basis of 500 tons a day. Should development in the near future give such splendid results as have been obtained to date, production should be stepped up to 1,000 tons a day by the end of the year. It is now only a matter of time before Pamour pays handsome dividends to shareholders, the amount of income which should boost earnings.

International Nickel

During the first quarter of 1936 the International Nickel Company earned $2.50 a share, as against $1.54 cents a share on its common stock—this showing was the most favorable in the history of the company. A glance at the report in the manner in which the big operation is steadily pouring profits. Quarterly earnings for the period ending 30 cents, 34, 30, 51 and 81 cents.

Shareholders have benefitted by this prosperity as its dividend payments have been advanced on several occasions, at the same time earned surplus has been added to until it now stands at $49,253,364. Such a financial backing will enable Nickel to carry out the current expansion program and still make higher payments to its owners.

Detroit Tigers Edge Back Into The First Division

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

In spite of the fact that the 1935 pennant winners are having trouble remaining in the first division—or perhaps for that very reason—major league baseball has suddenly become a paying proposition.

At least four banner crowds turned out yesterday to see teams that are contending for the top places and one clash between a pair that are far down in the standings but usually provide plenty of entertainment.

A crowd of 36,303 cash customers piled into the polo grounds to see New York Giants, playing their first Sunday home game of the season, engage in a doubleheader with the St. Louis Cardinals by trimming Frankie Frisch's men 6-5 and 7-3. The two setbacks dropped Cleveland's League Park to see the home team take an 8-4 drubbing while Boston's popular Red Sox drew some 21,000 fans to watch them edge out Chicago's White Sox 8-7.

Giants Continue

The ursatic Dodgers and Reds attracted some 17,000 Brooklyn customers to Ebbets field and gave the Reds won 3-3 although they got only four hits against Brooklyn's Lee Grissom. Paul Derringer and Grissom battled evenly and a single by the same Rookie, preceded by a walk and followed by Kiki Cuyler's blow, turned the trick for Cincinnati.

The Cardinals maintained their slim half-game margin over the Giants by walloping the Phillies 10-3; the Tigers regained an interest in the first division by overcoming Washington 5-7 and the Browns broke their losing streak by trimming the Athletics 4-3 in the day's other games. The Cubs and Reds, Rivals for fourth place in the National League, were rained out.

The Giants, hanging up their seventh straight victory, had to go to a fast start against Ralph Birkofer, but they soon pounded him to cover in the sixth, scoring five runs on six hits to come from behind, then added three more in the seventh. Letty Gomez also failed to finish it was his fate, tho, that drove in the winning run.

After dropping a 6-1 lead, the Red Sox won out over Chicago, when Bill Werber collected a homer in the eighth and Rick Ferrell repeated in the ninth. The Tygers also win on the final inning, scoring twice on a double, two passes by Ed Linke and a couple of hits. Al Simmons gave them an early lead by hitting his third circuit with two aboard but Joe Sullivan couldn't hold it.

Four batsmen for Ross Philadelphia Rookie, and Jim Bottomley's triple started the Browns toward their second victory in 19 games and Julius Solters' homer in the 10th when his seventh-inning homer broke a 3-3 tie.

With Dizzy Dean on the hill hunting six-hit ball, four of the blows coming in one inning, the Cards had only a few worries. They caught up with Curt Davis after 7 innings and clinched the decision with four runs in the seventh as Pepper Martin socked a homer behind three straight doubles. Joe Medwick and Joseph Camilli also hit for the circuit.

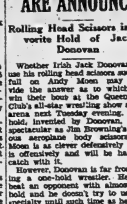
Thrower of First Curve Takes 'Gander' at Tigers

Detroit, Mich., May 18.—(CP)—The man who back in 1870 threw the first curve ball ever heaved by a baseball pitcher was a visitor to Detroit over the week-end.

Fred Goldsmith of Birmingham, Ala., was in the city to see his old friend Connie Mack, here with the Philadelphia team of the American League Friday and to take a look at the Detroit Tigers.

Before the game Goldsmith had a chat with Mickey Cochrane and Schoolboy Rowe, and explained how he happened to develop the curve.

"I was just a boy of 15," he said, "and so fond of baseball that I always had a ball in my hand. I used to spend my time twisting, spinning it, sounding the ball just for my own amusement. One day during a boy's game, I attempted to spin the ball and accidentally made it curve. I noticed that it did something unusual and experimented further with the pitch. Soon I was throwing the curve regularly."



Pop Anson saw Goldsmith pitch and, manager of the Chicago team. He remained with Anson's Club many years.

LUCKY NUMBERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Rolling Head Scissors is Favorite Hold of Jack Donovan

Wrestler Irish Jack Donovan can use his rolling head scissors somersault on Andy Moon may provide the answer as to which will win their bout at the Queensbury Club's all-star wrestling show at the arena next Tuesday evening. Donovan, who has invented the scissors as he has a particular way of rolling and will be hard to catch with it.

However, Donovan is far from being a one-hold wrestler. He has an opponent with almost any hold and he doesn't try to use his specialty until such time as he feels he has a perfect opening for it. Moon, also, is an all-round wrestler with a most diversified selection of holds at his disposal.

AL BISIGNANO

The forthcoming bout will feature the finer points of wrestling and should be a most brilliant display of the sport yet seen here. Both grapplers have simply proven their worth at previous shows and have established themselves as such favorites that the match has the fans really excited.

Moon, hailing Oklahoma Indian, has wrestled from coast to coast and is strictly a main bouter under ordinary circumstances. He has beaten some good men but will find a fresh his best form to win the semi-final from Alphonse Bisignano, the Italian who unquestionably is one of the best young wrestlers in the game.

The Petroff-Al Dunlop preliminary rounds out what unquestionably is the best card program yet offered in Belleville.

Lucky Numbers.

The fifteen lucky program numbers, to be announced between each night's all-star show and to whom the holders will be given free tickets at the box office at the arena, are as follows: 66, 138, 236, 334, 441, 566, 678, 744, 823, 911, 1073, 1155, 1242, 1391 and 1456.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

The local senior ball club can get in just six more practices, that is if they take advantage of next Saturday afternoon. The local squad was the only team in the C.O.B.L. not to take advantage of last Saturday's bright sunshine and stage either a lengthy practice or a game of some kind, which means the Belleville gang will have to get down to their batting all this week. The C.O.B.L. will swing into action, as far as the books are concerned, one week from today with a morning game with the league titlists, the Kingston Frontes.

There's a certain air of mystery surrounding the Peaker camp just at present, no pre-season news having come out of the Limestone City relative to their 1936 campaign. For the first yet. We were in Napanee on Saturday to take a gander at the Gibbard squad, but the only news regarding Kingston could be obtained from other sources. We've heard a word about Kingston. As a matter of fact I was in Kingston last week and no person seemed to know just what's what in senior baseball circles in that burg. Bill Gibbard, Gibbard, just after he got the league's hit of the day, a triple down the right field line when the Gibbard Beat Enterprise 8 to 4 in an exhibition game at Napanee.

Getting a little closer to home, however, the executive of the local senior team are striking out on a financial canvass this week and are hope for a generous response all around. We've been solicited many and street rumours are to the effect that some of the local aspiring players are far from satisfied with their lot during practice hours. After all this is the only community in team this year in Belleville was solely to give the local boys their long-waited-for opportunity, which still seems to be in the offing, if we are to believe some of the youngsters, who claim they are wearing the seat out of their trousers sitting on the bench.

Any ideas the local club had of procuring the services of Bill Frost, ex-Yankee and Cleveland Indian fielder, can be dispensed with. We got this information direct from Walter Hall, who has been in touch with Ernie Gibbard certainly agreed to re-sign Frost, but Frost wasn't to be had, provided with employment. Frost lives in Adolphustown, near Napanee, and is said to be a dandy baseball fan and say—"sic em Frost, we need thee, now that Dunn has gone over to flash his form" is the fact that Frost just won't be playing ball this season.

On Saturday a typical pre-season game was played in Napanee, with plenty of errors. The Gibbards won 8 to 4 after the Cubs had 7 errors from Enterprise and in so doing failed to connect with a single safety, and Bishop turned in splendid efforts on the mound, however, Bishop is handing the visitors for the last four frames. Tommy Pointer, ex-National Leaguer, is on the injured list with an infected finger received while at work last week. Tommy will not be able to pitch for a week or more, he tells us. He says he has a couple of hands and says he never felt better. "Gee, it's great to be back pitching in the C.O.B.L.," Pointer said, "all the fans in Belleville that I never felt better and never had any old left flipper this summer, that's all I've got to say." added Tommy with that big grin of his.

We watched closely Herb Handford, Walt Gerow's new shortstop from Deseronto, and Handford has ground and knows his baseball. He'll make a hit in the C.O.B.L. His education in the St. Lawrence League was clearly demonstrated when he scrutinized the play from first sack Sedrick, Jr. Moore, Giants, and Moore, Reds, and Mize, Cardinals, 4.

Home runs—Camilli, Phillies, 6; Klein, Cubs, Ott, Giants, Fr. H. Moore, Phillies, 5.

Stolen bases—J. Martin, Cardinals, 7; Allen, Phillies, 4.

winner of the semi-final scrap either in Belleville at some later date or in Toronto next week. "Yes must remember that every win registered by these boys is recorded and the better showing made demands better ratings on the wrestler's next booking," explained Mr. Corcoran over the week end. No reference is needed in the press for Moon, Bisignano or Blue Sun Jennings, that massive Oklahoma Indian. All are top-notchers and in the fun, who follows his wrestling daily in the press, they are "tops". On paper it is just a case of two aces meets, only one is over the 50 minute route, while the other will be the full hour with two falls. As Matchmaker Corcoran remarked, "Tuesday night's card is the best wrestling card ever to be staged in a city under 100,000 population, as all the bouts are naturals."

Tomorrow the annual Hiram Walker-Sons golf tournament opens at Toronto. Last year this Provincial-wide golf tournament attracted something like 250 golfers from all parts of Ontario and with a feeling that a larger field will be on hand this year, Mr. Jackson Walton, tournament manager, has provided two of the best golf courses in Toronto to assure ample playing facilities. The Cedar Rose and the Lambton view golf clubs have both been reserved for this gala meet. There is no entry or green fee and there is a splendid opportunity for the youngsters to enter this week end tournament and be assured of a real outing.

We are in receipt of a letter from Ernest R. Newton, son of the late Chief Newton, who resides in...St. Ida. Ernie enclosed a news clipping taken from the columns of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and which refers to a local golf enthusiast. The clipping is a two column sports article under the caption of "Famous Aces of History" and includes a two column comedy cut. The article entitled "Ace of Aces, St. Louis Globe-Democrat is sponsoring a new golf tournament which will run a feature, under the caption "Famous Aces of History". A recent ace referred to in the article reported to be made by Jack Acheraft and at the Jaycee Golf Country Club golf course last summer, when Jack's drive dropped a fraction of an inch from the cup and rolled evidently a butterfly, lilting lazily in the wind, flicked the ball with and the "impact" pushed the ball into the cup for a hole-in-one-believe it or not. "Thanks Mr. Newton for your interest in the old home town and Ernie, Wa, Phil is now with the new bet on the retired list. He occasionally drops into the office and we'll gladly pass on the news to Jack Barrows, Ernie Lang and the rest when the boys are all "on the hit" hall and hearty."

Apparently the Chinese dragon is far from asleep when it's 3,000 years and age as China will send a team of 100 to participate in the Olympic track and field events, Japanese basketball, weight lifting and boxing competitions, according to German officials.

BUFFALO BISONS NOW SECOND IN INTERNATIONAL

Defeat Montreal Twice To Run Winning Streak to 12

LEAFS LOSE TWO

Weintraub Gave Great Hitting Exhibition For Red Wings

(By the Associated Press)

With 6 consecutive victories behind them, Buffalo Bisons appear to be headin' for the top of the International League standing. In sixth place, when the streak started, they already have attained second by a double victory over Montreal Royals yesterday and have only a game to go to overtook the leading Baltimore Orioles.

The Bisons trailed Montreal, recently the league's leading club, until just yesterday, rather rudely as they set up a season's victory string. The Royals were beaten 10-1 before 14,500 fans. Led as usual by Frank (Beauty) Shellenback, they belted out 16 hits for a 10-1 victory in the opener and then made two hits off Lauri Myllykangas better than the three Bill Brandt gave the Royals in the afternoon 1-0.

McGowan, setting a dizzy pace for the League hitters, made three hits in the first game and added another in the second inning of the second to bring home Moe Mulleneaux with the pitched ball. Mulleneaux, giving eight hits, and won his fifth victory with two defeats. Myllykangas was Marvin Olson.

Rochester Takes Leafs

The fourth-place Rochester Red Wings were the victors in the Sunday baseball bills, taking two close decisions from Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-5 and 7-6. With 18,000 fans, the Rochester Jewish Community in 9 years, looking on, Newark's League leading Bears were trimmed by Albany in an even break with the Albany Senator. Frank Makosky's relief hurling enabled the Senators to take the opener, 9-6, but Albany's four-run rally in the seventh gave the Senators a 6-5 decision in the nightcap.

The Baltimore Orioles edged out Syracuse 6-5 in their first encounter of the double bill, getting two homers but took a 13-7 drubbing in the second game when Nick Dallesandro ran wild, hitting a homer, two doubles and a triple and batting in six.

As a result of shifting games to make doubleheaders, only the Albany-Newark game remains on today's schedule.

Phil Weintraub put on a great hitting exhibition for Rochester, driving a homer over the 440-foot mark in connection with making a long double and two doubles, one of which hit the 40 foot label, all in the second game. He failed to connect in the first.

Bold Venture Fifth Horse in History to Win Preakness, Derby

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 18 (AP)— Bold Venture's hair-line decisions in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness have set the stage for the race of the year, when Morton L. Schwartz' great three-year-old again saddles at strides with J. E. Widener's Brevity and William Woodward's Granville in the $50,000 Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park, June 6.

Bold Adventure whipped Brevity by a head in the Derby and beat off Granville by an even smaller margin in the Preakness at Baltimore Saturday. Still there are many, who refuse to admit the superiority of the dusky son of St. Germans. It will take the one and one-half miles of the Belmont to prove, whether they are right or wrong.

As if the presence of the trio were not enough to make the Belmont a real go, W. Whitney's Red Rain also is scheduled to go in the 68th running of the classic. Red Rain, a lightly probable will hook up in the Whitneys mile Stanley but Bold Venture and Granville will be reserved for the richer and longer race.

Both Bold Venture and Granville returned to their New York stalls today none the worse for their dingdong battle, but the 40,000 spectators, who saw the race Saturday are still talking of the game finish between the two colts.

Bold Venture apparently was beaten a length at the end of the finish. He was back among the pack with Granville, the horse, which last year took Granville's wide, however, George Woolf, the Kentucky rider from Calgary, seized the opportunity and with a beautiful, brilliant finish, literally quickly stepped Bold Venture into a commanding position.

The finish line was only an eighth of a mile away, when the Brevity-Granville battle was over the fifth horse in history to win the Derby-Preakness double, and for the first time. From then on Bold Venture's battle as over has been on the American turf.

First one, then the other assumed slight command, but in the final strides Bold Venture took the lead and Granville refused to give ground. The finish was so close, however, that the margin by which the winner until they had seen the photograph. And to make the finish even more complicated, Walter M. Jefford's Jean Bart, eight lengths back, was threatening a head for third money.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

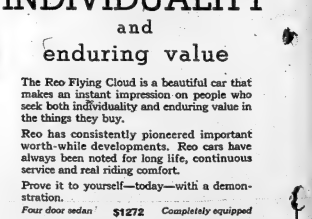
New York, May 18.—(AP)— Baseball gossip: Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane are sharing the Detroit hoots and jeers these days.

Some of the fans are calling the Al a "175,000 bust." . . . The way to lick the Cubs, says Charlie Dressen, is to stop that "little pest" Augie Galan . . . which is like saying the way to win the pennant is to trim the other seven clubs . . . One job is about as easy as the other.

Joe McCarthy, who should know, laughs off charges that his ex-problem child, Johnny Allen, chucks a mean spitter on occasions . . . Ah, Ok, Loop papers round up Cardinals for not lending Leo Durocher a fist or two against Casey Stengel . . .

Week's funniest sight: General Phelan of the Boxing Commission spending ten minutes going over the rules with Pedro Montanez, who doesn't understand a world of English . . . Babe Ruth is crashing the movies constantly these days . . . Tony Canzoneri has undergone two nasal operations since Jimmy McLarnin belted him on the beak ten days ago . . .

Cincinnati Rooters report it was Larry MacPhail, who suspended Paul Derringer for "real goldern" when Derringer and everybody else knew Billy Rhiel pitched with a split finger . . . and that the first Charlie Dressen knew of it was when he read the story in the papers.



Jimmy J. Johnston was the first guy to sport a straw on W. 44th St. . . . Mike Jacobs still sticks to his long line . . .

Prosperity Note: Three N.Y. tickets offices for the Louis-Schmeling bout are averaging selling $2,000 weekly, or thousands per hour . . . and the ringside seats are not yet on sale . . . Dan Parker of the Daily Mirror, who seems to have an "in" on the wrestling dope, says Al Baba will drop the title in Philly soon.

They say a lot of smart money is shifting to the Red Sox these days. . . . If Joe Louis doesn't intend to fight Jimmy Braddock this fall, why has he signed for his Lake Wood Camp for the month of August?

"Yes, I'll go along, if you like.... I was thinking I'd run over to Ken-yer's house and see if I could do him any good."

"That's better yet. I'll find Mil-ton," Mark started for his car. "Hesitated. "I say, Reverend, I'd appreciate it if you'd leave me out of this when you get to Bridge Street."

Dot looked at him curiously. "Whatever you say."

"Please. And thanks very much."

That same evening found the Sawyer family reunited and happy. John Junior was in bed at his father's orders. All the moment, the younger sisters were at his side regarding him with awe. He had been shot with a rifle bullet.

The injured bandit had recovered sufficiently to make a reluctant statement to the police, when confronted with the boy Sawyer.

"Never seen either of them guys," the prisoner insisted, starting malingeringly from under his bandages as he lay on his hospital cot. "But I'll be sent whoever name I think about on the bean. Tell 'em so for me."

"You don't need to worry about that yet awhile," was the grim assurance of the officer who was noting the replies.

"Yeah? Says you."

Sawyer, still shaken by the recent strain, was recounting the story again to his wife and Jean.

"The thing that unnerved me the most, while I was calling down there, was the fear John might have killed that man. If he had—the police might never have believed my story. It seemed to me I would go mad...."

"Of course they would have believed you," Jean comforted him. "They would have had to. It was true."

"Yes, I know. But suppose...."

"We don't have to," Jean leaned down from her perch on the arm of her father's chair. She laid her cheek against his. "We should be thankful you're safe and that John wasn't hurt badly. Oh, I'm proud of him!"

"So am I. And, best of all, he... he feels differently about me. That's worth more than anything in the world."

There was a man here from the News today," Mrs. Sawyer remarked suddenly. "I almost forgot to tell you. He said Mr. Ferris hoped you could come back soon, and to let him know."

"Daddy Jack! You're not going back there to work nights again, are you?" A note of alarm in Jean's voice.

"Why, of course. I must, dear. It won't happen again. Mr. Stinson advised me to."

"Mr. Stinson?"

"Yes. He's an attorney," Sawyer frowned thoughtfully. "I was so surprised when he came to see me. He's a big man here in politics, or used to be. He said he had heard about the case and was interested. I think he was the one who started things moving so quickly."

"You didn't send for him, Dad-dy?"

"Hardly. I never would have thought of him. That is another odd feature. When I spoke to him this afternoon about his fee, he said he had looked into the case just to see that I was given a square deal....that there was no fee."

"That was wonderful," Mrs. Sawyer observed gently.

Jean was sitting erect, looking at her father with a startled expression in her brown eyes.

"What is it, Sunkie?"

"Nothing, Daddy Jack. I'm just happy and....that's all."

INSTALMENT 8

The hour of six-thirty usually found The Iron Block deserted save by the caretakers.

Tonight, a few workers lingered here and there about the offices. Among them was Jean Sawyer, putting some final touches to a display ad, which must be ready for the paper by morning. Deeply engrossed in her task, she looked up with a start when her door opened, closed softly.

A young man stood regarding her. He smiled.

"I beg Miss'selle's pardon."

"Oh! Were you looking for someone?"

"Only Mam'selle. If I may have a moment of her time." He came nearer Jean's table. "May I hope that I'm not unknown to Mam'selle?"

"Why, I think I know you.....you've been you driving Miss Cannon's car."

"I was in Mam'selle Cannon's service. Unfortunately, I am free. After tomorrow. That is why I am here."

There was in Delclerck's manner and smile a frankness, which banished any alarm that Jean might have felt. She laughed, in spite of herself.

"You didn't think I needed a chauffeur, did you?"

"Henri Delclerck is my name. But no, Mam'selle, I had not hoped so. Mam'selle, I had hoped for much good fortune." He helped himself to a chair. "I watched for Mam'selle to appear above the door. Then I come up here....I am fortunate."

"Why did you wish to speak to me?" Jean suddenly felt apprehensive.

"I have something to tell you, for your ear alone." There was a sudden tenseness in his voice. Henri abandoned his bantering manner of speech. He was the same lapse that had caused Sturges to speculate on the first night he had seen Jean, however, did not notice.

Henri's next words startled her too greatly.

"Miss Cannon has announced to me she will marry soon. Your friend, M'sieur Sturges, is the happy man."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Delclerck. You will have to excuse me. I'm very busy."

"You need have no fear of Henri," he assured her earnestly. "I think what I have to say will be of interest."

"I think not."

"But yes! My boss is to marry your boss. That should make us the good friends.—Non?"

"Please...."

"You may trust Henri. He is very discreet....always."

Jean scarcely heard. Edythe's announcement was the only thing she could comprehend at the moment. Boasting to one of her servants. Then it was true!

"It is of deep concern to me, as I shall confide to Mam'selle...."

"I won't listen to you any longer, Mr. Delclerck!"

"Not even when I let you know that Miss Cannon once did me the honor of....giving her heart to me? It is so. I swear it. We have arrange to ....What you call it? The slope? But now...." He shrugged expressively. "Henri is given the air. She decide she prefer M'sieur Sturges. Like that." He blew some imaginary object from the palm of his hand.

"Bah....But why are you telling me?" Jean stammered.

"Why not. I feel Mam'selle will sympathize."

"You mean...."

"Precisely. I have seen for myself that M'sieur is most attentive to Mam'selle. One could not blame him."

"How dare you say that!"

"Because I think I know how Mam'selle feel. I know how poor Henri feel when.....You understand. It pains the heart."

"Will you please go away?" Jean entreated. She could not maintain her composure much longer.

"Bien." Henri remarked resignedly. "I leave you....the same as I leave a city where I am happy once. I see I am mistaken about Mam'selle. It is possible M'sieur Sturges will be more grieved at Henri's misfortune. I regret if I have intruded."

"Wait! You mean....You mean you're going to tell Mr. Sturges that? What you just told me about....Miss Cannon?"

"Assuredly." Henri touched the tip of his waxed mustache. "I have thought a plan. I leave the city very early tomorrow. Happily, I have saved Mam'selle Cannon's letters to console my spirits when I am so far from her side." He tapped his pocket. "I carry the most loving close to my heart, you see. Yer tender little letters. One of them I shall spare to M'sieur Sturges. I am leaving it in his office where he will find it."

"Oh!" Jean was aghast as the plan dawned upon her.

"It may amuse him.....non?" Henri showed his white teeth in approve.

He continued his course with the confidence born of strength and agility. No man could conquer him; and the sinister forces of desert, plain and jungle bowed down before his might. But never had he encountered the fiendish, powerful thing which he was soon to meet!

Meanwhile, during Tarzan's journey to the Vale of Death, the career of the Tarzan Twins had taken a fateful turn. Soon after they were restored to their hut, the evil intamo appeared. "Golly!" quavered Dick, "this is the fellow who wants to kill us right away!"

A-tremble with awe, Galla Galla's deceitful messenger Baadu watched the ape-man's every move. Mentally he expected to see it malevolently. Then it stalk forth to destroy Tarzan as it had destroyed all who had ventured into the valley. For did Baadu have long to wait . . .

DURING MOTHERHOOD

WOMEN who dread motherhood, who suffer from backache and nausea, can be helped by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read what Mrs. Alberta Orm of 136 Pre-mont St., Hamilton, Ont., has to say: "Before my first baby came, I weighed only 95 pounds and was ailing all the time. When I age anything I would become sick so my stomach. I was unable to sleep at night and I felt tired and worn out during the day. So I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and fully regained my health. My baby was strong and healthy, too."

ONE WAY STREET

by JOSEPH McCORD

"Yes. I'll go along. If you like.... I was thinking I'd run over to Sawyer's house and see if I could do him any good."

"That's better yet. I'll find Mr. Mark started for his car. hesitated. "I say, Reverse, I'd appreciate it if you'd leave me out of this when you get to Bridge Street."

Dan looked at him curiously. "Whatever you say."

"Please. And thanks very much."

That same evening found the Sawyer family reunited and happy. John Junior was in bed at his mother's orders. At the moment, the younger sisters were at his side regarding him with awe. He had been shot with a real bullet.

The injured bandit had recovered sufficiently to make a reluctant statement to the police, when confronted with the Sawyers.

"Never seen either of them guys," the prisoner insisted, starting malevolently from under his bandages as he lay on his hospital cot. "But I'll be seein' whoever gimme that clout on the bean. Tell 'em so for me."

"You don't need to worry about that yet awhile," was the grim assurance of the officer who was noting the replies.

"Yeah? Says you."

Sawyer, still shaken by the recent strain, was recounting the story again to his wife and Jean.

"The thing that unnerved me the most, when I was waiting down there, was the fear John might have killed that man. If he had, the police might never have believed our story. It seemed to me I would go mad...."

"Of course they would have believed you," Jean comforted him. "They would have had to. It was true."

"Yes, I know. But suppose...."

"We don't have to," Jean leaned down from her perch on the arm of her father's chair. She laid her cheek against his. "We should be thankful you're safe and that John wasn't hurt badly. Oh, I'm proud of him!"

"So am I. And, best of all, he... he feels differently about me. That's worth more than anything in the world."

There was a man here from the police today," Mrs. Sawyer remarked suddenly. "I almost forgot to tell you. He said Mr. Perrin hoped you could come back soon, and to let him know."

"Daddy Jack! You're not going back there to work nights again, are you?" A note of alarm in Jean's voice.

"Why, of course, I must, dear. It won't happen again. Mr. Stinson advised me to."

"Mr. Stinson?"

"Yes. He's an attorney," Sawyer frowned thoughtfully. "I was so surprised when he came to see me. He's a big man here in politics, or used to be. He said he had heard about the case and was interested. I think he was the one who started things moving so quickly."

"You didn't send for him, Daddy?"

"Hardly. I never would have thought of him. That is another odd feature. When I spoke to him this afternoon about his fee, he said he had looked into the case just to see that I was given a square deal....that there was no fee."

"That was terrific," Mrs. Sawyer observed gently.

Jean was sitting erect, looking at her father with a startled expression in her brown eyes.

"What is it, Sunkie?"

INSTALMENT 26

Tonight, a few workers lingered here and there about the offices. Among them was Jean Sawyer, putting some final touches to a display ad, which must be ready for paper by morning. Deeply engrossed in her task, she looked up with a start when her door opened, closed softly.

A young man stood regarding her. He smiled.

"Is that Mam'selle's pardon."

"Oh! Were you looking for someone?"

"Only Mam'selle. If I may have a moment of her time." He came nearer Jean's table. "May I hope that I'm not unknown to Mam'selle?"

"Why, I think I know you.... I've seen you driving Miss Cannon's car."

"I was in Mam'selle Cannon's service. Unfortunately, I am free. After tomorrow. That is why I am here."

There was in Delclerck's manner and smile a frankness, which banished any alarm that Jean might have felt. She laughed, in spite of herself.

"You didn't think I needed a chauffeur, did you, Mr.....

"Henri Delclerck is my name. But no, Mam'selle, you had not hoped so. Mam'selle, you have my sympathies in your misfortune." He helped himself to a chair. "I watched for Mam'selle to appear from the side door. Then I came up here....I am fortunate."

"Why did you wish to speak to me?" Jean suddenly felt apprehensive.

"I have something to tell you, for your ear alone." There was a sudden tenseness in his voice. Henri abandoned his bantering manner'de speaking. It was the same lapse that had caused Sturges to speculate when he first met the man. Jean, however, did not notice.

Henri's next words called her too greatly.

"Miss Cannon has announced to me she will marry soon. Your friend, M'sieur Sturges, is the happy man."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Delclerck. You will have to excuse me. I'm very busy."

"You need have no fear of Henri." he assured her earnestly. "I think what I have to say will be of interest."

"I think not."

"But yes! My boss is to marry your boss. That should make us the good friends. Non?"

"Please...."

"You may trust Henri. He is very discreet....always."

Jean scarcely heard. Edythe's announcement was the only thing she could comprehend at the moment. Boasting to one of her servants. Then it was true!

"It is of deep concern to me, as I shall confide to, Mam'selle...."

"I won't listen to you any longer, Mr. Delclerck!"

"Not even when I let you know that Miss Cannon once did me the honor of....giving her heart to me? It is so. I swear it. We have arrange to.... What you call it? The slope? But now...." He shrugged expressively. "Henri is green like. She decide she prefer M'sieur Sturges. Like that." He blew some imaginary object from the palm of his hand.

"But....But why are you telling me?" Jean stammered.

"Why not. I feel Mam'selle will sympathize."

"You mean...."

"Precisely. I have seen for myself that M'sieur is most attentive to Mam'selle. One could not blame him."

"How dare you say that!"

"Because I think I know how Mam'selle feel. I know how you Henri feel when.....You understand. It pains the heart."

"Will you please go away?" Jean entreated. She could not maintain her composure much longer.

"Bien." Henri remarked resignedly. "I leave you....the same as I leave a city where I am happy once. I see I am mistaken about Mam'selle. It is regrettable. M'sieur Sturges will be more grieved at Henri's misfortune. I regret if I have intruded."

"Wait! You mean....You mean you're going to tell Mr. Sturges that? What you just told me about.....Miss Cannon?"

"Assuredly." Henri touched the tip of his waxed mustache. "I have thought a plan. I leave the city very early tomorrow. Happily, I have saved Mam'selle Cannon's letters to console my spirits when I am so far from her side." He tapped his pocket. "I carry the most loving close to my heart, you see. Ver' tender little letters. One of them I shall spare to M'sieur Sturges. I am leaving it in his office where he will find it."

"Oh!" Jean was aghast as the plan dawned upon her.

"It may amuse him.....non? Henri showed his white teeth in a smile. "I am waiting tonight to drive M'sieur Cannon home. He will be late. Perhaps I shall give the letter to him to deliver to our friend. That would be good-fun! But.....No, I do not trust him."

"You wouldn't dare!" Jean burst out. Her own feelings were swallowed up by righteous anger. "That would be beastly! What good can it ever do you?" Deep scorn was in her voice.

"He will read. After that....who can say? No doubt he will return the little letter to Mam'selle Cannon. She will be glad. She beg me for all of them. But Henri's purpose is too high."

"Don't do it!"

"Non? I thought Mam'selle would be tender possibly, but Mam'selle Delclerck seemed genuinely pounded.

"No, no. Can't you see how terribly it will hurt....both of them? They are happy now, and.....

"What of Henri? He is hurt. Mam'selle Cannon tell him they will go away together. I've always. Then.....Pouf! M'sieur Sturges shall have Henri at least."

"You're a coward!" Jean exclaimed hotly. "You are! That's blackmail.... She wondered if it were. But it sounded right. "You don't realize what you're doing." she hurried on. "If you must say something, go and tell him. Like a man. Not that way!"

"And Mam'selle is a..... But non. She is too charming to say that. Perhaps she thinks I deceive her? Look." Henri drew several letters from his pocket. "This one is not

He continued his course with the confidence born of strength and agility. No man could conquer him; and the sinister forces of desert, plain and jungle bowed down before his might. But never had he encountered the fiendish, powerful thing which he was soon to meet!

A terrible with awe. Galla Galla's deceitful messenger Baadu watched the ape-man's every move. Mentally, he expected to see it malevolently Thing of stalk forth to destroy Tarsan as it had destroyed all who had ventured into the valley. Nor did Baadu have long to wait . . .

Meanwhile, during Tarzan's journey to the Vale of Death, the career of the Tarzan Twins had taken a fateful turn. Soon after they were reunited to their hut, the evil Intamo appeared. "Oolly!" quavered Dick, "this is the fellow who wants to kill us right away!"

THE TARZAN TWINS

As Tarzan raced across the dismal valley, he saw on the sun-baked earth the whitened, broken skeleton of what appeared to be a man. Then another and another. That should have been a warning; but Tarzan was accustomed to evidences of sudden death in the African wild.

McLaughlin Entry Will be Favorite For King's Plate

Toronto, May 18—(CP)—No matter how many thoroughbreds start, Sir Henry H. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, sends after the 50 guineas donated by the King, and the $6,000 added purse in the 77th running of the King's Plate will probably be the public's choice.

Out at Woodbine race track, where the historic event, oldest continuously run race on the continent, will be run next June 6, the interested race fans spend most of their time around the pretentious stable operated by the motor magnate. Other stables with possible plate starters have their following, but not as great.

Faith in the stable to produce the victor rests in the ability of Harry Giddings, heavy-set, jovial trainer who holds the record for saddling plate winners. The last was Horometer in 1934. He was backed down to 1-20 and set the plate record of 1:54 4-5 for the 1 1-8 miles journey. Last year Epicurus, Leiston and Vice Consul, McLaughlin's entry, were installed hot favorites, but none finished in the money.

E. P. Seagram's a Sally Fuller, a maiden filly, romped home an easy winner and was followed by H. O. Balch's Childpen. In third place was Gay Sympathy, another Seagram filly.

After that race it was said that Giddings had brought the horses to form too soon and when they went to the post had slipped from top condition.

Giddings Answers Critics

Today Giddings gave his answer. "Smart fellows, Smart fellows," he snorted. "With the material I have to work with I couldn't have won the race in the fall let alone the spring. Nuts to you!"

He has not decided, who he will name to accompany Epicurus, his favorite. Silent Sea was connected by turfmen as the second half of the entry, but Giddings said he did not think the filly would be in the line-up at the barrier.

Epicurus, a colt by Epinard-Sally Ray, remained idle after his last season's campaign closed and is now expected to be unbeaten as a second half. This belief was strengthened when Giddings breezed the pair together over the plate distance in two minutes.

Seagram, a gelding out of Wishing Well, brought from Seagram when in foal to Gaffigan, won twice during his juvenile campaign and was second three times, once behind Silent Sea in the Prospector Memorial.

Seagram's hope to retain honors rests in Samoan and probably Judge Peal. Worked over the nine furlongs Samoan, a gelding by Sarica-Sepe Pearl, was clocked in 1.56 3-5. The gelding was retired to winter quarters early last fall, when he pulled up lame. He wintered well and has come through the training period in fine form.

Nearly all the noted 1935 two-year-olds with the exception of Stanford, owned by C. M. Hendrie of Hamilton, are expected to start.

Amateurs Open Ball Season

(By The Canadian Press)

Amateur baseball, Ontario's chief entertainment in the warm months, came into its own during a cold May this week but it is limited to some of the best opening games in years. Some of the best ball was played by the Ontario Senior District League.

Thorold Mountaineers, commiting only two errors behind the two-hit pitching of George (Sandy) Sandidge, defeated Merritton 2-1 in the highlight contest of the day. Thorold got only one hit from the delivery of Southpaw Dunc Schooley, but managed to win.

A hitter until failed to keep down attendance at this opening and it failed to prevent Sandidge and Schooley from hurling brilliantly. Schooley set the mountaineers down in order in the first four innings and Sandidge turned the same trick in the last four.

At Niagara Falls, Chippewa Indians dropped their Niagara district opener 3-2 to the Falls' Mac when Pitcher Frankie Staedt threw a wild spring to pick a runner off first and Astle ran home with the winning run. Staedt allowed only his and Louie Cecatto, on the mound for Macs, permitted five.

Port Colborne, led by Doug Hanson, who pounded out three doubles, defeated Welland 7-3.

The Inter-County League schedule opened on nearly all fronts with a flow of slugging power featuring. Brantford Red Sox blasted out a 14-9 decision over the Terriers at Galt. Five errors got the Terriers into bad order. They outhit the Red Sox 17 to 14.

Stratford thumped Guelph Maple Leafs 8-3 and London Wymyss set St. Thomas-Aylmer Combines 6-4. Both were free-hitting affairs.

Cardinals and Red Sox Favorites to Win

New York, May 18 (AP)—Jack Doyle has revised his baseball ratings and made St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox favorites to win the National and American League pennants, respectively.

Where the Cubs, Cardinals and Giants were rated in that order at the start of the season, Doyle now quotes 8 to 5 against the Cards, 11 to 5 against the Cubs and 3 to 1 against the Giants. He quotes 8 to 5 against the Red Sox in the American League, 2 to 1 against New York Yankees and 3 to 1 against Detroit Tigers. At the start of the season, Doyle made Detroit the favorite.

Trenton and District

Trenton, May 16. —(Special) — Seventy-five members of the Sons and Daughters of England of this District marched from their lodge rooms on Dundas St. to St. George's Anglican Church yesterday morning to hear the service and a very eloquent address delivered by the Rev. F. A. Smith on "Citizenship Throughout the British Empire." Among the delegates was the Rev. Mr. Cleen of Belleville, Past President of the Sons of England. He was also the oldest man present eighty-three years of age. The Fife and Drum Band of the local Orange Lodge supplied the music for the parade. The choir rendered a number of beautiful selections under the leadership of Mrs. Master Clarence Ingles of Belleville.

The members of King St. United Church were honored in having Mr. Herbert G. Treneer, Field Secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the blind, render two beautiful solos and an organ recital (War March of the Priests) at the morning service yesterday. At the evening service he sang "Sabalon" and "The Kingdom" and "Only Jesus Knows" by Calopion. Mr. Treneer is visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Pitcher-ing of Queen Street and with their assistance the services of Mr. Treneer were obtained.

At three o'clock Saturday afternoon a little dog ran out in front of a car on Farley's Hill and was instantly killed. Several people gathered round. "It's Harrison's dog" said one little fellow and off he went to tell the Harrison family the sad news. Reginald Harrison came to the scene and picked up what he thought was the remains of his pet. The family were very much attached to "Barney" and so decided to build a coffin for him. After the coffin was built the body was laid in it and just when the burial ceremony was about to take place who came bounding up but Barney himself, very much alive. He had been in the house during the time of all the excitement. Mr. Harrison said he could not tell the dogs apart and was positive, that it was Barney, who had been killed, but he was certainly very happy, when he discovered that he had made a mistake.

SHIFTA CHIEFTAIN KILLED IN DARK

Italians Use Martial Law to Rid Country of Bandits

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Addis Ababa, May 17 (By Military Plane to Asmara, Eritrea, May 18)—I witnessed a solitary execution in the darkness of the compound behind the Carabinieri headquarters near the Menelik Monument last night as a Shifta (bandit) chieftain, caught in an attack on a farm house thirty miles north of here, was brought in and executed after a trial in which members of his own gang testified to his guilt.

It was an austere, quiet group in the bare room of the commissariat as the judge heard the evidence and pronounced his decision of death.

Then, in the darkness, the Shifta marched out to a white-washed wall across the small courtyard of the compound.

He was tall and thin, with bushy hair and a bare face, wearing a shama gay with dirk.

He said nothing and seemed rather unInterested as the Carabinieri bound his hands behind him and turned his back to the wall. He stood there while the Carabinieri lined up their firing squad.

At the command "fire" a volley into the back crumpled him to the ground.

In accordance with the custom of military execution, a lieutenant fired a pistol into the Shifta's head to make death certain.

An officer who has done long service in the colonies said of Italians' waiting a considerable time for the situation to clear itself, but when they finally do, "Executions and rapid retaining guns, the Italians had no choice not to invoke under martial law the penalties announced in a proclamation by Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

Baby Sea Horses Saved from Starving

Marine Creatures Easy to Obtain Is Hatched and Fed Animals.

Washington, May 18 (AP)—The United States Bureau of Fisheries today galloped to the rescue of a school of starving Chicago sea horses.

Informed that 60 baby steeds are dying because food small enough to pass through their odd-shaped snouts cannot be found, Fred Cunningham, director of the Bureau's aquarium in the science department tackled the problem.

"There may be a way to have them," he said. "Do they have any arterials?"

Arterials, the fish expert added, is a small marine crustacea and is easy to obtain. The eggs are put into salt water and pretty soon they hatch. From this point on they become a perfect diet for baby sea horses.

Explaining that sure death usually results when baby sea horses are removed from their home waters, Cunningham added that this is the reason why comparatively few are born in inland aquariums.

The Chicago sea horse calamity was the result of several mother horses' unexpectedly giving birth to sale birth while enroute from the Bahamas.

EVIDENCE COMPLETED IN BUDGET LEAK INQUIRY

Obligation to Pay Ministers' Salaries In Full Stressed at Convention

Churches are Assailed Which Fail in Salaries Promised to Ministers

'Nothing Short of Dishonest' Says Rev. V. E. Elliott at Baptist Convention

POVERTY IN OLD AGE

Superannuation Found To Take Care of Retired Ministers Upheld

Cobourg, Ont., May 19 (CP)—Members of the Peterborough Baptist Association assembled at Cobourg this morning on the occasion of the 134th annual meeting. Delegates came from Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough, Norwood, Picton, Campbellford, Belleville, Colborne, Brighton, Eldystone and Lakefield.

Rev. H. K. Murphy, of the local Baptist Church opened the conference with devotions. The memorial service was conducted by Rev. G. K. Tyler of Peterborough.

Speaking on "making Christ king and how far are we willing to go with Him", the moderator, Rev. W. B. Walker delivered an inspiring address to the delegates.

Withering Attack Is Made.

A withering attack on those churches who broke their promises of paying a stipulated salary to their ministers was made by Rev. G. E. Hilton of St. George in speaking on the work and aims of the superannuation board. Rev. Mr. Hilton stated that it was nothing short of dishonour for a church to promise a clergyman a certain salary and then fail to live up to its promises. The speaker declared that many ministers gave the best they had for their church, working for a miserable salary and facing poverty or the county home when age forced them to retire.

One man, he said, worked until 70 years, he had but $400 between him and poverty. His salary had been less than $1,000 a year, often only $700.

The object of the superannuation board, although its resources were limited, was to take care of these retired clergy. It was not charity, he declared, but payment of a just obligation earned through long years of service.

A new plan was the purchase of government annuities with the board paying one-third to one-half of the premium.

The conference will close on Wednesday night.

Big Island Canning Factory Destroyed

Picton, May 18—The Big Island canning factory ten miles from Picton burned to the ground about 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The owner, John Edward Sprague was absent in Toronto. It is reported that a fire, William Lee was working on a motor host in the factory when gasoline leaked from the motor into a strong wind which caused the flames to spread rapidly, and by the time neighbors arrived on the scene it was impossible to extinguish it.

The factory was completely destroyed, as was the motorboat and a large quantity of can labels.

The factory was built in 1924 and two years ago a modern store room was added. The building was insured. Until Mr. Sprague returns it will not known whether the factory will be rebuilt in time for this year's tomato pack and growers are wondering how they will be affected.

Two U.S. Battleships Have Turbine Trouble

Two Other Boats Collided Last Week But No Lives Were Lost.

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The United States navy department announced today that because of troubles encountered in their turbines, the battleships Mississippi and New Mexico were being detached from the manoeuvres now proceeding in the Pacific and returned to port.

The turbine trouble was said here to have developed almost simultaneously in the Mississippi and New Mexico.

The navy also disclosed the cruiser Minneapolis and an unmanned merchant vessel collided during fleet manoeuvres off Panama Canal Zone, "about a week ago".

No lives were lost on either ship, they said, but the Minneapolis was badly damaged.

MOSS WAS ALIVE DURING THE FIRE SAYS SPILSBURY

Toronto Born Student Victim of Foul Play, Police Theory

CONTINUE PROBE

Sifting Ashes of Hay-Rick For Further Possible Clues

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Oxford, England, May 18—(CP-Cable)—The London Daily Express said today that Sir Bernard Spilsbury, Home Office pathologist, had reported that the Rattleton Moss, Canadian-born Oxford student, was alive during the fire which burned the hay-rick in which his body was found.

Oxfordshire police, assisted by Scotland Yard detectives, meanwhile are pressing their inquiry into the mysterious death of Moss. Investigation centres about the village of Stadhampton, eight miles from here. The badly-charred body of Moss was found May 3 in a hay-rick near Stadhampton.

The Daily Express asserted, that police were convinced that Moss, a native of Toronto and a student at Balliol College, was the victim of foul play. Police Constable Arbuthnot of Oxfordshire called in the Scotland Yard detectives to pursue this phase of th inquiry.

According to the Express' version the theory that the body of Moss was dumped on the hay-rick after it had been consumed by fire was supported by a statement from Sir Bernard Spilsbury that carbon monoxide was present in the student's heart-blood and that he had breathed carbon dust into his air passages.

Coroner Determine Cause

Sir Bernard, who conducted a post-mortem Friday on the remains of Moss, said at the time the fact that the skull was fractured and both arms broken was due to the terrific heat in the hay-stack fire. Sir Bernard has emphasized that he cannot say as yet what caused Moss' death.

The Express current today was that the popular student had been knocked down by an automobile and his unconscious body placed on the hay-stack, which then was fired. Boy authorities pointed out no traces of an accident of this nature have been found anywhere in the vicinity.

Police continued sifting the ashes of the hay-stack for possible clues, a watch was found, some time after the fire, close to the scene of the fire. The watch had stopped at 2.10 a.m.

Inspector Keech and Sergeant May of the Scotland Yard Identification Bureau undergraduate associates of Moss at Oxford said:

Theodore Tylor, law tutor at Balliol College under whom Moss studied, and Dr. Cyril Norwood, asked for his comment on the strange case.

TWINS FROM EGG CALLED POSSIBLE

Biologists Support Claim of Owner of Twin Canaries

Toronto, May 19.—(CP)—Expert biological opinion today rose to the support of two Ontario bird fanciers who reported the birth of "twin canaries" from one egg, one at Kitchener and the other at Hamilton. Some bird experts have branded the occurrence "impossible."

Dr. J. W. MacArthur of the University of Toronto Department of Biology, says "Twin Births" happen occasionally in the case of chicken eggs and he thought canaries could probably duplicate the feat.

"Each yolk would have its own embryo," said Dr. MacArthur, "certainly before both were enclosed in albumen and later in the shell. It's accidental but it is not surprised at it—they would be like fraternal twins in human beings".

Dr. MacArthur said one embryo might have split in two as result in "identical" twin canaries. "But that's a remote possibility," he said. One Toronto canary breeder said it was a freak year for birds anyway, and blamed that on early earthquake.

"It certainly turned the birds upside down," she said.

Ashes of Last of Crusaders Placed in Warriors' Chapel

Single Procession to Abbey Where Leaders of Nation Pay Farewell Rite

SCENES IN ABBEY

London, May 19 (CP)—The ashes of Viscount Allenby, of Megiddo and of Felixstowe, were placed today with due ceremony in the warrior's chapel at Westminister Abbey.

The body of the great field-marshal, who led British troops in a spectacular and victorious campaign against the Turks in Palestine during the Great War, was cremated yesterday, at Golders Green.

In accordance with Allenby's own retiring nature, there was no splendid ceremonial procession through London's streets to the Abbey. Instead the casket containing the ashes was brought to its final resting place in a simple hearse.

But inside Westminster Abbey leaders of the United Kingdom gathered to honor Lord Allenby, who died suddenly last week. The King was represented by Field-Marshal Sir Philip Chetwode, and by his brothers, the Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent. The Duke of Connaught, great-uncle of the King and a former Governor-General of Canada, also was represented.

Members of the cabinet and representatives of the Dominions and former governments attended. Both houses of Parliament were represented.

The funeral was conducted by Dr. Posley Norris, dean of Westminster. At the close, the Last Post and the Reveille were sounded by buglers in the dean's yard.

Other Roads Including New Road to Hamilton to be Built

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—Hon. T. B. McQuesten and his engineers are working on a program for road construction which, when completed, will be submitted to the federal government for its consideration early next week, the Minister of Highways stated today.

Under an arrangement made with Ottawa, the Dominion will pay half of a $2,000,000 road program.

"We don't know how many miles we'll get, we will be building in the north," Mr. McQuesten declared. "We are going to work into areas where there are no roads or bodies.

In the south, the Kingston road is to be widened east of Toronto so as to provide for four lanes of traffic, similar to North Yonge St. A section of the Lakeshore road will also be repaired, the middle road of the city were temporarily put out of commission today. Repairs were speedily made and service restored.

Ottawa will also be asked to approve the expenditure of $635,000 for the construction of an approach to the proposed international bridge at Barrie."

Details of the program will not be made public until it has received Ottawa's approval, the minister said.

Fleischer, partners in a Toronto brokerage firm, surrendered to police yesterday charging them with theft of securities valued at $7,250 from the estate of Mary L. Beaumont. The warrants were sworn out by the woman's daughter whose name also is Mary L. Beaumont.

Fletcher and MacLaren are bonded as material witnesses in the case of J. Hugard, Seaforth, Ont., lawyer, sought by police for alleged theft of $2,000 in securities.

The broker partners were released on $10,000 bail. Police declared the case had no connection with the Hugard case.

Twenty Foot Serpent in Bay Spit at Them, Boys Declare

The city's first reported sea serpent was observed today by Gordon Andrew Michael, 14 Franklin street, and Howard Babcock, of this city.

The boys fled when the twenty-foot monster, feeding in the marsh at the rear of the Stevens-Adamson plant reared and spit at them when they approached for a closer look.

Described as having a head like a dragon, green in color, mottled with black spots and approximately twenty feet in straight length, the frightening inhabitant of the swamps has apparently been making his home near the exit of an old sewer close by a boat house owned by Michael.

"We saw the thing there at the old sewer. Then we went over to have a closer look at it. When it saw us it reared up, spit and hissed," declared the boys today describing the writhing "unknown" with a touch of awe in their voices.

"We ran up the bank to get another fellow, but when we got back it had gone."

It wasn't a snake, a large over-grown carp or any other specie of fish or serpent that could have been identified by any naturalist, declared the boys who are expert fishermen of lengthy experience.

The "opopogo" was about six inches in diameter.

2 SKULLS FOUND ON PICTON DUMP IN PEACH BASKET

Believed to Have Come From One Expert in Anatomy

USED IN DISSECTION?

Probe is Expected to Show How Skulls Came to Dump

Picton, May 19 (Special)—Two human skulls, with parts of flesh attached, and bearing unmistakable marks of a surgeon's scalpel and saw used in skilled hands were recovered in a peach basket at the Picton dump, one half mile from the village by boys playing near the dump last evening. The grusome find is believed to have been deposited upon the dump by some unknown medical student after using them for purposes of medical dissection.

Immediately following the discovery County Constable James Lovelace of Picton was summoned who at once turned the skulls over to Dr. O. A. Whiteman, coroner, who examined them together with County Crown Attorney Gordon Walmsley.

"Although we attach no special significance to the heads we intend pressing an investigation to find how they came there," it was stated by County Crown Attorney Walmsley to the Daily Ontario Intelligencer today.

"The skulls, or heads, bear the unmistakable signs of having been worked on by some medical student at some one time was very familiar with anatomy and the use of surgeon's instruments. One clean cut had been sawed from the cranial portion of the face through the sinuses to the nose. Other clean cuts had been made in the cranium. Undoubtedly it was the work of some one very familiar with bone surgery.

"We intend to go further into the matter this afternoon," it was added by the Crown Attorney.

In the meantime the find has been dispatched for safe-keeping.

'CHANCE OF MONEY'

All Evidence in At Judicial Inquiry at London

London, May 19 (CP)—Taking of evidence in the judicial inquiry into the British "budget leak" concluded late today after a number of witnesses had been recalled to the stand.

A decided financier's "tip" that he could "get hold of information" from a cabinet member whom he named as Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas was described to the British budget leak inquiry today by Dr. Reginald J. Hearn, Cambridge medical graduate and barrister.

Dr. Hearn's Testimony.

Dr. Hearn testified that P. Vergolis, who describes himself as a financier and ship-owner, told him that the so-called after-dinner discussion last Sept. 26.

"At the same time, he said, "the chances of making big money" were mentioned.

"Jim" Thomas has denied from the witness stand that he revealed any of the budget secrets, including higher income and tea taxes, before Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain rose to present the budget in Commons on April 21.

Do you remember any words about the budget?" Mr. Justice Porter, presiding, asked Dr. Hearn.

"As far as I can recollect," the witness replied, "he said he had always said that he got information from a member of the cabinet. Then he mentioned the name of J. H. Thomas."

He added: "I've heard that same sort of statement from other people generally."

Swaytime On Stand.

Justice Porter quickly interposed: "It's really the name of sports and not to be taken very seriously."

Thomas said, J. W. Swaytime was on his feet.

Dr. Hearn thought Vergolis is completely unknown to Mr. Thomas" he demanded.

"I don't think I knew it," Dr. Hearn replied.

Spiro Mavrogiano, a stock broker who was present at the September dinner party, followed Dr. Hearn to the stand.

Asked if Vergolis had declared he had "inside information" as to what was in the budget before it comes out, Mavrogiano replied:

"It's an absolute lie."

Alfred Bates, advertising agency head and owner of a sports paper, was recalled to the stand.

The witness, who already had testified he agreed to pay Thomas £80,000 ($100,000) for the ghosted minister's autobiography, said he planned to publish the autobiography serially in his sporting paper, "The Leader".

A member of the tribunal remarked: "The autobiography of a cabinet minister would appear in the ordinary ambit of a sporting paper."

CATTLE WORRIER LEADER FIRED AT

Inspector With .303 Bullet Grazes Hide of First Dog of Three

Wild dogs that harass and chase sheep and cattle in Thurlow and Sidney townships were today again given attention by provincial police, made a special beat of that section of the community armed with rifles early today. No sooner did Inspector Frank Gardner and Sergeant Harry Thompson arrive back at district headquarters this morning than hurried complaints were received—three dogs are chasing our cattle and attacking them again today", was the substance of the message received.

Armed with high-powered rifles and service pistols, Inspector Gardner and Constable Carr hurried to a point on College street, north of the old rubber plant, where three dogs were seen annoying a herd of cattle. The distance from the road to the cattle, where the dogs were attacking the cattle was 250 yards. After endeavoring to get into position when the dogs could be made upon the leader, the dogs, led by a large mongrel with long shaggy hair, suddenly beat a hasty retreat, presumably towards the O.N.R. right-of-way. Accompanying the mongrel leader was a smaller coach dog and a fox-hound.

Attack Goats, Sheep, Cattle.

Subsequent investigation revealed that Mrs. Jackson, a neighbor, had seen three occasions lately been called to chase the wild dogs away. They were chasing the cattle and attacking them. Last year dogs killed one of my goats and I wish something could be done to stop these community of these dogs. They are a constant menace to my livestock", Mrs. Jackson informed the O.P.P.

Suddenly the trio of canines appeared from around a clump of cedars at a distance of some 300 yards and started to attack a black Holstein cow, which held her ground however, Inspector Gardner took aim at his .303 rifle and fired. The bullet grazed the top of the mongrel's back, as eye witness Mr Dan Carr and dun rise. Immediately the trio of dogs split up and took a hasty retreat as the officers fired in the general direction of the fleeing animals, but their efforts were in vain as the distance was too great to assure a perfect aim. The three dogs escaped.

Inspector Gardner then visited nearby farmers and instructed them to get out their rifles and shotguns and endeavor to put an end to the annoying cattle or sheep in that vicinity. "We have tried to do away with these ferocious dogs, but have not succeeded thus far. We'll get close enough to "dun 'em off" yet," predicted Inspector Gardner during his return trip at noon today, however.

Hon. E. Rowe Favored Locally for Leadership

Street and shop gossip in the city this week provides no definite clue or gives any near observation of any partial choice being made by local Conservative stalwarts for leadership of the provincial Conservative party in Ontario to be chosen at the convention held in Toronto on the 27th and 28th of this month.

Out of six leading Conservatives of the local political circles spoken to today, three were smilingly noncommittal, "I have no choice," admitted a fourth, with a shrug. Three—the hon. Mr. Rowe, K.C., signated a fifth, "Mayor Stewart, or ex-Mayor Stewart, stands as good a chance as any," was the fourth declarth.

Overheard conversations—during the past several days indicate, however, that the hon. Mr. Rowe is a substantial choice of the local voters. It is being freely admitted that at his recent visit to Toronto here a good impression was formed, although to many he has been known personally long before his local visit. Ex-Mayor Stewart, who also addressed a Belleville gathering more recently is also gained the confidence of listeners through his clear cut and frank discussion of vital questions introduced by him.

Many delegates from the Belleville district outside Conservative organizations will be present at the convention in Toronto

NOISY MANHOLE COVERS ARE TO BE SILENCED

Warped manhole covers which have been reverberating throughout the city with dull metallic clangs under the wheels of passing cars throughout the nights and small hours of the morning, to the annoyance of city residents are being given a check-up this week by the local waterworks department. The annoyance will be practically eliminated lately owing to the their expansion due to the warmer weather.

MUST DISPLAY PROPER LIGHTS

Police Checking Bicycle Riders And Delinquents Reprimanded

For the second time this spring local police authorities have been instructed to check the lights of bicycles, who persist in riding on local streets after sundown without displaying a lighted lamp in front and at least a reflector at the rear. Last night at least an even dozen delinquents of this law were apprehended by the local police and were brought before Chief Kidd. No mention of possible charges was made today, however, although Chief Kidd announced that a more serious disposition would be made of similar cases in the future.

"The Highway Traffic Act provides, that all bicycles that are operated after sundown must be equipped with a lighted lamp on the front and a reflector on the rear, as well as having a 13 inch bell, and a brake, either on the rear fender, in full view. We have been receiving numerous complaints from motorists, lately, that too many bicycles are being ridden in Belleville without lights, being equipped with lights, that are accessible for the prosecution of cyclists to either the rider of the motorist and a fine of $1.00 and costs. I have instructed all members of the police force to enforce this law to the letter and will continue to do so without further warning today.

Chief Kidd, at the police station was by no means over-crowded last night, only five being on hand, two drunks and three translents. All were allowed their freedom today. It is understood that he instructed to return in time for Friday's police court. Only unlighted bumper dangles followed a slight motor accident, which occurred on Front Street late yesterday afternoon. The matter of damages was amicably settled on the spot, ahead of the investigating officer.

Kenard Hughes, Belleville, who failed to acknowledge a summons for parking, which he had been apprehended on Cannifton Road later and brought to the police station for questioning, was also expected to be on hand for Friday's court but was absent from the court at that date. He is facing a charge pertaining to domestic family differences.

LOS ANGELES, THE CITY OF ANGELS

This earthly paradise of sunshine and flowers covers a larger area than any other city in the world and it requires that vast expanse of territory from now until the end of time.

At present the population is one million and a half, one million of whom have come from every corner of the globe since 1920. No other city of ancient or modern times can show a similar expansion. During the first week of our visit here, Penn-bound friends have taken us all over Los Angeles proper and its many beautiful suburbs, especially such famous residential districts as Santa Monica, Hollywood, North Hollywood, Beverley Hills, and many others. We saw the beautiful homes of many famous people, sat, like gods among trees, shrubs and flowers. No place on earth can be more lovely, peaceful and absolutely perfect without a single handicap, and its climate is unhesitatingly classed in other isles parts of the world. For example we were offered land in Florida very reasonably priced, but the taxes were simply appalling. The rate of property in Miami in no case is sufficient to pay the taxes, and much property is abandoned. We pointed out other handicaps in Florida such as shark-bites, but no fear we have been so agreeably surprised with what we find in Los Angeles and vicinity that we would like very much to forsake cold Canada for the most favored spot on earth.

We have had the rare good fortune to become acquainted with Mr. Clifford P. Reid, who is president of one of the largest and most real estate organizations in California. Mr. Reid was born in Western Canada, and like all good Canadians is both modest and handsome. Mr. Reid's organization is selling lots and homes in their acres of choice residential locations throughout Los Angeles. Through the kindness and courtesy of Mr. Pal Riley, a member of the same company, we were shown over many of the best available properties in Los Angeles, especially our favorite location, "Hollywood Riviera", an entirely new development overlooking the blue waters of the mighty Pacific Ocean. Literary men and women from all over the world will likely be the chief dwellers in this highly select district. There will be beach over a mile long, and a community club house which cost a quarter of a million dollars on this location. The industrial, fun and water sports are centered at the "Hollywood Riviera". No such similar conditions exist in connection with any city real estate development in the world. Mr. Reid and his associates are undoubtedly men of vision and candor.

Most of the finest homes here are one or two stories stucco. The style is Spanish of the Mediterranean inclusive, including Algerian, and southern Spain, France and Italy. The red tile roofs, and snow-white walls, clustered on hillside or in valley make a never-ending panorama of domestic beauty. The one storey home consists of five or six rooms, the like of can in Ontario but their arrangement is very different. A large living room comprises the front of the house, from the ends of which wings run to the rear with bed rooms, library or music room to the left and kitchen and bathroom to the right. This portion of the house forms a court in the rear which is variously decorated and much used for reading, conversation or leisure. Then there is a two car garage, one cars in Belleville passes our hotel windows often but it travels much faster. The streets are washed periodically at night as well. This prevents disease being spread by a dust-ladened breeze, another reason why people come here to live. Los Angeles is a clean and healthful city.

(a) The builder will go on installing sewer lines. Los Angeles is the most powerful magnet on earth for health, happiness and prosperity, and that very quality is the reason for the world's greatest city. Real profits always more and more valuable in such favored centres.

A TALENTED AND BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

We can only introduce in this article one of the most beautiful, modesty, talented and consecrated women we have ever known or met, personally; more details will follow in our next. It is none other than our beloved Ontario-born "Sister-Pastor, Aimee Semple Macpherson", a native of Ingersoll, and one whom any fair city might well be proud to claim as their own by adoption or otherwise. Sister Aimee (we hope this is the proper way to address such a famous person) is around forty, above the average height for women, perfectly proportioned, decidedly fair with wavy, refreshing waved hair that is light blond, of a most attractive and perfect ease, naturalness and grace constitutes her the most beautiful woman in all southern California. Best of all this Sister-Pastor is not in the least affected by success, fame or wealth. We promise our readers that it will be intensely interested in and inspired by an account of her life and work.

Roberta Semple, now a beautiful young woman of about twenty, was born on a farm near Salford, Ontario, about one mile south of the one raised by freewill offerings. Sister Aimee in order to inaugurate her ideals and testimony, made personal appeals in almost every state of the U.S.A., in Australia and also elsewhere. The response was immediate, large and convincing; multitudes believed in her sincerity, and consecration. For thirteen years the same spirit has prevailed in Los Angeles and throughout the world with the result that Angelus Temple is a mighty Spiritual Workshop for the following reasons:

(a) The main auditorium and two galleries have a seating capacity of over five thousand, and when you come much before time, you will stand up for three hours or more.

(b) The Bible study room and Sunday School seats over one thousand.

(c) The prayer tower is a room where prayer has never ceased a moment for thirteen years. Women officiate by day, and men by night, two at a time at stated intervals. This great fact along with others will explain the "Miracles of Divine Power", and the "Miraculous Healings" so common in Angelus Temple. We hope to explain this more fully in our next.

(d) On the top of the Temple is a huge revolving cross electrically lighted, red on one side and white on the other. Sister Aimee wears a similar cross on her breast and behind her over the platform is another large white cross with an inscription which is the Temple's motto: "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day, and forever". They believe just what the Bible says and if it said that Jonah swallowed the whale, they would believe that too, as they say. Faith, unbogged and complete, is the corner stone of their spiritual structure.

(e) The Temple operates a complete broadcasting station of its own, including offerings. The great aerials tower aloft above the stately Temple. All the important services are broadcast and as a result many visitors like ourselves from every state of the union and from all parts of the world, even from India and Russia, enter the Temple in wonder every week. We will tell more about these visitors later.

(f) One room is furnished with cots for tired workers and strangers.

(g) The main auditorium has a magnificent pipe organ.

(h) Every day-hour and night-hour is well used, regularly in the various departments of the Temple work which is multitudinous.

(i) Besides the services, afternoon and evening and they often merge the one into the other, so great is the spiritual fervor.

(j) Sister Aimee has graciously permit us to tell more about the Angelus Temple, except to state that there is a large Commissary Department where food and clothing is collected for those in need. We visited this commissary department and found a departmental store with its canned goods, fruit, vegetables, bread, cakes and clothing. Various firms in Los Angeles contribute thousands of loaves of bread and thousands of cans of milk besides other things every day. Every Temple Christian brings supplies of various kinds as well, and this in the past few months has a thousand needy people, old and young, have been helped. The Temple believes that there is a practical as well as a spiritual side to Christianity and they go out literally and shear them.

(k) Seven hundred Bible students, young men and women, are trained in classes for all kinds of Christian work and for the mission field where already many have gone. The Temple is giving support to ninety-five foreign mission fields.

(l) The choirs, orchestra, and band are important and will be discussed later.

Where all this mighty organization stands "Sister-Pastor Aimee Semple Macpherson", whom we shall show in our next article to be the greatest woman now living.

FASHION NOTES

Mrs. Jones wishes to report that she styles here follow very closely those of Toronto, New York and St. Louis, as already previously explained. The dresses worn here at present are such as would be worn in Ontario during the month of September when the temperature is from 70° to 80°. This feature seems strange to us; many women of all ages are still wearing their coats or jackets despite the fact that they would be more comfortable without them. More again soon.

Best wishes to all.

British Diplomatic Dispatch Bag Stolen

Disappears On Railway Line Between Addis Ababa and Djibouti.

London, May 19 (CP)—The British government today cabled Sir Sidney Barton, Minister in Addis Ababa who his remains accredited to Ethiopia, to inquire into two sensational reports from that country now under Italian rule.

The first report was that a British diplomatic dispatch bag had disappeared on the railway line between Addis Ababa and Djibouti. The bag was addressed to John Lowe, British Consul at Djibouti, French Somaliland seaport. Lowe had been advised by telegram from the British Legation at Addis Ababa to meet the train. He did so but the bag which contained official correspondence, was missing.

The second report concerned the alleged arrest of Warrant-Officer Bonner, attached to a Regent Airbalance Unit. Bonner, according to the report, was being rushed to hospital at Aden for treatment for rabies when Italian authorities arrested him at Diredawa, on the railway line.

STRIKERS ACCEPT GOV'T DECISION

Mexican President Declares Movement Unjustified And Strikers Must Return to Work

Mexico City, May 19.—Leaders of striking workers of the Mexican National Railways decided today to accept the government decision, declaring the movement unjustified, and return the 48,000 strikers to their posts within their 24-hour period of grace.

The decision came just after President Lazaro Cardenas, declaring the "unmistakable proofs I have received" left no choice but to fight for the betterment of the working classes" enlisted him to support Labor's co-operation, called for an end to the strike.

The strike committee, however, announced it reserved the right to appeal to Labor Councils on behalf or the National Railways employes who waited out at 7 p.m. (Central Standard Time) Tuesday in support of their demands for wage increases.

DEBTS

One of the first institutions to suffer when times turn "bad" is the church. So it is no wonder Bishop Seager of Huron the other day in his episcopal address referred to financial conditions. "A deficit of $162,000,000 means heavier burdens of taxation, money which can come directly or indirectly out of the pockets of every citizen of the country. It is hoped this huge deficit will awaken our people from a certain lethargy towards the national crisis and from that stolid concern for only the day and the hour which seems to lie heavily upon them. It is time that the public began to think."

Business men have been talking of this debt and of the load which rests upon municipalities as well as upon provincial and federal governments, hoping for the day when the light of a balanced budget will dawn upon the land.

PROTECTION

The question of reported shortages in the accounts of a man who invested monies for clients, is one which stirs people to wonder why there is not some guarantee when persons entrust their money to others that the monies will go to the purpose for which they are intended. Bonding of such persons has been suggested as well as auditing of their books.

In such cases there are stories of persons who have lost everything they possess in life savings. Such facts strike the average individual as so unnecessary when as much protection ought to be guaranteed the person entrusting funds as a banking institution gives. That an investment may prove unprofitable is of course another matter.

NONAGGRESSION OR MUTUAL AID?

"There are two kinds of peace proposed in Europe. Germany may be regarded as the champion of bilateral nonaggression pacts. France is the protagonist of pacts of mutual assistance", says Christian Science Monitor.

"Why should these two systems be regarded in many quarters as irreconcilable? To the public, unfamiliar with diplomatic distinctions, it would appear that when Germany offers to enter into treaties of nonaggression with its neighbors, it should be taken at its word. Perhaps doubts may be cast on its promises in view of recent happenings. But such nonaggression is pledged in the Kellogg Pact. But still, it can surely do no harm, and may do good, for Germany to say definitely that it will not attack particular countries.

"Not so, say the French statesmen. Nonaggression pacts may be so designed as to facilitate aggression. Security must be collective, that is to say, if one country is attacked by another, other countries should go to the support of the victim. Now if the countries which would offer their assistance are debarred from so doing by a pact with the aggressor by which they undertake to remain quiescent, then an aggressor can safely attack one country after another, each in turn, without risking the intervention of those countries which have signed nonaggression pacts.

"To which the Germans retort that mutual assistance pacts are merely military alliances to which a newer and better sounding name is given. They point out that although the phraseology of the Covenant is used, the stipulated mutual assistance prejudges the issue and demands military staff talks in advance, against a supposedly potential enemy. The purpose of the pacts is to encircle the presumed eventual aggressor, thus provoking him to break out of the circle.

"Against this argument it is urged that it is perfectly simple for an encircled country to sign the appropriate mutual assistance pact with its neighbors. On paper, this is true, but if nevertheless the true intention is to regard one of the number of signatories as a potential enemy, its signatories as a potential enemy, its inclusion among the signatories does not alter the realities of an undesirable situation."

THE LITTLE WHITE CLOUDS

"There's a cloud in the sky,
A little white cloud . . .
And I know what it is,"
Said Peggy O'Dowd;

"Sure some girl in Heaven,
As curtains she hung,
Let one of them fall
When the Angelus rung.

"And down it kept coming,
Past planets and stars—
Oh, faster and faster
Than horses or cars,—

"Until worn so thin,
It got lighter than air,
And now it's the little White clouds you see there!"

—Patrick MacDonough, in "Old Castle Garden."

IT HAS BEEN SAID THAT MANY PEOPLE DIG THEIR GRAVES WITH THEIR TEETH, intimating that good health depends largely upon suitable food and temperate eating. That brings up another trite saying that what's one man's meat may be another man's poison, or words to that effect, and it is interesting to learn from a meeting of medical specialists held recently at Atlantic City that at least one doctor has experienced this himself. Here is the story as published by Time News magazine:

Like many another medical specialist, Dr. Walter Clement Alvarez of the Mayo Clinic suffers from the disease he cures in other people. In Dr. Alvarez' case the ailment is stomach ulcers. Last week, looking and feeling better than he has in years, Dr. Alvarez went to Atlantic City to attend a meeting of the American Gastro-Enterological Association, of which he was president in 1928 and which has a special lecture named in his honor.

At last week's meeting Dr. Alvarez, speaking from his personal experiences, told stomach specialists to beware of foods which make their patients in strange ways. "Since I found that I was abnormally sensitive to chicken and stopped eating it" said he, "life has been much easier."

One of his patients was a businessman who became abnormally drowsy at 11 o'clock every morning, fell asleep at conferences and while driving his automobile. Dr. Alvarez: "I had him test, one by one, the things he ate customarily at breakfast, and eventually we found that it was the cream in his coffee. Eliminating the cream ended the trouble. It is absolutely startling to see how food influences the brain.

"One responsible businessman had been in the hands of psychiatrists for eight or nine years. I put him on an elimination diet for the hives, and to my great astonishment had cured him of what was actually insanity.

"Another case was a young college student. He suddenly developed abnormal pains and a mental attitude that made his studies impossible. We really were convinced after a time that it was a mental case. Another doctor began testing him on food reactions. Two days later he called me over and showed me that the dull and apathetic boy was eager and bright again. The trouble was that he was sensitive to eggs. At school he had been eating three or four of them every morning and it was enough to knock him out."

ONE BELLEVILLE LADY RECEIVED A BIRTHDAY GREETING CARD recently which was both unique and novel, inasmuch as postal stamps on the address side showed that the card had travelled by the giant German zeppelin Hindenburg from Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, via Lichenstein, to Lakehurst, New Jersey, and thence to Belleville. The card was addressed to Mrs. Anna Collins, Quinte Hotel, Belleville, Ontario, Canada, "with Best Wishes for a Happy Birthday—Ernie." The card was sent by Ernie Collins, well known Hotel Quinte clerk, to his wife. The card contained a view of the Hotel Quinte on one side, and was sent to the representative of the zeppelin in New York who forwarded it to Germany for remailing. Total cost for postage and registration sixty-five cents. Stamp collectors have offered considerable more than the postage cost for the card, but no sale.

Hearse Catches Fire Body Quickly Removed

Passing Motorist Assists in Extinguishing Blaze With Chemicals

Summerstown, Ont., May 19 (CP) —A flaming hearse delayed a funeral procession yesterday near the village east of Cornwall on the St. Lawrence when fire swept the hearse bearing the body of Mrs. Charles Mills of Montreal to Morrisburg.

Discovered by relatives in the cars following, the blaze was quenched by a passing motorist who had a chemical extinguisher. A steel casket protected the body but damage to the hearse, owned by Thomas Cain of Montreal, exceeded $400.

Cost of Relief Passes All Reasonable Bounds, Says Mayor Cockburn.

Pembroke, Ont., May 18 (CP)—Town council tonight decided to go back on the voucher system of relief after five months' trial of the cash plan and informed the relief committee to make this change effective June 1.

Costs of relief has passed all reasonable bounds, with 350 families receiving assistance and more applications being received daily, said Mayor A. E. Cockburn, chairman of the relief committee. Under the cash system, he said, relief recipients have their allowance spent before the month is half over and come back looking for more.

SAYS THOMAS PUT INSURANCE AGAINST ELECTION

Sir Alfred Butt, Millionaire, Says Thomas Made $3,169

BUDGET NOT DISCUSSED

Butt "Induced" Thomas to "Insure" Against 1935 Election

London, May 18.— (CP Cable)— Sir Alfred Butt, millionaire sportsman and parliament member, told the British "Budget Leak" inquiry today Chancellor Secretary J. H. Thomas cleaned up $3169 nine shillings (around $3,169) in "insurance" against the 1935 general election.

Sir Alfred, who denied vehemently that he and Thomas ever talked about the current budget, said he had "induced" the Cabinet member to take out a $3,000 insurance against an election being held during 1935.

The transaction was arranged when the two met at a race track, Sir Alfred explained.

Following the general election (last November), when the National Government with which Thomas was identified, Sir Alfred said, he asked the statesman if his nine shillings be testified.

Thomas said he had deducted the insurance premium from the federal fees of the policy, Sir Alfred said.

Sir Alfred told the inquiry, which is seeking to discover if anyone disclosed the 1936 budget secrets ahead of time, that Thomas was in "very upset" when the name of his son, Lieut. Thomas, was mentioned in connection with the supposed "leak".

He said the minister exclaimed: "Oh Lor'! What a damned stupid rumor".

Sir Alfred flatly denied he knew anything about the Budget "leak".

Damaged by Frost

The heavy frost of Friday night did considerable damage to vegetables and flowers locally. Some residents hired by the summer-like weather of the past ten days or so had planted their gardens and in some cases they were well advanced. Beans and corn were cut down. Tender perennials such as the Bleeding Heart, English Daisy and others which were in bloom were in many instances badly damaged. Tulips beds which were just approaching their maximum beauty were a sorry sight on Saturday morning. The blossoms, however, revived during the day to a large degree and the coming warm weather on Sunday repaired most of the damage.

The first game with Trenton played in Tweed on May 25th, when Kingston will provide the opposition. Practice was held on Wednesday and Alex. Simpson, Quinn, Jack Orr, "Trey" Mercer, Bill McCubbin, "Tunnicliffe", Jimmy Sinclair and many new prospects were on hand.

Tweed will receive several years' grant in one sum to carry out this program. The labour situation will be eased considerably with this road construction and the prospect of a new highway bridge being completed during the year on Road 71, just north of the village.

Latta ball team will this year take the field strengthened in several departments. In addition to Ken Callahan and Joe Marsh who have been included in the line-up for the past year or so, Alex Simpson, Casey "Tip" Thomson and Jack Orr have been signed and Manager Dr. Harold Wills has some good games will no doubt result.

Recognized throughout Canada as a man possessing the highest qualities of leadership, Colonel Drew is endowed with the vision and broad experience so vitally necessary in the direction of the affairs of this province. The preservation of British principles of which Colonel Drew is an earnest advocate is one of the most important problems in Canada today.

"The May 28th. Convention at Toronto will definitely decide whether or not the largest province in Canada is going to advance in the back-water of petty politics mixed with such dictatorship as disgusted the people of Ontario during the few years of the Ferguson regime. Ever since the return to the vigorous Conservative policies of Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir James Whitney," stated Colonel Drew in announcing his candidacy for the leadership.

Due to the limited time available Colonel Drew will, through the press and by means of radio broadcasting define the policies upon which he bases his claim for leadership of the Conservative party in the Provinces of Ontario.

Plymouth Four-Door Touring Sedan with trunk

"21 to 27 miles to a gallon of gas — 15% to 20% less oil cost," owners say

FROM all over Canada reports are pouring in from owners whose 1936 Plymouth cars have more than observed up to expectations. Following are a few excerpts from certified statements in our files. Names and addresses of the parties who made these statements will be gladly furnished on request.

25 Miles to a Gallon

"My 1936 Plymouth is the eighth and the best car I have owned. Performance and economy are the two outstanding features about it that have impressed me. I get 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline while driving on the road and so far I have had to add no oil at all when I have the oil changed at regular periods. Everything wo@s in it as a car should work."

—Best Car I Have Ever Driven"

"My 1936 car is the third consecutive Plymouth I have had, and I really regard it as the best car I have ever driven. My wife and I are both delighted with the riding quality, comfort and appearance of this car, and she fact that it gives the feel of security with big car economics. The trunk appeals to me very much after years of crowding luggage in the car to the discomfort of everyone. All my friends have remarked on the leg room and comfort of the back seat, especially on long trips."

"—A Car that I can Depend On all the Time"

"The 1936 Plymouth suits me perfectly. I operate four stores and have to run about from one to the other at various times during the day. My Plymouth starts instantly and has never delayed me for a moment for repairs yet. It has excellent riding qualities, is easily handled and costs as little as a car could expect of a car in gasoline and oil. The convenience of the trunk, which opens wide and easily, is one of the features I like best for I have to carry assorted items in store to meet when a shortage occurs. I am pleased to recommend the Plymouth. I must have a car that I can depend on all the time."

He is a member of the National Council of the League of Nations Society. He has been President of the Empire Club of Canada, Vice-President of the Canadian Legion and is now on the executive of the Canadian Corps Association. Ever since the war he has taken an active part in pensions and legislation protecting veterans and their dependents.

Colonel Drew has given vigorous leadership in bringing home to the Canadian people the vital importance of developing our scattered population by rapid transportation. In the interests of Aviation he has addressed public gatherings throughout the whole Dominion, flying from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the Arctic Ocean.

In his native city of Guelph, where he delivers his first address from coast to coast, Colonel Drew rendered valuable service to many public bodies. He was on the board of the Guelph General Hospital, the Children's Aid Society and Protection for Aged People and other charitable organizations.

Recognized throughout Canada as a man possessing the highest qualities of leadership, Colonel Drew is endowed with the vision and broad experience so vitally necessary in the direction of the affairs of this province. The preservation of British principles of which Colonel Drew is an earnest advocate is one of the most important problems in Canada today.

"The May 28th. Convention at Toronto will definitely decide whether or not the largest province in Canada is going to advance in the back-water of petty politics mixed with such dictatorship as disgusted the people of Ontario during the few years of the Ferguson regime. Ever since the return to the vigorous Conservative policies of Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir James Whitney," stated Colonel Drew in announcing his candidacy for the leadership.

Due to the limited time available Colonel Drew will, through the press and by means of radio broadcasting define the policies upon which he bases his claim for leadership of the Conservative party in the Provinces of Ontario.

Weddings

NICHOLLS—MANN

Kingston.—A very pretty spring wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock on Saturday evening, May 16, in the Salvation Army Citadel, in the presence of between four and five hundred people, when Cornelia Doris, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mann of Port Aux Basques, Newfoundland, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest A. Nicholls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Nicholls, 7 Birch Ave., of this city, Adjutant Stanley G. Gennery, officer commanding the Kingston corps, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. James Austin of Kingston, in the absence of her parents, entered the Citadel to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Mae Murray of Kingston. The bride wore a pretty frock of blue crepe with accessories to match and carried Briarcliffe roses and baby's breath. She was attended by Mrs. Albert Chittenden, who was pretty gowned in beige crepe with matching accessories, and the groom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Eric Naylor of Belleville. The platform had been transformed into a spring garden and formed a pretty setting for the bridal party. During the ceremony the Salvation Army band and the songster brigade, of which the groom was leader and the bride a member, rendered appropriate music and Mrs. Gennery sang a soprano solo, "My Prayer." Mrs. Major Smith pronounced the benediction and during the signing of the register the band played a stirring march.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception, given for the friends of the bride, was served in the S. A. Drill hall to about two hundred guests. After all had partaken of the good things to eat, a program, which included vocal solos, readings and speeches were given by several officers of the local corps and others, Mr. Eric Naylor of Belleville acted as master of ceremonies. A number of messages were read from friends of the bride and groom including one from the bride's mother and brother and one from the groom's parents, immediately after the reception the bride and groom left for Ottawa and Montreal and upon their return will reside in Kingston. The young couple were the recipients of a number of beautiful and useful gifts.

GARIEPY—CHATTERSON

The marriage took place last Saturday at Tabernacle Church Parsonage of Jennie Irene Chatterson of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Chatterson and the late Robert Chatterson of Brighton, to Donald Leonard Gariepy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gariepy of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. B. Naylor.

The bride wore a charming gown of powder blue sheer crepe, with white turban and matching accessories. She was attended by Miss Josephine Thompson of Belleville who wore a pretty iris crepe dress with white hat and accessories. Mr. Harry Knox, Amelianburg, was groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Gariepy will reside in this city.

INFORMAL WEDDING DRESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon in my parents' home at four o'clock.

I, My fiance is going to wear a dark blue business suit, and I had planned to wear a white lace dress with puffed sleeves, the skirt being very full and ankle length. Now I am wondering if I will be overdressed in this costume, considering that the groom will wear a business suit. What is your opinion about this? I have always planned to be married in white, but I do want to be appropriately dressed.

A. If you should say that the lace dress is proper, would it be proper for me to wear a fingertip veil? If not, what else could I wear on my head?

Alice.

A. I can well understand that you might wonder about the costume that you had planned to wear. Much included vocal lace dress of the kind that you have outlined in your letter is definitely inclined toward formality, while your fiance is wearing definitely informal dress.

But I can understand too, thoroughly, that you would like to wear a white dress at your wedding. So I suggest that you wear a white lace dress, but if it has not already been made, or can be altered, I suggest that you change its design. It is the puffed sleeves and the full skirt that make it tend in type toward formality. So, if possible, why not modify the type of sleeve and have them long sleeves and plain in cut? And keep the skirt ankle-length, but have the skirt not so full, but straighten it in line. Then your dress would be less "dressy" and more appropriately an afternoon dress, less bridal toward formality. The simpler your dress is in cut, the less conventional your formal it will be, and the more appropriately it will adapt itself to the informal attire of your groom-to-be.

B. But it would be definitely inappropriate for you to wear a veil, even a finger-tip veil, when your fiance is to wear a business suit. With your dressy lace dress and a veil, you would be formally dressed, and this would be all out of order with the informal attire of the groom.

At a house wedding it is not necessary for you to wear a hat. However, it is proper for you to wear a hat, if you wish to, and if you do, take special care that its type is not too dressy.

Can't Compel A Child to Learn

Teach Him His Future Depends on Present, Advice of Grenelle

By LISA GRENELLE

FRANK WOOLDN'T do his homework. He didn't see any sense in it. There were other things he was more interested in doing.

He was reminded, of course, and scolded, coaxed, punished, but with no lasting effect. He would mend his ways for a little while, but not for long. To Frank, homework was not important. When father took his bicycle, typewriter and radio away he only grew more stubborn and sullen.

Should the family give up and leave it to the school? In many cases it is the wisest plan. But is it in this case? Frank was not afraid of his teacher. He did not value her good opinion or respect her displeasure. Besides, he said "all the rest guys" in the class never did their homework, only the "sissies".

So father tried a new tack. He bribed Frank into the dining room and waited to bim, a man to man talk, no patronage, no threats and no reproaches.

Not a Punishment

No one can force anyone else to learn, he told Frank. No parent can force a child to take the advantage of the opportunity he gives him.

Education and lessons, his father explained to Frank, were not a punishment. You didn't do your homework to please your teacher or your parent but to build your own capital upon which your future success depended. What you learned, he said, was beneficial to you yourself, what you refused to learn could affect only your future.

"The mental exercise, as well as the information you obtain from it, is your wedding. A mechanic study now will prepare you for one of the higher trades," the boy's father said. "It will enable you to get the job that you want, not for anything. It will save you the humiliation of jobless dependance.

"It is your own mind that you are going to train your mind for you. And there are no good jobs for a man whose mind is not trained.

Life Handicap

"It doesn't matter what your teacher thinks, what the other pupils think, or what I think, but your are being unfair to yourself, and that does matter. You are letting yourself down, forming the habit of excusing yourself everything that is hard for you, and that habit, taken root, will cripple and handicap you for the rest of your life."

All of this everyone knows, and adults. But few children are made to realize it, even in its simplest form.

How many children connect school with their future? Not until they are ready for college, and then sometimes it's too late. No school to the average child is just an idea of mother's or father's or teacher's. They don't think of that. They learn their lessons because they are afraid of punishment, or for mother's or father's sake perhaps. But they are never made to realize that it is all up to them, even in those first years.

Fashion Flashes

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

STEP SMARTLY in colorful shoes. One navy blue brown a red kid pump trimmed with a bird's wing ornament in white lizard.

FLOWERS BLOOM on most prints for evening wear. Most attractive is an evening dress of splashy black and white with floral theme printed on sheer crepe which is fine over net. The flounce at the bottom of the skirt has a mosaic of cut-out flowers from the same print.

BUSINESS-LIKE but bright is a soft suit of light-weight black woolen with double-breasted fastening at the waist, and having revers of brilliantly patterned wool challis in place of matching challis.

BRIGHT EVENINGS will be even brighter with the addition of many new glitter dresses of flowered chiffon. Field flowers make the print of a chiffon dinner frock whose bodice has a waist-deep flounce which is worked into the long, colorful skirt and finishes the deep back decolleage. A splendid dress for resort wear this Summer.

HEADS UP to flaunt the new little toques made entirely of flowers. A flowered number is a tiny shallow-crowned model made entirely of yellow buttercups. Over the nose and drawn up to a crisp bow in back is a veil of pale green stiffened net.

A GOOD FRIEND to her who goes to the country is a great deal of a shapeless piece of flannel in a soft clay tone. The buttoned jacket has a flaring peplum to hem, and there is a short but dashing cape. The skirt has an inverted pleat in front.

St. Andrew's Gleed W. M. S.

The May meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ira Beeman on the 13th. The president read the call to worship, a hymn and Scripture lesson from Corin. 13 Chapter was read alternately.

Prayer by three members was followed by the Lord's prayer in unison.

A hymn followed by the roll call answered by a verse of Scripture. Minutes, business and collection were then proceeded with. An invitation from Carrington Auxiliary, Yorke. Mrs. M. Yorke gave a chapter from the Study Book.

Mrs. Guy Lavelin gave a temperance reading. A hymn and the benediction brought the meeting to a close. Mrs. Beeman served a sumptuous lunch. The attendance 12 and 1 visitor. Collection $1.65.

KEEP NATURE'S DESIGN IN FORMING EYEBROWS

Brows on Wild Spree No Longer Stylish x x x x

By HELEN POLLEY

EYEBROWS SHOULD toe the beauty mark and not go scooting off on wild sprees. There's been too much of that kind of plucking. The eyebrow frenzy has had its day and is played out. Good riddance to it. If you don't believe it, look at the movie stars. Only a few of them are retaining the narrow, cadaverous arches which suit certain types. The majority are getting back to normal.

There are faces that need the curved eyebrow for harmony of feature, there are others to whom a straight line is becoming. Well and good. Nature has pretty good ideas of this subject, so keep pretty much to her design. Even if she is wrong, there is no forehead promises trim and spare the eyebrows in the proper manner.

Heavy eyebrows are not unbecoming to the woman of thick set face and heavy jaw line. Thin her brows down to a thread and her face will appear longer. Only a light growth becomes the girl with oval face, long nose and small mouth.

When eyebrows are too thick or placed too low, weed away the under portion. The lift will make the eyes look larger and more expressive. When eyes are round and deep-set, the brows should be high. You can get this effect by brushing the growth upward in the center, downward at either end. And, of course, the tweezers are useful in remodeling.

Many a woman who fits dyed her hair for years comes to the conclusion that it isn't worth the trouble. Real what about the foundation period from dyed to white?

The simplest solution is to cut the hair close to the scalp and wear a wig. Wonderful ones are made now. They don't look wiggy, but fit like a second scalp and cost over. By that time the hair will have grown nearly three inches. In a year it is twice that long.

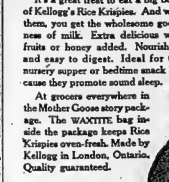
Counterfeit eyelashes are fun to play with. A lot of them are being sold, the beauty stylists report.

You can get them piecemeal or unified on a bit of transparent gauze. Better keep your lids upped it's then that the false funzees look best.

To improve the home grown product, darken the lashes with wood hazel, ice cold. Don't make the mistake of using a hair lotion on them, any alcoholic product will cause discomfort to the eyes. A cold compress placed on the eyes windows when you go beddy-by will stimulate the blood vessels at the roots of the winkers, make them grow longer and thicker.

Lucky is the woman who is able to snatch forty winks at odd moments. Even if one doesn't sleep, a half hour of utter relaxation will start up the motors of energy. Mothers of small children need these refreshing flops.

Fatigue is responsible for many beauty ills among them swollen tissues under the eyes, lines around the eyes, drawn fibers around the mouth. It charges the disposition, and not for the better. It has a bad effect upon the outline of the body because muscles have been overworked. "The nervous system suffers. Take keer of yerself, woman!



She's listening to CRISPNESS

LISTENING, yes, but not for long. While those crunchy Rice Krispies are still crackling in milk or cream, this little girl is going to get busy with her spoon and eat every one of those toasted rice bubbles "all up."

It's a great treat to eat a big bowl of Kellogg's Rice Krispies. And with them, you get the wholesome goodness of milk. Extra delicious with fruits or honey added. Nourishing and easy to digest. Ideal for the nursery supper or bedtime snack because they promote sound sleep.

At grocers everywhere in the Mother Goose story package. The WAXTITE bag inside the package keeps Rice Krispies ten-fresh. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Quality guaranteed.

HER EYES DID IT

"The romance, mystery and glamour" in Merle Oberon's dark eyes have apparently captivated young David Niven, British actor, so there's going to be wedding bells out Hollywood way, if friends of the young couple have their gossip right. Anyway, Merle and David are inseparable companions, and there's no pain shown when they're together. And Niven freely admits "romance has caught up with Niven." Merle's romantic eyes are graphically portrayed above.

New Kind of Pet Discovered in City

A new kind of a pet was discovered in Belleville yesterday afternoon, when a woman was observed pushing a baby carriage along Front Street. Closer scrutiny disclosed, that beside a baby, a live hen was in the carriage, apparently enjoying the ride as well as the child. The bird paid no attention to the caresses of baby, merely enjoying the fresh air and nonchalantly playing with the contented hen.

IN MEMORIAM

BATEMAN—In fond memory of my dear husband Edwin Thomas Bateman, who passed away three years ago, May 19th, 1933.
Calm and peaceful he is sleeping,
Sweet rest that follows pain.
I who liked him sadly miss him,
But trust in God to meet again.
God knew that he was suffering,
That the ills were hard to climb,
So He closed his weary eyelids,
And whispered: Peace Forever.

Greene-Shabell Still In Ore in New York

According to reports from the North, Greene-Shabell has been in the new vein for well over a month now. A length of over 200 ft. in reported to have been opened up averaging above $20.00 a ton across 2 feet wide or better.

The winze being sunk from the No. 2 shaft from the 400 ft. level has attained a depth of 80 feet and is reported to be still in high grade ore. April production was the best in a year and May output is expected to show a record.

The present exploration campaign which is being conducted by Geo. H. Hammell who agreed last year to advance up to $100,000 for that purpose. This loan is secured by the company's assets. Greene-Shabell is capitalized at 7,000,000 shares, all issued.

Many quarters that have been on the sidelines for some weeks have again turned bullish and are recommending the purchase of stocks on all setbacks. The recent action of the market is construed as indicative of a trend to still least resistance is upward and with the business situation virtually perfect it is maintained that stocks will be higher, later in the year, than they are today.

Our recent opinion that the minimum level of industrial activity has a large following for some time has not changed. Industry is operating at its active mining market, with the junior and more speculative golds in the centre of interest.

If anything, the air appears to have been cleared of the more threatening developments. Ending of the Ethiopian conflict and another postponement of climactic action with relation to the Rhine zone seemed to suggest that the best of the entire European situation is now in the offing. Meanwhile, defeat of the Frazier-Lemke bill in the United States and other suggestions that the objectionable methods of taxing corporate profits might be modified were regarded as constructive. The possibility that Congress has been more a drag on stock market sentiment than generally supposed will be tested as the date for adjournment approaches, but any respite on that account should be fulfilled shortly as more thunderous beating of political war-tom-toms if preparation for the American election campaign begins.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 19—Steady to higher prices prevailed on the local produce markets yesterday. Top grade eggs were firmly quoted on fresh arrivals in the city, owing to a scarcity of supply, and prices on small lots to the retail trade were advanced to per dozen on all grades of eggs. Receipts of eggs are running under a year ago at this time by about 50 per cent, but as arrivals heavier shipments are being made for export, leaving a strong and steady position. Cheese advanced ½c to ¾c per lb. following similar advances on all grades of country boards over the week-end. Butter; potatoes and poultry were unchanged from those of the day. We are posted at the Board of Trade at 1,850,000 pounds of boxes of butter and 46 boxes of cheese.

On the egg market shipments arriving in carlots (Montreal) lots were 21c to 21½c, mainly 21½c for A-large, 21c for A-medium, 19-19½c for B, and 18-19½c for C. Selling to the retail trade was 21½c to 23c for No. 1 Ontario, current arrivals.

The butter market was generally 19½c per lb. for No. 1 in cartons or 1-c). lots, with sales reported in shade under this level.

Seven Wins With 4 Shutouts Record of Lefty Grove, Boston Ace, Since Season Opened

Blanks White Sox 2-0 Allowing But Four Hits

CARDS WIN

Giants' Chalk up Eighth in Row to Crowd St. Louis

Grove turned in one of his best performances of the year yesterday in blanking Chicago White Sox 2-0 with four hits, for his seventh victory and fourth shutout of the season. His only defeat came at Washington. Grove has allowed but beaten 13 times.

Here's how Grove's record looked after he had mowed out Vernon Kennedy in a pitching duel: innings pitched 66; opponents runs, 8; earned runs, 6; hits, 52; strike-outs, 34 and base on balls, 17.

Grove headed all of his speed and cunning against the White Sox for Kennedy, who . pitched a no-hit game against Cleveland earlier this year, limited Tom Yawkey's "Millionaires" to four hits.

The performance of Grove was the high spot of the day, which saw Alvin Dark's Giants chalk up their second grand of the season and his first since April 21, when the Washington Senators, 7 to seven hits and Detroit Tigers pounded out a 7-1 decision over Cincinnati Reds behind the Pirates to give New York Giants their eighth straight victory.

After being kept idle for nearly a month because of an arm injury Crowder was master of the situation. In the fifth he loaded the bases after Red Evans had scored Washington's only run but a double play quickly lifted him out of trouble. The Tigers collected eight hits off Pete Appleton in the six innings he worked and picked off three more of Monte Weaver in chalking up their third straight game.

Hubbell Hit Hard

Hubbell was hit hard as the Giants took a 4-3 decision from Pittsburgh Pirates for their eighth successive triumph but the screwball artist was effective with men on bases. The Pirates had men on bases in every inning except one, while the Giants got only single safe blows off John Tieing and Cy Blanton. Two of the hits were home runs by Mel Ott and Sam Leslie, batterer, the former getting his sixth of the season. Arky Vaughan also hit a circuit blow for the Bucs in the ninth.

St. Louis' Cardinals managed to hold their half-game lead over the Giants but it took a great finish against the Phillies to do same in front by the score of 11-6. The Phils, with Pinkey Whitney driving in five of their runs, collected four homers, held a 6-3 lead as late as the fifth inning but in the sixth the Cards heavy artillery went to work. Faced by Skipper Martin and Johnny Mize, who got three hits each, including a homer by the first baseman, the Cards counted seven in the sixth, added four more in the seventh and picked up their last three tallies in the ninth.

Bill Carlson continued his success over the Bees as the Cubs took a 7-3 decision to go into a tie with the Pirates for third place, handing the Bees to eight scattered hits. Carleton chalked up his 12th victory in 34 starts against the Bostonians since joining the major leagues in 1932.

Cincinnati Reds made the most of their 31 blows off five hurlers to defeat Brooklyn Dodgers 9-6 after getting away to a three-run lead in the first inning on Gilly Campbell's homer.

The Yankee-Indians and Athletics-Browns games were postponed because of rain.

Samoan, Judge Pool Carry Seagram Colors In Plate on Saturday

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—Famed black and yellow silks of the Seagram racing stable at Waterloo, Ontario, long a power in Canadian racing circles, will seek their 20th victory in the King's Plate here Saturday.

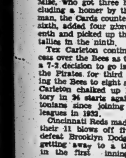
The colors will be carried by Samoan and probably Judge Pool in the 77th running of the event, oldest continuously run race on the continent. The classic carries 50 guineas, donated by the King and a purse added yearly.

Present odds place the pair as split favorites with H. E. Leich's Brantford sire Penabut and Mc-Laughlin's Spearman and Epicurus. The brilliant colors that flashed to victory in 1891, Victorious won for the Seagram family three times in all before his death his sons took over the stable and scored four times before disbanding and leaving one of them, Edward, to carry on.

He kept the Seagram colors riding on top by winning the 1½ miles grind for the 19th time last year with Sally Fuller, a maiden filly. Hatch, who has never won the race, was second with Chicken and Gay Sympathy, another Seagram filly, third.

Samoan Winters Well

Samoan, main hope this year, wintered well and under the capable handling of Trainer Jack Proctor has come to form in easy fashion. The imported son of Spey Pearl—Samoa was not brilliant as a juvenile, but gave warning he could travel. He won the first two starts of his career, but failed to score again in four other attempts. Early last fall he pulled up lame and was fired and then retired for the winter.



He has been familiarized with the Plate route, being sent over the nine furlongs in 1.59 3-5. Yesterday he was given a three-eighths of a mile breeze, being clocked at 35 2-5 seconds.

Jockey Jimmy Hunter of Vancouver, one of the top line riders in the United States will have the mount on Samoa. Hunter, 20-year-old, has been riding for the past four years. His first employer was Major A.C. Taylor, prominent Vancouver sportsman, who took third place in this year's Kentucky Derby with Indian Broom.

Seagram bought the lad's contract from G. D. Widener this spring. Before that he had ridden for B. B. Stable and C. V. Whitney.

GAME SEPARATES THREE LEADERS

Close Race is Being Staged in International Loop

(By The Associated Press)

The International League pennant race was so tightly bunched today, that only one full game separated the three leaders and only seven stood between the first and seventh place clubs.

Albany tightened it up yesterday by blanking the pace setting Newark Bears, 1 to 0, behind a fine seven hit pitching performance by Harry Matuszak. The result trimmed Newark's lead over Buffalo to a half game with Montreal another half game to the rear.

The Albany-Newark game was the only one scheduled yesterday but it was a thriller from start to finish. Alan Strange's single and Bread Joiley's double gave Albany its run in the fifth. Then after which Spurgeon Chandler, Newark's right handed hurling veteran ball, Newark's inability to sacrifice was very costly. The first batter reached first in seven of the nine innings. Three Albany double plays helped.

EPSOM DERBY TO BE RUN MAY 27

Aga Khan's Colt Taj Akbar Will Be The Favorite

Epsom Downs, Surrey, May 19 (CP Cable)—The famous stables of the Aga Khan, for the fifth time, forward yet another favorite for the Derby, one of the running of which will take place over the difficult 1½-mile Epsom course a week from tomorrow.

Largely as a result of his brilliant victory in the Chester Vase the Indian Prince's Taj Akbar, a lightly fleshed, corky-actioned colt, has come to hold in the betting of the favorite's role at 6 to 1, outshining Lord Woolavington's Solario and Bala Hissar, both of whom are now at 18 to 1.

The Aga Khan won the Epsom classic with Bahram last year, and in Taj Akbar has a colt not unworthy of his great sire, the St. Leger winner Fairway. The Chester Vase, a trial for the Derby distance, proved Taj Akbar has stamina and staying power. Conceding 13 pounds to Thankerton, third in the two thousand guineas, the colt won in a hard by three lengths, and showed an aptness for negotiating Chester's sharp turns which will be a asset at Epsom.

Lord Astor's Pay Up, winner of the two thousand guineas, ranks second to the Prince at 7 to 1. Lord Astor has a second colt, Rhodes Scholar, who has made a fine impression. He finished fourth in the Guineas and at the Epsom spring meeting ran a close second to Taj Akbar. He is quoted at 19 to 2.

Third in the betting, at 8 to 1, is Sir Alfred Butt's Noble King, who demonstrated his ability to stay a mile and half by winning the Dee Stakes at Chester.

Japan's Tennis Team To Play in Canada

Decided to Pass up Competition in Davis Cup Play This Year

Vancouver, May 19.—(CP)—Japan's Davis cuppers who decided to pass up competition in that event this year will enter the Canadian Lawn Tennis championships to be held here August 3-8.

Harry Monk, Secretary of the British Columbia Lawn Tennis Association, announced last night that in addition to the Dominion meet the Nipponese racquet wielders will play in the provincial championships at Victoria the week prior to the title meet, and in tournaments at Seattle and Tacoma, Wash.

Monk said efforts would be made to have Bob Murray and Laird Watt of Montreal, return from their English tour in time for the Canadian championships.

A team of four British players may also appear here, Monk added, although the British Lawn Tennis Association had not yet made a definite decision pending completion of Wimbledon arrangements.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Those in on the know inform us tonight's wrestling card at the Arena has cost Matchmaker Jack Corcoran larger purses than any previous card ever to be shown locally. The card is the most expensive ever presented in Belleville in the prices guaranteed the wrestlers while Mr. Corcoran had to dig down further into the Queensbury coffers, for the heavy cost of transportation. Corcoran and Moon, the main boosters, have displayed much marked ability in previous appearances here, that there is every reason to believe tonight's card will set a new attendance record in Belleville. Not only the main bout, but the Ridgmond-Jennings semi-final is also "hot" without mentioning the preliminary at all. Street gossip has been very favorable on this show and goodness knows Matchmaker Corcoran has done his part in providing the best possible mat talent for Belleville fans this season and a little bit of patronage would be appreciated.

There are fifteen persons who will be given free ringside seats for tonight's show, last week a number of programs were printed, each one being numbered from 1 to 15, holders of tickets numbered 66, 138, 224, 254, 661, 686, 678, 744, 829, 891, 1077, 1124, 1225, 1241 and 1244 will be given free tickets at the box office for tonight's wrestling show.

On Saturday afternoon Coach Leo Barrett divided his Kiwanis juniors into two teams and staged a baseball nine inning ball game at the Fair Grounds. Nine innings were played and three on the other. Johnnie Deakes, Bob Clark, Jimmy Weeks, Joe Kelleher, Amo and Vic Rowbotham were the pitchers parraded to the hilltop. Coach Barrett was highly impressed with the splendid showing of his batterymen Art Rowbotham, Joe Voisin, Pat Blaker, "Ziggy" Bruce and Bill Whalen shared the catching duties. Manager George Lee is highly satisfied with the showing of his 120 Belleville Kiwanis juniors. "We have the best turn out of players I have ever seen in this city. Right now we could field a splendid junior team, but with the exception of a few proven catcher. The infield and the outfield are equally as well balanced as the regular staff. The players are all big strapping fellows, who are willing to practice and have their heart in the game," stated Mr. Lee today. The local Kiwanis Club is also sponsoring baseball sport in Belleville for a number of years and it's about time they got a break.

Human nature is hard to understand, this is more pronounced in sport. Fred "Cannonball" Ingram, Jack "Chief" Williams was given the "air" by Belleville baseball fans. Nationals away back in 1922, it was after Joe Daley and the Kingston baseball fiasco. Ingram had just turned "thumbs down" on the Indian. When the Nationals were born in 1927 R. I. P. Williams' one ambition was to pitch every game against the Packs, which he did with marked success that year. Today, however,

BEHOLD THE BUSHERS

WALTER JOHNS

Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, wasn't supposed to realize the value of Leo Norris until he had played a full season. That is according to the dope whiffed to Wilson by Donie Bush, maestro of the Minneapolis team of the American association where Norris last performed.

But Wilson "likes Leo more than a lot now." That's pretty fair praise for a rookie up to the majors for the first time.

Lots of Practice

Leo Norris, 21's Leo J. Norris, who now is holding down a regular berth in the infield for the Phillies, waited a long time for his chance in the big leagues. Nine years he had been shuffling around the minors, a Southern league boy until the Minneapolis team picked him up in 1929.

Norris is the shortstop sensation of the Phils this year. A right-handed batter and thrower, the lad from New Orleans—his home town—started out with a .400 average and has been keeping near the .300 mark or over since.

Leo is only 26, weighs 165 pounds and is 5 feet 71 inches tall. He yields a strong bat, hitting the respectable average of .300 in 154 games with the Millers last year. At the same time he fielded .956. Besides forcing Wilson frequently to utter "That boy has got everything," (speaking of hitting), Leo has been doing excellent work defensively.

Double Player

Norris isn't the flashy type of fielder. He handles himself well and plays with a lot of assurance for a rook in the big league for the first time. One thing should be noted. It has been pointed out that of the first 17 double plays the Phillies made this year, Leo figured in 14 of them.

All in all, Philadelphia sports writers call him a ball players' ball player. He may be the key man in the Phillies' fight to get out of the cellar.

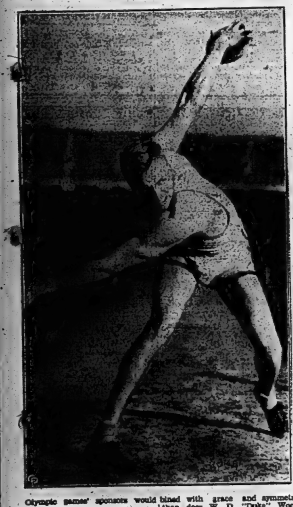
GOLF

BY ALEX MORRISON

A newcomer to golf recently asked me if I could tell whether or not he was unteachable. His question puzzled me at first. After talking to him a bit I learned that through reading some article he had picked up the idea that many people could not learn to play the game.

As far as I know, the author of the article is not engaged in teaching golf. In fact, most of his knowledge of the game, I am told, is decidedly second-hand, yet his writing has been accepted by a limited number of people. In more than 20 years I haven't found one normal person, regardless of age or size, who could not learn to play a good game of golf when properly taught.



In teaching I take a particular interest in the pupil who seems hopeless, the individual I know other teachers have failed to help. The instructor must work harder with some people than with others, but he can get satisfactory results with any normal person, provided he knows his business and the pupil follows his instructions.

Dusky Hue Over Berlin Games

COLORED SPRINTERS AND JUMPERS THREATEN T O DOMINATE CANADIAN AND U. S. OLYMPIC TEAMS WITH OUTSTANDING RECORDS — SHOULD CUT A WIDE SWATH AGAINST INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION IN 1936 MEET

By RAY COLLETT
Central Press Canadian Sports Editor

Toronto, May 12.—Glancing over possible candidates for Canadian and United States Olympic team berths, it appears certain that the North American delegation to Berlin this summer will have a distinctly dusky aspect. In fact Olympic judges in the sprints, high jump and broad jump, are likely to see such a collection of colored performers from the side the Atlantic, they will think the boats got switched en route to Germany, and athletes from south the equator are slightly jumbled with the palefaces.

The Canadian - American teams will very probably name such performers as Richardson, Edwards, Peacock, Owens, Cornelius Johnson, Metcalfe and Eddie Burke as among their starters.

The above mentioned colourgas are dusky-hued to a man.

Owens, Metcalfe, Peacock

Jesse Owens, Ohio State flash, holds records at 100 and 220 metres last year, would seem to head the sprint delegation. Close on his heels however will be Ras Ralph Metcalfe, the Haili Sellassie of Marquette U, and Eulace Peacock, Temple pride who has made even the great Owens swallow dust. Metcalfe will be recalled as the kinky haired lad whose breed fanned Eddie Tolan to the 100-metre title in 1932. Tolan, by the way, was also colored. With a powerful physique and a sensational style, Metcalfe is expected to relieve Jesse of at least one of his sprint assignments.

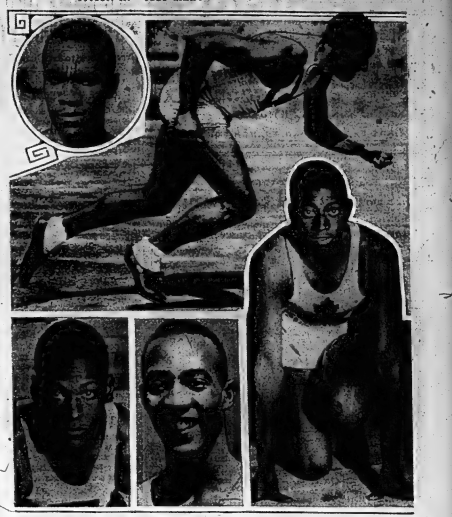
Peacock's ability to make the grade depends upon recovery from a stretched leg tendon, suffered very recently. Rest is prescribed until the team trials in June.

Two for Canada

Sammy Richardson of Toronto, upon whom most of Canada's point-getting hopes rest, may back up the sprints in which he has shone, and concentrate on the broad jump. He holds the Canadian title outdoors and the little lad of the last British empire games should hold his own with the continent's best. The bob, step and jump is his favorite event however and if he is nominated for dash duty it means just another string to Canada's bow.

The other Canadian dark hope is Phil Edwards of McGill who graduates this year from the Montreal house of learning and will try out for a 800-metre berth. If he wins he goes to Berlin—if not he goes into medicine. Now Edwards finished fourth in the 800 final at Amsterdam in 1928 and third in 1932 at Los Angeles, which places his as a real prospect for 1936, to team alongside Richardson. And Phil is a native of British Guiana.

Continuing the list of blackfaces we have Cornelius Johnson and Eddie Burke, two high jumpers who can top the bar with the best of springers. Burke is Marquette's Dark Angel and his coaches think he will high jump his rivals into the clouds and leave them hanging there.



Curiously enough his chief U. S. rival is another sun-tan skysweeper in Johnson who hails from California. Burke has done six feet nine without being pressed which should take him with ease to Berlin and back with a day's stop-over in Harlem.

Give Negroes Advantage

Speaking of jumping, Owens will take broad jumps in his off moments. If they don't conflict with the sprints and Peacock is another who mixes the two pastimes without weakening either. Owens figures his broad jump ability at 27 feet.

If you're interested, physiologists say that negroes have an edge on you and I, in these track matters due, to "a" short Achilles tendon which causes an equinus of the foot." It's supposed to get them started and keep them going, faster than we Caucasians. Some, including Peacock are also credited with elongated calcaus (yowsah)—or heel bone—which gives them increased leverage.

Whatever it is there's no denying that Olympia is giving to see a bevy of dark clod-hoppers from North America this year and you'll be soon reading plenty about the other-than-white athletes who hope to show a nice clean pair of heels to the Nazi soldiers at Berlin.

AUSTRALIA'S DAVIS CUP TEAM GROOMING FOR U. S. CLASH

After a leisurely two months' journey during which they played exhibition games in Canada, Australia's Davis Cup team have arrived at Philadelphia where they meet the American cuppers in North American zone finals May 30, 30 and June 1. Survivors of this round go to Europe for further quest of the Cup and the Australian team from "down under" are given an excellent chance to succeed. Holds Solution to Deaths Of Hornby and Companions

Al Greathouse, bush-scarred veteran of the north, says they starved to death—reviews sensational story

By Central Press Canadian

Edmonton.—Out of the north has come the answer to the nine-year-old Thelon River mystery, a ghastly drama of death that for years has filled the wilderness of the upper Nahanni land with gruesome legend.

In the spring of 1928 a Royal Canadian Mounted Police patrol came to the shack of trapper and prospector Jack Hornby and found him and his two Oxford-educated Englishmen dead on the floor. . . .

An authoritative story of the tragic mystery never did emerge from the sub-Arctic wilds, and for a time the popular theory was that the two were victims of homicidal violence.

Newspapers during the months that followed advanced many theories suggested by trappers who ranged the bleak Nahanni lands and picked up camp fire gossip on the mystery of Thelon River. One claim was that Hornby and the boys had been killed by roving bands of Indians; another, that they had been butchered in a wild-eyed treasure hunt feud.

But that's all pure hokum to Al Greathouse, bush-scarred Arctic veteran, who came to Edmonton before break-up and is headed back to hunt gold.

Starved to Death

A neighbor of Hornby and the two Oxford grads during the fatal winter, Greathouse says they starved to death.

Central Press Canadian collected Greathouse and his life-long friend, John Peter Hopkins, at Waterways, when they boarded a Northern Alberta Railway train here for the north.

Greathouse is northbound to recover a lost fortune.

"I made it and lost it," Greathouse said. Central Press as he slung his bulky bedroll over his bowed back and clumped across the station platform in his heavy hob-nailed high boots. "Now I'm on my way to make another pile, from a few stakings I have up there."

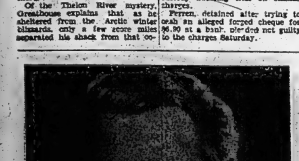
Of the Thelon River mystery, Greathouse explains that as he sheltered from the Arctic winter blizzards, only a few score miles separated his shack from that occupied by Hornby and the two English boys, but the intense cold kept them from regular communication.

Broke His Leg

"They starved to death," said Greathouse, squinting through eyes weakened by snow-blindness. "Early in the winter, Hornby broke his leg and couldn't move out to trail the caribou scattered over the barren tundras; and the two youngsters didn't know how to hunt. They just slowly starved to death."

Greathouse, a veteran of the north, has ranged the Arctic before Gilbert Labine first brought in Eldorado and put the Northwest Territories in the news of the Toronto Mining Exchange.

He wintered in the Athabasca area before ever gold brought on a rash of men from Athens, Athabasca Portal, Consolidated Mining and Smelting and other big companies.



An old friend of Hughes, he has been to Birch Island and seen the oil seepage there which has attracted organized capital for development, headed by an Edmonton syndicate.

Birch Island oil possibilities were first commercially discovered by a Norwegian, Nelson von Weyman, in 1920, and for two years drilling operations proceeded. Before that time the well has been understood. Hughes and Greathouse hope to see it come in this year as the drill is pounding on the top of the limestone dome which outcrops from the inland terrain. Birch Island is 45 miles up the Clearwater river from Fort McMurray.

Chatham, Ont., May 19.—(CP)—Roy Pepper, Sandwich Township, recently convicted on three charges of forgery and uttering forged documents and who claimed he was innocent, has been released on bail of $200. His release is an aftermath of the arrest of William A. Perren, Chatham Youth, now in custody awaiting trial on similar charges.

Perren, detained after trying to obtain an alleged forged cheque for $6.90 at a bank, decided not guilty to the charges Saturday.

ACTIVITIES OF RED CROSS TOLD BY DR. ROUTLEY

Great Work to be Done For Ex-Service Men Says Speaker

CURES EFFECTED

Red Cross activities in Ontario were graphically depicted to an interested group of Rotarians and guests at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte Monday by Dr. Fred W. Routley, of Toronto, a director of the Red Cross Association who has been active in the work for a number of years. Dr. Routley told the Rotarians that since the war the demands upon the Red Cross had increased to such an extent that it was difficult to deal with property. In the matter of ex-service men alone there was a great work to be done. Many Great War veterans by reason of their experiences in the war, partly if not wholly, were in dire distress. He told of the Christmas dinner given to ex-service men in Toronto by the Red Cross at which nearly one thousand veterans who really needed a meal were present. The Red Cross has started two service clubs, one in Toronto and one in London where ex-service men can find comfort, cleanliness and kindness at a cost of eleven dollars per month, With the memory of the Great War still a vivid one to many who look back on it, a number of our young men has grown up to whom the Great War is but hearsay, and facing them is the threat of a new war which the Red Cross must be prepared if such a world calamity occurs.

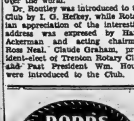
Miss Rason Mentioned

Reference was made to the recent mine incident in Nova Scotia, when 26 miners lost their lives. To-day, Money poured in to the Red Cross to the extent of $75,000 after the rescue without even an appeal having been made.

Hospital outposts in Northern Ontario were described by the speaker with the great good accomplished, also the hospital car presided by Miss C.H.N., and the Dental coach, which goes out into the highways and byways and hills of Northern Ontario to attend to the teeth of the children in those remote places. Great praise was given the gallant band of nurses who are fighting disease in the remote districts of the north country. Instances were given where pioneer children were saved from death or years of suffering through the efforts of the nurses of the Red Cross hospital outposts of the northland.

Twelve hundred miles from Toronto a young couple took up a bush farm fifteen years ago. A boy baby came. Then a cow was necessary to provide milk for the baby. A Red Cross nurse found the child suffering from spinal trouble. She indulged a doctor forty miles away to visit the child. Bovine tuberculosis from the milk of the cow. The parents knew nothing of the value of pasteurization. That child spent four and one-half years in the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto and is cured. Other similar cases were recited.

Two hundred and fifty-seven clinics were held in outpost hospitals last year and eminent medical specialists travelled many miles to be there and give their services free, in many cases not even accepting railway expenses.



Red Cross nurses are stationed in many cases over one hundred miles from anywhere and answer calls forty and fifty miles distant, on foot or by dog team, and never complain, doing a wonderful work. Seventy-five hundred children have been treated in these outpost hospitals and started on the royal road to health and good citizenship.

Tribute Paid Nurses

Dr. Routley paid a high tribute to the graduate nurses of Ontario who had contributed one million hours of their time instructing 32,000 women in home nursing and first aid.

Junior Red Cross work was eulogized by the speaker who outlined the great good possible from this movement which has spread all over the world.

Dr. Routley was introduced to the Club by I. G. Hefbey, while Rotarian appreciation of the interesting address was expressed by Harry Ackerman and acting chairman Ross Neal. Claude Graham, president-elect of Trenton Rotary Club, also paid a tribute. Wm. House, were introduced to the Club.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

Tomorrow "Rhodes"

Walter Huston, whose tremendous success with his play, "Dodsworth," has kept him too long absent from the screen, returns in the drama of "Rhodes, the Diamond Master," Empire Builder, Jungle Conqueror. This special production with the attraction commencing next Wednesday at the Capitol theatre.

The career of Cecil John Rhodes, the man who overcame sickness and poverty, who cornered the diamond markets of the world, who conquered savages, who brought civilization to the jungle, and who put his name on the map of South Africa, contains all the ingredients that should make for a great portrait by one of the screen's great actors.

Wealth From Diamonds

"Rhodes" recounts his life from the time he went to South Africa in search of health. At sixteen he had been given six months to live. A few months after his arrival diamonds were discovered in Kimberley. He and his brother went, and at nineteen Rhodes found himself financially independent and physically strong.

This miracle of health and wealth made him a rabid enthusiast for Africa. He became obsessed with the idea of conquest—of colonization and civilization. History wrote itself swiftly and dramatically in those days of one victory after another for the indomitable Rhodes. He needed money, not for himself, but for empire. He refounded the de Beers Mining Company, gained control of the Kimberley diamond mines and controlled the world output of diamonds.

He built telegraphs and railroads through the jungle. He was appointed Prime Minister of the Cape. He looked about for more territory, more wealth, more empire—and ran into Paul Kruger and a defeat that lost him all for which he had fought.

The story from which the picture was produced is based on Sarah Gertrude Millin's book "Cecil Rhodes." The adaptation is by Leslie Arliss and Michael Barringer and the dialogue by Miles Malleson.

$7,000 BLAZE AT GARDEN HILL

Village North of Port Hope At One Time Threatened to be Wiped Out

Garden Hill, Ont., May 19.—(CP)—Fire destroying a large frame building housing a grocery store, post office, assembly hall, a garage containing two automobiles, and two private garages nearby last night caused $7,000 damage. Garden Hill is 12 miles north of Port Hope.

Volunteer fire fighters were able to save the mail. The fire is reported to have started in a private garage when Clifton Hamill poured gasoline into an electric lighting plant. The gasoline exploded, igniting the garage and the large building owned by Austin Metallick. Hamill's left arm was badly burned in the blaze.

All the buildings were of frame construction. A bucket brigade was formed to save nearby houses and the Port Hope fire truck could not arrive.

AT THE ELLIS

"Three Three"

Samuel Goldwyn's new production, "Three Three", which brought Merle Oberon, Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea to the Belle screen last night, proved the most powerful and gripping drama to reach the screen in many months.

Offering all three stars the acting opportunities of their lives, brilliantly conceived by Lillian Hellman, famous Broadway playwright, magnificently produced and capably directed by William Wyler, "Three Three" held last night's audience breathless from the opening shot to the final fadeout.

There is something new to film fans in dramatic situations, knit together with a skill that results in smooth-paced and unforgettable entertainment. And Bonita Granville, the 13-year-old girl who plays spiteful school girl whose vicious lie motivated the story, is one of the great acting discoveries of motion picture history.

The story, briefly, depicts how the ugly lie invented by an unruly schoolgirl in a private girls' school involving her two teachers, Miriam and Merle, and the latter's dutiful fiance, Joel McCrea, brought disaster into their lives. Due to the resultant scandal, the school is lost, the romance broken and almost irreparable ruin and misery humiliation is visited upon these three innocent people, before the lie is brought to light.

Others who score in the uniformly brilliant cast are Alma Kruger, as Mary's grandmother; Catherine Doucet, as the silly, trouble-making aunt; Marcia Mae Jones, Carmencita Johnson, and Walter Brennan.

"Three Three" will be repeated again tonight, and Wednesday matinee and evening, with Latest News Flashes and a clever cartoon in full technicolor. You should not miss this program for it is truly grand entertainment!

Children's Talent Hour

On Thursday evening at 9 p.m. on the Belle theatre stage a special children's Talent Hour will be presented, when a grand array of juvenile talent will be presented. Variety is the spice of life, and careful care in the assembling of the bill has been taken to insure a properly balanced program. The Belle management are still accepting talent for this stage program. Any child having talent is requested at the Belle box office. Three prizes will be awarded, the first prize will be $3.00, 2nd prize $2.00, and third prize $1.00.

On the screen Henry Fonda and Margaret Sullavan in "The Moon's Our Home" the second feature attraction is George M. Cohan's famous stage success "Times Square Playboy," featuring Warren William, June Travis and Barton MacLane.

Lovely Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea co-starred in "Three Three", outstanding dramatic hit, at the Belle until Wednesday.

NO AWAKENING AMONG CHINESE

"Sleeping Pretty Soundly" Says Ferguson at New York

New York, May 18—(CP)—Declining to discuss reports he might be asked to succeed the leadership of the Conservative Party in Ontario, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Former Canadian High Commissioner to London, arrived here this morning with Mrs. Ferguson after a world cruise on the Empress of Britain.

His usual affable self, Mr. Ferguson dodged queries about Canadian politics by talking about other countries and nations.

The Union of South Africa, he predicted, would develop into one of the most prosperous countries in the world.

He was impressed by the way Japanese goods are flowing into all markets. "But oddly enough in Japan I saw rubber-soled shoes; a product which Japan is selling everywhere, marked 'Made in Canada.' Not being an expert I could not tell whether they actually were of Canadian make."

Visiting China, he said, makes it easier to understand the lack of resistance to Japanese inroads. With more than 20 distinct languages and innumerable dialects there is little co-ordination among the various sections.

"Then if the sleeping Chinese may some day wake up and by force of numbers, wipe out the Japanese," he continued. "But to me, it seems the Chinese are sleeping pretty soundly."

South Africa was one of the most fascinating countries he saw. He was especially impressed by the new steel works at Pretoria where practically all necessary metals may be mined within an area of 120 square miles.

"I'm so glad we have it back!"

"We thought going without a telephone would be easy economy. But we missed it . . . terribly. We were out of touch with friends, I couldn't reach the stores. With Ted at the office, I was lonely all day long.

"When we realized how much our telephone meant, we decided to have it back. Now we appreciate how inexpensive a telephone really is."

Jean tried to think clearly. Suppose she were to call Mr. Sturges up..... Tell him he would find a letter in his office..... Tell him he mustn't read it. He would want to know why..... He would come to her for an explanation. What reason could she give? Tell him the letter was here and that she wanted it back? No..... It probably would be addressed to Henri's writing. She might ask him ..... Tell him that his happiness depended upon not reading it. But what had she to do with Mr. Sturges's happiness? Nothing.

He was going to marry Blythe Cannon.

Jean had not supposed one could feel so utterly helpless. She tried to tell herself it was none of her affair, after all. If she said anything to Mr. Sturges, he would be sure to the conclusion that she was jealous. He would think..... think..... think.....

How it hurt to think. And yet..... there must be some solution. It must be found quickly. If only there were some one.....

Nan! Why hadn't she thought of that sooner? She could tell Nan Gamble anything..... Nan knew anything. And Nan always knew what to do about things.

Jean covered her drawing, snatched up her hat and ran for the stairs. No time to bother with the elevator. It was later than she had thought.

Suppose Nan had gone out!

x x x

"And what a rat he turned out to be," Miss Gamble observed cheerfully, after hearing a breathless account of Henri Delclerck's perfidy. The beauty shop proprietor, Jean's friend since her ad soliciting days, drank the last of her tea and pushed aside the empty cup. "There's a man for you." She wiped her lips, as if the final words precluded any further argument.

"But, Nan! We must do something to stop him! We've got to!"

Jean's face was drawn and pale. She had not taken time to remove her hat. To her intense relief she had found her friend enjoying a late supper in her small apartment after the close of the day. From a seat on the other side of the table she girl poured out her recital.

"Hey!" Nan elevated her brows. "Where do you get that 'we' stuff? It's nothing in my young life. Chauffeurs must have their fun, I suppose."

"But can't you understand? It will be dreadful for Mr. Sturges to find things out..... that way. It's so cowardly."

"Oh! It's Mr. Sturges. Well, why not let Mr. Sturges muddle out of it in his own way? What a laugh that gives me! That high-loved came having an affair with her truck driver. I'd give a month's pay if I could see old Spencer when he hears about it. He'll curl up and ....."

"Nan! There must be something we can do. It's getting late. Can't you think of a way?"

"Curfew shall not ring tonight, eh?" Nan suddenly dropped her bantering tone. "I don't get this at all, Gorgeous. If it was anybody else, I'd have a sneaking suspicion you wanted to get your hands on that letter for your good it might do you. It would give you a snappy comeback at the Cannon girl, all right."

"You know that isn't so, Nan!" There was a suspicious catch in Jean's voice as she made her denial.

"Sure. Forget it..... I was only kidding you. Come clean with your old pal. Why do you think you have to mess with this?"

"Because Mr. Sturges has been so nice to..... Daddy Jack. I don't know for sure, but I think he found him that place at the garage."

"Yeah? How come?"

"Mr. Sewart acted so embarrassed when I tried to thank him. Then I wondered still more when I found he has no car. Of course, he might know Mr. Ferris, but, I think Mr. Sturges arranged it all."

"Well, seeing you're dopey out ..... Maybe I shouldn't say it. But Mollie Ferris was up here one day, talking herself clean, and she told me as much. What else?"

"The day after the holdup, a lawyer came to see Daddy and fixed everything up so he could come home. He wouldn't take any fee.. .... He just said he was interested."

"Who was this Santa Claus?"

"Daddy said his name was Stinson."

Nan gave a low whistle.

"Somebody did grease that baby's palm! Old Elijah isn't that way. Not for a minute. Well... If you think you have the goods on the boy friend, thank him. Let it go at that."

Jean's brown eyes lowered.

"That's what makes me feel so badly, Nan. You see I told Mr. Sturges he'd better..... I told him not to come to the house any more."

"I get you..... but you do feel you ought to do him a return favor now."

"Yes."

"No other reason?"

"Of course not."

Nan looked searchingly into Jean's eyes.

"Gorgeous," she said softly, "as a little girl from the world's worst, I didn't think you cared that much, but ..... That's it, isn't it?"

"I..... I guess so." A scarcely audible whisper.

"There now....." Nan left her chair and came to Jean's side of the table to pass an arm affectionately about the girl's shoulders. "It's all right, old dear. Come along into the other room where it's more comfortable. This mess keeps me from thinking."

Stretched out in an easy chair, with her feet propped on a stool Miss Gamble proceeded to give the problem serious consideration.

"We won't lose any time by figuring a little," she assured the worried Jean. "As I get the plot, this Delclerck person intends to take it on the lam. That mean she'll plant the letter in the office tonight. If he isn't lying, he's done it already. The boy friend finds it in the morning. Check?"

"Oh, yes. That's it."

"I'm not going to let you make a sap out of yourself and I don't see yet where I can....."

"But there must be some way!"

"I remember that you said that before. We can't have that guy pinched..... Nothing to pin on him. If there was a good, dependable gangster in town, I'd have the little devil kidnaped. Anything to get that letter."

"I know!"

"Know what?"

"A plan. I should have thought of it sooner. I'll go down there tonight and get that letter! Don't you see?"

"You can't do that."

"Why not? Delclerck will think Mr. Sturges got it. He can't very well do anything about it then..... even if he tries. Besides, you know, he's leaving town and....."

"Hey! You're getting me all mixed. That doesn't sound so hot. You may get yourself in a jam."

"No, I won't. I often go in at night to work. I can slip up to Mr. Sturges' office and.....

"And somebody'll catch you. You might even run into Delclerck. Too many things can happen."

"I'll have to take a chance. I'll use the stairs and keep an eye out for the watchmen and elevators. I'll be careful and..... I have to do it!"

"Okay. I reckon I can't stop you. Want me to go with you?"

"I think it would be safer for me to be alone. I'll stay here with you until..... about nine. By that time, I think I'll have to bother with anybody but the watchmen."

"That don't like it. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'm going as far as the store and hang around until you come out. Don't worry. I won't give you away. But I'll have the jitters if I have to sit here wondering what's happened. That's settled."

"All right." Jean drew a quivering breath. "It sounds like a movie or something, doesn't it?" she asked with a shaky laugh.

"Nobody ever wrote a scenario that dumb," was the ungracious retort.

Two squares From The Iron Block, Nan Gamble took reluctant leave of Jean.

"I'll circulate around a bit and pick you up when you come out," she explained. "Don't be any longer than you can help, darling. Listen. You know the drug store, just across the avenue?"

"Evans', you mean."

"Look for me in there, if I don't meet you before. I'll be taking an ammonia bracer. You'll be ready for one yourself."

"All right."

"You'll watch your step, Gorgeous?"

"Of course. Don't worry."

"Sure I'll worry! Don't waste any time up there and..... good luck."

There was a call ball at one of the avenue entrance doors that summoned a watchman to admit any of the office forces or workers whose duties brought them to the store after closing time. Jean occasionally was one of the number and she congratulated herself that her appearance now would cause no comment.

To her relief, she found the door open. One of the watchmen was seated just inside, "getting a breath of fresh air," he explained; as Jean entered with a friendly nod and smile.

"Can't you folks get your work done in the daytime?" he grumbled good-naturedly.

"Hot, quite," she answered cheerfully. "It's only for a few minutes this time." She was hurrying on when he hailed her.

"Oh, Miss Sawyer!"

"Yes?" It was difficult to keep her voice steady.

"If you'll wait a minute, Johnston will be going up to punch his stations. You can ride to the fourth and save yourself a climb."

Jean thought rapidly. That was a good idea. It would establish the fact she had gone directly to the little studio. She could keep track of the watchman, too.

"Oh, thanks. I'll wait."

She helped herself to a seat on one of the glove counter chairs, assuming an air of indifference she was far from feeling.

"I go to the top and work down," Johnston explained, as he ushered his passenger into an elevator a few moments later. "Fourth, isn't it?"

"Please."

MANY CASES HEARD

Traffic Officers Checking Up on Speeders on Highways

Trenton, May 19.—(Special)—Many cases appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, at yesterday afternoon's session. John Crews pleaded not guilty to a charge of speeding on Highway No. 2 in the Township of Sidney. Traffic Officer Delaney in his evidence, declared that Crews was going at a greater rate of speed than thirty-five miles an hour, when entering the City of Belleville, although he was not able to check his speed there-about, as he had been assigned to another zone by the Belleville traffic radio, he noted down the number and after attending to his other duties he returned to Belleville to find the car. He recognized the number of the car on Front St., in Belleville and, when pulling up alongside of the driver, he was told long that Mr. Crews had his arm around a young lady. The Crown said that Mr. Crews' driving had been charged with reckless driving, for no one should drive in that manner. Mr. Crews in his evidence told the court that he was not travelling over a greater rate of speed than 30 miles per hour on the Highway and when entering the city he slowed down to twenty-five. "Twenty miles an hour is the speed to drive in the city," exclaimed Mr. Crews. Mr. Crews produced a witness, whose evidence was to the same as he had only heard Mr. Crew tell him, and he had slowed down to 30, on entering the city. The Magistrate found the accused guilty on the evidence and fined him $5.00 and $2.34 costs. On default, fifteen days. When asked when he could pay the fine he told the Magistrate that he was only making two dollars a week and did not know, when he could settle. The Magistrate gave him until May 30th to pay.

A traveller for a Toronto firm was assessed $5.00 and $2.35 costs for speeding.

Thomas A. Fulton paid $6.00 and $2.35 costs on one speeding charge and $10.00 and $2.35 on another charge of speeding. The latter was on the 30th of May and the former on the second of May. Magistrate Butler said that "there was no excuse for anyone breaking the speed limit in so short a time". On default he will spend twenty-five days in jail. Ten days were dealt out on the first count and fifteen days on the second.

An out-of-town man paid $6.75 into the Court for speeding.

The Campbell Construction Company paid $5.00 fine and $6.46 costs, as one of their trucks was driven on Dundas street at the rate of forty miles an hour.

A Marmora man, who should have appeared in court on the 11th of May, was found guilty of reckless driving, on the evidence of Traffic Officer Delaney. Mr. Delaney stated, that he received a 'phone call from Stirling telling him of a car travelling towards Belleville at a great rate of speed. He said that he received the 'phone call at 7.15 p.m. and that he met the car on the limits of Belleville 14 minutes later. He also checked, that the man had told him that he made the forty mile trip from Marmora in forty minutes. Although the man did not drive recklessly, the charge was based on speed and he was assessed $10.00 and $2.35 costs. On default he will spend fifteen days in common jail. His license was suspended for one week.

A News-Service man appeared on a charge of driving a motor vehicle in a manner dangerous to the public. He pleaded guilty and on giving his explanation he declared that he was travelling along at a moderate rate of speed until he went to pass the car in front of him. He then noticed the policeman about five hundred yards ahead. When he was alongside of the other car it sported ahead and in order to keep from running into the car and the traffic officer coming toward him, he stepped on the gas and passed the car. He said that it was the only way in which he could have avoided an accident. He was also charged with failing to produce his license and paid $1.00 fine and $2.35 and had his license suspended for one week. Mr. Delaney also charged the owner of the car, but the charge was withdrawn as there was no evidence.

A local man appeared on a charge of neglecting to send his children to school. He pleaded guilty of the charge and as his reason for not sending one of his children was that his boy did not have shoes and that his pride was too great to attend without them. He has been on relief for three years and do not get enough to buy shoes for the family". The Magistrate told the man that his children were being deprived of something, that they were entitled to get again. The case was enlarged for one month and at the end of that time the Crown would see how the attendance of the children was. The Truant Officer told the court that the children were just a bother all the time.

Another local man appeared on the same charge. He pleaded guilty and told the court that the reason his children did not attend school was that one of them was sick for one month during the winter and that the other had to look after his sick mother. The Crown enlarged his case for one month and at the end of that time they will check their attendance.

Fred Clark appeared in evidence before the Magistrate, four months previous he had pleaded guilty to a charge of theft. Before the Magistrate could deal out the sentence, Clark said: "If you are going to give me two or three months I will do that time myself, make it mine." Seeing that the man did not want to go to Belleville jail the Magistrate put sentence off and not less than three months or more than two years in Kingston Penitentiary. Clarke was then brought before the court and he said: "You wouldn't believe it, you were never in it." The Crown, replied with: "I spend a lot of time around there". and "you are not out there to enjoy yourself". Fred Clark had formerly a number of strides from the Provincial Industrial School.

His brother, William Clark, appeared on a charge of stealing articles from the airport. He pleaded guilty to the charge. His disciplinary boy record was read before the court and is as follows:—1918, Dundas, Ontario, Reformatory, Lad, a ward of the Children's Aid Society, Belleville, Ontario and keeper, Mrs. Ida Sharpe, sent to school, Mimico, November 26, 1919. On October 1918, 1919, sent from Industrial School. Sometime in 1920, Colorado; he spent thirteen days in jail for vagrancy. In 1921, at Lewiston, Pa., he spent ten days in jail for vagrancy. In 1922, at Detroit, Mich., he received a sentence of from two to five years in the Ionia State Reformatory for breaking and entering. In 1925 he was released in custody to immigration officials at Niagara Falls, Ontario. In 1926 he was given one year for theft, under the name of William H. Clarke. In 1927, Lister to 1927 he spent ten days in jail in Toronto for indecent exposure. In 1928, at Portland, Oregon, from 1927, he spent three months in jail in Pueblo, Colorado for being drunk and disorderly. In 1929, at Marinette, Wisconsin, he spent ten days in jail for disorderly conduct. From Lake 1, 1929 to Green, Wisconsin, he spent ten days in jail for drunkenness. In 1930, January 24th, at Appleton, Wisconsin, he received a sentence of from one to February and on the 26th, 1932, he was turned over to the Steven's Point, Wisconsin Police Department, where he was wanted on a burglary charge. He was released on his sentenced to from one to three years in the State Prison at Waupun, Wisconsin. When the Crown finished reading out the long record, Clark broke in with: "You will be down to the Airport I had thought about going straight". "You will be two or three years", replied the Crown. William Clark replied that the Court how he had just found his parents, when he had not been able to locate the same. The Magistrate said that, "it was not right for a man to come from all over the country committing one crime after another and to be dealt with lightly". He sentenced Clark to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

A local man also appeared on a charge of disorderly conduct and assaulting his wife, while being under the influence of liquor, had his case remanded until the 19th of May as he told the Court he had a job and it was the only way that he could pay the Court the penalty which they will impose and the debt which he has owed the Court since 1932 on a similar charge. The Crown remanded the case on the grounds of seeing if the accused were sincere.

Another local man appeared charged with assaulting his wife. His case was dismissed as his wife would not give evidence against him. She said, that the reason she would not give evidence against her husband was because of her children. "If you are found guilty of assaulting your wife you will receive two years in Kingston", the Magistrate were the words which the Crown said to accused.

Softball In Under Way

At Bayshore Park last night the Trenton and District Softball League officially opened with the Hinde and Dauch defeating the Whittall Cans by the score of 8 to 6. The pitching of Gordon was very steady and with his team mates batting timely the Whittalls were held tight. Both teams showed very good form although several errors were made during the first few innings. Harold Long was credited with knocking the first home run of the season. It came in the second innings at his first time at bat. Dorry put one over the grove and Long strolled it out in the right field corner. For the Hinde and Dauch, Stemberg scored three runs, Anderson two, MacMillan, and and Roberts one. For the Whittall Cans, Long, Gray, Ball, Johnson, Miller and Coughlin, each attributed a run to make their six. Ball started out for the Whittalls but was relieved by Chambers in the fourth. Hinde and Dauch batteries were Jeff Kidd and three off Chambers. Derry held the Whittall in check during all innings except the second when Whittalls scored two off his delivery. Final score:—

PURCHASER PAYS TAX INCREASE ON EARLY CONTRACTS

Western Members Charge Higher Price Paid For Cars Than in East

Bennett Charges Discrimination Shown in Exemptions Announced

Ottawa, May 19.—(CP)— The House of Commons will continue to deal item by item with the Tariff changes in the 1936 Budget today. First of the changes was approved last night along with six other tax changes, including the new eight per cent. sales tax.

When the increase in the sales tax because law, provision was made to protect sellers of goods, who had made contracts prior to the time the increase, became effective for delivery of goods afterwards. Such sellers are authorized to collect an amount equivalent to the tax increase from the purchaser and remit the amount to the government.

The special Excise Tax of five per cent on automobiles costing $650 or more also passed but not before Western members charged there was discrimination against the West in manner of collecting it and the Sales Tax.

West Paying Is Charge

It was charged by Hon. H. H. Stevens (Vancouver-Kootenay), O. G. McGeer (LD., Vancouver-Burrard), Gordon Rose (LD., Moose Jaw and others that the West paid a higher price than the East when the manufacturer had an assembling plant in Winnipeg, Regina or Vancouver. The rate imposed the freight was added when cars were shipped in knocked-down condition to the assembling plant and taxes levied on the increased figure.

This acted as a perpetual handicap to Western industry, Mr. Stevens said. Freight rates acted as a protection to Eastern manufacturers.

Finance Minister Dunning quoted from the Tariff Board report on the automobile industry to show the Sales Tax was constant across Canada, although freight charges varied. There was also a constant fall delivery price for all Canada on a car built in the East.

Sales tax never could be equitable, when it was collected on a factory price basis, Mr. Stevens said, and it was futile to try and correct it in a country 3,500 miles wide.

Claimed Discrimination Shown

Mr. Bennett charged discrimination in exemptions from the sales tax, declaring that the government had exempted from the tax articles which were used by the rich, but had not exempted articles used by the poor.

Mr. Dunning replied that the government had exempted articles which were used by the poor, but had not exempted articles used by the rich.

NEW ANGLE ON SMALL MYSTERY IS SWORN TO

Gordon H. Bray of Belleville Elected Baptist Moderator

Thomas on Stand Denies He Ever Knew Two Men; Is Heard Second Time

VERGOTTIS ON STAND

Witness Expresses View Dr. Hearn Entirely Unbalanced

London, May 20 (AP)—Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas voluntarily went to the witness stand for the second time and denied in two minutes of testimony that he knew any of three men who mentioned his name in connection with an alleged bank hoax.

Thomas walked to the stand a few minutes after P. Vergottis, a financier, said it was a "fabricated lie" that he ever made such a statement. Dr. Reginald J. Hearn testified yesterday Vergottis said he could get information from the cabinet and mentioned Thomas' name.

Never Knew Vergottis.

Thomas was asked, "Do you know Vergottis?"

"I never heard his name and never saw him in my life till I heard him speaking a few moments ago," the Colonial Secretary replied.

"Do you know Dr. Hearn?"

"No, sir."

The cabinet minister, who told the tribunal last week he was anxious to "clear my name and the honor of my son", said Vergottis had no means of approach to him.

Thomas also denied that after getting to presiding Justice Porter said:

"You'll understand how painful it was when other Ministers of the Crown said and when I said last night that people were quoting my name whose names I don't know and I've never heard before."

Thomas, visibly shaken, left the courtroom, holding the arm of his wife.

Thomas' counsel, J. W. Morris, starting the round of asking and answering, said the only client was "entitled to be cleared of all imputations."

Testimony As To Party.

Although the inquiry had completed its original list of witnesses yesterday, Mr. Justice Porter gave Vergottis permission to answer Dr. Hearn's testimony. Vergottis was the climax of the three days' examination of the physician-barrister and the Vergottis-Hearn-Thomas affair.

Vergottis denied emphatically "anything whatever was mentioned about the budget or anything in connection with the bank at the dinner or afterward.

"It is simply a fabrication and a lie that Hearn has constructed in order to get it appear that I had a closer reason than that he thinks he has a grievance against me and Savaglians."

Thinks Doctor Unbalanced.

Vergottis said the dinner meeting with Hearn several months ago, he came to the conclusion the doctor was "entirely unbalanced", and passed along word that he did not want to see him again.

Questioned by Thomas' counsel, Vergottis said, he never had had any conversation with Thomas, don't remember him at all, "never met him and never spoken a word to him in my life."

Morris, in his address to the tribunal, said "the voice of uninformed gossip has no passport to judicial mind."

He referred to Thomas' sale of his autobiography to Bales, a sports paper publisher, for £30,000 (about $150,000) and added:

"What does it matter to his country or the world whether Thomas got that particular price for his autobiography or not?"

SECOND CROSSING OF ZEP COMPLETED IN 78 HRS. 27 MINS.

Landing at Lakehurst, N. J. Effected Without Incident

FEW SEE LANDING

Ship Will Not Be Put in Hangar But Left At Mooring Mast

Lakehurst, N.J., May 20 (AP)— The German dirigible Hindenburg completed the second crossing of the North Atlantic in 78 hours 27 minutes.

The landing was effected without incident. At seven o'clock, the first landing lines were dropped from the great airship's nose and seconds later other lines were dropped from the stern. The ground crew quickly pulled the seppelin to the ground.

Only a few persons were present at the arrival.

At 11:30 o'clock, the ship was safely tied up at the outdoor mooring mast which a quarter mile from the hangar. Plans were to remain outside during its scheduled brief stay, with inspection and refueling conducted at the mast.

The Hindenburg's crossing was nearly 17 hours slower than its record inaugural trip when it reached Lakehurst 8 hours 17 minutes after leaving its home port. It started from Frankfort on the Main, Germany, at 12:35 a.m., E.D.T., Sunday.

Reached Heavy Winds.

The zeppelin had bucked heavy head winds during its tran-Atlantic cruise and was a day late as a result.

Westerly winds with a velocity of 17 miles per hour prevailed at the air station this morning but the ground was free of snow and no difficulty in keeping the ship under control.

Lieutenant Commander John M. Thierens, who made the return trip on the Hindenburg as a U.S. navy observer, said the lad had a "nice trip".

"There's best thing about it was the landing," he added. "That was a very fancy landing in that wind."

Commander Lehmann, of the Hindenburg skipper, said after the mooring that head winds on return "could not be avoided because ocean weather must be as fully encountered for airship transatlantic flights."

Lieutenant Howard T. Orville, Lakehurst air station aerologist and meteorologist, said conditions agreed.

"We used more ship reports," he said, "and more international cooperation."

Officers of the passengers, Wilbur Pitt of Baltimore, said the ship rolled more than 30 degrees in the lit Monday. He said it regained its equilibrium quickly and added most passengers were alarmed.

As soon as the ship was docked, a ladder was lowered to the mast and hydrogen hoses in an effort to have the airship ready to take off for its home port in eight hours.

The Hindenburg was to establish a regular transatlantic air-ground, leaving tonight in accordance with its regular schedule.

Heard Threat to Throw A. Small Into Furnace Testifies Thos. Shields

Says Theatre Magnate at Drinking Party on Night of Death

NEVER TOLD POLICE

Kept Secret Since 1919 Until Week Ago, When Friend Told

Toronto, May 20.—(CP)—Thomas Shields, theatre manager, today declared before special examiner Thomas T. Rolph, he had heard a man threaten to throw Ambrose Small, missing theatre magnate, into the furnace during a drinking party December 2, 1919, in the basement of the Grand Opera House. He was testifying regarding affidavits he made concerning Small's disappearance and the drinking spree.

The drinking party, he said, occurred on the night of December 2, 1919, according to his recollections.

Information as to what they had been able to obtain indicated Small was last seen on the afternoon of that day.

"God knows, I don't," he replied. "I thought they were business men. They might have been talking about a business deal. I wasn't bothering. I just went down to have a drink. The man who took me down seemed to be afraid. He didn't take any part in the discussion."

"Was there something Ambrose Small said," he was asked.

"No, those what don't a man said to Small that got me," Shields replied. He described the boiler room and the coal door of the furnace, he said, projected from one wall of the room.

"How do you fix the date?"

"There was a tremendous amount of talk about it," Shields replied.

"That is the best guess you can make?"

"Yes, I don't think I made any mistake."

Shields who said he was 71 years of age and a bachelor said he knew Small "just to say hello" but that he had seen him often. At the time of the banquet Dr. Bell, he added, Small wore a slouch hat—"A fedora, he was a cowboy."

Shields said he could not remember whether Small wore a light or dark overcoat. He did not think, although he couldn't swear to it, that Small wore the municipality of Toronto.

He had never been in the Grand Opera House boiler room before or since the night in question.

Waterfront Residents Puzzled To Identify the 'Serpent'

Some Think It May be an Alligator That Recently Escaped

SWIMMERS ARE WARY

While scattered searchers early last evening and today haunted the vicinity where Belleville residents yesterday on the bay shore, means and methods of catching or netting the Loch Ness monster, "Nessie" were being discussed today by waterfront residents, only a few of whom admitted "seeing was believing" in regard to the intriguing, unidentified reptile declared observed by two local youths on Tuesday.

Yard sticks, rules and what you might happen to run across in that bay, I've fished there half my life and I've netted a lot of funny things," observed one doughty fisherman. "I've netted newts and lizards that looked like dragons, that's all they were, but so far I haven't been able to drag onto one twenty yard seine."

Supposition advanced by one waterfront resident that the strange reptile reported observed was one of a pair of alligators who escaped custody when the circus left Belleville and believed to have found their way to the bay was also pondered by a few.

"Personally I wouldn't be surprised if what the boys saw was a limit of carp in the woods, with the first fish in the swirling intelligence test of the water," declared Mr. Jon Goyer, local guide and fisherman.

Couldn't Be Carp.

But to that: "Carp don't twist themselves up in 30-foot lengths, they don't rear out of the water to spit and hiss and then lie there and watch you. Carp wouldn't let you get that close to them, carp don't have heads like dragons', double affirm Mr. Mulvihill and Mr. Babcock who first sighted the reptile.

In the meantime, bathers who have been using that location during the hot weather, especially the approximate location at which conflicting reports of the monster's size has been mooted by some members of the council and the local Chamber of Commerce are now refreshed religiously from returning to the water.

Amateur camera enthusiasts loaded with telescopes and film have been haunting the bay shore.

"And I think I'll get a harpoon and be ready for him if he comes up this way," observed Harbor Master Robert Goode, this morning.

LOCAL BAPTISTS ARE REPRESENTED

Convention at Cobourg Attracts Forty From Belleville

Members of the B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church of this city, are going to Cobourg, tonight as a group to attend the special young people's session of the 134th annual Convention of Baptist Churches in the Peterborough Association. Around forty are expected to make the trip which will be in charge of the local president, Mr. Lorne Andrews. The contingent will travel by cars. One of the main objects of the local Union this year will be to bring back recognition the banner which is always given to the B.Y.P.U. that has the largest representation present. With regard to this the number of miles travelled by each Union play a prominent part in the final verdict. The local Union captured the banner last spring at Peterborough, but it was taken away from them by Cobourg, at the Fall session which was held in Belleville.

At the special young people's service the election of officers for the B.Y.P.U.'s in the Association will take place. Lengthy and varied discussions will take place by the members present that will deal essentially with B.Y.P.U. problems of any kind with the freedom to give any viewpoints on how they may improve and be made more interesting, what course of study has proved most popular, and methods of increasing membership, what Bible work was followed throughout the season. All these viewpoints and questions and many more will be given full consideration and with very exacting thoroughness.

Rev. A. G. Sinclair is attending the Convention. Other delegates are, Mrs. Fred Cook, Mrs. John Lloyd, Mrs. Albert Blackburn, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Sinclair, Miss Smith Mrs. A. Wells, Mr. O. Bray.

Yesterday afternoon Trenton police received a call from Bonter's Jewellery store telling them, that someone had stolen a clock and golden watch without being noticed. Police went to the jewellery store and found an employee of the Ringling Bros. Shows in the shop. He had taken his watch from the store to have the crystal fixed and two of his fellow workers had followed him to the store. Mr. Bonter was out and when the jeweller looked around he found that the clock was the only valuable clock which was there in Mr. Bonter's absence. The clock appeared. ZEPPELIN MAIL LETTERS ARRIVE

Belleville Brothers Treasure First Stamps of Zep

Masters' Billie and Freddie Gordon, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon of 30 Cedar Street, are proud owners of letters received, yesterday, from Germany. These letters were sent to America by way of the zeppelin "Hindenburg" on its recent cruise to Brazil.

The letters were mailed to Billie and Freddie by a Mrs. Hilde Minthe and Hindenburg by personal friend of Mrs. Gordon's sister, Miss Elsie Hudson, Reg. N., of York City an aunt of the boys. On the new envelope is affixed a German air mail stamp, sold at approximately 75 cents. Then too the beautiful perennial flower beds throughout the country side came in for their share of frost, and only the hardiest ones were frozen over though they were covered with snow during the night. The beds simply had their tender heads. Water froze to a depth of one inch and but little moisture is left in the fits of many of the oldest residents.

SELF-INTEREST ATTACKED

Self-interest colors every man's judgment, Rev. Dr. Paul Scherer declared at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, New York, on Sunday. Every practical plan for unemployment relief and social security would have to run the gamut of "the instinctive hostility of all privileged classes" as well as of keen analysis.

"Those in power will always want to perpetuate themselves, and whatever concession they make to the so-called masses will be partly with an eye to that. Those not in power will likely become crusaders for this or that or something else, not because they are exercised about the problem of human need, but because they are exercised about their own condition and the stake they have in the future. Christianity, no doubt, is all right but even in a world like ours we don't want it to upset anything.

"Now it is precisely this lifting of expediency about truth that betrays all the professions we make of belief in God. Whether we are teachers and on such subjects as war and international peace we'd better by the system instead of encouraging the coming generation to stick by its conception of what is right; or ministers who are afraid of biting the hand that feeds them, and so soft-pedal all they have to say that might matter; or business men who decide in case of doubt that it is better to take the side the bread is buttered on: if we find ourselves in one of these categories, walking rather by our own judgments than by any attempt we have made to discover the judgments of God. Then let's be frank and say that for us too, Christianity has become an empty thing.

"What we need before we can ever be truly Christian is the great perspective of eternity.

"Life is the master enigma of the world," said Rev. Dr. John Gass, rector of the P. E. Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue. "Whether it came, what it is, whither it goes, are the deepest and most profound questions which philosophy or science or religion ever faced—and the answer to them always ends in mystery."

He said that man's quest for eternal life is not a desire to experience a succession of days but rather for the quality of life.

"The cynical view is the real antagonism in the world," the Rev. Dr. R. W. Searle, asserted at Columbia University Chapel. "That cynical view is made easier by the magnitude of the task we face, of the rapidly increasing population. We might call this the 'bigger and better age'. There is utter folly in the bigger and better ideal. There are some people who measure all things by quantity and size." He asked which is greater the Empire State building or the mind of the architect who conceived it? Cynicism and idealism — these two forces are struggling for the life of every human being."

Rev. Henry F. Hammer, assistant rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, said communism is a thing now being attempted to burn Rome. He asked the faithful to awaken to the real danger which confronts them. He called upon the individual to be energetic about putting into action the word of God. "Take a walk up Columbus Circle and see there the lay apostles of communism preaching a gospel of creature comforts to men and women who are starving for spiritual nourishment. Walk up Broadway and see on every other street corner a soap box orator preaching the same story. Go out of the city, out of the state and in all parts of the country you will find men burning with zeal against Christ and His dictrone. Last week the Pope twice sounded the alarm against communism.

"Most of us are just spiritual sloths, sluggards, and spiritual sloth makes a captive of our soul. I wonder what would happen if Christ walked down the aisle of this cathedral, stopped at every pew and, calling each of you by name, asked as He asked His apostles in the garden "Are you asleep?" I think most of you would have to answer yes." His word on to say that the need was for more docile listening to the word of God and defined a Christian man as "meek and humble, chaste and charitable, honest and honorable, patient and long suffering and figuring out what Christ would do, in a particular circumstance of life and then doing it."

The man who can make two ears of corn or two blades of grass grow on the spot where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and render more essential service to the country, than the whole race of politicians put together. —Dean Swift.

I hate all bungling as I do sin, but particularly bungling in politics, which leads to the misery and ruin of many thousands, and millions of people.—Goethe.

YESTERDAY AND TO-DAY

It seems like only yesterday that winter winds blew chill
And the frost laid icy fingers on Lowland and on hill,
But lo! to-day the world is green and gay with sights untold
And from a sky of azure the sun is dropping gold.

It seems like only yesterday the lake was clothed in mail,
The little brooks were voiceless and loud the winter gale;
But now the lake is limpid, now sings the silver stream
While showers of limpid music pour from the hills of dream.

It seems like only yesterday the frost held earth in thrall—
King Winter swayed his sceptre o'er cottage and o'er hall—
But now the maple blushes and down the valley comes
In glory gleams of sunshine resounds the robin's strain.

It seems like only yesterday the hand of sorrow lay
With heavy weight upon the heart where now but joy holds sway
So, in eternal Springland, beyond life's sunset glow,
The storm and strife of yesterday will pass like winter's snow.

MONDAY IS A PUBLIC HOLIDAY, the 24th of May, the Queen's Birthday—honoring good Queen Victoria who abdicated her earthly throne some years ago but ever reigneth from a Heavenly throne and in the hearts of those who were her loving subjects on earth. The first summer holiday means a busy week-end for the merchants. Extra food supplies will have to be provided for the holiday, arrangements for picnics, as well as dressing up for the holiday, seeing that cameras, films etc., are ready for the outing, besides getting the car ready for that first real summer outing. What a busy time for the housewife getting ready for the holiday, for of course, hubby is no good at that kind of thing.

WRITING A DAILY COLUMN is not all cheers and chickles. Humanity being what it is there must always be differences of opinion. If it were a spice of life, that's why the Creator formed many men with many minds, only with some He added the saving grace of admitting that an opposing opinion might have some merit or at least was conceived in honesty of purpose. This column is no exception to the rule and is occasionally the object of opinion, favorable or otherwise. In this case welcome because it evidences reader interest. If the column can stir up folks to an active interest in any question, whether favored by the column or not, it is regarded as an evidence of reader interest. Barnum was not so far wrong when he said that he did not care what folks said about him as long as they said something. Folks seldom fight over a corpse. Then there are the dear souls who swear by the column, and even if they disagreed with some things would rather sweetly reason their opinion than loudly attack, sputter and fume. They are the salt of the earth and may their tribe increase and flourish. However, the column generally tries to avoid contentious subjects in the endeavor to try and spice life with enough humor to help weary ones over the rough places. If then we can amuse, and help occasionally, the people, the common people like ourselves, just run-of-the-mill folks—common folks, who Abraham Lincoln is said to have said THE LORD MUST HAVE LOVED 'EM HE MADE SO MANY OF 'EM— we shall be satisfied.

However, the police calls are too brief to cause much trouble.

South African Success Built Upon Diamonds

Amazing Life Story of Cecil Rhodes And The Empire He Built Upon Diamonds—History's Strangest Character Who Out-witted And Out-played Oom Paul Kruger

From fine immemorial the bedrock of diamonds has fascinated men. From India, the cradle-land of precious stones, from the mines of the world's strangest adventurers and diamonds as the lure, setting tools to found an Empire in South Africa. And this, too, is the chronicle upon which Hollywood has based its new film production "Rhodes," starring Walter Huston.

Rhodes a Diamond Master

But perhaps in modern times, the most fascinating and vivid story of diamonds is that of the Kimberley Diamond Fields. This was the rum-packed, glassed-in crate-set upon which was enacted the life-story of Cecil Rhodes. This was the new Golconda, the Ophir of the world's strangest adventurers and diamonds as the lure, setting tools to found an Empire in South Africa. And this, too, is the chronicle upon which Hollywood has based its new film production "Rhodes," starring Walter Huston.

From the Indian mines, in fact, have emerged some of history's most famous and largest diamonds. Actually, all the diamonds found over thirty carats, which have been seen or reported, probably number less than four hundred. Diamonds of such size are treasured by the world's great art connoisseurs and collect Rembrandts and Michelangelos. Most of them are curiously curtained in mystery and are trade marked with tales of bloodshed, intrigue, skullduggery, etc.

One of the most exotic diamonds known is the Hope Blue, a famous colored stone, with a reputation for being a hoodoo to its owners. The Hope appeared in London in 1812 without a name. Its brilliant, minutely square cut, of 44½ carats, and has a pronounced blue sheen — a rarity in diamonds. When Henry T. Hope, a London banker, acquired it in 1830, it became known as the Hope Diamond. In 1906, it was acquired by Edward B. McLean, who sold it to Ralph for a reputed price of $300,000. The only known flaw in the stone is a flawless gem is that it was originally part of a blue diamond weighing 111 1-4 carats in the rough, and that its counterpart figures in the incredible jewel robbery of the Garde Meuble robbery in 1792.

3106 Carats Sent by Mail

But the prima donna of the Kimberley diamonds of today is the Cullinan. When it was first discovered in the Premier mine, South Africa, it weighed 3106 carats—one and one-half pounds—and looked like a Turkish Taffy. It was named in honor of Sir Thomas Cullinan, president of the premier Mining Company. Then it was sold to the government of the Transvaal for $750,000 and in turn presented to King Edward VII. It is interesting to note that this gem, which was worth a King's ransom, was sent by registered parcel post in a box with a dollar's worth of stamps.

Experts agree that the remarkably beautiful jewel as that not a single ray would be lost from the phenomenal surface when presented to the House of Asscher in Amsterdam. Real cutting could not be begin until 1908, after months and months of study and scrutiny. Then the famous brilliant was split into three pieces and expertly divided into a hundred glamorous gems. The two largest of these are now the largest cut diamonds in the world.

The largest is still known as the Cullinan I, is a gorgeous pear-shape of 530 carats and adorns the English sceptre. The second, the Cullinan II, of 309 carats, is mounted in the Imperial State Crown. Another beautiful stone cut from the Cullinan are a pendeloque of 94 carats, and a square brilliant of 63. All are flawlessly crystal-clear, and of fine blue-white lustre. They are cut in facets around the British Crown jewels in the Tower of London.

The third largest of known finished diamonds is the sparkling Jubilee, cut from a 650 carat stone found on a South African farm in

LEFT AN D RIGHT CLASH AGAIN I N SPAIN

1896. It is considered a perfect brilliant, weighs 650 carats, and derives its glamorous title from the fact that it was cut during the year of Queen Victoria's Jubilee celebration in London.

S. Africa Built on Diamond

The Star of South Africa, found in 1869 and bought by a British man from a native witch-doctor, was the gleaming facet which kindled Rhodes's imagination and started the saga of the Kimberley Diamond Field. The London purchasers cut it to a fine oval, threesided brilliant of 46¼ carats. It was bought by the Duchess of Dudley, who had it mounted on a tiara. Upon the discovery, a British colonial official said sixty-five years ago:

"This diamond, gentlemen, is the rock upon which the future success of South Africa will be built."

His prophecy came to pass. For following this discovery, money, prospectors, fortune hunters, and a whole melange of humanity surged into this corner of Africa and began the first chapter in the history of the Kimberley adventure as well as in the meteoric rise of Cecil John Rhodes.

VICTORIA TIMES' EDITOR DIES

Victoria, May 20 (CP)—The editorial chair of R. C. Nicholas was vacant in the Victoria Times today as tributes poured in to the memory of the noted Canadian journalist who died yesterday from a cardiac attack. He was 55 years old.

Government leaders in Ottawa and Victoria, seat of the British Columbia legislature, and the newspaper world at large mourned his sudden loss. Death occurred in his Times office as final editions of the paper were running off the press.

While his illness had not been good of late, Mr. Nicholas was considered a political career. He had indicated his willingness to stand for the Liberal nomination in the forthcoming election in Victoria.

Only nine days ago Robert J. Scott, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, died here of a similar seizure.

Mr. Nicholas and Mr. Cromie were among the best-known journalists in Canada, a position each held personally.

Mr. Nicholas was born in Virginia City, Nev., but moved here with his parents at the age of six. After graduating from high school he came to the Times and when William Templeton, publisher of the paper, became a cabinet minister under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Nicholas went with him to Ottawa as private secretary.

He remained at Ottawa until 1911, and returned to become city editor of the Times. In 1917 he was appointed editor.

LETHAL CHAMBER FOR EXECUTIONS FURTHER STUDIED

Called More Humane And Efficient Than Hanging — House Told

CENTRAL DEPOT

Estimate For Cadet Training Carried by Large Majority

Ottawa, May 20 (CP)— Canada's militia services are reasonably efficient, having regard to the population of the country and the amount of money spent on them, the House of Commons was told last night as it turned thumbs down on a Co-operative Commonwealth Federation attempt to curtail expenditure on military training.

Grant MacNeil (C.C.F., Vancouver North), an ex-soldier, brought his military experience to support his pacifist colleagues in an attack on the Department of National Defence. He said the training given the non-permanent active militia was obsolete and would be of no use in any modern war. He also charged the militia was top-heavy.

Re-organization of the militia is now under consideration, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, told the House. He resented alighting of remarks by a few of militia officers many of whom were giving up their time and money to serve in a public service in the training of young men.

John Some Units

Some progress, had been made, he said, in reducing the number of units by joining units together. The whole subject of re-organization was receiving attention but the efficiency of the service was not in question.

Earlier in the discussion Miss Agnes Macphail (U.F.O.-Labor Grey-Bruce) moved to reduce the $150,000 vote for cadet training by $1 and was defeated by 108 to 8. Miss Macphail's attack: "Of cadet training in schools is an annual event and she said it was the 11th session she had fought against it.

The cadet vote was a waste of money, said Miss Macphail. "The government wanted to assist physical training the young people might make grants to the Provincial Departments of Education for real physical training," President of a teacher of experience M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F.-Rosetown-Biggar) supported Miss Macphail and said cadet training was a waste of money.

T. L. Church (Conservative-Broadview) said he was sorry the Toronto Board of Education was "filled with pacifists." It had cut out cadet training. He was strongly in favor and thought the vote should be much larger.

A parliamentary committee will be set up at the next session to consider the advisability of substituting the lethal gas chamber for hanging in murder cases, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice announced the House of Commons last night.

Less Costly Than Hanging

Discussing the Bialr Bill to make the change in method, Mr. Lapointe he had reports from five American States where the gas chamber has been used. Experience has shown it humane and less costly than hanging.

The gas chamber method should be investigated further, Mr. Lapointe said and witnesses heard, in the meantime he hoped the bill, sponsored by Dr. J. S. Blair, (Lib. Wellington North), would be withdrawn and reintroduced at next session.

Conservative Leader Bennett was opposed to any change in the method of executing murderers, believing hanging was the best deterrent ever demonstrated.

This view did not seem to be general, J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. Leader and Hon. T. Chapais (Conservative, Hamilton West) calling hanging a barbarous custom that had outlived its usefulness.

Not Complicated

The Lethal Chamber, Mr. Lapointe said, was used in Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming and North Carolina with a central execution depot in each State. It was not a complicated system, nor expensive with penitentiary guards doing the executing.

The humaneness of the Lethal Chamber was debatable point, the Minister admitted "but in those States the chief claim it has is that it is far the most humane and efficient."

Frederick Daniels and Benedict Charles Dunning exchanged notes on the proper Sunday morning reading material for growing children. They agreed and then disagreed on the question of the value of comic supplements.

When Mr. Bennett was Prime Minister a tariff was imposed on printed supplements containing comics for insertion in Sunday newspapers. Yesterday the House of Commons approved removal of that tariff as proposed in the Budget given by Mr. Dunning, now Minister of Finance. Mr. Bennett thought Mr. Dunning was wrong.

"I can't see that Moon Mullins holds very much for the education or development of a young and growing child," said Mr. Bennett.

Stirling and District

Stirling—The riotous comedy 'Arabian Nights' which was presented in the Stirling Theatre on Wednesday evening under the direction of Mr. C. L. Clute, which included a carefully chosen cast of local artists, was one that will long be remembered in the district as a production presented in the finest manner and a comedy which was distinctly different in style. All those who thought not largely attended these who were fortunate enough to be present were home greatly impressed with the evening's entertainment. The play was a comedy with its humour based on the prevarications of the leading character who proved to be an expert liar and from the first curtain to the last found scope in unusual works and acts of the nine characters were enacted in a faultless fashion by those taking part.

The success of the production was largely due to the fine efforts of all those taking part, who passed through a long and strenuous series of rehearsals and learned their parts to such a degree that they actually entered the lives of the characters which they endeavoured to portray. C. L. Clute whose wide experience in directing, added to professional taste in the production also worked diligently to bring the play to the high standard nearing perfection. Mr. Stanley Ellis and Maurice Bell provided instrumental music during the intermissions.

The Cast of Characters

Bethel Defeats S.S.S. 13-3

Stirling softball fans got their first glimpse or action on the diamond on the Stirling High School grounds on Saturday evening when the Bushy Bethel crew defeated the Stirling S.S. team by a score of 13-3 which was a fair indication of the play throughout the game. The rural boys take their baseball seriously and are not contending until they challenged up the town dozen. The fixture drew a fair number of interested fans and provided many thrills and spills as the first exhibition fixture of the twilight games. Two other games have been placed on the card, with the first game the pupils of the public school cheered their team, as they defeated the boys in the big league but were denied that pleasure on Friday evening when they lost to the same team in the return match.

Bible Class Guests at 'Dunwardenin'

The members of St. Andrew's Young Men's Bible Class were the guests of Mr. Allen Mckibbon on Sunday morning, at the Mckibbon summer cottage "Dunwardenin" on the shores of Oak Lake. With only a few absent, the group was an enjoyable one for the host and hostess by benefited by the splendid address given by Mr. Boyce, pathologist of the city of Belleville. Mr. Boyce is associated with the Bellville laboratory set aside for experimental work in the progress of this particular branch of science and his address gave a portrayal of the investigations that are being carried on in various parts of the Dominion to control the destructive insects which harass the natural growth of trees and shrubs. He explained carefully how these insects were transported in various types of cargo, from one part of the world to the other, in spite of all the precautions taken by those in charge of the vessels. Through such insect, diseases spread and the ravages of parasites have greatly increased an enormous task. The next best plan is to seek out the natural enemy of the pest in its original place of existence, to secure a quantity and introduce them into the district when in the newly-infested areas, by so doing a measure of control is established and destruction reduced.

Mr. Mckibbon's mind working to preserve those things upon which he depends for his existence has brought into being such institutions as that which has been established in Belleville, with a staff of trained workers striving to reduce the damage created annually by the insect pest. The work is strenuous and its success can hardly be measured. But the work of newly established departments of science is highly valued by such industries as lumbering and fruit growing.

This was a most interesting address and was followed by a question period wherein members of the class were invited to submit questions for discussion which were answered by the speaker. At the close of the address a vote of thanks was tendered to the speaker and to Mr. Allen Mckibbon for his hospitality in making the gathering possible by the use of his cottage.

The young men's group which was organized only a few months ago by Mr. Allen Mckibbon has a activity by Mr. Tom Ward, who at that time was elected President, a position he has since become one of the largest organizations of its kind in the district. The first list of speakers which have visited the class of Mr. Ward is most outstanding. Because of interest and co-operation on the part of all it is expected that the class the membership is steadily on the increase.

Go to Church Sunday at St. Paul's

St. Paul's United Church attended in a special way by the choir and band in that church on Sunday morning, each member had received an invitation from the elders of the church and transportation was provided for the short-ins. The service was one of unusual interest and was held under the direction of Mr. G. L. Clute offering several special musical numbers, and Rev. Mr. Hall delivering an inspiring message "The Way of Life".

Personals

Miss Allen is well known throughout the district and was the recipient of many messages of congratulation as well as many large baskets of flowers. Her many friends share the joy of her success and join in the wish her continued good fortune throughout her future in the nursing profession.

Mr. Roy Woodbeck, who for a number of years has been in charge of the Stirling route for the Toronto Globe has accepted another route of the same type, Mr. Woodbeck will operate a rapid delivery system for the distribution of the Toronto Globe making daily runs east as far as Brockville. He began the new trips early this week with a new truck secured for the purpose. The trip requires about ten hours daily. Mr. Woodbeck will retain the route he has been operating in the past and has appointed an assistant driver.

Mr. Elgie Joblin, formerly of Stirling and son of Rev. Fred Joblin who ministered to the people of the Hawdon pastoral charge for more than ten years, has accepted an invitation to take charge of the Indian work at Muncey Indian Institute in the Leamley Conference of the United Church of Canada, and will take up the work there in July.

Born—In Belchertown, Mass., U.S.A., on Friday, May 1st., 1936 to Dr. and Mrs. John T. Sikes, a son, (John Christian Michael).

Stirling—Over one hundred members and friends of St. Paul's Young People's Union gathered in the church parlors for the final and closing meeting of the season. The organization will cease activities until the opening of the fall session. The church parlours were artistically decorated with a profusion of cut flowers of every variety. The President, Mr. Ivan Bulin acted as master of ceremonies throughout the evening and opened the meeting with a brief song service which was followed by prayer by Rev. E. W. Rowland. Mr. Bulin paid tribute to the splendid work of the retiring executives and thanked all who had contributed their services to make this year one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

The fine program which had been arranged by the committee appointed for that purpose opened with a group of numbers given by a saxophone trio, Lloyd Rowland, Clarence Wood and Lloyd Rowland accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Rowland. A vocal duet given by Mrs. Ivan Bulin and Mrs. Mildred Elliott was also greatly enjoyed. This was followed by two recitations by Mrs. Ivan Hayton. Mr. O. L. Clute, choir leader then offered a baritone solo, accompanied by Mrs. Rowland. An instrumental duet by two little girls, Jean and Doris displayed unusual talent in these two junior members of the organization.

Miss Laura Mason next contributed a soprano solo, which was followed by a violin solo by Reg. Mallmore. Mrs. Mildred Elliott member on the program was a vocal duet by Robert Hedley and Don Williams.

The slate of officers selected to direct the activities of the organization for the coming year was then presented by Mr. Alan Hayton on behalf of the nominating committee and the following officers were duly appointed.

Honorary President—Rev. E. W. Rowland.

President—Miss Mary Hulin.

1st Vice President — Mrs. Fred Elgie.

2nd Vice President—Miss Jean Munro.

4th Vice President— Mr. Clarence West.

Editor of the Blue Outlook—Mr. Harry E. Hulin.

Missionary Treasurer — Miss Marjorie Clements.

Secretary-Treasurer— Mrs. Nora Wescott.

Pianist—Mrs. E. W. Rowland.

These ladies and gentlemen form the very efficient executive carefully selected to be capable of filling in an official capacity when activity in the organization begins. The lucky door prize for the evening was won by Miss Donalda Richardson. At this point in the program the gathering was divided into groups according to their ages and a series of interesting contests directed by Miss Edna Hulin, Christian Community singing of the hour followed by Mr. Ivan Bulin which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. E. W. Rowland very willingly responded to the many demands made upon her for her services as pianist.

The closing item on the Educational Anthem and Benediction drawing to a close on the most successful years in the history of this strong young people's organization. Run Under Same Conditions

It doesn't pay to gamble on tires. Thousands are killed or injured each year in accidents caused by blow-outs and skids. At caution's high speeds, tires get blistering hot inside, rubber and fabric separate — and finally — bang — they blow out.

Golden Ply Blow-out Protection. But now the Golden Ply in Safety Silvertowns resists internal tire heat—prevents ply separation—and stops the cause of blow-outs. Thus you're protected.

"Road Drying" Tread

And, another safety feature—At the first sign of a skid, the three centre ribs of the Silvertown tread dry the road like a wind-shield wiper—and give the outer row of husky cleats a good gripping surface. Note the non skid tread on all Goodrich tires.

Most People Have Same Problems

Teach a Child That Other Person's Life Not Very Different

By LISA GRENELLE

"THE HARDEST thing for me to do is to actually throw myself into the other person's world; to make the sacrifice of my own dreams to those of another."

So an unhappy young person of Colorado writes me.

As if that other person's world were really such a foreign, distant place, instead of right next door, as it inevitably must be.

The great gift of understanding required, after all, is nothing more than the most elementary use of our imaginations—just that one small, short jump into our brother's shoes. They fit surprisingly well too, don't they? We never would have suspected it, brother so always appearing so foreign in age, sex, tastes and background.

Much the Same

We feel he is far superior to ourselves, perhaps, on a different plane. Or it may be that secretly we like to feel less advanced, able. Not until we get into his shoes do we learn that he is neither very inferior nor superior to ourselves, but much the same. The shoes nothing pinch nor flop. In everything of which he is capable, good and bad, of feeling, we are also are capable. Fundamentally we're living a different life—but the fears and the hopes of all of us are much the same.

Do you still want to be admired? Of course we do. Are we not all alike in that? Do we not all seeking power, love, riches, approbation, fame, the exciting and important, yet at the same time comfortable, safe and financially secure.

Why, "sacrifice your dream for another's"? Why should it be necessary? If you mean, my dear, that someone is trying to make you live his life, I wouldn't think of it. No one has the right to ask you to live his life for him.

Understanding

But if you mean that the other fellow will take no interest in your dreams—cannot or will not understand them, but wants you instead to understand and sympathize with his—my nod? It is not who will be the richer. If you forget your own thirsting, and throw yourself into his, you may find it very invigorating. Rebecca and Mr. Chambers, past regents of Peterborough and about twenty co-workers of Peterborough.

Another thing you will be surprised to find is that, as you successfully understand and feel for someone else, you yourself will feel so alone and misunderstood.

Remember your dreams, which are going to make life much more colorful and exciting, less open to misunderstanding, are shared in one form or another by almost everyone. Like you, they want an opportunity to express themselves fully, to be admired and applauded.

Fashion Flashes

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

A GOOD BEGINNING for a comprehensive Spring wardrobe is this simple dress made in basic ensemble. A nice model has a cape-sleeved dress and a matching coat, both in a heavy, rich silk sheer. Both garments are all-over knife pleated. The dress is stitched at the waistline for a slim effect. There is a large bunch of white violets.

NEVER TOO MANY little blouses if you like suits. For warmer days with a darker suit there is a grand sleeveless, collarless blouse of white organdie with a stiff ruffle finishing the V-shaped neckline.

CHOOSE A CARROT touch of color with your navy, brown, black or gray costume. One shop shows a tailored, perforated pump of crocodile calf in the new leather trend. This can be ordered with a bag and wide-eyelet belt to match.

COMFORT as well as beauty is the keynote of the new chiffon toques. Suzy makes a pillbox of thirty graduated rows of shirred cartridge pleats spreading round the brim and a bow in back, lovely in a bright geranium red, and with a scarf to match.

STILL MORE news of colorful chiffons for the evening dresses. Two-color combinations in strong tones are featured, including peatel chiffons. With a dress in navy blue chiffon velvet there are floor-length pleated panels in back of geranium red chiffon. These are tied with chiffon lariat at the slim shoulder straps.

AFTER ALL, this talk about color, black is still prime favorite, and so Paton makes a simple but most effective evening frock of black crepe over which is worn a full-length, fitted wrap of black organza with crepe sleeves.

Lady Bowlers Plan Season

At the first meeting of the season, members of the Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club met in the lounge yesterday afternoon at the Y.M. C.A. when the following were elected president, was in the chair. Mrs. C. H. McBride was appointed first vice-president and Mrs. D. A. Walker, games convener.

Several interesting new members were present at the meeting and plans were made for the early part of the season. Opening day will be on Thursday, May 28th, with games, bridge, and afternoon tea. Scheduled games will be played on Tuesdays and the names are to be handed to the games' convener. There will be a ladies' tournament on June 25th.

The meeting was most enthusiastic and promises a successful season for the Club.

BRIDE'S LUNCHEON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I. I am to be invited to a party to be given in my honor, (just being a bride), and I would like to know what would be appropriate to say when asked to make a speech. Do I answer? Will he be called for. I imagine that there will be a gift given at this party.

Claire.

Dear Claire. I suggest that you don't think of this as a "speech", for that is such a formidable word. Just think of it as a few words that you will say to thank for the compliment of the party, and perhaps for the gift that is given at that time. And since the guests will be close friends, this won't be so difficult.

Maybe something like this:

"I'm very fortunate to have such wonderful friends as you are. And I know ill I thank you with all my heart for your goodness to me in planning such a lovely party and giving me such a memorable time. I'm so proud today to be your guest of honor, and happier than I can tell you to have such glorious friends. Thank you, and bless you, for giving me this magnificent gift. I've never seen such handsome candlesticks, and when you come to see me, I'll have the candles lighted in them so that they will shed their light-of-welcome."

Wedding Anniversary Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please send me a few suggestions as to giving a small remembrance for a friend on her fifth wedding anniversary. The friend is a neighbor.

You might wish only to make a bow of congratulation and present a box of flowers, and the flowers might be of the golden shade, when one is to carry out the golden idea for the anniversary. A bouquet of several of the yellow spring flowers, for instance, golden daffodils, yellow tulips, golden lilies, or her favorite yellow calla lillies would be especially lovely.

Or if you wish to carry out the golden idea in something for the home, there is linen—a linen-set in golden shade, or with the golden idea predominating, or some china or glass salad or dessert plates. Or you can find decorative and useful items of golden shades, and of varying prices according to your budget.

And it is not necessary for you, unless you especially wish it, to carry out the golden-idea. It is just as correct to send any kind of house gift that you think will be appropriate for their home.

Advice to the Lovelorn

COOKERY OR CHARM—WHICH BEST FITS YOU FOR HAPPY MARRIAGE?

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

What is the best preparation for marriage?

Should a girl spend her time learning to be a practical house-keeper, which certainly will be greatly to the advantage of her future husband?

Or, should she make it her main business to learn to make herself as possible, so that there may be no danger of being left an old maid?

A young correspondent named Cynthia who is just sixteen, is very unhappy because she and her mother cannot agree, and will let her mother who does the deciding.

"I have just graduated from high school," Cynthia tells me, "and want to have a good time. I want to accept all the invitations I get, and to know as many boys as possible, and spend all the time I can at my clothes and my appearance generally.

"This seems foolish to my mother. Yet she wants me to marry and have a home. I tell her that my way is the way to get married; but she thinks I ought to take over the family housekeeping, and learn how to economize, as well as how to cook and clean and all that. I must prepare myself, she says, to be a good wife and mother.

"How can I convince her that

"Cynthia, I have two darling children, and just when I thought I could rest and be happy, along came the serpent in our Eden. A girl is my husband's office fall in love with him and—well, I don't have to tell you what fools men are. As she lived in the other end of town, he used to drive her home evenings and stay to dinner with her, too. Her sneaking old mother was a party to this.

"I decided to move, so there would be no excuse about seeing the young vamp home. I had a lot of persuading and arguing about renting the bungalow, but I succeeded. We moved to within four blocks of the gold-digger, and I waived ceremony and called on Pa stopped his attentions to her. He was glad to get a little time off. Now she's devoting herself to the second bootlegger.

"Wary Wife".

There are so many ways of leading a wandering husband back to domesticity, that description there are of skinning a cat. You had the right sort of material to work with, but your husband was of the type who is easily surfeited.

You hid your jealousy, which was wise in any case, and you threw the girl at Pa's head until he got tired of her. But suppose he had been of the type who can't see enough of a pretty girl? Suffer the inflictions of jealousy? Where would you be then?

INVEST WISELY
It is quite impossible to invest funds with safety nowadays, unless you employ reliable investment counsel, who give advice and make constant watching.
JAMIESON BONE & CO.
Investment Counsel

Board Room Gossip
As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.
Wright Hargreaves
Directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents with extra of 5 cents per share, both payable July 1 to shareholders of record June 10.
The Canadian markets are acting well, this being particularly true of the mining section. The Toronto Exchange is a buying mood and with any encouragement could produce an important turn for the better, indicating that accounts are in sound shape.
The stiff margrinal rules are making themselves felt, the estimate being that nearly one-third of the accounts of the average brokerage house fail into the restricted class. Public buying power is insufficient to overcome inertia, and the stock market, for time being, has become almost entirely an investment proposition.
The outstanding characteristic of the market is dullness, and the longer quiet persists the healthier the situation. This far, while there seems to be no ceiling which has yet to lift, a support level seems equally well established. Business is unquestionably much better than sentiment, and after the political interventions next month, it should be clear which is to become the dominant factor in the market-place.
The speculation investment counsel organizations that a month or two ago were a little mixed in their opinions about the short-term and long-term outlook for stocks are now more optimistic. The worst that is looked for now is some irregularity followed by resumption of the main upward trend, whereas earlier this year at least one of these firms was cautioning against the possibility of an intermediate setback.
An important reason why the Canadian industrial stocks failed to maintain their advance on the New York market rallies was that American claims against these companies, in the aggregate, are small as it is presently under way across the line in the liquor industry. The Canadian industrial list is a good portion of the market to the Canadian capitalist and are climbing various means to recapture the business. Severe competition is expected to continue.

Hiram Walker
The directors of Hiram Walker have declared another dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, this being the second payment. The current declaration will call for the outlay of $1,250,000. It is interesting to point out that at the end of its last fiscal year (Aug. 31, 1935) Hiram Walker showed bank loans of $7,574,914, against which it carried a trading investment at $4,844,997. It would appear, therefore, that the company's loans are sufficient not only to take care of bank interest, reduction of bank loan principle, but also to liquidate the investment to dispose dividends at the rate of $1.60 per annum.
The last annual statement revealed that Imperial Proof Gallons carried at $6,302,960 and $13,393,302 United Kingdom Bonds in loan at $4,175,125. Hiram Walker thus carries its $11,951,921 gallons of whiskey at $10,484,785, the equivalent of slightly better than 88 cents a gallon. This inventory, of course, is worth several times the figure at which it is carried on the books and this amply covers the bank loan of $7,574,914.

Dominion of Canada Will Soon Do Business Re-Financing
Although no official information available on the subject of the Dominion of Canada refunding, experienced bondmen feel that the Minister of Finance will be in the market for roughly $200,000,000 before long. Some say that a portion of the desired amount will be raised through the medium of a ten year three per cent issue which will be sold at par and the balance of the new bonds might carry a coupon rate of 3½ or a little higher and mature in 1946.

The rather unusual spectacle of two teams, both in the middle of the battles for the lead in their respective leagues and both apparently unable to make the fans take notice of them, is to be seen in the Major Baseball League these days. The teams are New York Giants and Cleveland Indians, second and third respectively in the standing. They're both had a few good goldbrings of customers but Cleveland already is facing the spectacle of dwindling attendance, while the New York attitude is that the Giants can't hold together for very long. Perhaps they will, they've flopped badly toward the end of the last two seasons has something to do with it.

Fewer than 5,000 fans turned out yesterday to see the tribe engage in a final "crucial" struggle with the league-leading New York Yankees and go down to a second straight defeat, 10-4. A somewhat larger crowd might have been expected in view of the fact that the Indians were putting on a mild fund, that the Cleveland management has been making strenuous efforts to have the fans stick to the finish and that Minnie Pearson was slated to take the ball in an effort to do better than Johnny Allen, for whom he was traded last winter, did against the Yanks.

The Giants were rained out in their final game against Pittsburgh and got a welcome breathing spell before tackling the St. Louis Cardinals, who lead them by a half game. The off day gave Manager Bill Terry another chance to test his ailing knee, the uncertain mound staff a bit of lefsure and Roy Spencer, newly acquired catcher, a chance to get better acquainted. The Cincinnati-Brooklyn and St. Louis-Phillies games also were postponed.

Tigers Close to Third

Cleveland's defeat gave Detroit Tigers a chance to come closer to third place as Tommy Bridges found some of his best form and pitched them to a 4-2 victory over Washington, while the Red Sox kept pace with the Yanks by pulling out a 4-3 decision over Chicago White Sox. Rogers Hornsby's reviving Browns bowled over the Athletics 5-4. The day's only contest saw Boston Bees beat out Chicago Cubs 6-4.

Remaining idle didn't prevent the Dodgers from taking another one on the chin, when Freddy Lindstrom, veteran infielder, decided he wasn't doing himself or anyone else much good as a Brooklyn player and announced his retirement from baseball. He was signed by the Dodgers last January after being unconditionally released by the Cubs and batted only .264 in 36 games. A leg injury suffered last Friday was believed to have prompted the decision.

The few fans who did turn out at Cleveland saw Pearson cut-last George Blaeholder, despite his wildness, Lou Gehrig, Red Rolfe and Billy Sullivan belted homers and R. Middlebrooks and Tony Lazzeri slammed one apiece to blow. The mild flare-up came as the Yanks finished with seven runs in the last three innings. Lazzeri thought Middlebrooks was unduly rough with Joe DiMaggio as the youngster slid into second.

Bridges, hurling his third complete game of the season, limited the Senators to four hits and fanned five in a clash with Buck Newsom. Two Tiger runs came home, while double plays were being completed.

WHAT A PITCHER

ALLEN SIEGEL

Major league scouts, particularly the St. Louis Cardinals, are keeping their optics on Allen Veigel, above, Canarsarie high school pitcher of Dover, O. Why? Well, because Allen, only 19, has just pitched his seventh no-hit, no-run game in two years. Two this year and five last year. In his latest, Allen, six feet tall and an 180-pounder, allowed only one man to reach first and fanned 18 of the 22 batters to face him.

THIRTEENTH WIN FOR THE BISONS AND JINX BROKEN

Defeat Montreal Royals in Night Game in Last Frame

LEAFS RAINED OUT

Home Run Factor in Albany's Win Over Baltimore

Even the jinx that twice has ruined good winning streaks for Buffalo teams at the park's stop the 1936 model Buffalo Bisons and as a result they're right up on top of the International League standing and still going strong.

Threatened by the same fate that overtook the Bisons of 1914 and 1926, Ray Benton's men came from behind in their first game under the floodlights last night and defeated Montreal Royals 6 to 5 for their thirteenth consecutive victory. The climax of the climb which started from sixth place May 7 sent them into a tie with the first New Newark Bears for the League lead.

Newark's game with Albany was rained out as was the Toronto-Rochester daylight encounter. A second night game saw the collar-dwelling Syracuse Chiefs come through with an 8-7 triumph over Baltimore Orioles.

Dickshot Broke Up Game.

It was Johnny Dickshot, newly acquired outfielder, who broke the thirteenth game for Buffalo. Going into the eighth the Bisons were trailing 5-1 as Lefty Wade had them apparently subdued. Then Dickshot belted a homer with one aboard to renew the argument. With two out in the final frame Moe Mulleavy started things off with a single and Marvin Olson doubled him home with his third hit. Jacques Fouli was sent in hurriedly to relieve Wade and Dickshot promptly nicked him for a single and the winning run.

Frank McGowan continued his clouting with a four bagger while Bob Reeds hit one for the Royals.

A home run also was the main factor in Albany's triumph as the Senators spotted Baltimore four runs in the first then came from behind. Bill Cissell provided the four Buffalo runs to start with a homer with loaded sacks. Syracuse hitting Fred Blake freely, took the lead by duplicating the feat in the fifth when Ith Williams sent one out of the park with the corners crammed. Just to top off the slugging Woodley Abernathy wasted a four-bagger with one aboard in the Baltimore half of the inning.

Yesterday's Stars

Tony Cuccinello, Bees—Drove in three runs as Bees nosed out Cubs, 6-5.

Monte Pearson, Yankees—Hung up fourth straight pitching victory as Yankees pounded Indians, 10-4.

Mellio Mellio, Red Sox—Started two double plays and batted in two runs in Red Sox' 4-3 win over White Sox.

Jim Bottomley, Browns—His three doubles figured heavily in Browns' 5-4 whipping of Athletics.

Tommy Bridges, Tigers—Limited Senators to four hits as Tigers won, 4-2.

RIVAL GOLF CAPTAINS TILT CURTIS CUP

The ladies can't quite decide who owns the Curtis Cup after international golf matches between British and American ladies' teams had ended in a tie. "It's yours because we didn't win," say the British. "No, no", respond the Americans, "we couldn't defend it, so it's yours." Disregarding the "controversy" rival captains, Miss Doris Chambers of England, (LEFT), and Miss Glenna Collett Vare of U.S., (RIGHT), tilt the cup in good-fellowship.

Frankie Hart Holds Eddie Lewis to Draw

Windsor, Ont., May 20 (CP)—Bad Man Eddie Lewis of Denver, Colo., and Frankie Hart of Regina fought to a draw last night in the main bout of a wrestling match here. Lewis at 196 pounds had a pound advantage over Hart.

The Bad Man was credited with the first fall after 27 minutes of wrestling as Hart knocked himself out in attempting a flying tackle. Revived, Hart took the second fall in 23 minutes with a "Dutch wheel-mill." They continued to scramble before a crowd of 2,000 without a deciding fall until the time limit elapsed.

BRIDGET NEWELL BRITISH GOLFER ON WAY TO TITLE

Defeats Lone U. S. Survivor in Quarter Finals of Contest

PRONOUNCED FAVORITE

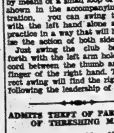
K. Garnham And Pam Barton Play in Semi-Final Round

Southport England, May 20 (CP) —Bridget Newell continued her sensational blasting toward the British Women's Golf championship by crushing Marion Miley, lone United States' survivor, 4 and 3 in the quarter finals this morning.

Miss Newell had the unusual experience of starting today's round a pronounced favorite not only to oust the invader but also to win the title. A few weeks ago she had not been considered good enough to make the British Curtis Cup team but she made the selection committee's eyes pop by winning the qualifying medal and topping that off by knocking out Wanda Morgan, the defending champion, in the first round.

Both Miss Newell and Miss Miley played erratically at times this morning. Miss Newell was 3 under par 34 and youngest junior of the peace in British, made the turn one up and then went four holes in front when the American girl required three on the 10th, 11th and 12th. Miss Miley won the 14th, when she got a par to Miss Newell's fourth but the young barrister won the short 15th and the match with a par.

Kathleen Garnham and Pam Barton, two of England's finest young golfers, also advanced and were drawn against each other in this afternoon's semi-final.



Miss Garnham, the 21-year-old miss from Lonsdale former title champion, defeated Mrs. Edith Hendale, 4 and 3, and Miss Barton, a girl of 19 years who has been runner-up in the championship for the past two years, defeated Dorothy Wilkins, 3 and 2.

Both Miss Barton and Miss Garnham won with great golf on the back nine. The former played the last four holes of the match in two under fours, while the latter played the last 5 of hers in two under fours.

GOLF
BY ALEX MORRISON

NUMBER 330

There's only one mistake to be made about any swing and that is an alight the left side. Many players have tried countless ways to strengthen the left side. Few have been successful, so few in fact that the whole idea seems impracticable.

DEVELOPING the Left Side.

One method being tried a great deal is the swinging of the left arm alone. This is wrong. If any, because golf is a two-handed game and providing single-handed tends no assurance that both hands will work in harmony. However, by holding the right hand to the left by means of a small loop or cord as shown in the accompanying illustration, you can swing the club with the left hand alone and still practice in a way that will harmonize the action of both sides.

Just swing the club back and forth with the left arm holding the cord between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand. The correct swing will find the right hand following the leadership of the left.

Donovan Loses His Own Bout Missing Flying Tackle and Crashes in Centre of Ring

Whole Card Well Balanced And Thrilling to 900 Fans

ONE DISQUALIFIED

Blue Sun Jennings Toughest Wrestler Ever Seen in City

"Irish" Jack Donovan, the Boston gentleman of the wrestling ring, lost his own bout versus Andy Moen, the Minneapolis villain, in the main bout of last night's Queensbury A. C. wrestling show at the local arena. Donovan had won the initial fall while Moen squeezed out a fall in the second round. Then Donovan applied the works and seemed to have ultimate victory within his grasp as he applied two successful flying tackles, but on an attempted third tackle, Donovan missed his opponent and crashed into the upper strands of the ring ropes. He bounced back into the ring and rendered several temporarily hors de combat. Moen, sensing his opportunity, grappled on the prostrated Donovan for the fall and victory. Last night's card was doubtlessly the most spectacular and best matched wrestling card ever staged in Belleville, from the preliminary to the main bout the card was filled with thrills. Moen was the star in the main scrap while in the semi-final Blue Sun Jennings, a bulky Indian, used too many illegal tactics and was disqualified in his bout with Al Baignano, a popular Italian youth. The preliminary say the referee, Al Pedoty and the unpopular decision over the methodical Dan Petroff, of Toronto.

Main Bout Tops.

The main bout was just about "tops", insofar wrestling bouts are concerned in Belleville. Jack Donovan, the popular Boston grappler, was always the favorite with the big aggregation of the fans with his clean masterful exhibition of holdern wrestling. The bout opened up with both men feeling out. Moen commenced his rough tactics and when warned by Referee Wells he was heard to appeal, "leave me alone —all you've got to do is look for shoulders". Moen tried to rough matters, but Donovan reverted to boxing tactics and soon had successfully warded off the villainous attacks of the Minneapolis handsome. Moen tried a series of unsuccessful elbow smashes, but finally Donovan gained a half nelson head scissors and hurled Moen about the ring, in the air, and won the initial fall in 24 minutes.

Moen Aggresser.

Moen returned to the ring in a frenzied state of mind and was the continued aggressor despite the continued warnings of Referee Wells, when he reverted to illegal tactics. Again Moen bowled, "get out of my way," to me shouted, but the fans saw that Donovan bodily into the path of the official—Donovan seemed to be certain winner with a head scissors, but Moen managed to escape the hold and went berserk to soften Donovan with a series of elbow smashes and finally with the aerial fall with a Japanese cradle hold after thirteen minutes of aggressive wrestling.

The final round of the main bout was a thriller. Donovan went into the ring to finish matters as quickly as possible and seemed to have matters well in hand when he commenced a series of flying tackles that caused the stamp him a sure winner. Moen's agility proved profitable, however, when he evaded a third tackle and Donovan crashed into the ropes and was hurled back into the ring and rendered hors de combat. Moen merely fell on the prostrate Donovan for an easy fall. When the Irishman revived, however, he resented the fall and attacked Moen, who beat a hasty retreat to the dressing room, leaving his robe and the bad wishes of the fans behind him. The bout was splendid.

Initial Disqualified.

In the semi-final scrap, Blue Sun Jennings, the Indian, who claims he's weighing about 235 pounds, was too rough for Al Baignano, the Italian champ, and with his bulk to gauge, kick and punch until he was disqualified by Referee Wells and Baignano was declared the winner after Jennings had actually pounded Mussolini's countryman's head upon a neutral post. Mat-visiting have come and gone in Belleville, but Blue Sun Jennings was just about the most villainous type of wrestler ever to appear locally. Occasionally Baignano gained successfully arm-locks to punish the "red-skin", much to the delight of the fans, but consistent Jennings was the aggressor and took his own bout by continually fouling.

In the preliminary bout, Cecil Al Dunlop of Toronto used all his illegal tactics known to win over Dan Petroff, the Russian gentleman of the ring. Dunlop won with a full body slam followed by a body press. The preliminary was one of the best opening bouts seen locally since the inception of the pachyderm grapplers this season. As a matter of fact the entire card was highly appreciated and match maker Corcoran is to be congratulated upon the splendid cards he is supplying Belleville wrestling fans this season. A crowd of approximately 800 attended their approval on the above.

ONTARIO DAY AT TORONTO STADIUM

Montreal Royals and Rochester Will Play Series There Over Holiday

Ontario baseball fans who have followed the activities of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Clubs have an excellent opportunity to get a first hand view of their teams against the stiffest opposition in the International League here during the Victoria Day holiday week-end. Montreal Royals, winners of the League championship last fall, have another strong team with heavy hitters, clever fielders and pitchers with control being their offensive and defensive weapons. The Royals finish up a three games series with the Leafs at the Fleet Street Stadium on Saturday, May 23, and this series promises to be a regular dog-fight as Ike Boone is keen to avenge the Montreal victories gained over the Leafs last season.

On Sunday, May 24, the Leafs are in Montreal, but they hurry right back to the Fleet Street Stadium for morning and afternoon games with the Rochester Red Wings on the Monday Victoria Day holiday. The Victoria Day holiday games mark the first appearance of the Rochester club and they present several stars from the St. Louis Cardinal organization who have been hurried from other Cardinal farm clubs in order to give the Red Wings all possible strength. Weintraub, who played under Billy Terry in New York is now on first base for the Rochester club and Dalton has taken over the shortstop duties. Bob Weiland is the big pitching hero on the Rochester club and he will likely work one of the Victoria Day holiday games against the Leafs. Klienke, Harrell, Michaels and Kaufman are also available for the batsmen with their efficient pitching slants.

9 Year Old Maiden Hurry Fox May Be Long Shot of Plate

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—A long shot special—Hurry Fox—paid $43.70 in the Tote running at the King's Plate here Saturday for those who had the nerve to back a short-ender.

Nobody has taken Hurry Fox, a three-year-old maiden filly, but Trainer A. D. "Cowboy" Kean insists the chestnut horse will be a contender for the 50 guineas, donated b the King and the $6,000 added purse, when the barrier is sprung for the mile and a furlong classic.

"Cowboy" has taken a lot of good-natured ribbing from the fans around Woodbine race track, nesting on the slopes of Ontario Jockey in the east end of Toronto, But he can't be razed. Saturday will tell the tale, he maintains as he is not about grooming the son of Red Fox—Legendary Lady—for the Vanderburgh.

The chestnut has lever starter in an honest-to-goodness horse race, but for all of that he will carry a pounding from Jockey McCann and a lot of lead. Reason for the heavy weight is that he will have to be supposed to be a whirlwind, but because of age. At nine years a poor horse should get to pack lead.

The previous training grind will end today for the 10 or 12 expected starters. The favorites, H. C. Black's Bellwin, Colonel Arthur Laughlin's Spearman and E. P. Seagram's Bois are expected to be given their final turn around the plate distance.

If dark and satisfactory, future workouts will be held to short distances—brevers to keep them on edge.

Bethel Defeats Stirling by 12-1

Softball Season Officially Opened Saturday

Saturday evening marked the official opening of the softball season in the twilight series and the fans gave the boys from Bethel a rousing hand for their smart display. Gerald Bostwick did a smart job of pitching for northern boys and that duty for the local fans was left in the hands of Carl Mumby, a twirler with plenty of promising talent. The game was one dull for an opening game and the crowd had little to cheer about as the visiting players made by members of both teams. The game was called at the end of the fifth because of darkness and Bethel High School were trailing by eleven runs with the score 12 to 1 for Bethel to Stirling's 1. Bethel got than 31 hits against Stirling's 4.

Terry Buys Eddie Mayo to Strengthen Giants

Baseball writers in New York have charged that the New York Giants are failing to build up their team with young players. Lacking a chain of minor league farms, the Giants also have one of the weakest scouting systems in the majors.

Indications that the writers' remarks took effect is noted in purchase of Eddie Mayo, crack infielder from Minneapolis. Here is Mayo at his new team. Bill Terry, in the first appearance the rookie made in a Giant uniform.

CURRENT SPORT
DAY BY DAY

Local wrestling fans fortunate enough to witness last night's Queensbury A.C. wrestling card saw three high class bouts. The preliminary was about the best first bout card ever seen locally, but unfortunately the semi-final was not quite up to the mark, as Blue Sun Jennings, that massive sized Indian, was too heavy for his opponent, Al Baignano, and applied too many illegal holds to finally be disqualified. The main bout of the evening, however was a "pip". After the dust had settled and Andy Moen the Minneapolis badman of the wrestling had won, he beat a hasty retreat to the dressing room, when Jack Donovan resented the defeat of the main scrap. Unfortunately Donovan dug his own grave in that final fall, when he tried a third flying tackle. "Irish" Jack pleased the fans and seemed to have matters well-in his own way, when he became careless and ultimately lost last night's main bout. What we are glad to hear, however, is the fact that Donovan is included on the big Thursday night card in Toronto versus the famous Dusek brothers.

On the sunny side of the bowls, we are going to let the cat out of the bag. Incidentally this lad Ingmanze, that Haliam kid who lost to Blue Sun Jennings, the treacherous Indian, is really a card. Ehsignane kept the dressing room boys in a frenzie with his cut-upa, prior to the opening of last night's bouts. Yes, Ehsignane sneaked up behind Referee Wells and placed a match between his feet and then lighted the match as the official was serenely talking with the main-boast-ers. What was Bert's face "red" when the blaze was finally discovered. Yes, Ehsignane was the recipient of really same gag on us, so we can't give Wells the hird after all.

Local fans used to think, that Al Hulog, and other grapplers were tough, rough and nasty, but after witnessing Blue Sun Jennings in action, the rest are only sissies. Fortunately Matchmaker Corcoran is going to put one more class act in Belleville, but after last night's attendance we wonder why. The Queensbury A.C. has given local fans the best wrestlers in the business, so it's up to the fans in the future.

Weather permitting an impromptu and abbreviated ball game will be played at the Pair Grounds between the Kiwanis juniors and the local senior C.O.B.I. squad. Coach Barrett and Manager Weir got their heads together and decided the better plan would be to reverse batteries and let the boys tangle for a few innings. Actually this system of practice should have been employed some time ago, but "tis better late than never, they say. At any rate Skipper Weir will have a chance to prospect a few more from new until the Fenies line-up to face the local firing squad on Monday morning.

At present the locals seem to be badly in need of a couple of high-class infielders. Some fine hitting in action a few times the ralliest in the box, but little to inspire their approval on the hurling staff and the outfield, but there seems to be a scarcity of talent around the Pair Grounds these nights. Around the old ball orchard Emily and Lionel Blaker are doing the bulk of the work. Take your choice there. At the present moment Jack Weir ambles around the keystone sack while Chuck Barrage, returning from a year in the intermediate ranks, is seen nightly whipping them across from third. About the busiest working man in the park is Holden "Bud" Johnston, of Foxboro, who seems headed towards holding down the short-field position.

Why there is a shortage of infielders can only be answered by stating, that during the first two or three practices there were young and promising ballsters like Ted Mann, Cy Bartlett, Art-Cole and Al "Zang" Jordan on hand anxious to try their ability in the infield, but claim they were ignored. Whether there is any truth to this or not, we cannot say, but the fact, that those lads have not attended subsequent practices surely bears out their contentions, however, in the meantime the local executive got busy last night and sent the wires requesting player transfers for Vinny Vicaud and Douglas "Red" MacDonald, ex-Brockville hockey player, who, is trying out with the boys here, and now we can just about assure Skipper Weir's gang is all prepared to face their ancient enemy, Tammy Jamieson on Monday.

After relating at length the many powers and possibilities of Shiner Johnston's 1934 Peterboro squad, the Liftlock City sport scribe continues as follows—

Bill Calladine and Eddie Whitehall warmed up and looked good, though Bill is throwing with a sidearm motion instead of his former over-arm style. Pat Calladine caught for the infield workout which saw Ike Baker third, Ivy Pafraty at short, Red Hollingsworth at second and Cliff Gadd, Jackie Ware and Bill Schults dividing first base. The latter has played first and the outfield for Kitchener-Waterloo. Weir was handicapped somewhat by a previous back. Cadd's throwing was okey-doke in this drill. Once first base is settled that infield will look great.

In the garden, Les Burton, Tommy Foley and Andrews were smashing the ball from the left fielder looks as good as ever, and it was nice to see Foley covering acres again and there will be nothing easy stride of his. This fellow Andrews looks all right, too. With Kearns, Walker and Schults, the local outfield is shaping up quite satisfactorily. Several fly balls went in the practice but those mentioned appear to have the inside track. Three or four more were signed up after the drill and the team should be all there by the middle of the week. Whitehill has not received his release from Cobourg, promised to shortly and we would not be surprised to see him hurling the first league game. Cy Bartlett thinks he looks to be in the best shape now. The local Industrial League softball managers are quite busy these days signing players and holding practices in readiness for the opening of the league next week.

Who were the two local race entries that "Red" Kipp was running last night? Was it Sandy Hook or Gander? Can those bellies take it? Saturday afternoon will be the big day when the "Irish" wifie Doyle and Giffin followed in order. Alexander and Sicard have wielded the big bats for the losers. The winners out-hit the O.S.D. 18 to 10.

The lineups:

St. Michael's: Giffin, McQuaid, Amo, O'Neill, Pavel, Hazlip, Hughes, Langton, Doyle and Barry.

O.S.D.: Kinkid, Major, Storring, Bustard, Lavelle, Alexander, Gore, Hawthorne Malyxx, Knight and Hoage.

Pair Stand Entered In Wolverine Handicap At Detroit's Opening

Detroit, Mich., May 30 (CP)—Stand Pat, the consistent handicap horse which usually carries the colors of E. P. Seagram, Waterloo, Ont. distiller well to the front of every race he enters is coming back to Detroit to give some other high class thoroughbreds a run for the money at the fair grounds.

Stand Pat will arrive here Thursday and will have just about time to hop off the train and take a few whirls on the track before he lines up for his first engagement.

That engagement is the Wolverine Handicap, the $3,000 race at a mile and a sixteenth, which will furnish the chief excitement on Saturday's opened day card. It will be the most exciting event of the day unless some one catches ore of those $4,000 daily doubles.

The big chestnut colt is expected to face some of the best horses on the grounds. It is possible, that both Stand Pat and Sir Asucar, and F. M. Alger. Jr's Asucar will be in the field.

If Stand Pat and Asucar hook up, Alger's horse will have an opportunity to gain some revenge for a decision last year in the Col. Alger Memorial Handicap, when Stand Pat breezed under the wire first and Asucar was back in the show hole. If Asucar can't beat Stand Pat Saturday when try, try again for both horses have been named again for the Alger Memorial, to be run May 30.

ST. MIKES NOW ON TOP OF LOOP

Score 15 to 8 Victory Over O.S.D. Nine on Home Lot

Running their consecutive string of victories into four straight, the St. Michael's Academy "mushballers" assured themselves of first place in the local senior intermediate softball loop by virtue of a 15 to 8 victory over the O.S.D. nine on the home diamond yesterday afternoon. A six run rally in the sixth frame assured the Schrieder-led "Irish" of first place honors, however.

Stan Amo ascended the hilltop for the St. Mikes and hurled for the initial five frames, giving way to Tommy Hughes, who blanked the "dead lads" the remainder, of the way. Rookmani pitched the engagement for the losers. Langton was the big hitter for the "Irish" while Doyle and Giffin followed in order. Alexander and Sicard have wielded the big bats for the losers. The winners out-hit the O.S.D. 18 to 10.

The lineups:

St. Michael's: Giffin, McQuaid, Amo, O'Neill, Pavel, Hazlip, Hughes, Langton, Doyle and Barry.

GOLF

SWING BETWEEN SHOULDER AND BREAKFAST

One fault that all golfers have at one time or another is that of lifting the arms away from the body. This fault cannot be corrected by swinging at a ball or at the ground. Hence, to-day's exercise finds the club being swung well above the ground.

As far back as 1918 I made use of an exercise in which the club is swung like a baseball bat. Standing erect improves body action and helps to keep the arms close to the body.

In addition to swing as though the ball were about level with the ground, hands should be made a point to keep the club and your shoulder in the right shoulder in the backswing, and below the level of the left shoulder in the finish.

Stand erect, with your head and shoulders back, swing the club back and forth at this level and you'll feel how your muscles power and better timing in your swing. Practice this exercise daily at home and at every opportunity on the course.

TIMBER CHEQUES BEING HELD UP

Highway Minister, However, Says Nothing Out of Way Discovered

Toronto, May 30—(CP)—Cheques for creosoted timber ordered for use in building bridges in Northern Ontario have been held up pending a study of the need for this material, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn stated today. This investigation is being conducted by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways.

The Department of Northern Development which formerly looked after road building in the north was recently amalgamated with the Department of Highways. It is this amalgamation that is leading to investigation into various activities of the old department, Mr. McQuesten said.

"Of course, we are investigating everything as we take it over," the minister declared. "I can truthfully say we haven't discovered anything out of the way yet. So I don't know what the papers are talking about when they say that there are irregularities. Five specific cases have been uncovered. We certainly haven't uncovered any. Or if we have I don't know about them."

Mr. Hepburn, who just returned from the north, stated he was further satisfied of the need for roads into mines. These roads will be built by the Federal and Provincial Governments with a view to opening up sections of the north where large ore bodies are known to exist.

Ice Still Blocks Exit To Port Colborne Harbor

Port Colborne, Ont., May 19 (CP) —Ten vessels were locked in the harbor here today when the ice jam blocked exit to open water. Vessels unable to move to be out of the Welland ship canal.

Indications are the tie-up will continue for several hours for the Steel Chemist, leading the onslaught against the ice, was making practically no impression. The ice stretches across the 200-foot width of the canal and for about 400 feet in from the harbor.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour a pint of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harsh purgatives act just like the boxful, and you feel sour, sick and miserable.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two vital organs working right. Insist on Carter's Little Liver Pills. Refuse substitutes. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse substitutes. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse substitutes. 25c.

INDIAN FOUND DEAD NEAR SHACK

Police Start Investigation Into Mystery at Garden Village

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., May 30 — (CP)—Provincial Constable S. Bernard today launched an investigation into the death of Charles Nanool, 54-year-old Indian, whose body was found lying across the doorsill of his shack near Garden Village, Indian Reservation, four miles east of here.

Louis Beaucage told police he made the discovery of the body when he visited Nanool's shack Monday morning.

Nanool had been last seen Saturday night about 10 o'clock when he attended a party at a neighbor's home.

It is believed on his return home Nanool was shot, the bullet entering his head as he went into his shack in the woods. A crude building less than six feet high, he had lived alone.

As police went over the scene it was estimated the man's assailant was less than 10 feet from him when the gun was fired. The bullet went through the body before it left shooting a gaping hole in the chest. It is expected an inquest will be ordered shortly.

Friends of the Indian said they knew of no enemies he had and maintained he was well-liked by everyone who knew him. The only money he received was through the monthly Treaty Allowance of $9.36.

It all was working out better than she had hoped.

Safe in her own room, Jean switched on the light over her table and uncovered the drawing-board. How long it seemed since last she stood there, she picked up a pencil and made a few aimless marks, standing furtively now and then through the door she had been careful to leave open. The watchman would be passing soon. He must see her at work.

After an endless interval of waiting, an elevator door banged. Then Johnson panting to remark, carelessly:

"Hard as it, eh? Not ready to ride down, I guess."

"Not quite, thank you. I'll use the stairs."

"Okay."

Jean waited breathlessly until another clang of the elevator door came to her straining ears. Johnson must have gone down to the third. She extinguished her light.

The moment had come.

How unfamiliar the dress department, with its few lights burning. The racks and cases shrouded in their ghostly dust sheets. Silence everywhere. Jean ran lightly over the carpeted floor and gained the stair well.

She crept noiselessly up the two flights, opened a door and found herself peering around into the corridor. The offices. Rows of doors, all lightly closed. No sounds of life. She slipped like a shadow along the wall until she gained Sturges's room.

It was very nearly dark in there, except for a dull glow from the street. Jean closed the door noiselessly and drew a deep breath.

Her fingers were steady as she located the switch button on the desk lamp. One swift inspection and her heart sank. The glass top held no papers of any description. A sob of disappointment welled in her throat.

Was it all for nothing, then?

Another despairing glance at the desk top resulted in a discovery. The shallow centre drawer was open a trifle. Jean drew it out farther, peeped within.

A pale blue envelope!

Smothering a cry of exultation, she snatched it out and held it under the light. It bore an address in curious cramped handwriting:

"M. Sturges, Private."

Quickly had been Jean thrust the letter in the front of her dress, she must close the drawer, be very sure.....

"Oh.....!"

A frightened gasp escaped her as the room suddenly blazed with light.

There, watching from a doorway, was Spencer Cannon. His fat fingers still rested on the wall switch.

Jean stared with horrified fascination at the pale eyes peering at her unwinkingly.

"Well, young woman!" purred a soft voice.

She stood frozen in her tracks. No sound came from her parted lips.

"It is very interesting to find we have a sneak-thief in the store," Cannon resumed gently. "What is your name?"

No answer.

"Then perhaps I can guess. Is it .....Sawyer?"

Jean nodded dumbly.

It was more of it. Has she see what you have taken before I......" He nodded towards her on his progress his feet, hand held out.

Mad! desperate as a cornered animal, Jean made to dash for freedom. Pudgy fingers clamped down on her shoulder, tightened like chains of iron.

"Would you?"

The captive sank with a little sob at Cannon's feet. She looked beseechingly into his cold eyes, tried to plead.

Then some one must have turned out all the lights.

After a restless stroll past lighted shop windows, Nan returned to the drug store to carry on her anxious vigil.

She perched herself on a stool at the soda fountain and ordered a cooling drink as a substitute for the ammonia spirits. She sipped it slowly, her glances straying continually to the street door. There were no other patrons at the moment and the white-jacketed attendant was prone to converse.

If he didn't shut up, she'd scream, Nan kept telling herself as she tried to answer in monosyllables. At length, she thrust aside her partly emptied glass and paid the check. Then to the door to glare moodily at the big store across the way.

Why didn't Gorgeous come?

As she strained her eyes for some sign of the adventurous, Nan felt a sudden tingle of fear. Her attention was caught by a flare of light on the top floor. The offices were up there. It must be Jean. Whatever possessed her to do that? Why didn't she use the switch? She wouldn't have a match.....A shadow passing across the bright rectangle of the window. The light burned on.

Somewhere in the distance a siren whined. Coming nearer. With a final raucous warning, a small car slid swiftly to a stop before The Iron Block. Two uniformed men sprang out. They hurried to the door where some one let them in.

Cops!

Nan gave one horrified look and raced to a telephone booth just within the drug store. Luckily she knew the name of the hotel where Sturges lived. If only she knew the number. The hulky directory seemed to defy her clumsy efforts to find it. There it was at last..... "Gorham—7-3678." Tricky.

"Oof," she murmured under her breath, as her finger jerked at the dial, "I don't often bother.....but please let that Romeo be home!"

Her prayers were answered almost immediately. Sturges himself, once the call was put through to his room.

"Hello, Sturges speaking."

"Say! This is Nan Gamble.....I'm at Evans'.....You know, just across from the store. Come here as quick as you can. It'll be waiting out front."

"What!" came the amazed exclamation.

"Never mind. Do as I tell you. It's dreadfully serious. Run!"

Nan put an end to questioning by returning the receiver to its place with a bang.

INSTALMENT 20.

"I guess that'll fetch him," Nan muttered grimly. "No time for foolishness." She hurried to the street again and watched anxiously along the avenue in the direction of the hotel. In a few minutes she was rewarded by the sight of Mark Sturges. He was very nearly obeying her final injunction for speed. She started to meet him.

"What's happened, Miss Gamble?" he demanded when within range.

"Hurry to the store," was her reply. "Something is wrong..... It's Jean."

"You mean Miss Sawyer? But what.....?"

"Of course I do. Haven't time to talk much. Come along. You see, Jean went up to your office to.....for something.. I was waiting for her. Two cops just came in that car and ran into the store. That's why I called you. I'm afraid....."

Sturges needed no urging now. They already had reached the store door and his thumb was holding down the call button.

"You say Miss Sawyer went to my office for something? Are you sure?"

"I know it."

"But why in the world didn't she.....?"

"Ask her. I'm just trying to see that the kid doesn't get in a jam. See?"

The appearance of Johnston, the watchman, put an end to further questioning.

"Oh..... it's you, Mr. Sturges."

"Take us up to the office at once," Mark ordered, shouldering his way past the man. Nan was close at his heels.

"What's up there," the watchman volunteered eagerly. "Took some police the hose sent for. Shall I wait?"

"No. Stick around where you can be found."

"Yes, sir."

Mark strode to the door of his office, which stood open. As usual, he paused on the threshold. This time, with reason.

Jean Sawyer lay in a little heap on the rug. Nearby, two patrolmen valied uncertainly.

Peering unblinkingly from the background was Spencer Cannon.

"What's happened here?" was over Jean's motionless form.

Sturges's blunt question as his eyes took in the scene. Nan pushed him aside unceremoniously and knelt at Jean's side.

Cannon came forward.

"I was doing some work in my room, Sturges, when I heard some one come in here. I surprised this young woman in the act of rifling your desk. She seems a little overcome."

"I don't believe it!"

The corners of Cannon's mouth flickered.

"No? I scarcely am surprised at your defense. But you see her here now. If she is in the habit of.....

Wait, I suggest your other lady friend d.> a little searching. The girl hid something in her dress."

Without replying, Sturges bent

"Makes me feel like a murderer," groaned Doc. "You will be, almost, if they go through with this thing," said Dick; "but if you tell them.....

Doc grunted:

"When they don't find the knives inside his coco, they'll kill us anyway. We can't win!"

"Well, if we have to die anyway, there's no need letting them kill that poor kid. Let's tell them it was what you call a 'frame-up,' and let other inspiration strook Doc.

"I've got it!" he cried, after the love of Mike, slip me your knife! Quick! Now watch my smoke!"

mistake. This young lady was rendering an important service to the store..... and to Mr. Cannon. I will be responsible for her appearance, if necessary."

"Well!" Spencer raised a commanding hand.

"Excuse me, Mr. Cannon." Sturges stared calmly at his employer. "I advise you to accept my version of this. In fact, I advise it very strongly."

Cannon blinked rapidly. Something in the younger man's voice made him uncertain. Sturges quietly followed up his advantage.

Screaming in terror, Pashu was dragged to the open space before the chief's hut. There Calla Calla and Intano were determined to crack the boy's skull to see what was inside. Doc's "magic" was really inside. The tanned faces of the Tarzan Twins were blanched with horror.

Now, while two artists held the half-fainting black boy, the witch-doctor, armed with a knobkerrie, made mystical passes and mumbled a weird incantation. "Can't we do something to keep Intano from breaking his head open with that club?" whispered Dick desperately.

"You will be, almost, if they go through with this thing," said Dick; "but if you tell them.....

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"The Moon's Our Home"

"The Moon's Our Home", Walter Wanger's latest production for Paramount, is announced for presentation at the Belle tomorrow and Friday, matinee daily, with that capable screen actress, Margaret Sullivan, in the star role.

Directed by William A. Seiter from a Faith Baldwin story, "The Moon's Our Home" deals with two international celebrities who have learned to hate each other merely on the strength of their reputations.

As a fiery-tempered, pampered though beautiful screen star, Miss Sullivan refers to a noted world explorer-author over whom millions of women, Doris Lane said, as the kind of person who would be lost without his hot water bottle." Henry Fonda, as the globe-trotter, returns to the screen star as a "phoney blonde with a face that resembles French pastry."

They eventually meet under assumed names, and, without knowing each other's real identity, fall in love. They are married, but almost immediately their temperaments clash. The two leave the bridegroom flat: Relenting, they make a frantic search for each other and the amusing situations which arise from the search, and the manner in which the scrappy pair become reconciled, make "The Moon's Our Home" lively screen entertainment.

Others supporting Miss Sullivan are Hamtrelis Croman, Beulah Bondi, Lucien Littlefield and Dorothy Stickney.

"Three Square Playboy"

With Warren William in the leading role, "Three Square Playboy," a hilarious Warner Bros. comedy, sprinkled with drama, romance and song, is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

The picture is based on George M. Cohan's Broadway success, "The Home Towners", is said to be ideally suited to the comedy talents of Warren Williams. It marks the second picture in which lovely June Travis, daughter of Harry Cushing, Vice President of the Chicago White Sox, has the leading female role.

Marion MacLane noted film "bad man" has a comedy role in the picture being William's friendly butler, valet and athletic trainer.

Gene Lockart and his wife, Kathleen Lockart, are the small towners around whom the picture revolves. A delightful travesty, in color "Floral Mexico" will be exhibited on the same program.

Children's Talent Show

A splendid group of Juvenile entertainers will appear on the Belle Theatre stage tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 8.30 p.m. a real treat is promised local theatregoers as a grand variety bill is assured. Three liberal cash prizes will be awarded the first three entries.

"Three Three" Leaving

"Three Three" one of the year's outstanding dramatic pictures featuring Merle Oberon, Joel McCrea, and Miriam Hopkins will be exhibited for the last times tonight, with other treats.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Rhodes, the Diamond Master"

There are some words and phrases which inevitably go together. So is it that the name of Cecil Rhodes, diamond master empire builder and jungle conqueror, whom his story is dramatically re-created by Walter Huston in "Rhodes, the Diamond Master", the CIS picture now showing at the Capitol Theatre, brings immediately to mind the world's oldest, greatest luxury—diamonds.

It was with the money he made in diamonds that Cecil Rhodes financed all the vast political schemes he cherished for the building of an impregnable empire in South Africa.

It was with the remains ($5,000,000) of the money he made in diamonds that Rhodes established the famous scholarships which bear his name.

But perhaps there is bad luck in diamonds. For although five million dollars seems like a great deal of money, it proved a paltry stake for the fact that at the height of his power Cecil Rhodes held an empire and a world in which his whim was law, and innumerable stories have been told of the disaster brought by famous diamonds. Koh Hinboor, the Orloff and the Hope, three of the world's most renowned diamonds, all have histories of pillage and violence and bloodshed that run back beyond belief.

These three are all diamonds from India's Golconda, the first known and most famous source of supply.

The Brazilian diamond fields, discovered next, in 1721, were in turn eclipsed by the discovery of the fabulously rich South African fields, which at present yield about 95 per cent of the world's total product.

The great Cullinan diamond, a South African stone, weighed 3,106 carats in the rough, and was cut into nine stones, the largest two of which, respectively 540 and 317 carats in weight, are the world's largest cut diamonds.

Diamonds occur occasionally in the United States, but only in Arkansas has there been any attempt to mine them. The project was abandoned, after about 10,000 carats of diamonds had been removed, because of production difficulties. Perry county was the site of the largest diamond ever found in Arkansas.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma said, Stone and Stone have the most attractive ad in today's paper, Willyum.

I'm in no position to be attracted by any lousy store advertisement, I don't care if it's written in the best selle since Shakespeare, pop said, and ma said, That's just the very several attitude that they try to get us out in this advertisement, that's what makes it so clever. Lots of people have the impression that Stone and Stone is only for the rich and prosperous, and they go on to explain that although it's true that the largest purse has no terrors for them, it's also true that they welcome the smallest purses just as cordially, ma said.

Yes, no doubt their uniformed attendant will open the door for you practically free of charge, pop said, and ma said, and then the advertisement goes on to explain that they have all sorts of inexpensive little trinkets and gadgets all the way down to a package of Hints for a cigar lighter for 30 cents. Didn't I hear you say you're run out of Hints, Willyum? she said.

Yes I have, as a matter of fact, pop said, and ma said, That's what I thunk, so I called gally into Stone and Stone's this afternoon for the thrill of actually buying something in there, even if it only cost 30 cents. And the first thing I saw was a big display of Hints all ready for only 22 dollars and really worth 30 and actually reprized from 40. Can you imagine it, I stamped it up! she said.

Only too well, pop said, Well at least give me my Hints, he said, and ma said, Well, do you know, Willyum, I completely forgot to buy the Hints, I'll go back tomorrow.

Only pop made her promise not to, saying he was going passed the place himself.

Health and Psychology

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Have you ever questioned yourself on your own sincerity? Have you ever observed whether your everyday actions and reactions are framed as they might be.

The truth of the matter is that we may readily fall into the habit of pretense without really meaning to deceive. Life's relentless hand on many artificial aspects — so on many artificial aspects — so often does it seem best to wear a mask, and not reveal what we really are thinking and feeling — that insincerity may become a part of our behavior while we scarcely realize that this has happened.

Yet it goes without saying that nothing impresses one more than genuine, sterling sincerity. Perhaps this is largely due to the fact that sincerity is becoming a rare quality; but it has not yet disappeared entirely.

The point is, how much does sincerity motivate you? How much does it dominate your conduct? How great a role does it play in molding your character?

Sincerity is such a great character asset that any man or woman can afford to be wrong on many mistakes, and still be forgiven because of his or her sincerity. You will never be censured, practically, no matter what you say or do, provided your motives are known to be right and just.

Sincerity and honesty are almost synonymous terms. Washington said: "I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles, the character of a sincere, honest man."

We often fall into habits of insincerity without meaning to. Social conventions demand that we be polite we say many things, and don't mean a word of what we say.

One tree does not make a forest, nor one insincerity a character fault. But one insincerity leads to another, and in conversation, social manners many things are said and done that have not the slightest element of truth in them.

If we become by habit insincere in our social contacts, we are bound to carry our insincerities, in some measure at least, over to other relationships. Therein lies the real danger!

Therefore, evaluate your own sincerity or lack of it. You need all you can get of it — as does the world.

EARLY AIRPLANE ENGINE STORED IN U. BUILDING

A 10-cylinder radial engine, the work of an inspired inventor who was dreaming 30 years ago of being a pioneer in his country's air industry as a valuable aid in winning the World war, now rests—a memorial to lost hopes—in the mechanical engineering building on the University of Wisconsin campus.

The inventor, after having searched for and finally found a financial backer, began work back in the winter of 1915-16 in an attempt to reduce the weight per horsepower of aeronautical engines. The idea was to make fighting and scouting planes more efficient and give them increased cruising ranges, vitally important in those early days of aeronautics.

Records show that the young designer and hopeful financial backer removed the resultant 10-cylinder radial engine to the Bell laboratory to take advantage of laboratory equipment in testing its reported 150 horsepower output and general mechanical durability.

But so drastically had the weights of all parts been reduced that the crankcase was not left strong enough to withstand forces developed in the cylinders. The engine made only a half dozen revolutions before the crankcase split in places, in spite of peculiar tie-rods placed at an angle thought to keep the crankcase from heaving.

"It's every man for himself in Hollywood, and you have to know the right people" she said. Miss Grant blames her "very bad" film performances on nervousness because the parts assigned her were too near the top for a film beginner.

NO TAMPERING IN PALESTINE, EGYPT—BALDWIN

Britain Will Probe Riots in Palestine Commons is Told

Baldwin Makes it Clear No Interference by Italy Will be Tolerated in Either Land

INTERFERENCE IS AGGRESSION

Mandate Responsibilities in Palestine Will be Carried Out in Full—Prime Minister is Cheered

London, May 21—(AP)—Prime Minister Baldwin served a strong warning in the House of Commons today that Great Britain would not tolerate foreign tampering with the affairs of Palestine and Egypt.

His statement was made in reply to a member's request that he make it clear, that Great Britain would not permit Italian interference in those two countries.

The announcement closely followed a governmental decision to appoint a Royal Commission to investigate disorders in Palestine which various British sources have reported as inspired by Italians.

Situation in Egypt

Recalling that Great Britain withdrew its protectorate from Egypt in 1922, Baldwin said: "In so notifying the powers, His Majesty's Government made it clear in unmistakable terms it would regard as an unfriendly act any attempt at interference in the affairs of Egypt by any power and would consider any aggression against territory in Egypt as an act to be repelled by all the means at its command.

"No further statement appears necessary.

"His Majesty's Government, responsible for the administration and protection of Palestine in accordance with the terms of the mandate, intends to discharge its responsibilities to the full."

The members cheered Mr. Baldwin's declaration loudly.

Empire Defence Reviewed

Following the Prime Minister's warning, Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, reviewed the Empire's defence position in his first long speech since taking the post.

He discussed freely what he said was an increase in the danger to Britain of sudden war as the vital reason for building up a reserve of war supplies.

Stating collective action and preparedness had increased Britain's needs, Sir Thomas asserted:

"The Italian clash illustrates this. No one two years ago could have foreseen that our relations with so firm and old a friend would be as disturbed as they have been."

Building Within Treaty

Lord Stanley, financial secretary to the admiralty, said that despite the act Germany had 36 submarines built or under construction instead of 28, as stated in December, the admiralty had no reason to believe the construction was outside the limits of the Anglo-German Naval Treaty.

Sir Thomas said Great Britain's air force expansion plan called for a threefold increase as compared with 1934 and that 1,600 pilots had been added in the last year.

"But what we are interested in at the present moment," he said, "is the provision of aircraft for the use of the personnel."

He disclosed that the government had launched a campaign to enlist automobile firms in the manufacture of airplanes. He said such firms had been asked to build new plants or extensions on their factories at government expense.

Cairo, Egypt, May 21—(AP)—The first battalion of the Seaforth Highlanders was sent to Palestine today to reinforce the British troops, estimated at 2,000, already there. It was understood the action was taken because of the present Arab-Jew disorders in Palestine.

Hundreds Killed in Quakes, Central China is Terrorized

Severe Shock Rocks Szechuan Province, Many Die

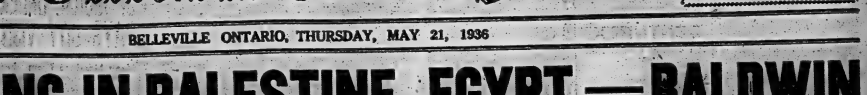
BUILDINGS WRECKED

Shanghai, China, May 21 (AP)—Earthquakes killed hundreds in province of central China, caused extensive damage and terrorized the superstitious natives, reports reaching Shanghai today said.

Several hundred were killed and injured Saturday at Pinghahin, Szechuan Province, by a severe earthquake, the reports said. Sixty per cent of the buildings in Pinghahin were leveled.

Similar quakes occurred yesterday in Chungking, Szechuan Province. Death and damage from the later shocks was not reported in dispatches and belated accounts reaching here.

Drums were beaten today, sacrifices offered and other magical devices resorted to by the terrified Chinese in their eagerness to appease the monsters they believe cause the shocks.



The Chinese believe these earthquakes are caused by huge whales in the interior of the earth arching their backs against the upper firmament or by angry dragons wagging their tails.

King Edward Surprises Soldiers at Mealtime

Aldershot, England, May 21—(CP)—Cadets' Pulleyn on inspection of the Second Scots Guards and the Third Coldstream today, the King walked into one of the barrack rooms where the men were dining.

After a momentary look around he asked loudly: "Any complaints," obviously in remembrance of the routine question which he often put in his own days as an orderly officer of the Grenadiers.

After answering in a chorus likewise routine, "No sir," the soldiers went on with their dinner and the King went out laughing.

LABOR IMPORTS UNDERPROTECTION

'Strike Breakers' From Ranks of Unemployed in Beet Fields

Lethbridge, Alta., May 21—(CP)—"Strike breakers," recruited from the ranks of the unemployed in Calgary and Edmonton, began work in Southern Alberta's sugar-beet fields today as regular field workers remained firm in demand for higher wages and union recognition.

The labor imports worked under police protection after scattered reports of intimidation had been received from the beet growing area south of Lethbridge and Raymond. Taber is around 50 miles east of Lethbridge and Raymond, 20 miles south.

Several hundred unemployed men from the northern cities were already at work on farms when the strikers' ranks grew. Mr. Mora, were encouraged by the arrival of fresh workers, the total of 500 required to handle the 19,000-acre sugar-beet plots.

The field workers walked from the beet fields early this week. They demanded the growers recognize their union and that their pay be increased to $21.50 an acre. The growers, united under the name of Alberta Beet Growers' Association, offered $20.00 an acre.

Famous U.S. Aviator Dies of Heart Attack

San Diego, Calif., May 21.—(AP)—Commander Richard E. Byrd, 48, aviator, of the first United States airplane to cross the Atlantic, died yesterday of a heart attack.

As Lieutenant Byrd flew on his famous navy seaplane N-C 4 which in 1919 made the first aerial crossing of the Atlantic ocean.

Withdraw Legation Guards, Hints are Made by Italy

Question of Safety in Addis Ababa and of Recognition Involved

ORDERLY MISSING

London, May 21 (AP)—An authoritative source said today the British and French governments have been in consultation following Italian "hints" that their Legation guards in Addis Ababa should be withdrawn.

The two governments, it was said, are seeking to determine what course they should pursue.

Informed sources said Italy had not made an official request on the subject. Instead intimations were said to have been given Sir Eric Barton, British Minister to Ethiopia, by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, and Sir Sir. Drummond Shiels, British Ambassador to Italy, by Fulvio Suvich, Italian Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

The impression was gained that the Italians considered themselves in control of the situation in the Ethiopian capital and able to maintain safety for foreigners. Legation guards were considered superfluous.

British Force of Sikhs

(Site Addis Ababa, Ethiopia)—Legation guards—150 Sikhs of the British India army—served as an impenetrable bulwark against native rioters following the fall of Addis Ababa. British, French and foreign residents including the United States Legation staff, found refuge in the British Legation. The French Legation gave refuge to its nationals and others and scraps of food were thrown over its own guard of French Colonials.)

Natives Study Situation.

The British and French have been studying whether the conditions in Addis Ababa can be considered safe.

It was pointed out here that, by right of military occupation, every Italian government can demand the withdrawal of foreign legations if it desires, but it was stated that such a demand had not yet been made.

The British have made it clear that, even should they withdraw their legation, they would consider the step to be taken without political implications as regards the recognition of Italian sovereignty over Ethiopia.

Meanwhile, the British have ordered searching inquiries into the mysterious disappearance of Miss Bonner, a nursing orderly attached to the British ambulance unit in Addis Ababa.

Orderly Disappears.

Bonner underwent treatment for rabies after a mad dog bit him in Addis Ababa. When the anti-rabies sera was exhausted, he was started by train for Djibouti, French Somaliland, from which he was to go to Aden for further treatment.

However, he stopped at Dire-Dawa to talk to the British consul at that place and the train pulled out without him.

The consul told the Italians Bonner needed treatment urgently, then returned to his post at Harar, leaving Bonner in Dire-Dawa. At Harar, the consul received a report Bonner had been arrested.

The consul again approached the Italians who then alleged Bonner had been employed by the armed forces of the Ethiopian government. The consul strongly denied this charge.

Then he was told Bonner had disappeared.

It was stated the inquiry is being diligently pursued but that no representations have been made to Rome.

Informed sources stated they were not aware of any approach from Italy offering to remove this cause of friction in the hopes of easing tension between Italy and Great Britain.

Toronto, May 21—(CP)—A court motion making direct reference to the "alleged murder" of Ambrose W. Small and asking particulars of the manner in which Small's wife, now dead, allegedly "aided and abetted" the "alleged murder," was set forth in a statement of claim, entered today into the 17-year-old mystery of Small's disappearance.

The motion was made before Mr. Justice G. S. Henry, sitting in weekly court on behalf of the executors of Mr. Small's estate. It came in connection with the suit of Mary Florence Small, sister of the missing millionaire, to have set aside the non-judicial order setting aside probate of the wife, Mrs. Theresa Small.

Second Motion

Another motion, filed on behalf of Mary Florence Small, asked an injunction restraining the executors of the estate, Arthur J. Holmes and Warren L. Gray, from distributing assets of the estate and also from distributing assets of Small's estate, of which the wife was executrix.

Hearing of each of the motions was adjourned until May 28.

Debutante Signs as Purser, Old Salts are Much Annoyed

Nurse Hopes Some Day For Quartermaster's Ticket

IS CALLED 'JINX'.

Boston, May 21 (CP) — Louise Kimball, 23-year-old debutante, signed on today as purser of the steamer Westport—and Boston's old salts expressed their displeasure in no uncertain terms.

Miss Kimball, a graduate nurse, hopes some day to get a quartermaster's ticket, and ultimately a position as head nurse on a transatlantic liner. Steamship ints said they believed she was the only woman purser along the Atlantic coast.

The Westport is an excursion and deep-sea fishing steamer.

Then she was chosen along Boston's waterfront who nearly suffered a stroke of apoplexy at the thought of a woman signing on a ship's crew.

Captain Charles Lyons, chief steamship inspector at Boston, was one of the displeased.

"I don't think women belong on a ship. They're supposed to be a jinx you know."

Other skippers' criticisms were more salty.

Mrs. Kasper put one hand to her forehead and stared, saying not a word until attendants led her away.

Then, she turned to Dr. Frank P. Jani, who delivered the quadruplets 12 days ago, and said:

"Thank you ever so much, doctor. I'm sorry for all the trouble I caused you."

MAKER OF ARMS IS "STIGMATIZED"

Sir Maurice Hankey Defends Private Manufacturer

By BURDETTE JOHNS
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, May 21—(AP)—Sir Maurice Hankey, Secretary of the committees for Imperial Defence, defended the private arms manufacturer today as "an essential part of our system of imperial defence."

He called the manufacturer a man who has been unjustly stigmatized.

Sir Maurice, who also is secretary of the Cabinet, was a witness before the Royal Arms Commission investigating munitions manufacture and traffic.

"This historical foundation of allegations against the private manufacture of arms is one of sand. I submit that the suggestion the manufacture of arms is a business on a par moral plane is unjustified" he said.

"The extravagant language we have heard is inappropriate and unscalled for. This polarizing of the atmosphere increases the difficulties of those who wish to present a more impartial view."

"The allegations and grave objections against private manufacture and trading of arms and munitions of war have been greatly exaggerated.

"Private manufacture is an essential part of our system of imperial defence. It is instrumental to the public interest that those engaged in it should be stigmatized this way."

FROSTS DAMAGE VEGETABLE CROPS

Tomato, Beets, Cabbage Plants Blighted by Frosts Throughout Ontario

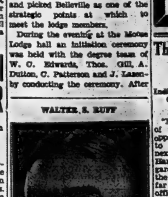
Overnight frosts brought further damage in Ontario and Quebec today but welcome rains heartened Prairie farmers although another will suffer further delay in some northern districts where seeding operations ground work on the land.

The coldest blast of the season nipped crops overnight in Ontario with the Niagara Peninsula and the province's southern agricultural front caused considerable damage to strawberries, clover and vegetables but fruit escaped and a heavy morning dew alleviated the frost attack. The mercury dipped to 34 degrees in the Galt district but warmer weather was in prospect. At Peterborough the thermometer registered freezing temperatures for the third time since last Friday but farmers believed the latest frost had not caused additional damage.

Ice at Quebec Stream.

Ice formed on the banks of streams in the Quebec district as a cold, damp temperature was marked up. Vegetables, fruits and plants suffered damage.

Floods were the chief problem in the Montreal district, where waters of rivers and lakes rose as much as five inches today. A dozen families in Mille Iles River and Riviere Des Prairies reported imminent property damage as strong winds swept valley areas over the weekend.



Rains, general throughout the prairies today, started yesterday in southern Alberta and reached over northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba as far east as the Ontario boundary. Benefit to districts where solid drifting has been reported was expected.

Those Who Refuse Work, May Not Eat

Indifference of Relief Recipients to Garden Work Causes Mayor's Ire

"It would hardly be fair for some of those who refuse to take the opportunity now to help themselves to complain about being hungry next winter," commented Mayor Harry Hill, scanning the list of garden plots at the city hall, and the quantity of seed that has so been given out by the relief office to the city's workless and rented vacant lots.

Aroused by the antipathy displayed by many of those on relief who have refused to apply for work on the vacant lots, the Mayor pointed out that these lots were being weeded off the relief lists as fast as investigation could be made of the circumstances.

"It seems to be the impression that the city has to keep a certain class. This is the wrong attitude, and the sooner it is done away with the better it will be for all concerned."

A year or so ago when garden lots were offered those on relief over two hundred were worked in one summer, records at the city hall reveal. This year the total number of applicants registered for these lots, which included those workless as well as on the relief lists is around 70 or 75, it is pointed out.

12 IN RUNNING FOR LEADERSHIP OF CONSERVATIVES

W. G. Martin, Former Welfare Minister Latest to Enter Field

LOOKS LIKE ROWE

W. J. Stewart And Col. Geo. Drew Will Supply Heavy Opposition

Toronto, May 21 (CP)—A week from today, in all probability the Conservative party of Ontario will have a new leader and perhaps a dozen of the party's ranking figures will have passed in review before the 1,200 delegates from all parts of the Province assembled for convention.

Most of those who pass, who are officially nominated, will move on without delay. They will not, it is believed in political circles, make any serious attempt to win the leadership. They will have the honour of being nominated — and then withdraw.

This wide field may be increased from day to day. Twenty-four hours a round dozen, the latest candidate being W. G. Martin of Brantford, who was Ontario's first Welfare Minister. He served in the Henry government, which was defeated in the 1934 general election. Mr. Martin was also beaten in that election.

Endorsed by Brantford

He was endorsed as candidate last night by the Brantford Conservative Association and said he would be willing to allow his name to go before the convention, which meets here next May 28, if he was believed the de..... would get down to actual be..... Thursday.

Most serious contenders for the leadership, it has developed, are Hon. Earl Rowe, member of Parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe and a member of the last Hepburn cabinet; Major William J. Stewart, former Toronto Mayor, and Colonel George A. Drew, noted soldier and former Ontario Securities Commissioner.

There is no doubt that the three are openly in the fight, confident of obtaining strong support from a convention that will have the right to make up its own mind. The majority of local associations had given their delegates a free rein in the voting.

Many in Racing

But many other names will come before assemblage and at least a few of them are expected to attract more than merely preliminary support. Among those mentioned are Howard Ferguson, former leader and Premier and George S. Henry present leader and former Premier.

Mr. Ferguson returned two days ago from a world cruise and said he would attend the convention. He also said that he was not interested in the leadership. Many party lieutenants hope he may be. Mr. Henry also hasn't said whether he will stand, but general opinion is that he won't.

Gairdid Meighen, youthful member of the Legislature for Toronto St. Patrick, will be in the running. So will Arthur Hall, member for Ottawa South and former Mayor of the Capital. Hall is 42 years, member for Carleton, said many months ago he would run.

Then there is Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, Minister of Mines in the Hepburn government, who will attend the convention. James Lyon of Sault Ste. Marie, former Ferguson cabinet Minister, will have support.

Duke of Connaught To Present Baton To King Edward VIII

London, May 21 (CP)—At Buckingham Palace on Tuesday the aged Duke of Connaught, as senior Field Marshal, will present to the King his Field-Marshal's baton. His Majesty assumed that rank on his accession January 20.

The Duke of Connaught will be accompanied by all other Field Marshals: Sir William Birdwood, Sir Claud Jacob, Lord Milne, the Earl of Cavan, Sir Philip Chetwode and Sir Archibald Montgomery-Massingberd.

The king, at 42, is not the youngest to receive the baton of a Field Marshal. The prince consort—father of the late King Edward VII, and great grandfather of the king—held the highest military rank at the age of 21, and King Edward VII, when Prince of Wales, at 34.

The baton is about 12 inches long and one inch in diameter. The staff is covered with red velvet with gold lions passant gardant in eight rings upon it. At the top there is a chased gold mount with a wreath of roses, shamrock and thistle surrounding the Crown and the royal cipher. The lower end has a mount of similar design.

Schuschnigg and Troops That Made Him Supreme in Austria

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, with hand raised in salute, is pictured reviewing a guard of honor of the Catholic workers' organization, the Frontsoldatund (Liberty Leagus), in Vienna, recently. The scene was made in the Heldenplatz, at which the time Nazi it was snapped disorders were occurring in another portion of the city in which Heimwehr and members of the Frontsoldatbund fought each other. The chain of the Frontsoldatbund, Schuschnigg's "army", with the Heimwehr, Vice-Chancellor Von Starhemberg's supporters, precipitated the crisis that resulted in the coming of Von Starhemberg from his position.

ORDERED TO MERGE HYDRO SYSTEMS

Windsor Utilities Decide to Ignore Order of Commission

Windsor, Ont., May 21 (CP)—The Utilities Commission today was in a state of revolt against the Ontario Government — appointed Finance Commission, which instructed it to merge the Hydro Systems of the four municipalities which just less than a year ago were amalgamated into Greater Windsor.

In the face of advice by City Solicitor Angus Macdonald that the members risked fines and five years disqualification from holding public office, the Utilities Commission decided last night to go its own way.

Mayor George Bennett moved that "no recognition be made of instructions from the Finance Commission pending a report on the assets and liabilities satisfactory to this commission." It was carried. The Finance Commission had asked that the merger of Hydro systems be effected on or before May 23.

One member of the Commission, Gordon R. Ellis, was absent. He is ill in a hospital. H. J. Dugal seconded the mayor's motion, and R. L. Dashis, chairman, voted in favor. A. J. Brian was the dissenter.

The mayor also embodied in his motion the provision for a report on the outside municipalities of Riverside, Tecumseh and St. Clair Beach, the Finance Commission having recommended discontinuance of the contract between them and the Walkerville system; and further, that in this commission determine its own policy in relation to these matters prior to a decision being arrived at."

His Worship called one finance commissioner "the Judas Iscariot of municipal politics", referred to them collectively as "only puppets", and threatened "to take their scalps off".

Egypt's New King Meets His Bodyguard

King Farouk (CENTRE), 16-year-old monarch of Egypt, is pictured reviewing his guard of honor in the railroad station at Alexandria, a few days ago. Following the death of King Fuad, his father, the new king left his studies in England, to hurry home; and it was given a stirring welcome both at Alexandria, where he landed, and in Cairo. This scene was pictured as he was borne he entrained for Cairo.

HAMILTON PAIR NOW IN CUSTODY

Toronto, May 21.—(CP)— Mike Boychuk, 24, and Mike Zulak, 26, both of Hamilton, were in police custody today charged with burglary and being in possession of burglary tools, following an early morning chase by police in which Boychuk leaped from a moving car and, seeking two closed windows in an attempt to escape.

Police Constables David Swann and Frank Humphreys arriving in a police car, saw the two men in a lane and gave chase. Humphreys soon captured Zulak but Swann chased Boychuk down a lane and over three 12-foot fences into a yard.

Only revenue open was through a house and Boychuk dived through a kitchen window knocking cooking utensils off the table and waking the occupants. Boychuk dived out a front window followed by Swann. He was caught and arrested.

After the men had been taken to the police station a burglary was reported in the vicinity in which they were caught.

Obituary

MISS MARY E. SAGER
(Ameliasburg)

After a lengthy illness Miss Mary Emily Sager passed away early Thursday, May 21st, at the residence of her brother, Mr. Wesley W. Sager, in the first concession of Ameliasburg township, Prince Edward County.

The late Miss Sager was born 81 years ago in the old homestead where she died, all her life having been spent in the Ameliasburg Township. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Sager. She was a member of the United Church and attended her local church all she was held in high esteem by all who knew her.

Surviving her are one brother, Mr. Wesley W. Sager, with whom she made her home; two nieces, Miss Bessie Sager at home, and Mrs. William Hubbs, Rednersville.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. SUSAN GREEN

The funeral of Mrs. Susan Carroll Green, widow of William Green, took place Wednesday afternoon from the residence of her son, Mr. Charles Green, 18 Dunbar Street. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. C. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church.

The last rites of the Women's Legion were conducted at the graveside by Mrs. D. Bradford, its secretary.

The bearers, all grandsons of the late Mrs. Green, were: Lewis Goodyer Green, Harry Green, Ronald Green, Norman Green, Lyle Green and Edward Lane.

THEIR ASSETS—Health, a few securities, and hope for the future.

THEIR PROBLEM—To raise money for a temporary need, and still retain their securities.

THEIR SOLUTION—They take it over with their banker, arrange to borrow against their securities. Within a reasonable time they pay off their loan (for they are thrifty), and will get back their securities intact.

Then the firm of Mr. and Mrs. have established a line of credit. Perhaps even more important, they have discovered their local bank manager is more than a banker—he is their friendly counsellor too.

NEW DOMESDAY BOOK

A second Domesday book is being written in Land, showing the changes which have taken place in the past century and listing every acre of land and the purpose to which it is put. The entire work is to run to the 1,500,000 to 1,750,000 words. The first section is now nearly completed. Reports are made by countries, and maps are draw six inches to the mile.

The work has been five years under way with school children doing a great deal of the work under the guidance of adults, all being under the direction of Dr. Dudley Stamp. Every statement is verified, says Brockville Recorder Times.

The record will be invaluable for future generations, and have a great influence on future development. Reports will show that rich agricultural land has been built over, which might better have been left for the bearing of crops. As a result diversions of the proper use of land may in future be prevented.

Too great interest cannot attach to this undertaking, which is a model and an inspiration for like surveys in other countries.

Every one knows the story of the Domesday book of England, written under the direction of William the Conqueror. This survey was begun in 1085 and completed in two years. It records the owners of land, the nature of its cultivation, the number of its inhabitants, and their respective classes—freedom, villiens, and serfs. This compilation was a marvellous enterprise, which could be made of inestimable value in time of peace or war. It made taxation on a sound basis possible. To the historian the book is priceless. The compilation was given the name Domesday Book because the people looked upon it as people look upon reckoning of the day of the end of the world.

CHURCH MUSIC

A well know musician started discussion about church music, when he stated that much of the music played in Canadian churches was 'trash'. An organist at Otta wa is not surprised saying that "trash has a way of making itself obvious and getting a grip on people. There is a lot of inferior music played and sung in churches, but there are many extenuating reasons why it is so. The work of a musician is an art and he has to make it consistent with the appreciation of the people who are not musicians and whose ideals are different. Another does not agree, saying "the music being played in churches is liked by congregations and if more organists would play what the people want, the organists would be more popular."

Some people in organist agrees with the criticism, blaming the puerile minds of church committees who he said were responsible for the "trash". He claimed it was hopeless to try a song in church. "The non-conformist churches are the worst in this regard. The Roman Catholic and Anglican Churches have a higher standard of music," said.

The use of the word "trash" is perhaps unfortunate, for even such "trash" has been known to work spiritual appeal. Most persons are not musicians and have just a pick-up acquaintance with music.

To the man in the pew, music has charms to inspire and to arouse religious emotions. Charles Wesley took lilting street tunes and wrote hymns which have swayed hundreds of thousands with these hymns, even though today some criticize the words and music of some of these.

Congregations are attracted by music, no doubt. How many persons are driven away by music is a question. Now people do not go to church merely to hear music as at concerts. Music in church is not the chief aim but is contributory to the inspiration of the entire service, which endeavors to serve the whole soul of man, not only his aesthetic tastes but his entire outlook upon life and the world.

Let the church improve its music but be certain it is holding its appeal to the people who are after all those whom the church is really seeking. The music must not be so foreign to the spirit of the people and their understanding that they will fail to secure good from hearing it.

Once Longfellow wrote expressing his yearning for poetry which came "not from the grand old masters, not from the bards sublime", That is just how many persons feel about the music they hear in church, they want to understand it, even if it has to be mediocre for them to understand.

The appeal of music like everything else in the church should be to the universal man and woman and child. How often complaints are heard of unusual settings of hymns which the people do not know, while the familiar music is unplayed and unsung? To some that old music is more inspiring than greater music or the unusual music they do not know.

Surely some link can be found between music for the people and the great music which sweeps man to his foundations with its profundity of thought and emotion.

Directors of music will probably always feel like a chained Pegasus, bound by the demands of some for less lofty music, but they realize this is always true with every artist and do wisely accept this restraint on their aesthetic liberty and compromising with the need of appealing to all, begin to elevate the musical standard, slowly and imperceptibly improving the congregational taste on to acquaintance with that music which is universal in its appeal.

Tribute in plenty has been paid to him
Who led the greatest, and the last Crusade—
Even unto Damascus.
Statesmen and soldiers, governments and kings
Have done him honor.
He freed the Holy City from the Turk—
Swept them past Jordan.
Then, in one final effort, flung them back,
Bleeding and broken—one gigantic rout—
Into the Asian hill from wrence they came.

All this is history. Yet, perchance his fame
Is more secure by that which Lawrence wrote.
Who suffered fools not gladly.
For Lawrence loved him; trusted and obeyed—
He who obeyed so few!
Who kept his heart so hidden from this world;
And now it's over. Now the tale is told—
But, let that tribute stand while time endures.
Here was a man!

SCARFACE AL CAPONE'S ALLEGED SUCCESSOR, a smooth member of the clan which toils not but spins many webs, was arrested recently in New York charged with defrauding Uncle Sam out of his rightful share of bootlegging and other gangster profits via the income tax. Rail was set, high as Haman $100,000. Next day the accused's wife waddled in and spilled one hundred grand on the desk of the Prosecuting Attorney. Released the accused left the prison with his wife. He was stopped and arrested on another charge. Bail was fixed at $4,000 on the second charge, and the woman speedily collected it and returned to release her man a second time. As the defendant dealt in millions instead of piker thousands he may never come back to reclaim his cash bail.

NOW THAT PARKING PROBLEM CEASES TO BE A LIVE QUESTION for argument along the Rue de Front in the mornings before business interferes with pleasure other matters of importance are coming to the fore and the pros and cons being considered. The foremost question before the unofficial forum of businessmen and others stays in the advisability of Belleville adopting the City Manager system of government. Another question concerns daylight saving which was defeated by small majority at the municipal election. Merchants, manufacturers, bankers and other professional men, besides clerks and factory employees are said to be seeking some form of relief from the evening observed in Belleville this summer. Then the esplanade question is also a favorite subject of debate.

CAN WE LEARN FROM THE ESKIMO? There are many interesting things about the Eskimo, but who wants to be an Eskimo, asks Dr. Eskimo. A McGill University Professor visited the Eskimos on a voyage of exploration and investigation, a nine-week cruise among the fur trading posts of the Hudson's Bay Co. fringing Hudson Bay and the great islands to the north, on the Government patrol boat. The professor wished to find out, if possible, why the Eskimos do not suffer from cancer or diabetes, and rarely from hardening arteries. His report was published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, and among other things said that when food is abundant "a healthy Eskimo living under primitive conditions will eat five or ten pounds of meat a day." Trappers rely on caribou and dried buffalo meat. Hunters eat seal, walrus and whale meat. The Eskimo "has some carbohydrates for approximately two months in the year, in the form of blueberries. He also relishes the stomach content of the caribou, which throughout the year contain carbohydrates. The stomach contents are often eaten with seal oil—a salad! When an Eskimo catches a walrus he immediately opens the stomach and eats all the clams . . . The Eskimos eat the livers of practically all animals, except that of the white bear . . . Only when in need does he consume very large quantities of fat. Blubber is not regarded as a delicacy." That diet supplies all the proteins, fats and carbohydrates which the Eskimos need to thrive on. Whenever they adopt white men's flour they develop alkalosis. Seal meat is the Arctic purgative.

Parents Killed in China, Baby Thrives

The most recent picture of baby Helen Priscilla Stam, now 20 months old, shown in the arms of her amah, or Chinese nurse. Baby Helen is thriving in the home of her grand parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Scott, at Tsinan, Shantung, after having had a horrible start in life.

In December, 1934, when baby Helen was three months old, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stam, American missionaries, were slain by Chinese bandits at a mission station at Ahhwei province. The child was miraculously spared, and was sent to Tsinan to be cared for by the grandparents.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 21st, 1916.

Mr. P. Knight McGregor of Edmonton, a former well-known Bellevillian, is spending a few days in the city. Mr. McGregor has become a noted vocalist and he intends to follow vocal work permanently as a profession.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., has presented a large map of the Province of Ontario to the high school. His gift is much appreciated.

Owing to overcrowding in the primary division at Queen Mary school, Mr. Thrasher, the acting principal, has been authorized by the Board of Education to allow one-half of the pupils to attend classes in the morning and the balance in the afternoon.

The band of the 155th Battalion under the leadership of Bandmaster Hinchey, is busy practising for the 24th of May celebration here.

30 YEARS AGO

May 21st, 1906.

One of the most creditable and largely attended church parades in the history of the local regiment was that of yesterday when the 15th Argyll Light Infantry went to St. Thomas' Church to hear a stirring sermon preached to them by their chaplain, the Rev. Rural Dean Beamish, and at the same time to deposit the old colors which had been borne for nearly 42 years in the sanctuary of Belleville's premier Anglican Church. The regiment, under command of Lt. Col. J. Earl Halliwell, paraded on the market square and marched by way of Front and Bridge-Streets to the church. The regiment made a gallant show going up Bridge Street, the band playing a dashing march. The men looked spick and span. The old colors were carried by Lieut. A. C. McPee and Lieut. Clifford Walker. Both bands and six visiting companies were on the parade. The brass band had 27 in line. The ecclesiastical hymn tune called "Christian Soldiers" to Sullivan's setting and it was pretty well sung. In the refrains Prof. Spoons-er pressed the grand organ pedal, and the volume of harmony was something to remember as the magnificent instrument, mellow and rich, seemed to shout and sing with joy. The service was a bright and exceedingly well-appointed one. Lt. Col. Halliwell read the lesson and the rector of the church sang the service. At the close of the sermon the offertory was taken up and the warders marched up the aisle to present the alms, the two lieutenants mentioned before followed them bearing the old and tattered colors. After the alms had been presented Lt. Col. Halliwell stepped forward to the foot of the chancel steps and addressed the rector of the church, the Rev. Rural Dean Beamish, as follows:

"Reverend Sir, as commander of the 15th Argyll Light Infantry, I ask you to accept and become custodian of these old colors which 42 years ago were presented to the Regiment by the ladies of Belleville." Rural Dean Beamish then accepted the colors on behalf of the wardens and vestry of the church and they were deposited one on either side of the altar while the congregation sang the National Anthem, there was great inspiration in the scene and occasion.

Little Benny's Note Book

Yesterday was Puds Simkin's birthday and us fellows gave him a surprise party, the idea being for everybody except me to go around the back way with their lemmins and sugar and cake and stuff while I rang the front door-bell and kept Puds busy tawking till everybody got in the house, and I rang the bell and Puds opened the door himself, saying, I'm not aloud out, I got to do my lessons a good one, I bet you cant guess what I imagine him stopping me on the street just to tell a riddle. He was not aloud to have anybody ask in, either, and I said, Who wants to come in? and he said, Well pin, it's what's a matter then? and I said, Why, I heard a good riddle and I just thawt I'd just sing your bell and see if you could answer it.

And I started to wish the fellows would hurry up and get in on account of my not knowing any riddle, and Puds said, Where did you hear it? and I said, Some man stopped me on the street and told it to me, can you imagine that?

O, imagine that, what's the riddle? Puds said, and I said, Why, it's a funny looking guy with one sided sort of his mustash longer than the other. Maybe he was a little crazy, I said.

Well holey smokes what is it, my father gets mad when I stand here holding this door open, he thinks it leaves drafts and flies in, Puds said. Tell me tomorrow, he said.

And he started to shut the door and I said, Well but you didn't guess it, I mite forget it now as far as the goes. O yes, now I remember, why is a naade umbrella like a fish bone? I said.

I dont know, good nite hurry up and tell me, I'm going in, Puds said, and I said, Because it still has a handle, ain't that a good one? and he said, Why is it, why the said of fish bone has a handle? and I said, O, that's rite, maybe the man said. What's the difference between them instead of why are they alike.

Aw, you must be crazy Puds said, and I said, Hey, keep that door open and I'll show you who's dippy.

With just then the fellows started to yell bergular and I grew inside, maybe saying me from a fite and at least giving me a lot of relief.

POLICE WITHDRAW FROM MOSS CASE

Believed Young Student Died of Accidental Causes

Oxford, England, May 21—(CP-Cable)—Solution of the tragedy of the death of T. Pailleson Moss, Canadian student at Oxford, seemed far away today with Scotland Yard reported to have withdrawn from the case convinced the Toronto youth died of accidental causes.

Two officers of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Yard left this university town yesterday and it was understood they would not return. They were said to feel that Moss had been smoking, while resting on the hay-rick, had fallen asleep and allowed the hay to catch fire.

The theory, that Moss was murdered was revived last night, when Miss Minnie McPherson-Westbrook, a resident of New Milton, two miles from the scene of the tragedy, told police of having heard a "strangling, gurgling sound, like someone being killed." This, she said, was at 1.30 a.m. "by my clock." Moss' wrist watch, found in the ashes of the hay-rick was stopped at 2.10 a.m.

Miss McPherson-Westbrook's assertion was made in a statement to the police. Early Friday, she said, "I heard the weirdest sound I ever heard. It alternated between scream and groan and a strangling, gurgling sound. I thought it was a human being in distress. It was almost like someone being killed.

"I also thought I heard the slithering sound of a motor car going quietly, possibly out of gear, down hill."

Another resident of New Milton, a Mrs. Sparrow, said she also heard a car early Friday. It approached the village from a quiet byroad rarely used by cars at night time, she said.

Columbus, O., May 21 (CP)—Fulchrilade and pleasure must not be mixed, the Ohio Liquor Board has ruled in forbidding portrayal of beautiful, and often beautiful clad, models in advertisements for alcholic beverages.

Stuart, Fla., May 21 (CP) — Here's one rattlesnake with a horn besides rattler.

W. G. Meredith who owns the snake confesses it isn't a natural horn. He grafted a rooster's spur on the reptile, he said.

"I kind of hoped it would crow," he added.

Never Tame Sea-Gull If Not Taken Early

Ottawa, May 21—(CP)—A sea-gull captured three or four days after hatching can never be tamed because its mother or other grown birds have taught it fear, Dr. John Tait of McGill University, Montreal, told the biological section of the Royal Society of Canada today.

Dr. Tait said the parent or other adult gull communicates to the young by a "roundabout mode of conditioning" a fear-complex which it never loses.

A gull taken just after hatching, he said, may grow up without fear of man, but "the repeated warning-call of the adult produces and maintains in the young bird an instinctive and characteristic reaction of apprehension, in which state it is ready on one single experience to become permanently fear-conditioned to any animal recognized as strange."

LOCAL BAPTISTS WIN BANNER

New Moderator Introduced to Annual District Meeting

Cobourg, Ont., May 21 (CP)—Hundreds of young people from Belleville in the east to Port Hope in the west and north to Lakefield, attended the young people's rally at the close of the two-day session of the annual meeting of Peterborough Baptist Association last night.

The newly-elected moderator, Gordon H. Bray, a layman of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville, was introduced by the retiring moderator, Rev. W. R. Walker of Lakefield. The young people's session was in charge of Miss Dorothy Ough of Port Hope. The pennant for the best attendance during the year went to the group from Gilmour Memorial Church, Peterborough. The banner for the largest attendance of the evening was won by Belleville.

Professor N. H. Parker of McMaster University addressed the congregation on "faith", stating that although religion might change in conformance with one's viewpoint, its fundamentals always remained the same.

At the afternoon session the speakers were Rev. L. Klipp, editor of the "Canadian Baptist", Toronto; Rev. Dr. C. H. Schutt, of Toronto, who spoke on home missions and Prof. Parker who talked on "McMaster University".

THE HINDENBURG SEEN AT HALIFAX

Flew Within Ten Miles of Canadian Port at 7.20 E.S.T.

Halifax, May 21—(CP)—Speeding along on her second eastward flight across the Atlantic, the German zeppelin Hindenburg was sighted by the Halifax Eghlship at 8.20 o'clock E.D.T. (7.20 E.S.T.) The giant air cruiser flew within 10 miles of Halifax but passed over the harbor mouth, cheating citizens of a close view.

Lakehurst, N.J., May 21—(AP)—The dirigible Hindenburg headed back across the Atlantic today, its skipper hopeful that the winds which retarded its westward flight would speed it toward Germany.

Rio De Janeiro Next Trip

The trip will complete the second of 10 round trips contemplated for the zeppelin between Germany and North America this summer. Before its scheduled return here June 22, however, the airship will make its second south Atlantic crossing to Rio De Janeiro.

About were 31 passengers, one more than the giant dirigible's normal capacity on the 3 1-4 ton racing plane belonging to James H. (Jimmy) Haislip, St. Louis speed pilot.

Twenty minutes after the last busload of passengers went aboard, the zeppelin's commander, Captain Ernst Lehmann, gave orders to "up ship." Taking off at 11.05 p.m. (E.S.T.) the Hindenburg cruised leisurely over New York, then turned eastward to the sea.

Of flew over New London, Conn., at 1:45 a.m. (E.D.T.) today and passed over Provincetown, Mass at 3:25 a.m.)

Lehmann said he would set a course between the northern and southern transatlantic steamship lines, hoping to benefit from the westerly winds which delayed the ship's arrival at Lakehurst until yesterday morning. He planned no attempt to set a record, however.

GIVEN THREE MONTHS

Brockville, Ont., May 21 (CP)—Edward Siddell of Brockville yesterday appeared on a charge of intoxication and informed Magistrate G. A. Wright he drank rubbing alcohol, which, in his opinion, was better than some of the wine the Ontario Government purveys in its stores. Siddell was given the minimum sentence of three months in lieu of a fine of $100 and costs.

Buckhannon, W. Va., May 21—(CP)—A dog biting a cat made news in Buckhannon.

Mrs. G. Preston Observes Her 88th Birthday

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Preston, Thomasburg, was the scene of a very pleasant surprise party on Tuesday evening, May 19, when about one hundred relatives and friends gathered to celebrate the eighty-eighth birthday of Mrs. Grace Preston, Mr. Preston's mother. It came as a complete surprise to "Aunt Grace" as she is known to everyone.

After an hour spent socially Mr. Harry Harrison called the gathering to order and a short programme consisting of an address, impromptu speeches, community singing, readings by Harold Hart and Mrs. Harry Harrison, a requested hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" by the guest of honor was concluded with "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

The following address was read by Mrs. John Bolderick, a niece, and Robert Bunnett, a nephew, made the presentation of a brown leather chair:—

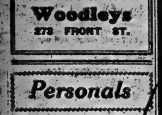
Dear Grace:—

We, your nieces and nephews, together with a few friends, have taken the opportunity to once more call upon you on this, your eighty-eighth birthday. We are very pleased to see you so well and we feel that although this is a surprise to you we are welcome, as we have always been in your home.

I don't think there are any of us here but can look back and remember the many kindnesses and friendly manner with which we have always been met, and the welcome and cozy feeling we have benefited by our visit with you.

We hope you will accept this token not for its material worth but in remembrance of those who have gathered tonight.

We hope you will live to enjoy a number of birthdays and as you sit in this chair you will think of those who have gathered here tonight.



Signed on behalf of your friends and relatives.

Mrs. John Bolderick,
Mrs. Hobb Bunnett.

Mr. John Preston thanked the guests on behalf of his mother and assured them that many restful hours would be spent in her chair, the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Very active for her eighty-eight years, Mrs. Preston reads and knits extensively and only a week ago she walked a mile on Sunday afternoon to a neighbour's home, visited for an hour and walked back. She was born within a mile and a half of her present home and has lived in the same community all her life. She has never ridden in a railway coach or a boat and has never been more than fifty miles from home. In her younger days she is said to have woven enough carpet to cover one hundred acres. All her life she has made her home with her only child, John Preston, and on the night of her party her great granddaughter, Grace Joan Yates, six-weeks-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vance, visited her for the first time.

A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and the party broke up about two o'clock.

Helping Child Make Many Friends

Associates Shouldn't Be Limited to Those of His Own Age

By LISA GRENELLE

Frankie always looked forward to his birthday, not only because of the presents but because during that day he was the center of attention, the most important member of the family. Everybody had to do what he wanted.

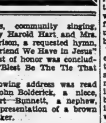
And then on the eve of his tenth birthday Frankie got to thinking. He got a feeling sort of sorry for mother and father and Sister Josephine because it wasn't going to be their birthday, and they couldn't have a friend to supper or do what they wanted. And suddenly Frankie felt that this birthday wasn't going to be so much fun, with nobody but himself having a good time and doing what they wanted. It would be lots more fun, he thought for the first time, if it was everybody's birthday. That's why Christmas was jolliest, because everybody got presents, did what they wanted and had a good time.

No; it wasn't much fun having fun all alone, Frankie decided. So he found Josephine and said to her "I want you to ask your friend Isabel to supper, Jo. I want it to be your birthday, too—and I like her, anyway."

Everybody's Party

Then he went to father and begged him to ask Uncle John's father's college friend, to his birthday supper. And mother was to ask Mrs. Daly the friend she always talked to so long over the telephone —so that everyone would have a friend there and it would be everybody's birthday party!

Frankie went out, without telling anybody, and bought more snappers and little presents for the others, with his own money. He couldn't wait till tomorrow. It was going to be the best birthday ever—as good as Christmas! And it was, too.



Perhaps Frankie will be quite so much the center of attention as usual. But he felt more important and happy—more important and happier—all these people, even Uncle John's, were here on his invitation. And that sort of made them his own friends, as well as father's and mother's and Jo's, as they had never been before. All that was very exciting. And Mr. Frankie feel important, too—having grown-up friends and giving everybody a birthday.

Frankie had made a real discovery. It was more fun to share things than to claim the center of the stage all the time. And he only made you feel more important, but it was really more fun to see everybody having a good time than to insist that everybody do what you wanted, whether they wanted to or not. And finally, grown-up people, and even girls, could be nice, too, when you got to know them. It was fun to have friends of different kinds and sizes—girls as well as boys and men, and even ladies.

Variety of Friends

Every member of the family needs his own particular friends, usually of similar age and sex. Of course, they don't always mix. You can't expect persons of widely varying ages to have much in common, or that they will always get on well together. But there are always some of mother's friends, and father's and Josephine's, who are sufficiently tolerant and adaptable to enjoy an occasional family party.

It is normal for Frankie to prefer, in general, companions of his own age and sex. It is to have little or no contact with anyone but a contemporary is very harrowing.

Guided Bold Venture

Shields declared he heard one of the men in the taller room, where the party was held, threaten Small twice, saying "I'm going to throw you in the—furnace." Shields said he got "scared" then and left. He never mentioned the incident until a month ago. He spoke to a friend then, and later was asked to go to the home of Mr. Hinds.

Alleged Plot Recounted

Osborne, caretaker at the Opera House from 1911 until August, 1919, said he quit when "a certain man" whose name he did not reveal, attempted to induce him to take part in a plot to kill Small.

The man, Osborne related, said to him: "I'll get behind Small's back and catch him in a chair and strangle him. I don't want you to do any of the dirty work. You'll look out afterwards."

Osborne said he told no one about the matter, not even his wife. He said the man first approached him about March, 1918, and asked him if he would like $20,000. It was on the second occasion, that the man described the plot.

"What did you say," asked Mrs. Phelan?

"I didn't say anything," Osborne replied.

John Spencer, who also swore out an affidavit, said he was caretaker and janitor of the theatre at the time. Small's office was unusually filthy Dec. 3, he said. The telephone was pulled off the wall and one chair was broken.

Since that December day in 1915 Small has never been found, and police have been unable to find any clue as to his whereabouts or to whatever misadventure befell him. Years ago Small's wife declared that His estate passed to Mrs. Small who, on her death, bequeathed a great part of the $2,000,000 estate to charity.

GOLF
BY ALEX MORRISON

At some time all players have trouble with their elbows. Like the knees, they become unruly and you have difficulty in getting them into a comfortable position, and even when you get them there they misbehave Before the ball has been hit.

The common fault is to let the elbows work apart. Indications of separation appear in the backward bend before the swing starts. In a sort of dancing motion, such as you'd perform rubbing clothes on a washboard, your elbows work apart. This is born into the hands apart. It doesn't matter where this separation takes place, the damage is done.

Of course the best time to effect a cure is before you get into your swing. Get the feeling of using a strap to keep the elbows together. I've used an actual strap to keep the arms rather close to one another and I'm sure that little practice in this way will demonstrate the value of so controlling the arms.

TWO MEN BATTER FARMER ON HEAD

Brantford Man Seriously Injured in Vicious Attack to Get Money

Brantford, Ont., May 21 (CP)—Albert Hearne, 50-year-old township farmer, is in Brantford General Hospital today suffering from wounds he told police were inflicted by two young men. Hospital authorities stated his condition was only fair.

Hearne said the two young men appeared at his home last night and beat him into unconsciousness, then ransacked his home for money. They failed to obtain any money, police believe, although Hearne had $14 in his house.

The assailants, Hearne said, hit a carpet-covered brick, a door stop and a butter pan over the head. Hearne's head was cut, his nose broken and teeth knocked out.

Despite his 61 years, Hearne was alone at the time staged battle with the intruders, beat them off and grabbed a knife out his pocket. He stabbed one of attackers, the aged man told police wounding him on the wrist. He then fainted and knocked unconscious.

Wm. T. Hearne and George Hearne brothers and farmers of the district, found the unconscious man and rushed him to Brantford where he died. Morrison ordered him to hospital. Hearne was unconscious during the ride here despite the head wounds which caused tense pain. Provincial Officer C. W. Farrow who said the attackers must have hit Hearne on the head with the brick several times while with the knife.

Youthfulness Is Saved by Beauty Hour

Skin Routine is Outlined by Writer

Carol Hughes

A reminder to beautifying half hour every night-at-home.

By HELEN FOLLETT

TO DO right by herself every woman should exhibit a beautifying half hour at bed time. Oh, yes, we know, she's tired and it's easier to fall into bed, hope that the mind will hurry along. But that won't do. Only regret long over-slightness. No one can afford to get to seed.

Out on the cold cream and give complexion a treating-over-Step into the warm bath, hold a steaming wash cloth over the face to force the pores to dilate to the skin. Relax, rest. Have a light drying and give yourself a friction rub. Won't take a minute, once the mighty then and off with the cloth; pat dried, bear, preferring the precious finger wave. Sit down before the dressing table, inspect yourself critically. Take inventory. It helps the beauty cause. Then the last, pat on a net. Another promise will prolong the life of the wave, no night should it. Then the orange wood stick under the nail caves, apply the cuticle cream. Give the hands a lotion-ing with hostess. Continue the lotion until the hostess has disappeared. Nothing like it to keep the skin pretty.

Spread a massage cream on face neck and ear lobes, soften the with a brisk patting. In the morning there will be a pretty lady in the mirror. That's the boy.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Miss Fairfax:

If my husband would only spare the one word of praise I could stand the drudgery of my household duties better. I was wildly in love with him; married him against the wishes of my family, from whom I am now separated. I couldn't stand their cutting me a "kitchen slave" sneak."

I do all the work of the Hills five room cottage; have no neighbors with whom I can snoodle; have the house clean; cook good meals; care for the two children, and make their clothes. But never a word of commendation do I get from my husband. He's a bookkeeper and has a small salary, and when he comes home from his work, he reads, reads, reads incessantly.

If I ask him if he has enjoyed something special I cook for dinner he grunts out: "Guess so, enough." It's the same about the house. My efforts to make myself attractive are never rewarded. I am beginning to "feel, Georgie" I haven't told him how I feel, I could go back to my family any day, but it's my baby children should have the care of both mother and father.

But, believe me, Miss Fairfax, living with a praise starved is hard.

Betty.

Your description of your husband as a "praise miser" is certainly illuminating. And the world seems to have its quota of these grouching creatures, both men and women, who take and take, and never offer a word of commendation.

But not by saying things unattractive, and as if he would not spare a sigh or groan for the good food he gets when his favorite dessert appeared on the table with such regularity?

You're right in thinking that the children should grow up in a home where there is both mother and father.

Don't let it take a girl out, I treat her as a pal. I don't go in for rough stuff or heavy petting. A good night kiss is my limit, but social duties seem to be taboo. I have a love.

Most Fastidious Care Need of Red Hair

Ginger Rogers

This star gives her auburn tresses fastidious care.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Tow-headed babies sometimes grow up to find themselves crowned with brown tresses. Golden hair, in course of time, gets tarnished. Copper-colored locks cease to shine and glimmer as the years dance by and get rusty looking. But red hair nearly always proves to be a fast color and doesn't change much until white threads appear.

While coloring pigment has nothing to do with growth, it is a fact that nearly all red-headed girls have thick hair that doesn't go A. W. O. L. early in life. One of the elements of charm of Titian crowns is its lovely play of lights and shadows.

Like white hair, that with an auburn cast requires the most fastidious care. Only the blandest soap should be used for the shampoo, and it must be thoroughly rinsed away. The lemon rinse is highly recommended to make shafts sparkle. The juice of two lemons to a bowl of warm water is the rule. Remove thoroughly with clear, tepid water. Only the thinnest setting lotions should be used on red hair wave. Those of heavier consistency may lay on a dull finish.

Autographed Friends?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am having some graduation photographs made to give away to relatives and friends. Will you please tell me whether it is better taste not to sign my photograph or to sign them?

The "taste" about autographing photographs is purely a personal choice.... there isn't any rule about it, for or against. It's that some people hold that an autographed photograph is a more personal one. This may sound paradoxical, but it really is more or less true. For if you send or give an unautographed photograph, the people to whom you send or give it, supply, as they wish in their minds, the message. Naturally, the person to whom it is sent knows who the original is...so it is obviously unnecessary to sign it ...and the degree of relationship is also known to the person to whom we send it. So much for that side of the question.

Now the other side of the question is that some people love autographed photographs, cherish the handwriting, and find the written name of special importance. And naturally, they can be just as right in the first group, for no rule can decide for ourselves, and do as we wish or think best. And if we choose to sign our photographs, we must "meditate and pray" that for every photograph we send out the right message, just the appropriate one.

What to Say

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What is the proper thing to say to a groom?

2. What is the proper thing to say to a bride?

3. When visiting a young mother who gave birth to her first baby, what should one say? What should be said to the father?

J. To a groom we offer "congratulations"....but congratulations are never offered to the bride. What we add to this important word depends on how well we know the groom.

2. To the bride we give our "best wishes"....livery good wish for your happiness, Mary." And what we add to this too naturally depends on how well we know the bride.

3. To the mother and father of a new baby, we offer our congratulations and a message of happiness at the good news. Then naturally we inquire about the baby, its name and so forth.

Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I was invited to a party. This in reality was a birthday party, but the person giving it insisted that no one bring her presents. It was a very lovely party and I felt that a gift would be appropriate. Will you please tell me whether I should have written her, telling her that I enjoyed the party, also sending a gift? What would,you suggest. If it is correct to send something, what to do.

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have always felt that when one has married for the second time that a white dress should not be worn. I noticed, however, in the newspaper that a bride of the second union was made of a young lady being married in a white gown from at a quiet home wedding. I know that this young lady has been married before. Has the custom altered in this day of changing time, or is it still more desirable to use the pastel shades?

It is still best form for the bride-for a second time not to wear white. This year, however, shades of gray are so fashionable, a very light gray has been the choice of many brides for their second weddings. And if gray is not becoming;....as it is not to so many people....Gray other becoming shade is chosen.

GASOLINE PRICES WILL BE CHECKED

Adjustment Should be Made After Tariff Changes Pass—Dunning

Ottawa, May 21 (CP)—Gasoline prices in all parts of Canada except the populous areas of Ontario and Quebec should be adjusted following recent changes in the tariff, Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Finance, told the House of Commons yesterday as the gasoline tariff changes were debated.

During the coming year the Tariff Board, on whose recommendations the changes were made, will be instructed to keep a close tab on the gasoline situation, Mr. Dunning said, and see what price changes fall in the tariff alterations and how the large oil companies program of correcting faulty distribution methods.

Parliament stands adjourned today in observance of Ascension Thursday and will resume Friday.

Critical of Duty

Western members, led by T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn), were critical of a new duty of half a cent a gallon levied on high grade crude oil. Mr. Douglas claimed it would injure certain small refineries in Western Canada which produced gasoline by a skimming process using high grade crude.

"It proposes to aid the Tariff Board," Mr. Dunning said, "to keep in touch with those conditions which follow the changes in duty proposed in the resolutions and ask particularly to keep informed as to the price situation in order to the performance of the major companies in rectifying the uneconomic conditions of distribution and to study the relation of railway and other trasportation to the petroleum industry.

"The changes proposed in the present (petroleum) schedules seem to call for price adjustments in all parts of Canada excepting possibly the populous parts of Quebec and Ontario. If the results which we anticipate do not follow then we will expect to be able, on the information supplied by the (Tariff) Board, to come to proper conclusions as to the course which should be pursued."

Marmora—A three act play entitled "Pixie June" was presented in Deloro Hall on Tuesday evening by a cast from the Anglican Church at Millbridge. The heavier parts of the play, that of the aunt and her niece were cleverly played by Mrs. E. LAURIE LEWIS

Trenton and District

Trenton, May 21.— (Special) — Trenton police had a very busy time Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. At 11.30 Tuesday night police received a call from Mr. Wilbert Corp telling them that someone had tried to steal his car. Police rushed to the scene, where was on Herman street and found the car facing up a steep hill. The gas tank was low and the gas would not go into the carburetor at that incline. A near-by resident told the police that she had seen two fellows around the car trying to crank it. She described the fellows. One wore a red Windbreaker and light cap, while the other was wearing light clothes. At one a.m. the police picked up two young fellows, the driver, Marmen Jones of the Third Concession of the Township of Sidney, charged with driving a car, while intoxicated. At two-thirty the police received a call from the railway police stating that the C.P.R. Bremen's club bag had been stolen from the eastern end of the platform.

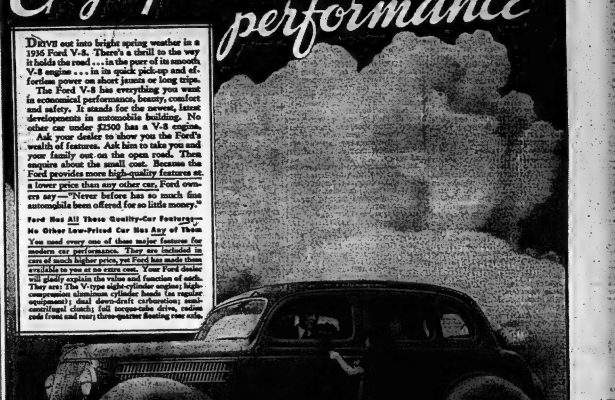
At two forty-five a.m. police were informed of a suspicious looking motor being in the downtown part of the town and while cruising in an easterly direction saw two men leaving a cafe, walking west. The police turned the car at Bridgway St. and as they did one of the constables jumped out of the car. The men seeing the Constable get out became frightened and on through a vacant lot on the western side of the A. and P. store, while the one constable was chasing the men, the other was circling the block with the car. The constable in pursuit heard Dr. Crowe's dog barking so the chase led to the Crowe yard, where the men were caught. It turned out to be two seventeen-year old lads from Toronto. They were questioned and after they told their stories were let go. In their stories they told the police, that they had been sleeping in a C.N.R. box car and had become cold so got out and came downtown to get warm.

At 4.35 a.m. the C.P.R. Bremen's club bag was found by one of the engine crew in a field, north of the C.P.R. tracks near Sydney St. In order to open the bag the offender had sliced it down the side. The offender did not seem to take anything as all articles were intact. Incidentally the offender went to a lot of bother, because the bag was open all the time. While returning from the C.P.R. police picked up two transients but after questioning they failed to connect with the club bag. While cruising around last night police picked up a party who gave his name as Ross Lisle and was the car of Wilson Campbell, Pinedale Street, Trenton, and damaged the rear fender and did not stop. John Tremblin was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and being intoxicated while in charge of a car. He will appear on Tuesday.

Car Turns Over

Mr. and Mrs. Isles of Toronto, escaped what might have been serious injury, when their car turned over in an eight foot ditch on No. 2 highway just outside the western town limits. Mr. Isles, it is stated, the driver of the car attributed the accident to the slippery pavement. Both of the occupants received rather a bad shaking up, but other than that everything was all right. Damage to the car was over one hundred dollars. Mr. and Mrs. Isles were returning from a trip in the east. Mr. Isles was an employee of the old G.O.R. railroad the time it was laid here.

Late Mrs Abigail Gould



The remains of Mrs. Abigail Gould were laid to rest at the Hicksite Cemetery in Bloomfield, after service at the home of her son, Clayton, Baptiste St., Trenton and Friends' Church, Wellington, of which the deceased was a member. Mrs. Gould was in her seventy ninth year and was born in the Township of Ameliasburg, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herrington. She had been a life long resident of Trenton and District. Two weeks prior to her passing away she gave up her home in Wellington, where she had resided for seven years and came to Trenton to live with her son, Clayton. She was a member of Friends' Church at Wellington. Mrs. Gould was very active for her age and had always enjoyed good health. Her husband, Henry Gould predeceased her many years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss, one daughter, Mrs. B. Dalway, Hamilton, one son, Clayton of Trenton and one sister, Mrs. H. McAdams of Oshawa and two brothers, Newton of Consecon and Shillman of Hamilton. Rev. Campbell officiated at the late Mrs. Dr. McMullen, D.D., officiated at Friends' Church in Wellington and also the graveside in Bloomfield. The pallbearers were: Messrs. C. Clark, S. Sherrington, M. McAdams, H. Phillips and C. Phillips.

Several of the younger members of King St., United Church have formed an orchestra. They will play at Sunday School and church duties. Members of the orchestra are — piano, Claude Huffman; 1st trumpet, Marcus Wallace, 2nd trumpet, Ford Calnsforth; 1st violins, Harold Newton and Walter Wright; saxaphone, Calnsforth, Ormand Anderson, Gordon Little and Lewis Little; clarinetsists, Arthur Keene, William Spencer and John Richmond. The orchestra will be under the leadership of Leslie Hearts, church organist.

HEALING OF GIRL THROUGH PRAYER CLAIM IS MADE

Missionary, J. E. Morrison Tells of Cure in China

The congregation with their pastor at Bethel temple were delighted to have in attendance Rev. J. E. Morrison of South China. This splendid missionary has addressed with much interesting pictures of the land and people of China.

Mr. Morrison related how that over twelve years ago his wife Mrs. Morrison had been called to God to the work of China and had sailed with their two children in the Autumn of 1920 for Hong Kong.

The first hand knowledge which Mr. Morrison has gained through his years in China enables him to speak with authority on problems now confronting the great nation as a whole. His intimate acquaintance with native life, his position of residence in the interior, together with his fluency with the Chinese language all serve to make his message of a most interesting character.

The speaker did not hesitate to declare his conviction in the fact that the Gospel of Christ is the only message that can bring the Chinese people the true spiritual enlightenment they needed. He quoted the words of the great missionary Apostle when he said "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Jesus Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth."

In the district of Ting Yuen, South China, Mr. Morrison declared that there is a population of over half a million people and that very little Gospel work was being done in the district. Present progress rios for food and harvest two crops annually in China. These farmers live grouped together in villages and it is those villages and the market towns that Mr. Morrison and his evangelistic helpers have been visiting on foot. They preached in the streets of the towns or anywhere they constantly presented itself. Although this method of work is arduous in the extreme the missionary declared, it is the most effective. The houses of the ultimate joy he has imparted to those who hear and accept his stories of the Gospel of joy also fills his own heart. The work of their evangelistic band extend in sections of the country where no missionary had ever previously worked. In areas no Christian could be found seven years ago there are now three churches established and more members being added every year.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison feel quite confident that the gathering of so many from the darkness of idolatrous practices and dark superstitions more than repays them for the sacrifices entailed in preaching Christ to a distant land. In the course of his address Mr. Morrison quoted the three verses in Matthew 19.26, "What is a man profited if he gain the whole world, and loss his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" He said he was confident that the whining of one native of China to find the Gospel of Christ amply repays them for the cost of carrying this message into faraway China. One instance quoted was that of a native girl 12 years of age, who was afflicted with a hitherto incurable nasal disease. This girl had sought healing at the hands of many physicians, had also prayed to many idols which her family recommended to her, but without avail. Then one day while in conversation with a woman who was a Christian she learned of the fact that Christ can and does heal the afflicted and relieve the oppressed. She decided to try it best this new way. It all at once spoke to her. She replied to the Christian addressing her, "If your God will make me well I shall believe Him and serve Him." They instructed her further and prayed that she should be healed of God. The result was very gratifying in that not only the girl was well and serving a Christian but her witnessing to others has also proved very convincing of the reality of the Christian message.

AT THE BELLE

"The Moon's Our Home"

When a high-strung, hot-tempered, brick-a-brac throwing screen star gets on a rampage there is no telling what might happen to whom. Such is Fay Lampotanga as played by Margaret Sullavan in one of her best roles in "The Moon's Our Home", an absorbing sparkling romance on the Belle screen today and Friday, matinee daily.

Wildcat ever having met, both of these world famous personalities have taken an instinctive and inherent dislike to each other, and for the perfume she endorses which dickens thinks not for the "trashy" books he writes. The mere mention of each name has the effect on the other is the cue for an expression of disgust and a derogatory epithet. Then they are brought roughly thrown into each other's arms, fall desperately in love without knowing their real identities, and marry!

Margaret, showers herself, on her wedding night, with the hated personality and Fay, the world famous author-husband, becomes deathly afraid of the wiles of the "trashy" odor from her person, she becomes furious at his tirade, and starts throwing things. In a huff she packs up and walks out on her husband.

They both repent and go on a transcontinental honeymoon to make all they know are their real names. Then the fun starts with all manner of names under which they are known in the world and some uncommon ful in their search. How they are eventually brought together by Margaret's equally fiery-tempered grandmother, and the circumstances under which the reconciliation is brought about, makes hilarious screen comedy-romance.

In support of Margaret Sullavan are Henrietta Vroman, Beulah Bondi, Charles Butterworth, Lucien Littlefield and Dorothy Sickney.

"The Moon's Our Home" is a Paramount picture directed by William A. Seiter from a Faith Baldwin story.

"Times Square Playboy" Funny

One of the most delightful comedy dramas of the month, "Times Square Playboy", a Warner Bros. production is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

Adapted from the George M. Cohan Broadway stage hit, "Home Towners", the screen play preserves the real Cohanesque flavor, being packed with hilarious laughs, romance, some intense dramatic moments, sparkling dialogue and lively music. The picture is fast moving and holds the suspense to an amazing and surprising climax.

Heading the brilliant cast is Warren William, charming June Travis, Berton Machane and Gene Lockhart. "In Old Mexico" a travel talk in color will also be exhibited.

Amateurs Tonight

A selected group of talented juvenile entertainers will appear on the Belle Theatre stage tonight at 9.00 p.m. presenting a varied and entertaining stage show that will amuse and surprise the spectator. Three liberal cash prizes will be awarded to the three best entries. Be sure and see it!

AT THE CAPITOL

"Rhodes the Diamond Master"

"Rhodes, the Diamond Master," which brings Walter Huston back on the screen is eagerly awaiting public after a long road tour with the stage play "Dodsworth," and briefly recreates the career of Cecil John Rhodes, the man who built a diamond empire out of a jungle wilderness.

Based on the book, "Cecil Rhodes", by Sarah Gertrude Millin, the current attraction at the Capitol Theatre, unfolds in vivid colors the dramatic story of the Kimberley Diamond Fields, of the struggle against the savage and ruthless Matabele tribes, and of the conflict of progress as personified by Cecil Rhodes and reaction, as personified by Oom Paul Kruger, the patriarch of the Boer Transvaal Republic.

No more suitable vehicle for Walter Huston's return to film-dom could have been selected than this inspiring tale of a man who was driven relentlessly through life by burning ambition and by an idea. He imparts to the role a dynamic personality, a color, a masterly and power that were qualities of Rhodes. He gives a performance that is remarkable for its passion and compassion, sincerity and intelligence, dignity and sheer forcefulness. With this actor Walter Huston definitely takes his stand with the mighty satellites of the screen.

The story centres around Rhodes' battle of many years with Paul Kruger, stubborn president of Transvaal. The two figures come into conflict after their dreams and careers cross fatefully in the growth of their respective countries. Oscar Homolka as President Kruger gives a performance fraught with power, simplicity and appeal.

All the characters seem as if they had been taken out of the march of history in the utmost and natural way in which the actors portray them. Elizabeth Allan, of Matabeleland, native South African warrior and tribal chief, is grand as old King Lobengula who, at first Rhodes' enemy, became his close ally and friend. He gives a restrained and unforgettable performance as a proud monarch on whose shoulders falls the duty of preserving his lands against white man's encroachments.

Basil Sydney as the impetuous Dr. Jameson of Raid fame gives a brilliantly executed performance, as do Peggy Ashcroft as a novelist and friend to Cecil Rhodes, Nigel de Vaux as the temperate and sympathetic wife of Kruger, and Frank Cellier as the ambitious and shrewd Barney Barnato, Rhodes' business competitor who finally assimilated his diamond interests with Rhodes'.

We'll show you "FOOTPRINT" PROOF

No need to guess or wonder about what sort of mileage tires will give you. We have in our files "footprints" taken from Goodyear tires owned by persons you probably know—motorists who live near you in your own locality.

In black and white, on sheets of paper; we'll show you the tread impressions made by these tires and the mileage of each tire is shown beside each footprint. In other words, we prove Goodyear superiority BEFORE you buy!

Even when these Goodyear tires become, as you might say, "old" there is still plenty of non-skid traction left to hold safely to wet, slippery surfaces.

And this is just one of the proofs which will convince you that Goodyears are by far the safest and surest tire buy today. Remember, you pay nothing extra for all the extra value in Goodyears.

N. Y. Giants Atop National Replacing St. Louis Cards Whom They Defeated 10-7

Roy Parmelee Old Team Mate is Sent to Showers

DODGERS MOVE UP

Marvin Owen Wins Game For Tigers Over Yanks - by Homer

By HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Giants, a team which has seen its starting pitchers finish only nine games out of 30, whose manager and leading hitter, Bill Terry, is on the bench because of injuries, which has had nearly all its key men hurt one time or another in the first month of the season and which was down to one able catcher and had to arrange a deal for the minor league veteran, Roy Spencer, as a safeguard is in first place in the National League.

Coming back after a disastrous western trip and climb from fourth place to the top.

They took the lead by a direct frontal attack on the St. Louis Gashouse Gang yesterday, trimming the Cardinals 10-7 and rocking their old teammate, Roy Parmelee.

Brooklyn Dodgers also staged an advance in the standings, moving just to show off some of the material they may trade to the wobbly Cubs. Will Hafey, ace on the hill pitching six-hit ball, the Dutchmen beat Boston 4-0 for the 1935 champions' 11-3 and second out of the cellar. The Phillies replaced them after shocking a 9-3 beating from Pittsburgh's Pirates as Floyd Young smacked a pair of home runs.

Top Teams Beaten

New York, Boston and Cleveland, running 1-2-3 in the American League, all came out on the short end of yesterday's encounters. The world champion Detroit Tigers, whose pitching has taken a sudden turn for the better, continued the Yankees' to win a 10-inning mound duel between Schoolboy Rowe and Red Ruffing, 4-3. Marvin Owen's homer was the winning blow for Rowe, who fanned ten as each pitcher gave six blows.

St. Louis Browns, continuing their newly discovered hitting streak, pummeled the Red Sox 19-8 despite Jimmie Foxx's circuit drive of the season and Washington edged out the Indians 7-6 although Cleveland only a half game ahead of Detroit.

Merritt Cain, who seems to have taken on new life since the Browns traded him to the White Sox, pitched Chicago to its first shutout victory of the season, when he blanked the Athletics with seven hits to win 4-0. In the day's other game Cincinnati Reds overcame a five run deficit in the last two innings, scoring seven runs in the eighth to trounce Boston Bees 12-8.

Neither the Giants nor the Cubs troubles appeared entirely over after yesterday's games. Schumacher, although he won the route, gave 14 blows, including homers by Terry Moore and Pepper Martin. He got through largely because Lon Warneke's seventh circuit blow in the fifth in a four-run rally, that sent Parmelee to the showers.

GETS PRO. TRYOUT

Kenny Peters, pictured here, is due for a tryout in major League baseball. St. Louis Cardinals have signed the University of California outfielder and he will report to their Sacramento farm club after graduation this spring.

PERTH WINNER OVER OSWEGO

Canadian - American Ball Loop is Officially Opened

By The Canadian Press

Four teams opened the official season of the new-organized Canadian-American Professional Baseball League yesterday with honors split evenly by the two countries, while the Watertown nine eked out a 7-6 decision over Ottawa Senators in the American City. Perth set back the visiting Oswego N.Y. team 6-1, Oshawa Generals trounced Brockville, the remaining two teams, which round out the league, were scheduled to play at Brockville but the game was postponed due to cold weather.

At Watertown the game developed into a tight battle with both teams leading by one run margin at frequent intervals. A timely single by Pepper Martin, Playing Manager of Watertown with the bases loaded and men on, pushed across the necessary run to give the American team the one run margin.

The Watertown second baseman, Palmer, hit a long centre-field drive in the fifth, which counted for a homer. Doubles were smashed by Miller and Bakos for the Americans while Dandie, Caldwell and Stevenson countered with two base drives for the Senators. Five errors by the Ottawans contributed to their loss.

Perth and Oswego were forced to call the game in the seventh inning due to darkness. Playing in frigid weather, the Perth team scored two runs in the first and one and three runs in the fifth and sixth innings respectively. Oswego garnered their runs in the third and sixth innings.

Epsom Derby to Be Race Between Two Great Stables

Epsom Downs, England, May 21 (CP Cable)—It looks as if next Wednesday's Derby will be a race between the entries from two great stables—the Fitzroy House stables under Frank Butters and the stables of Colonel Boyd Marshall, Wiltshire.

Under Butters' charge are the Aga Khan's colt Taj Akbar, the favorite at 11 to 2, and Sir Alfred Butt's Noble King, third in the betting at 7 to 1. Both colts demonstrated their ability to stay the Derby distance of 1½ miles at Chester where both won their races, the Aga Khan's entry covering the distance a second faster than Noble King.

The Indian Potentate's other entries, Mahmoud and the handsome Bala Hissar, are also from Fitzroy House. Both are quoted at 15 to 1 in the betting.

Heading the Marston list is Lord Derby's Pay Up, winner of the two thousand guineas and early favorite for the Epsom classic. He now holds second place in the wagering, half a point shorter in odds than Taj Akbar. Other accepters from Marston are Lord Astor's Rhodes Scholar and Plaster Cast, Sir Abe Bailey's Mendicant Friar and S. D. Hollingsworth's Raeburn.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 21 (AP)—It looked like old times to see St. Louis Gas Housers chewing tobacco, rolling in the dirt and chatting all over the Polo Grounds yesterday.....Dizzy Dean, Pepper Martin and some of the other lads have sworn they'll not touch a razor until the Club gets back to St. Looey.....The Cards are playing grand ball and the other fellows dread to see 'em come to town.

What James J. Johnston, big shot of Madison Square Garden, said when he heard Jack Trammell, Youngstown negro flash, will not be considered as fodder for Jimmy Braddock this year, can't possibly be printed here.....

.....La Mondy was so engrossed with her opuses at the Grand Central Art Galleries, she plumb forgot—at least she said she did—that yesterday was the sailing date for the Wightman Cup players, with whom she played in pre-culture days.....

George Savino, who went to Baltimore in the deal which brought Roy Spencer to the Polo is what you'd call a spectacular catcher.

.....He has been with three Major League Clubs, but has yet to play his first American or National League game.....But, as George says, "I've seen the inside of some mighty pretty dugouts in Philadelphia, New York and Boston."....

Joe Louis cracked 100 after only 13 rounds or golf.... Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, was just about to shell out $75,000 for Curt Davis of the Phils, when Curt was blasted from the box by the Cards the other day. Owner Wrigley promptly called off all bets.

Dizzy Dean got a severe headache every time he reads about Gene Moore, "the most talked about rookie in the National League."..... Casey, you will recall, passed Moore along to Boston in one of those trades which without even looking at him.

Applause Section: Charlie Grimm, manager of the Cubs, says of Gabby Hartnett..... "He is so necessary that I don't need to ask a man to run for him, even though he's on second base with the tieing or winning run—not unless it's in the ninth inning, and then not always."

CURRENT SPORT
DAY BY DAY

Whether there's any truth to the rumor or not, we cannot say, but the latest story coming from the Fair Grounds during baseball practices is that the local senior ball club's theme song this spring is "Wahoo". The other night some of the boys heard "Harry" Grey singing away while slapping flies. Using a little closer Sox's song went like this—

Oh, give me a hit, a nice big hit,
Good for a base or two, and let me
Wahoo, Wahoo—WAHOO.

I'll hit them to the wide open spaces, where they'll roll for extra bases, and then we'll
Wahoo, Wahoo—WAHOO.

Aw nuts!

Shortly after nine o'clock on Monday morning a monster parade will push off from the upper end of Front St., headed by the Belleville Municipal Band. President Clarence Clapp questioned Band Leader Fred Johnson and his boys relative to their assisting and every member said "Yes, we'll be there." In good old fashioned style senior baseball is to be ushered into Belleville. Albert Mooney is marshal when the parade will precede the opening C. B. I. ball game between these old ancient enemies, the Kingston Purdys and the Belleville seniors. Baseball notables, both clubs and the band will compose the parade. Incidentally a little more baseball could be added to the parade if any old carry-all could be procured and the players ride in it behind a team of horses, just like they did in the good old days.

The latest news from Kingston is to the effect, that Jack "Chief" Williams will be signed by the Purdy mat. Manager Joe Daley is considering a slight change in his infield, Bill "Pea-Pod" Shiell to put with Handley and the behooded redhead Gerry Smith. At the present time, however, the Purdys are a little shy on catching material, Jimmy Arniel still being among the missing.

Monday, May 25th will be a big day for local sportsmen and sports fans. In the morning the senior ball team holds the spot-light at the Fair Grounds. In the afternoon golfers will hold field days at both the Bay of Quinte and the Belleville Golf. Also up at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, the lemsid club will hold a club tournament. Ballz are being supplied for this event and all that is needed is a racket and plenty of condition to assure a good day's activities. Down off Victoria Park the Belleville Athletic and Aquatic Club will officially commence the season of punt racing, when the first sailing meet of the season will be held. Secretary Chas. Jeffs informs us that the day's races will be included in the local weekly contests, so all crafts will be out in full sail. Incidentally we understand, that two or three new punts have been built during the winter months and the entry is expected to be rather keen this summer. North of the city the South Hastings baseball loop swings into action with a double header at Foxboro.

President Cleo. Bowler, of the City Industrial Softball League, has called a meeting of the league for 7.30 p.m. on Friday night at the Ashnea Club. It is important that all those interested be present as matters of importance are to be brought up.

Frank Timony, who represented Maitchmaker Jack Corcoran in Belleville on Tuesday night, was unable to put on but what very clever Mare John would sign for his next heavyweight show, two weeks hence. They don't have to worry, however, we'll sign some good man and give Ray Lane a good "build-up" show as tonight's," added Frank referring to the Belleville boy who immediately approached Timony relative to bringing a good welterweight to Belleville to appear with Steve Taylor. "We do not employ the high-pressure wrestling rule, but I'll speak to Mr. Corcoran and maybe we can bring in a good light boy from Ohio or Michigan for Tuesday," assured Mr. Timony. While on the subject of wrestling the Hall Sisters are returning next week featuring Danny McDonald, the Red Devil of Ireland, Bill Chandler, McDonald's Handler and the behooded redhead Gerry Smith. At the present time, however, the Purdys are a little shy on catching material, Jimmy Arniel still being among the missing.

AQUATIC SEASON IS MAPPED OUT

Yacht Club to Put on Gala Day on Monday

Completing final arrangements for their lengthy aquatic season about to open, the Belleville Athletic and Yacht Club held its initial punt sailing meeting in their spacious club rooms last night. Entries for the season's sailing events and the list of officials were decided upon, Secretary Chas. Jeffs announced today. At the opening of the meeting a minute's silence was observed in memory of the late Commodore Ross Wright, who was a valued member of the Yacht Club's sailing committee.

The appointment of officials for the season were made. Eddie George was named the official starter for the year, while the punt racing committee will be composed of R. Ray Chadwick, T. Remark, W. Nicholson, El Kellaway and K. Croft. The first of the season's weekly punt races will be held off Victoria Park on Monday and will be held each Wednesday afternoon after, until Labour Day, with public holidays included, when the Club is not visiting other centres. All races will start promptly at 2.30 p.m. and the course will be made for boats late at the starting buoy.

The course adopted by the punt sailors this year was altered slightly. The course will be from Victoria Park to Coy Island, thence west to the Bay Bridge and back to the Government Dock, thence north into the mouth of the Moira River and then tacking easterly to the point of commencement. Class A and B punts will sail three times around the course, while D Class and the snipes will encircle the course twice. The scow class will race with the "A" Class but for separate trophies. The special "C" Class will run on an inside course.

A new ruling was adopted which permitted the Board to change the course, instead of racing the course the same direction each race, the direction may be changed on each alternate race. Following the day's sports a dance will be held in the Yacht sailors' spacious club rooms. A large turnout is expected to witness the initial day's racing on Victoria Day.

Trainers Have Task Keeping Charges Fit Till Race Day, Sat.

Toronto, May 21—(CP)—The task of keeping 13 high-strung thoroughbreds in top form is now engaging trainers of probable starters in the 77th running of the King's Plate, Canada's premier test of food and water is made before they are given to the horses, that will start Saturday in the oldest continuously run race on the continent. The winning owner receives 50 guineas, donated by the King, and the major portion of a $6,000 added purse.

After completing yesterday of final tests over the 1 1-8 miles route, activities were confined to exercise around Woodbine race track, where the race will be run and short sweeps.

Pre-race odds place entries of R. S. McLaughlin, E. P. Seagram and H. C. Hatch as split favorites. Before post time, however, it is expected Spearman and Epicurus, McLaughlin's hopes, will rule favorites. Both displayed class and stamina in the training grind. Epicurus, a starter in last year's race, was not

Well-Matched Field Seeking King's Plate

Half-dozen red-hot favorites for 77th running of Canada's turf classic at Toronto—is North America's oldest consistently run race—purse up to $6,000 plus guineas this year

By CHARLES "BORRIE" AYERS
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Toronto, May 21—Officially opening the eastern Canada racing season, the King's Plate, outstanding Canadian turf event of the year from the standpoint of background and glamor, has its 77th running at Woodbine Park, Toronto on May 23rd. A field of the flashiest thoroughbreds ever to face the barrier in the famous classic will answer the starter's call.

This year's dash for the guineas—and whatever other lucre accrues to the winning owner—has drawn a field of runners which includes the cream of the eligible stables, and a fight struggle is foresaw for this stake, the oldest continuously run race in North America. That tops the Kentucky Derby in one instance at least.

Plenty of Hot Tips

Public fancy for the moment veers around Sweepouch and Monsweep weavers of the dark and blue hooped silks of Harry O. Hatch, but any one of half a dozen thoroughbreds may go to the post as favorite. Spearman and Epicurus carry the colors of R. S. McLaughlin, Oshawa motor magnate and have a plenty of money going down on the former. George M. Hendrie, of Hamilton has nominated two starters in Rock Sirn and Stormblown. Ladymuch, a fast filly who has worked sensationally in her workouts at the Toronto track, sports the purple and brown silks of J. E. Smallman, western Ontario sportsman and E. F. Seagram whose Sally Fuller took top honors last year, will send famous silver and scarlet performers. One long shot is entered in Harry Fox, an eight-year-old which has never won a race.

From the 18 ponies who will face the barrier it would be hard to select an outstanding choice, so evenly have the leaders worked. With the race at one and one-eighth miles—too long say many owners for any but the 3-year—only a really fit horse can hope to win.

Worth $6,000 Plus

The purse this year will be $6,000 added plus the annual gift of 50 guineas donated by the King. It will be King Edward's first donation to

The royal donation was originally made in 1859 by Queen Victoria, upon the petition of the Toronto Turf club. The prayer of the petitioners was for a Queen's Plate of £50, which was granted "to be run for at Toronto or such other place as Your Majesty or Her Majesty might appoint."

For four years, 1860-1863 the race was run at Carleton and subsequently at Guelph, London, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Whitby, Kingston, Ottawa, Barrie, Woodstock, Prescott and Picton. In 1883 Queen Victoria, at the instance of the Duke

It has steadily grown in importance and the royal donation was continued by King Edward the Seventh and King George the Fifth, has been run annually without interruption.

Here Are Records

Track records for the plate is held by McLaughlin's Horometer who travelled the distance in 1934 in 1.51 1-5. Joseph E. Seagram has most winners to his credit with 13, and 1933 was the only field when 2 made the journey with King O'Connor coming under the wire first. The longest priced winner was Maternal Pride who, in the colors of H. S. Wilson paid off at 100 to 1. Jockey Frankie Mann, who may or may not have a leg up this year, holds the rider's record with three winners to his credit, Frobisher, 1931; Queensway, 1923 and Horometer, 1934. Harry Giddings, who handles R. S. McLaughlin's string, will be shooting for his eighth plate victory this season.

In 1885 and 1886 the distance Platers were asked to travel was one and one-half miles. In 1887 it was cut to one and one-quarter miles and in 1924 to its present mile and a furlong.

It's still plenty far for opening day but with several red-hot horses set to go and no racer with a wide margin on his rivals it should be a tussle from barrier to wire this year. And any guess as to the winner is as good as ours.

Lindstrom Not Ready To Quit as Player

Will Rough It a Year To Get Self in Splendid Condition

Chicago, May 21 (AP)—Freddie Lindstrom isn't through with baseball. He hopes to resume his career as a player next year if his condition permits.

The 30-year-old Chicagoan, whose decision to quit the Brooklyn Dodgers came as a surprise to baseball fans, made known his plans here today. He intends to take his family to a summer camp and spend the balance of the year golfing, hunting and roughing it.

"If I feel next winter that I'm in shape to play my best once more," Lindstrom explained, "I'll return to the Dodgers, or to any club that wants me as a player. But if I don't feel I'm in shape, I'll hang up my baseball stuff for good."

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know the real cause of piles is on the inside?

Do you know they can be doctored from the inside?

Do you know you must get at and remove the cause of Piles, to get rid of them?

The real cause of piles is poor circulation—a congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel. This makes the veins flabby, full of impure congested blood and weakens the rectal membranes.

So if you would have relief from piles you should use an internal medicine like HEM-ROID, a prescription written by Dr. J. S. Leonhardt. HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving the cause, it stimulates circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that J. S. McKeown or any other good druggist is authorized to make good our promise to you that if you are not completely satisfied with the results from one bottle, you may have your money back.

Mound Corps Holds Sway as Seniors Prepare for Opening

Practice Game Between Seniors And Juniors Quite Lively

Preparing for the rapidly approaching C.O.B.L. season, an exhibition ball game was played at the Bellville grounds last evening when the Bellevile seniors eked out a 7 to 1 win over the local Kiwanis Juniors, with the senior batteries facing the senior batters, however. The junior pitchers were used by the senior team.

Contrary to expectations, the mound corps held sway and were in complete command of the game, "Speedy" St. Louis opened on the hilltop for the juniors and showed excellent pitching technique, striking out five in two innings. He also allowed two hits and walked one for a run. Johnnie Bawden then took over the hurling duties against the senior club and struck out four in two innings. Bawden was nicked for a brace of hits, while an error accounted for one more run. Vin Uzonki finished the game atop the mound and allowed three hits for a score.

Nelson "Red" Stipp was behind the ball handling the slants of the senior pitchers in splendid style. Stipp is a "pepper-pot" and will be a great favorite with local baseball fans. He also hits well. Roy Smith carvorted about at the initial sack and seems to be hitting better this spring. Manager Alec Weir was at second with Chuck Barrage displaying his splendid throwing qualities from third base. Bud Johnston up from last year's junior squad, seemed to have the inside track on short stop and can field well on both sides. Soxy Gray has been moved to centre field, while Cliff Bennett went to right with Skinner Binfield over in left. St. Louis and Uzonki are also proven outergardeners, who can hit well. The team will be known as "Bellevile" when they take to the field in the opening game of the season versus the Kingston Ponies on Monday morning when the C.O.B.L. will swing into action.

Manager George Lee had some 20 teen-aged aspirants on hand, most of whom look part in the game at various intervals. The game proved to be a splendid system of practice. The junior players that were Noakes and Kelleher, pitchers, Vivian, Kenaley, O'Neil, Hughes, Carson, Morgan, Whalen, Muir, Sherry, Amo, Sargent and Smith.

HALF INTEREST ON TOP RUNG IS HELD BY NEWARK

Bisons Win 14th Straight And Push Royals Down in Fourth Hole

SYRACUSE WINS

Winning Streak of Chiefs Has Been Extended to Three in Row

By The Associated Press

In all the excitement over the remarkable winning streak that has carried Buffalo Bisons up from sixth place to a tie for first in the International League, one fact that can't be overlooked is that Jewell Bears still hold a half interest in the lead.

Although they slumped enough to let the Bisons pull up even, the Bears demonstrated they have no intention of letting the matter go any further when they handed the Baltimore Orioles a 9 to 2 licking at Baltimore yesterday.

Buffalo kept pace in a night game by edging out Montreal Royals 4 to 3, for their third consecutive one-run victory. As a result the Royals dropped to fourth place in the standing a few points behind the Rochester Red Wings, who had an idle day, bracketed with Toronto, and Baltimore fell off to fifth. The day's other engagement, played under the floodlights, saw the cellar-dwelling Syracuse Chiefs hang up their third straight victory, outclouting Albady 10 to 8.

Ray Belted Two Homers

Steve Sundra, allowing eight hits blanked the Orioles for eight innings, while Newark ground out runs in great chunks from the deliveries of Frank Pearce. The Bear's infield, about the fastest in the league afield, executed three double plays to hold off Baltimore threats. Ernie Koy, Dick Porter and Johnny McCarthy provided most of Sundra's support. Koy belted two homers to drive in four runs, while Porter and McCarthy each hit a double and two singles.

Johnny Wilson's flinging and Johnny Dickshot's batting combined to give Buffalo its 14th straight triumph, Wilson, winning his fifth consecutive game, hurled five-hit ball, while Dickshot made four and Elbert Fletcher three of the Bisons' 11 blows.

Syracuse got the jump, scoring six runs in the first two innings and driving Al Benton out, but barely failed to win as "Iron Man" Ray Starr melted in the late innings.

"You can go now, Mr. ... sir," he repeated. "I'd be glad if you'd ask one of the watchmen to send for a taxi..... on your way out."

There being no objection from Cannon, the official left the room.

Sturges made a motion as if to tear the letter he still held, but on second thought, thrust it in his pocket. A slight smile was on his face as he spoke.

"Thank you, Mr. Cannon. You have my word for it that you won't regret your kindness. If you insist upon an explanation, I will give it to you.....tomorrow. But I'm sure you'd rather not hear it."

There was something distinctly dismissive in the words. Cannon stood staring for a moment, then turned and entered his own office. He closed the door noisily.

"Well?" he muttered again to Nan. "How is she?"

"Shh....hi! She's waking up. Don't bother her."

"Jean.....?"

His best ever her, calling her name softly. The brown eyes fluttered open, closed. "Don't worry, all right now, I'm taking you home. Lie still."

Jean was in his arms when he rose to his feet.

"If you'll be good enough to ring for the elevator, Miss Gamble ..... That cab should be here by this time."

R. E. K.

The ride to Bridge Street was made in silence.

Nan sat with Jean's head resting upon her ample shoulder, one arm holding the girl close. An occasional sob shook the slender figure, but the older woman wisely held her peace, reassuring pat now and then was her only offering.

Sturges relaxed in his corner, wrapped in thought.

When the cab slowed to a halt, Jean roused herself with a sudden effort.

"Please let me go in by myself," she requested in a low voice of the two shadowy figures that sat with her.

"Of course we won't," Mark objected promptly. "Let me have her, Miss Gamble."

"No, no! Let me walk.... I'm all right now."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes."

"You'd better let me steady you a bit."

Nan took advantage of the discussion to hurry ahead and ring the bell. It was Mrs. Sawyer who came to the door.

"Hi, there, Mom!" came a cheery greeting. "Your young hopeful just had a bad scare. I'm going to help you put her in bed where she belongs. She's all right.....but wobbly."

"Jean!" Mrs. Sawyer cried out in alarm, as she saw Sturges assisting her daughter up the steps. "What is it? Have you been hurt?"

"Of course not, Mumsy. I was silly and.....fainted I guess. It's.....it's nothing at all."

"Let me carry you to your room?" Mark begged, as they stood in the small hall.

"No!" Sudden color flamed in Jean's pale cheeks. "I can walk perfectly well."

Nan came to her rescue by giving Mark a nudge in the ribs.

"We tell that driver to wait a minute until I come down. You can take me home."

So Mark was obliged to content himself with a chair in the front room and fiendish vague replies to two small girls who clamored to know what was the matter with their sister.

INSTALMENT 30.

Fortunately for Mark's peace of mind, Nan appeared in a very few minutes.

"Well?" she demanded. "Are you ready to go?"

"No," he answered deliberately. "Not until I have a talk with you." He glanced at the listening youngsters. They wanted to know what had happened to their sister.

"Just as you say," Nan agreed resignedly. "Listen, kiddies. You shoo yourselves out to the kitchen. The nice man wants to talk secrets with auntie. And close the door, mind you."

"Sit down," Sturges ordered when they were alone. "There are some things I want you to tell me."

I hate to think what that taxi-meter's doing to you."

"Never mind."

"Just a minute, Mr. Sturges." Nan was serious. "If there is anything you want to know, I think Gorgeous is the one to tell you."

"I don't be disagreed promptly, "I shall talk with her later. But you are the one who can help me now."

"I'm not sure of that," she said slowly. "I told you before, I didn't want to see Jean get hurt.....I still feel that way."

"So do I," he said simply. "Please help me."

"Shoot."

"That letter....." Mark began. It was not so easy to speak of it with Nan's hazel eyes fixed on him. "I read enough to understand. I dare say it's genuine."

"I think so," Nan commented dryly.

"As I figure it, the....the gentleman who wrote it was the one who put it in my desk."

"You're uncanny," Miss Gamble complimented him. "Only I have another name for him."

"I was only trying to remember I was addressing a lady," Mark stipulated with a smile. "But this is what I want to know. How did Jean find out the letter was there? Why did she try to get it?"

"I can help you with the first one. That rat took the trouble to tell her he was going to plant it."

"I'm beginning to see. And the other question?"

Nan looked at him without replying.

"Well?" he urged.

"I was only wondering if you're really dumb..... or if you just act that way."

A sudden light dawned in Sturges's face.

"Do you mean she.....?" He seemed unable to find the words.

"I mean I'm going home." Nan rose to her feet. "I don't suppose Jean will ever speak to me again. But I'm not so sure I care now."

"Miss Gamble....." Sturges walked over and laid his hand on her arm. "I wonder if anybody ever told you that you're a.....a very sweet person."

"Really. That's old stuff. You'd better save that line for somebody who'll appreciate it. Can I go now?"

"Yes," he said happily. "But don't ask me to take you."

He strode to the front door, opened it and summoned the cab-man.

THE TARZAN TWINS

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Slipping Dick's knife inside his loin cloth beside his own, Doc leaped forward just as Intamo was about to bring his club down on the black boy's head. "Wait!" the American lad cried; "you need not kill Paabi. I can prove that our "big medicine" is inside Paabi's head!"

"Take the lady wherever she wants to go. Out of this." A bill changed hands.

"Sure, boss. Thanks a lot."

"You can figure the Jam it was in, can't you?" Nan lingered to ask anxiously. "That old bastard would have had the kid locked up. I hope you can square me....."

"Will the buzzard!"

"Act your age! I'm glad I had my chance at him once."

"I have nothing but admiration for him now," Mark admitted. "If it hadn't been for him, I might never have known." He grinned. "I'm not sure I won't go in and kiss him on both cheeks tomorrow."

"Help yourself. Good night."

Sturges' next move was to find his way to the kitchen where the two small girls had recreated as a few minutes.

Nan's command.

"Peggy," he smiled, "I want you do me a nice favor. Find your mother and ask her if I may speak to her before I go."

Mrs. Sawyer appeared almost at once.

"How is Jean?" were Mark's first words.

"She's resting just now, I wouldn't let her talk. Is there something you wish to tell me?"

"I think Jean would prefer to do that. But I wish I might see her for just a minute. I'll promise not to excite her and..... It really is rather important," he smiled persuasively. "Please."

"Well...." She capitulated with a doubtful shake of her gray head. "Come up with me. You may stay a few minutes."

A moment later she was speaking softly through Jean's door.

"Mr. Sturges, dear. He wants to speak to you."

Without risking a refusal, Mark stepped into the room.

Jean, still dressed, lay on her bed. A light silken robe was thrown across her feet. A shaded lamp on the dressing table gave a faint illumination to the small room, leaving the bed and its occupant in the shadows.

Sturges pulled a chair close to Jean's pillow and seated himself.

"I know I shouldn't be bothering you," he began apologetically. "But I wanted to be sure that you were feeling better."

"I'm all right," said a dull little voice.

"I mustn't stay long," he continued, "or your nice mother will be chasing me out. I thought perhaps it would relieve our mind if you knew that letter was safe. I have it with me."

He laid the blue envelope at her side.

With a startled move, Jean raised herself on her elbow. Then she snatched the letter and thrust it under the pillow. The lamplight revealed her face now. Her brown eyes were terror-stricken.

"Then you..... you didn't read it?" she managed.

"But of course I did. After all, it was addressed to me. I read enough to make sure that Mr. Cannon didn't want it as badly as he thought."

"Oh....!" It was very nearly a sob. Jean's head dropped back on the pillow. "And what the letter didn't tell me, I....."

"Nan.

"Yes. Miss her heart."

Jean turned away her face and lay motionless. Mark waited a moment, then leaned nearer to say her gently:

"Are you going to send me away again?"

"No, no....."

"But I must. I didn't think you could care..... until tonight. Now you I know you do. A little. Tell me you do."

The small room was very still.

"Jean, dear. Is it.....our friend Don't Don't be afraid to tell me. I understand."

The red-brown head on the pillow moved almost imperceptibly. Mark translated it as a negation. Very resolutely he possessed himself of a small hand, held it firmly.

"Then I may tell you.....I love you, Jean. I have from that first day. I always will. Please, I will....."

Mark slipped his right arm under Jean's shoulders, held her slim body close, forced her very gently to face him.

"Jean!....." He laid his cheek against her tumbled hair. "I love you so. Tell me you care."

An arm crept slowly about his neck, tightened in a desperate hold. A choking whisper.

"Such helps.....

THE END.

"With an impish glance at Intamo, Doc continued: "I'm a great witch-doctor. I don't have to crack Paabi's skull like Intamo, to get the "medicine" out." Then he stepped closer and, with a deft sleight-of-hand movement, appeared to extract the knives from the boy's ear.

A murmur ran through the crowd in recognition of Doc's wondrous powers, nor did any of the cannibals fail to see that his magic was stronger than Intamo's. Now Doc was smitten with another of his brilliant ideas which had made him famous as a boxer throughout the length and breadth of the land, and above Doc's head!

He stepped close to the witch-doctor, holding the knives on his open palm. Now Intamo suspected some new humiliation. Suddenly the fire of hatred for the white boy flared into a murderous rage. His bony fingers gripped his bludgeon and raised it high above Doc's head!

Winnipeg, May 21 (CP)—Strength in western markets reflecting continued lack of moisture in the southwest winter wheat area lifted wheat prices from opening low levels on the trading floor of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

At the mid-session period losses of 1 to 1¼ cents were replaced by declines of ¼ cent with May at 78¾, July at 76⅛ and October at 73½.

Lower Liverpool cables gave prices a lower trend at the opening. The English market closed ¼d to ⅝d lower. Overnight export acceptances were in small proportion.

Sullivan Official Statement

Drilling In Very Rich Ore

According to an official announcement, latest developments on the No. 4 level of Sullivan Consolidated Mines Limited show a length of 200 feet of high grade ore, the last 50 feet of which average close to 2 ounces of gold per ton across 5 feet or better. The first section gave .75 oz. across sloping width and the second section is still in high grade ore.

Shaft No. 2 is expected to be completed to the fifth level around June 15th.

Surface diamond drilling done recently on a new section on the property brought very good indications from two holes sunk so far. A width of 10 ft. of ore in the first hole shows plenty of free gold and gave an average of $68.10 a ton. A two-foot section in the second hole assayed $139.13 and $261.60.

The step-up in production to 150 tons daily is taking place immediately.

Madsenova Erection of 300-Ton Mill Started

Construction work got under way on the Madsenova Mill, last week, when the contractors, Hill-Clark-Francis, put a crew of men on to work. More men were sent out to the property later on and it was expected that cement foundations would be poured by the end of last week. All excavation work has been finished, about 70,000 feet of lumber is piled at the property, two cars of fir are expected to arrive, and all the machinery and equipment has been ordered and it is expected that operations of installation will be completed in excellent time

Magnet Consolidated to Do More Drill

Another of the companies in the Long Lac area which contemplates drilling is Magnet Consolidated Mines (1936) Limited a consolidation of Magnet Lake Gold Mines and Wells Long Lac Mines, Magnet Consolidated announces that A. P. Matheson has been appointed consulting geologist and that a contract has been let for 5,000 feet of diamond drilling has been let with work to commence immediately in this connection. Drills are now at the property in the foundation of the company to sink a shaft and explore the showings encountered in the near future.

O'Brien Reported to Have Cut Ore at 600-Ft. Level

According to reports from well informed sources but not as yet unconfirmed, it is said that O'Brien Gold Mines has cut a very good rich ore on the 600-foot level where the same ore was opened up at the levels below to a depth of 1000 feet. Brokers, reported in the Financial Times yesterday that a large proportion of the buying in the stock market over the week-end. Official statement is now in the course of preparation and should be released to the press this week.

More Interest in Gold Stocks

Foreign Buying

An increasing number of brokers and investors are becoming interested in gold stocks, according to inquiries received at Financial Service this week. While many of the houses who in the past have always given all their attention to the Industrial Market are now turning to the mines. One broker reported to the writer yesterday that he had been receiving orders from Europe with an increasing number of inquiries from France, Belgium, London and New York.

A number of recent very important ore discoveries have been reported at several properties and the spectacular ore occurrences at Moneta Porcupine have been largely responsible for the renewed interest in the Sturgeon River area; Chibougamau, and in the spectacular developments at O'Brien.

Offer to Purchase Gresall Kirkland Gold Mines

Kirkland Lake Gold Mining Co. has made an offer to purchase Gresall Kirkland Gold Mines Ltd. on an exchange basis of one share of Kirkland Lake Gold for each two shares of Gresall. The Gresall property adjoins that of Kirkland Lake Gold on the south. Kirkland Lake Gold Mining Co. already owns a controlling interest in Gresall. Development of the property was commenced by the latter and the following disappointing results from underground exploration, Sheritt Gold Kirkland Lake Gold be accepted, exploration of the property will be resumed.

Mining Market Active

The Canadian industrial markets have been steadily strengthening in ground, with the mining section assuming the leadership on heavy volume and substantial gains. The writer knows of numerous cases where traders who formerly would not touch a mining security are to-day solely interested in the leading gold issues.

Several important strikes have been made in recent weeks and the sensational move-up in gold issues, with the concomitant large profits which are the result of such discoveries, has attracted the attention of both speculators and investors for the mining section. Everything would point to a continuation of interest in mining issues for some little time, and for the time being the industrial market will mark time.

Considerable discrimination, however, is necessary to choose wisely in mining investments. The uncertainty of the future of the gold standard and where one mine comes into successful production, a hundred fail.

The gyrations in Wall Street are having comparatively no effect on the Canadian mining securities. This is the entire reverse of the Industrial markets.

Ford of Canada "A"

The directors of Ford of Canada decided are scheduled to meet before the end of May to discuss the question of dividend on the "A" shares. Some quarters are anticipating a declaration of $1, a share but the better opinion appear to confirm such a view.

Dome Mines

Accompanying the strength in Dome Mines is the talk that property recently bought by the company is supposed to have a continuation of a rich vein.

The advance in Brazilian Traction last week's dividend news is being well consolidated. From a market point of view in the future is important for the reason that it has released a number of thousand shares and has created considerable additional purchasing power which is finding its way into other sections of the list. There are a number of orders filed for Brazilian Traction that are convinced that the stock, in time, will sell much higher than at present and certainly prove a market leader. This is decidedly likely as long as the prospect exists for additional dividend distributions.

Liquor Outlook Improved

Some $3,000,000 is reported to be involved in the agreement reached last week between the principle Canadian distillers and the U. S. Treasury to settle the claim for taxes on whiskey allegedly bootlegged into the U. S. during prohibition. The burden on any one company is unlikely to be heavy, and the outlook for such companies as Distillers-Seagrams, Hiram Walker and Canadian Industrial Alcohol is improved somewhat. Meanwhile, Schenley and National Distillers have remained sales in the Important Pennsylvania market, following acceptance of Governor Earle's proposal that a pending settlement of the floor-tax controversy, the controversy involving the collection of the tax claimed by the State.

Brazilian Traction

Although there is nothing official to go by, the impression in the street feel that earnings of the Brazilian Light, Power and Power Company are now sufficient to permit the declaration of more than the annual declaration of 50 cents a share being repeated semi-annually. If time should prove that this assumption is correct such action would mean the distribution of $4,200,000 annually to a group of tired shareholders, 28,914 of whom reside in Canada. So much of Brazilian is held in Montreal that the recent declaration of 20 cents per share payable on July 15th next is a development that is bound to have a far reaching effect.

Home Oil to Second Largest Shareholder of Standard Oil

Reviewing the position of Home Oil in its statement to shareholders Charles Hayden, President points out that the company owns 22,000 shares of Royalite Oil Company Limited and at December 31, 1935 were valued at $652,000 representing a valuation of $31. a share. Home Oil is thus the second largest shareholder of Royalite and Imperial Oil Limited is the largest with a holding of over per cent of the outstanding stock.

Broken Engagements

—by—

Leete Stone

Camille came running into the house where her fragile little aunt sat alone in a sunny window, her fingers busy with some delicate needlework. Agatha Andrews lifted her quiet gray eyes and saw the dark sparkling beauty of the girl, the rich coloring of youth and perfect health—and radiant joy.

"Auntie, I've had a darling letter," cried Camille breathlessly, sinking into a chair. "Guess who was there—and I met him!" she added ecstatically.

Agatha Andrews turned her fair face and looked out into the flower garden, which seemed to waver unnaturally before her tired eyes—all the blossoms seemed to nod their heads and say, "I told you so—I told you so—some day."

"You are not listening!" reproached the girl for this aunt was neither aunt nor father to her since childhood had deprived the child of both parents. "You haven't heard a word I've said—and it is important news, at the garden party—so much depends for the future—and he looked and looked at me until he seemed to realize that I was being rude; then Andy introduced him to me! Auntie, I have made a real conquest!"

"Closer," smiled Agatha. "Dearie—the governor's future son-in-law!"

"Camilla!" Miss Andrews had risen and was staring at her niece with wide, startled eyes in her white face. "Child, you're dreaming!"

"Nothing but my foolishness, dear!" admitted Camilla contritely. "I really did meet the governor himself and he was charming to me—he is coming to call tomorrow afternoon and we must have tea in the garden."

"Of course—" faltered Agatha.

"He asked after you, auntie, said he knew you years ago, when you were my age; he was very flattering in his fashion of him. Isn't he distinguished looking, with his gray hair and reserved with the twinkly look in his blue eyes? I adore him!" Camilla was definitely subsided in her changeable way, and looked dreamily into the gathering twilight.

"You mustn't hurt Andy's feelings, Camilla," admired Agatha in a troubled voice; "you know how devoted he is."

"He seems so young and humble when Governor Frayne, I told him so," she ended frankly.

"Child—Andy!"

"Yes," carelessly "on the way home. He was quite like a bear cub—it's as well he's not sensitive!"

"Oh!" cried the older woman shrinkly; then, as if collecting her shattered forces, she added coldly, "I am sorry, Andy is young, but that is a fault we all get over some day!"

Camilla laughed and kissed her warmly, but the slim finger where Andy's diamond had proudly gleamed was quite bare.

The next afternoon Camilla made preparations for serving tea in the rose-covered arbor. The governor's visit had silently helped her, making a feast of very special scones and cakes that she herself used to bake. She gave the girl—carte blanche—where the kitchen closet was concerned, and the substances was that many bits of old china saw the light for the first time in many years. Agatha, dressed fine as she wandered restlessly about the garden. It was not until the hour arrived at the time when she slowly went back to face the past. Andy Mac McDonald, always perfectly faithful in spite of his broken engagement, arrived with Camilla's call, and there was Camilla, radiating glorious youth, her dark bobbed hair bound with a band of velvet evening hair bound with a band of velvet evening ribbon; her arms were lifted to collect Frayne's hat.

"There she is at last!" cried Camilla, and the governor, who turned around to stare for a moment at the slim figure coming slowly across the garden, with its brittle bobbed curiously just then, and Andy and Camilla flew to shake hands with him.

"Agatha," he said simply as he took her hand in his, "you told me once upon a time to go away—you never wanted to see me again—"

"Yes," said Agatha faintly, her eyes seeking her refuge, the garden. "You can save a lot of foolish things—"

"I've—and they hurt all through the years. What a young fool I was in those days not to come back to you—"

"Yes," agreed Agatha softly.

"There is a lot to explain —when I saw the child yesterday I was astounded; I told myself it was either your daughter or a near relative—so—"

"I am glad—you have been so successful," said Agatha, regaining her poise somewhat.

"Yes—in a measure," he said pathetically. "And I came to find out today whether I shall be the only bachelor governor the state has ever known or—"

"They have gone into the rose garden," said Camilla indignantly. "Why not? They were engaged to be married and quarreled twenty years ago—great scott, he's kissing your Aunt Agatha!" Andy turned his head away from the love scene and encountered Camilla's brimming eyes.

"Where—my ring?" she asked.

Designs of the new royal cypher which will label the reign of King Edward VIII have been made public. Here are the three forms to be used. At LEFT is cypher with numeral "VIII" between the plain block Letters "E R," surmounted by imperial crown, to be used by all departments of state and public bodies. In CENTRE, is cypher reversed and interlaced, a special design to be used on colors of certain battalions of the foot guards and on appointments of such other regiments for which it is authorized. It does not bear a crown. At RIGHT is the imperial cypher for India, It has a large block letter "I" between the "E" and the "R", and the crown is smaller. Royal approval to the designs has been given.

FAR FIELDS

—by—

Frances Smith

They were companions, and they spoke to each other; each by his fashion; from their separate cages. One was a trusty in a penitentiary and the other was a golden canary. The lifting song of the bird and the crisp whistle of the man exchanged daily greetings across the straggling space that separated them.

This was one of the first days of spring to capture glorious penalty from the gently warm sun and faintly stirring air—nature's farewell to a dragging, bitter winter.

Number 981 pressed his cheekbone against the bars of his open window. Even the metal felt less cold and unyielding than usual. Zephyrs stirred his sandy hair which had become much thinner during the ten years of incarceration. This morning out of the rule of realpolitic which had claimed his spirit from the first ran a quickening desire for the far fields of freedom and the nomad life that had once been his.

Eyes bent on his little chum whose cage hung in Alexander open window over the way this wondrous spring day, Number 981 indulged his whimsicality of guarded conversation; "Can we stick another winter here, little one?" he whispered.

Notes of song thrilled over to him as if in answer.

"Meaning 'Cheerio' and 'Carry on,' and all the rest of the uplift stuff," Number 81 muttered with a wry mouth. Nevertheless his absolutely unlikable face had responded with a clear whistle.

About to turn away from the window, his gaze—which had been riveted on the cage—was caught by the sight of a child scrambling into a chair which stood under the window. The child was small, and had trouble making the grade; but finally she managed it, and her face increased feasting with the tiny door of the bird's prison. At once a woman appeared on the scene, removed the child with apparent bodily, and pushed the chair away.

The significance of this ordinary incident flooded the man's mind with the conviction that some day the child would succeed with its mischief and his little companion would escape to those far fields of freedom that ragged their hearts perpetually.

Thus the idea of escape was born in Number 981 on this day of lively promise which had suddenly new meaning for him. Amazed, and somewhat bewildered he for the first time realized how many opportunities he had missed; wrapped as he had been during the years in the dull cloth of routine and prison grey labor. The checkup of tools was often lax. It would be simple to conceal and remove files and oil. Nights were long in which to softly saw the bars.

He fell, that escape for the little pal and he destined. Why not for him, too?

The chance to secure tools came soon and Number 981 became a different man. He stepped out of the prison pen of resignation into the province of love of life. A thousand sleepless nights had taught him where the night guard of his cell-block would be in any given moment. No detail of secrecy eluded him. Night by night the four little girls in two of his bars grew imperceptibly deeper.

Intimacy, also, increased between the bird and the man. Never morning that they did not exchange buoyancies:

"How you coming, friend?" Carolled over.

"Fine! How 'bout you, little one?" Whistled back.

And after the mischievous child stretched its arms high for the cage, reinforcing Number 981's premonition that, hopefully for them both was a certainty.

The morning came when all but the last few strokes of the file had been taken. A few more deft movements' work would spell separation of the steel, and—escape! Watching the bird across the way, the man's body stiffened suddenly and his cheekbones pressed the bars so closely that he feared they might give way.

The child was dragging a chair under the canary's cage again. Today! The child climbed on the chair; fussed with the cage door, and opened it. The golden bird winged swift flight through the open window, and downward, beyond the prison walls gave joyous strove to follow.

Number 981 lay mounted to the peak of elation. The little pal was free to travel the far fields—travel him—in fancy, his fantasy.

Number 981 remained long at the open window after his own escape for that very night. He dreamed as he shifted the blankets—tossed and fitfully. Then he noticed the little boy; shoulders drooped in penitence; go out of the house opposite and disappear around the corner. And why did! See the child return running followed closely by a sleek black cat, and carrying something in small cupped hands as he climbed to his mother. Number 981's eyes strained to see! They caught a glimpse of a little bird's tail tipped with yellow which the feathers drooped awry.

Number 981 turned away from his nearly severed bars, despair in the deep lines of his sagging face. With a watchful look everywhere bars and they disappeared in the tall grass of prison acres just as the morning drew back from through the corridors. Far fields indeed!

Among Us Breeders

—by—

E. P. O'Bryan

A week after they opened the shop in the Kerr building when you could go to make a quiet little bet on the ponies and maybe win a few dollars, Grandma Hostedder went over to see Mr. Connell and raised so much fuss about the "outrage" that the city fathers had to do something about it. The Evening News, a conservative paper printed the story, and this fright-ened the mayor half out of his wits. He ordered the place closed at once.

Twice after that other places opened up quietly, and met the same fate; Grandma Hostedder saw to that.

But finally they elected a new mayor, and a new city council, and the mayor himself liked to lay a little bet now and then, and to watch the ponies gallop around the oval. So it came about that a somewhat modified sort of betting (that was the dignified term per it, as Mr. Connell had put it) was allowed to go and bet a little money on any horse no matter where he—Connell was came into the office from at the tracks.

Grandma Hostedder was away for a couple of months during all this excitement, but when she got to town there was a pretty how-de-do. Betting, she declared, was the Reform League and declared the nuisance had to stop. She went down to the city hall to see Connell to stir up resentment. She collected a number of women, and one day night they were on hand when Connell came to his office.

Grandma Hostedder faced them, her dander up. She declared the Reform League was betraying them, that it took the very bread out of the mouths of the poor, that the city council didn't order the thing at all—the police did—the police she would get out an injunction.

The council ended by passing an ordinance permitting betting—betting at the county fair grounds and then the Dominion Day holiday came. She waved her umbrella at the mayor's carriage as it was passing and upon the mayor arose and extended him an invitation to attend the first race meet in the city.

During the next three weeks Grandma Hostedder was busy campaign against the race meet and against betting. Sundays was better and all the merchants were looking forward to the opening. They were indignant when Grandma Hostedder announced that she was going to picket the entrances to the track for a demonstration. They listened and finally, a new light of battle in her eye raced to go.

The stage was all set when the mayor's car arrived. Hastily men went about the business of getting the first race under way. Grandma had a stand in a fine spot opposite the judge's stand. She looked a little pale, but nevertheless there was battle in her eye.

A band blew and the crowd cheered.

"Here they come!"

The horses were being paraded before the stands.

Horrors of horrors! The third horse in line had a big white ribbon draped along his side and on it in gold letters ran the legend:

Grandma Hostedder's Entry

Lucky Boy

The crowd went wild. Already they had spotted Grandma, her pert little hat at a belligerent angle, her eyes snapping with battle.

At first Grandma did not understand and then suddenly it dawned on her that she had been duped. She started to get up but the two girls flocked about her so that she could not escape. Mr. Connell, the mayor's secretary, in her opinion, efficient way began whispering things in Grandma's ear.

"You see, it's like this, the horse is really yours. It's one they had out at your ranch at Clearwater, Grandma! That is a fact. Interested him under your name. Really it is!"

Grandma was wide-eyed. "Why, it's that colt of Molly's ain't it? It must be it."

Ask Jeff Slagle what happened in that race. He'll tell you Grandma Hostedder can swing a wicked parasol. Yes, sir. In her excitement she hauled his head over and all but smothered him.

And Jeff will tell you also that Lucky Boy was just a common old plug from the livery stable that was hired for $2.50 and that nobody expected him to come anywhere near winning. But he did—beat Mr. mayor's own colt.

The other day Grandma Hostedder was before the city council again, visiting Cain because the August body hadn't appropriated enough funds to keep the rain barrels in shape for the summer meet. "Us breeders," she began, "demand action—"

Two of a Crowd

—by—

Scott W. Ryall

The evening air was oppressive, dead, heavy, hot. Letty Snorsten threw open the window and leaned on her hands and slow tears sliding down her cheeks.

She looked down on Grimm street. How like its name it seemed with those who must live and toil at a slow and weary pace. Energy was unknown. And now were they braved by the high humidity which had gripped the city for the past three days.

"Joe!" she moaned in the inanity of pain of fatigue. But she would never again answer, "Joe!"

Obviously her nerves were worn to the breaking point. She had endured a terrible day at the telephone building; watching the long distance plugs and the little flashes which meant the call was for Chicago or Seattle.

"Letty!" the next girl called sharply. Then: "Supervisor! Supervisor!"

The shout rang through the room and the long distance operator's mind. She was swaying on the verge of an infinite, cool void. There was a long blank, then she felt the lapping of waves on her skin and realized that she was in her room. The company nurse was wiping a cool cloth over her face and down onto her shoulders.

She looked up at the gray-haired woman who seemed so unconcerned as if she were cleaning carrots for dinner.

"I'm all right," Letty said in a voice strangely distant. "I can get back now."

"There's a relief girl on," the woman said curtly. "You go home. Rest. You'll be all right tomorrow."

"Rest? In this—this heat? And listen, you, do you know where I live? Do you know where hell is?"

"Stop it, girl," the woman snapped, "I'll send you to the infirmary if you don't. I'm not the heat. You've gotta stand it. There's nothing to get hysterical about. You're the fifteenth today. Don't think you're the only one."

"Sorry," Letty said, gathering courage, "I forgot—myself."

"Better better," the woman said curtly not unkindly, and got out of the trouble shooters to see her home.

She went up the three flights of stairs and down the dark hall to the apartment. The heat was stifling inside.

"Joe" she had called when she'd opened the door.

There had been no answer. Hard to expect him to be indoors on such a day.

Letty had quarreled last night, nothing unusual. Everybody in the city was quarreling these days. And it's her fault that Joe hasn't got a job. Then she had said:

"Goodby, Letty," it said briefly in his horrible sarcasm. "I can't go on thinking of things as they were and as they are."

That was all. He hadn't signed it. There was no need.

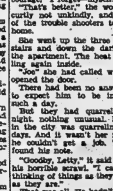
Then she called him into the emptiness that was left, "can't you see it's the heat? And you've got to find another job. We can't—they've been out of—Joe! Joe!"

She fell across the bed but the tears of nervousness that had been so nearly were dried in hot eyes.

Then the door opened and closed softly. She felt her heart pounding through the oppressive heat of the moment, thinking that the second had only been the beginning. But there he was.

"Joe!" she called: a cry of joy.

"Where've you been?"



"Smith! not know how much air goes under the new bridge."

"Honey," she said, "you shouldn't even think of—of bridges."

She felt the dent of the hand resting on her arm.

"Somebody else said that. Funny that you pick the same words. A fat cop. Nice guy. He said it was a long way to go—and that the best view was from a boat lookin' up."

THOMAS REPORTED RESIGNED FROM CABINET

Criticism is Blamed In Rumored Resignation Statement is Expected

London Story Says That Thomas' Resignation Has Been Accepted

OVER 'LEAF' CASE

Present Situation Said to be Embarrassing to Cabinet

London, May 22 (CP)—Well-defined reports in official circles in London today that J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary, had resigned from the cabinet and that his resignation had been accepted.

These reports indicated that the resignation would be announced late tonight.

The reported resignation followed conclusion of evidence in the Judicial Tribunal investigating the British budget leak scandal.

It was the culmination of the two-day inquiry in which witnesses mentioned his name and that of his son, Leslie, a partner in a firm of stockbrokers.

Tribunal Is Sitting.

The three justices comprising the tribunal are now considering the evidence and will submit their findings to the speaker of the House of Commons either next week or the week following.

Various witnesses, appearing before the inquiry, testified they had heard indirectly that Right Hon. J. H. Thomas were informed of certain tax increases to be made last month in the announcement of the new government budget for the 1936-37 fiscal year.

Leslie Thomas was employed by the London brokerage firm which, it was said to have dealt in insurance against increases in taxes.

The declaration of the budget always is guarded carefully previous to its announcement in the House of Commons by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Political sources practical "an important announcement" would be made shortly at 10 Downing Street.

It was believed the announcement would tell of Thomas stepping out of the cabinet.

Resignation Inevitable.

Thomas already had told the official inquiry board he had considered a resignation.

One evening newspaper said flatly, "Thomas has resigned" and said an official announcement was awaited.

Political observers said they considered Thomas' resignation inevitable, and, because the cabinet was expected to declare him guilty of revealing budget secrets knowingly, but because of criticism within the cabinet and a strong public opinion in some quarters against Thomas.

This opinion is mainly concerned with his conduct in accepting a fine sponsorship for a publisher for a projected autobiography.

Situation Embarrasses.

The Colonial Secretary twice went before the inquiry to deny any part of connection with sensational revelations in the testimony of other witnesses in the case.

The situation is reported to be embarrassing Premier Minister Baldwin and his cabinet.

Testimony brought out that Thomas, in addition to selling the unwritten story of his life, had won money betting against the result of a general election in 1935.

When the election was called, he was paid "his insurance money—about £700 ($3,500).

Thomas Denied Secrets.

Thomas strongly denied he had told the budget secrets, but admitted, however, he had golfed, brunched, and talked in two prominent men who took out insurance against tax increases.

During the Easter recess of the House of Commons he was in the company of Sir Alfred Butt, wealthy M.P., who was said to have told about the anticipation of the budget, and Alfred Mond, executive who arranged for the autobiography.

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had outlined the budget proposals verbally at a cabinet meeting April 9 just before the recess. The budget was announced in the House April 21, on the day after it reassembled.

Just before the announcement, Butt and Sir Alfred Mond both took out insurance in Lloyds against the contingency of a rise in the tea and income taxes. Both were increased in the budget announcement.

TWO ARE HANGED FOR THEIR PART IN PRISON BREAK

British Government Sought to Save Mackay's Life

GALLOWS HELD WAITING

Mackay Wrote Letter to Sykes Inviting Him to Hanging

San Quentin Prison, Calif., May 22 (AP)—Jack Mackay, a British subject, and Joseph Kirby were hanged together today for their part in a violent prison break.

The gallows drop dropped in its double fall at 9¼ minutes after 10 a.m. (2:04:30 E.D.T.) and both men pronounced dead.

The prisoners paid the death penalty for kidnapping prison officials and guards in a futile attempt to escape from San Quentin a year ago.

Warden James R. Holohan, since resigned, was beaten and critically injured.

The British government had intervened in Mackay's behalf and Governor Merriam had granted the man two reprieves.

Reprieve Is Refused.

The British government's second reprieve plea for Mackay, a British subject who was born in Montreal, awaited response from the State Department at Washington, to which it was cabled by Premier Stanley Baldwin.

Governor Merriam had issued a statement, saying:

"I have been unable yet to grant a third reprieve to Alexander Mackay and Joseph Kirby. I am leaving it open until the last minute. He said he had received several communications about the case, including a telephone call from Ottawa, and at Washington.

Statement for Prison Break.

Mackay's statement, which he signed after his part in a prison break, said: "I am sorry the kidnaping incident was done, the warden severely injured and the guard was held kidnapped as hostages.

The attorney released a letter he said Mackay wrote inviting Frank Sykes, chairman of the State Board of Prison Terms and Paroles, to the hanging. Sykes was kidnaped by the four fleeing convicts.

"It shall be magnificent for you to witness the death of men from whom you have stolen," the letter said.

"Your remorse for having caused two hangings in the next few hours will be pitiful to behold."

Mackay was confident with the hope that the sight of Kirby and myself going through the last agonies of a legal execution had had judgment, shall make you feel you should dispose of the poor devils who come before you to receive justice in the future."

The powerful Fulwood Stable, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, called upon Spearman and Spicurus to run in the event, carrying 30 guineas, donated by the King, and a $6,000 added purse.

Spicurus, a colt by Spinard out of Sally Bay, started in last year's race, but finished out of the money. He remained eligible all through the year to run in tomorrow's race. He will carry top weight of 126 pounds.

Epic of 4 Years' Wanderings Wins Sympathy in Court

2 Boys Tell of 'No House, No Relatives, No Nothing'

P. M. IS MERCIFUL

New Toronto, May 22 (CP)—Howard Pearson and William McLeod, each 18, stood in police court today charged with theft of a bicycle and won the sympathy of the court with a tale of four years' wandering across Canada—no home, no relatives, "no nothing."

Four years they left Winnipeg and since then have wandered about the country, doing odd jobs and living on hand-outs. Landing in New Toronto they wanted to go to Hamilton, so stole a bicycle. They were caught almost immediately.

Would three months in the reformatory help?, inquired Magistrate Douglas Davidson.

"It doesn't make any difference to us," replied the youths.

"The four most constructive years of your life wasted—I guess I'd be in the same position I wouldn't care either," said the magistrate, as he sent the boys to jail for two days with the promise he would try to find something for them.

HIGH ABOVE EARTH PILOT, GIRL FIGHT A DESPERATE BATTLE

Boston, May 22 (AP)—A young woman aviator was battling to avoid a leap from an airplane yesterday and restrained by a pilot in a furious struggle, was identified today, Police Hospital authorities said, as Sue Lino, 20, Boston domestic.

Dr. Riley H. Guthrie, executive physician of the hospital, said the girl had admitted her identity this morning. Members of the family identified her, Dr. Guthrie said.

Dr. Guthrie did not offer any explanation for the girl's behavior yesterday other than to say she was in a state of "extreme mental depression".

"She says she wants to die but will not tell why," the doctor said.

Shaken from his experience, Sutherland, veteran pilot for Interstate Airlines, brought his plane in a perfect landing at East Boston airport yesterday one hand grasping the girl's "slight" form either entwined in the curly chestnut locks of his passenger's bobbed head.

Airport attaches, answering Sutherland's cries for aid, laid the woman, about 24 years old, until police arrived.

At police headquarters Captain William D. Donovan said her only response to questions was:

"Just give me a gun."

Sutherland, pilot, refused to talk later at Boston Psychopathic Hospital. She was held there under close watch pending "further developments," police said.

Fought Furious Battle.

High above Boston harbor in the plane that dipped and plunged madly, first in the clouds, then near the water, Sutherland said he fought a furious battle to keep his passenger in the open plane.

The young woman, who had engaged the ship for an hour, supposedly for a sight-seeing trip, was seated in the rear cockpit.

"Suddenly," he related, "I glanced back and saw her standing half-out of the plane, one foot on a wing strut just inside the cockpit. She had ripped off her goggles and her helmet. Her hair was blowing free. That came in handy later—it gave me something to hang onto."

Sutherland said he stood, half-crouching, then twisted, reached back "and grabbed the girl by her hair and threw her back into the cockpit."

The pilot declared the woman struggled and twisted and scratched in an effort to get free. "She battled," he asserted, "like a wildcat."

SHARP REDUCTION IN HYDRO RATES PREMIER PROMISES

Profit on Hydro Expected to be Six Millions This Year

POWER AT COST

Hepburn Tells Why Increase in School Tax Was Given

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 22 (CP)—The post-cancellation period in Ontario's Hydro history, according to Premier Mitchell Hepburn, has been one of headway for the great government-owned utility and power users, both commercial and domestic, may expect a reduction in rates.

Mr. Hepburn told the Welland County 20th Century Liberal Club last night about Hydro and how it has progressed since the Legislature cancelled agreements with four Quebec companies. The Niagara system alone, he said, would show an improvement of $4,000,000 this year.

With what he called a brighter future ahead of Hydro, the Premier said a survey would be undertaken of the Ogoki River diversion proposal in northwestern Ontario. The project entailing an expenditure of $2,000,000, has been regarded as one of the most important steps Hydro could take.

Mr. Hepburn devoted most of his speech to Hydro, but towards the close he mentioned the government's new school tax legislation, granting Separate Schools a greater share of corporation taxes.

Must Respect Rights—Hepburn

"I do not care if all the Tories howl from now until the next election, they cannot take away the rights of the Separate School supporters," he said. In criticizing Conservative policy following the Legislature, he said they had "heaped abuse on the Catholics."

"It is incumbent upon me now to tell you why we put the legislation through," he said. "I did it especially to speak to the farmers who have been subjected to terrific propaganda from the Tories of Toronto, the Tories who think the sun rises and sets in Toronto.

He said it was provided in the legislation that minority groups in both Ontario and Quebec should be given certain rights. "Robert, the head of the Protestant minority could not be taken away, and the belief was that the rights of Ontario's Catholic minority also must be protected.

Under previous governments the treasury had been the wheel horse which handed out various grants to the schools, the Premier said, but in that system the government had said Separate School pupils would eventually be deprived of their rights. The province had taken a step to provide for them out of general taxation.

DUMDUM CHARGE RENEWED TODAY BEFORE LEAGUE

Allegation of Soft-Nosed Bullets Found on Prisoners

FASCISTS COMPLAIN

Reasonable to Suppose Says Charge That British Firms Makers

Geneva, May 22 (CP) — Italy charged anew today that the vanquished Ethiopians used dumdum bullets supposedly made in Britain.

The League of Nations published a lengthy, illustrated communication from the Fascist government. It alleged several thousand of the soft-nosed bullets were found on prisoners captured in the south by Marshall Rodolfo Graziani, and that they were so marked as to make it reasonable to suppose they came from British firms.

Early in the week, the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, charged before the House of Commons that similar evidence of British-made dumdum bullets was "furnished" by one "(Col. Pedro Lopez")

YOUTHFUL FISHERMAN GETS 36 INCH EEL

Instead, Marshall waited wonderingly, and as his curiosity to see what was going to happen next.

After the head appeared an age to tired arms, the thrashing, reptilian shape in the water calmed down. Gingerly and carefully Marshall hauled it high and dry on shore, gave one look and bashpoed it round up his comrades.

LAST OFFICIAL VISIT

On the last official visit of the year to the Lodges in Stirling District Deputy Grand Master of the Prince Edward District A. F. and A. M. to the home Lodge in Stirling last evening well over two hundred members of the Craft were present to take part in the ceremonies. Of this number, about twenty-five members were present from Belleville. Representatives from the district between Montreal and Toronto were also numbered among the guests.

After a brief session of the Lodge, members repaired to the Stirling Community Hall where a grand banquet was served. J. E. Salisbury, Master of Stirling Lodge, presided as toastmaster.

The toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed by Wor. Bro. T. W. Salmon, and a response was made by Dr. R. A. Carleton.

District Deputy Speaker

R. W. Bro. Dr. Carleton, as guest speaker of the evening, took as his theme "Masonry Here and now" and a most interesting and impressive talk on this most important phase of fraternity. He also stated that it is probable there would be a re-arrangement of boundaries of Masonic districts throughout the Province. While Prince Edward District as a separate district will remain there were other districts with as many as 40 Lodges. It was possible to change these boundaries of districts so as to more nearly approach equality in membership.

V. W. Bro. F. F. Long, of Campbellford, Dist. Deputy Grand Master of Peterborough District also briefly responded to the toast and created much amusement by his skill as a raconteur.

The toast to the visitors was happily proposed by Very Worshipful Dr. C. F. Walt, of Stirling Lodge, while responses were made by Rt. Wor. Bro. C. O. Hartly, Belleville; Oscar Morrow, Brighton; Geo. West, Madoc; Wor. Bro. Dr. Lawlor; Wor. Bro. Mills of Campbellford.

Toast Pledged to Lodge

The toast to the Stirling Lodge was proposed on behalf of the visiting brethren by Wor. Bro. Herity and responded to by Wor. Bro. Volney Richardson, Secretary of the Stirling Lodge.

During the program two presentations were made, the first to Wor. Bro. Haggerty, Immediate Past Master, of West Hmnlington and the second to Wor. Bro. Bellamy, Master elect. It is about to conclude his year's service as Master of Stirling Lodge and Mr. Haggerty was presented with the Past Master's Jewel and Wor. Bro. Dalsbury with a beautifully decorated Past Master's Collar. Both recipients made brief responses.

The meeting was enlivened by a musical program in which Wor. Bro. Dr. Lawlor of Bellaview rendered a vocal solo and Bros. Robt. Patterson and Wm. Jones gave instrumental selections.

Possibility France May Forego Sending Team to Olympics

Paris, May 22 (AP)—Uncertainty whether France will send a team to the Berlin Olympic games has thrown sporting circles, government officials and the public into an uproar.

The Chamber of Deputies has failed to vote the Olympic budget of 1,800,000 francs, equivalent to about $115,000. The Senate cabinet postponed approval until the new fiscal year when it comes to office in June.

Even if the Infiel cabinet agrees which held unlikely in next quarters, the money cannot be voted in parliament until July, only a month before the games. The Olympic Committee is already spending the money to keep 300 athletes in training camps.

Armand Massard of the French Olympic Committee pleaded that sports and politics are distinct and should be kept distinct" but Leftist groups objected to spending French money in Nazi Germany.

Massard pointed out that the Olympic games "will be held just the same even if France refuses to go," but the Left answered that at present France would save 1,800,000 francs.

POLICE BLOTTER

With the advent of warmer weather the usual rise in the sale of boat fee for the season recently dawned up J. H. Preston, 188 Dundas St. When Mr. Preston arrived at his boat-house, however, he was surprised to find the sailing craft had been stripped of all ropes and accessories. Some 70 feet of 3/4 inch rope and 45 feet of three-eighth of an inch rope was also stolen along with other sailing craft accessories. The police were informed and promised to investigate.

Shortly after 9.30 p.m. last night a local citizen telephoned to the police informing them his automobile had been stolen. Long distance calls were immediately dispatched to Napanee, Trenton and other out-of-town points to be on the lookout for a stolen car. Some 30 minutes later, however, the chagrined citizen again called the police. "Don't bother looking for my car any longer, a friend of mine had taken it and just brought it back."

Local police were called to the vicinity of the Belleville Collegiate Institute last night, where trouble was alleged to be disturbance A gang of boys, that had congregated there were dispersed by P. C. Wm. Ryan, who also warned the youths against future actions of a similar nature. The boys were loitering with parked cars and generally disturbing the peace.

Six transients and one lone inebriate occupied the cell block at the police station last night. All were allowed their freedom at an early hour this morning, except that the alleged drunk was instructed to return in time for police court.

Court

A local man charged with Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon charged with unlawfully driving his car on Front street on the 19th of May without brakes being in good order, as the case was that was a little girl struck down but I do not think that the driver had had the proper braking that the driver could have avoided striking the girl as she ran right in front of him, said the Crown. The Magistrate assessed a fine of $10 and court $10.00 fine and $3.75 costs, on default he will spend ten days in county jail. The driver was given till the 26th to pay. An out-of-town farmer appeared on a charge of driving the car of another and being in charge of a car, while intoxicated. He stated that he would not plead guilty of the latter charge but pleaded guilty of the former charge. The case was remanded until the 26th of May. Manson

GEN. BADOGLIO LEAVES FOR ROME

Office of Viceroy Now in Hands of Rodolfo Graziani

(By Edward J. Neil)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Asmara, Eritrea, May 21.—(AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, leaving his responsibilities as Viceroy of Ethiopia in the hands of General Rodolfo Graziani, set out for Rome today to Italy.

General Graziani, commander of the Southern campaign, arrived in Addis Ababa yesterday and assumed the power of government in the name of King-Emperor Victor Emmanuel. Marshal Badoglio took his leave of the former Ethiopian capital.

Badoglio is expected to lead a triumphant procession through Rome's ancient arch of Constantine June 2, when Italy will celebrate simultaneously the "Proclamation Day" and its conquest and annexation of Ethiopia.

Well-informed sources considered it unlikely the 65-year-old chief of Italian Army General Staff would ever return except for a visit.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—1936 will surely long be remembered by the many lambs it gave us. First it was one of the coldest winters ever witnessed, and the latest spring in years when there was such an abundant growth that every one marvelled that grass could grow so fast and then, almost without warning, one of the driest seven months that could be imagined came along and now the fields of clover are standing with bowed heads in nine counties. Just what the seed loss will be is not fully realized at present. It is thought that some of the early sown fields may have to be re-sowed again.

The Cheese Manufacturing Co. started operations on Monday with Mr. Harry Joby again as manager.

LOPEZ VANISHES HOUSE INFERS

Simon Does Not Say if Government Knew Who Employed Lopez

London, May 21 (AP)—A series of questions in the House of Commons disclosed today that Col. Juan Lopez, accused officer as a "purveyor of false information" about dumdum bullets in Spain, has vanished.

Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, said Lopez was British-born and therefore could not be deported.

He did not answer, however, when a member asked if the government knew who employed Lopez to get dumdum bullet evidence.

On Monday Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden accused Lopez of using a ruse to obtain sample dumdum bullets from a British firm. The "fabricated evidence" was then delivered to Italy, Eden said.

Eden also asserted that despite a British warning Lopez was reportable, his relations with the Italian Embassy continued.

EMPIRE DAY

Probably no Empire Day means more to the people of the British Empire than Empire Day this year for much has been heard of various empires and latterly things have been said of the proclaimed new Italian Empire in Ethiopia. There have been not a few references to that of Alexander the Great and other empires in the Orient. Events of the past year have caused much thought on the Empire as the world is in a chaotic state and in this distraught situation, one of the few firm foundations is the stable British Empire.

It has been pointed out again and again that the British Empire is like no other empire. It is not a replica of the Empire of the Roman Caesars with conquest as the dominant note, with their consuls and lieutenants, carrying the standards of the Roman legions farther and farther afield until ancient Rome's sway enclosed most of the known earth. Romans had an instinct for law and conquest. Other empires were more rapid in growth than that of Rome. Philip of Macedon began the empire which in his son Alexander swelled to acquire a large part of the world towards the East. As suddenly as on the early death of Alexander the advance halted. Rome did not fail to Alexander and his generals, but she was able to pick up crumbs from Alexander's empire feast and to weld them into that great old empire leaving the most abiding influences on the modern world. There are other empires such as Russia which had a life of considerable length, the French Empire of Napoleon which did not reach fullness because built on a brief span in the life of one man, the modern German Empire which was a tour de force and which broke down in its own desire to expand. Among other empires was the Moorish domination of a large part of the Mediterranean littoral only by the Spaniards. Genghis Khan in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries created a vast Mongolian Empire. His sway, cruel and autocratic, extended to the farthest steppes from the Yellow River to the Dnieper.

But these were not empires in the British sense. At no time has the instinct of the British statesman led to enslave the peoples of the world. The British Empire really may be said to date back over a thousand years ago to the beginnings of a fleet under the lead of Alfred the Great. It was a slow development. England had to find her place as a nation in Europe. The great awakening of thought and enterprise which led to the discovery of America, gave the first opportunity of the English instinct for colonization in America. The eighteenth century brought extensions followed by the loss of the United Colonies, Canada having previously fallen to England as a result of the Seven Years War. Subsequent treatment of French Canada by British set the type of rule of the British sway. Other extensions came in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

The British Empire is not so much a military instrument as in the case of every other empire known of, but rather is it a genius for steady growth. Modern mandates as exercised by Britain are an indication of the type of British rule, and prove that Britain has not used her power to dominate, but rather to guide.

Today the lightness of the British rule is something the like of which cannot be duplicated anywhere in history. Sentiments ties the Empire together for the bonds are beneficent in their control.

Britain is peculiarly fitted by geographic isolation for the development of such an empire. Her people are adventurous, self-reliant, sea-going. Most great empires have been land empires but not so is the British. Her naval empire's purpose is to keep the seas free. Other empires have bestridden conquered lands or endeavored to block the seas. British rule is a chain of freedom, not a yoke of steel binding nations and hampering their development.

Today Canada like other British Dominions is an example of the gentle rule of Britain, without coercion. Britain trusts in the Dominions' sense of justice to hold true to her. Had Canada been a part of ancient Roman imperialism, she like other lands would have been drained to keep Rome and the empire together. But every Canadian knows that is not true under British rule. Alexander and Napoleon could have thought of the British way as madness—holding an empire by the constraint of devotion to the throne, itself a living symbol of the freedom of British development, and not by force of arms. Great as Rome was, she never could forget that she was conqueror nor could she allow the colonies to forget.

If by any chain of circumstance and event such a unique commonwealth of nations should pass, the world would lose the most unique international development in history, unequalled and unapproached in its breadth of vision and sense of justice.

Empire Day should today mean more than it has as the British development is contrasted with other types of imperialism.

ROBIN IN THE RAIN

Robin in the blossoms, rain across the sky,
Like a wand'ring minstrel wind is passing by.
Bearing in its whisper wisps of tattered gold,
All the wealth of music feathered breast can hold.
Song of budding Springtime—song of silver rain,
Song of wondrous rapture, close akin to pain.
Sweeter, higher, fuller rains the golden sound—
Robin in the blossoms Paradise has found.
Robin, robin, trilling, singing in the rain,
Wild notes flying heavenward to return again;
Mount the steep of heaven to the throne of God,
Calling down a blessing on the waiting sod.

FIREWORKS FOR THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY displayed in the store windows reminds one of the joy once derived from the possession and explosion of fireworks. How we used to hoard our money long before the holiday so as to get as many firecrackers as possible, and some bigger bombers, catherine wheels, Roman pin wheels and all that kind of stuff. And ever the Chinese seem to be the premier firecracker makers of the world. 'Member way back when Hector was a pup me and my pal were walking along getting off the occasional firecracker. Pal had a pocketful and the temptation to drop a lighted firecracker in that pocket was too irresistible to be denied. Golly did that firecracker get into action quick! In an instant my pal was a human firewheel and the noise was terrific—bang! bang! bang! and a few more bangs. Then a pause while we tried to readjust ourselves and ponder the damage, and away she'd go again, bang! bang! bang! with pal dancing around apparently unaware that altogether aware what was going on. We were doubled up with laughter and at the same time a bit apprehensive as to what might be the penalty to us, for pal's coat was in flames and we had to drag it off and stamp the fire out. If memory serves we got off very light, without even a fight with pal, and the joy of that occasion has never grown dim. However, this is not to be taken as a tip to be emulated for we might very well have had our block knocked off, pal might have been killed to death, and all kinds of penalties might have been invoked. We were good and lucky that's all, and pal was too shocked for reprisals.

DON'T IS A WORD WHICH SELDOM PLEASES, and "Don'ts for Investors" frequently issued, hardly seem to make a ripple, though many may have been benefited in silence. Don't be misled, don't be donted and seldom stop once they have started on an investment which promises high returns—the richer the promise, the greater the risk. However, here's a few new don'ts from a Montreal man active in the financial world:

Don't buy blindly.

Don't deal in unknown issues or be beguiled by roseate promises held out by new promotions.

Don't deal with unknown houses or with strangers.

Don't be misled by names or representations.

Don't buy on tips or rumors.

Don't trust a sure thing.

Don't ever trust high pressure methods and, under all circumstances, never trust unsolicited telephone or telegraph advice.

Don't sell your securities because of unreasoned fear.

Don't hold on because of greed—no man can buy at the bottom and sell at the top.

Don't concentrate, but diversify your purchases.

Don't fail to give proper consideration to the marketability of your securities.

Never buy on margin unless you can protect yourself.

Never put securities away and forget them; make a periodical examination of the company concerned. You will find that the time so spent will be profitable.

Last, but most important. Never act hastily, but investigate before you invest.

MANHATTAN SPORTS WRITER emits this nifty, intimating that Max Schmeling's manager should have shipped Der Max back to Germany with Hindenburg, and brought the Zep back to fight Joe Louis. Not so with Max, however, who is willing to take a good beating for the easy hundred or more thousand of American dollars which the fight will bring him, win or lose. Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the crossword puzzle partly out loud and pop was trying to make his cigar lighter work and I was doing my homework and feeling against it, saying. Aw heck, what good's arithmetic? and ma said, You couldn't even count from one to 10 if it wasn't for arithmetic, and how many times have I told you not to say heck?

Well heck, ma, I mean heck, it's not exactly swearing, I said, and ma said, It's next store to it and it's a vulger imitation of it, and Willyum I wish you'd speak to him.

It's a word you can get along very nicely without, and so can we I assure you, pop said, and I said, Well heck, I mean O, pop, what shall I say? The sound of it is so good, I said.

He mean no bad, ma said, and pop said, If you just want some good sounding words you can get them rite out of the telefone book. Get it for me and I'll find you a few, he said.

And I got him the telefone book and he started to look through it. Gosh, The best way is to look 2 3 names together. How bout's Joe Dirtstein. What can we put with that? Here it is. Schmidt-Schmidt Splendid. Oh, that's a cuss word? he said, and I said, O, gosh.

And pop kept on looking saying, Dirtstein is a good start, or maybe a 234 finish, let's see, Dunkovitz Schmidt, that's a honey.

Say, finally a book of a size boiler ought to have, pop got Dirtstein Schmidt, I said, but Dirtstein Schmidt, I wish I didn't have to do my homework, I said, and ma said, Benny, you get to work at your lessons and never mind any more questionable language.

Well heck, ma, I mean Dashovitz Gollanta, it's all in the telefone book, Dirtstein Schmuck, ma, I said, and ma said, O for land sakes go back to heck.

Sounding like fauss swearing and making me and pop laugh like anything, and ma sent me up to my own room to finish my homework, the last thing I heard being pop still laughing and ma telling him any crazy people laugh to themselves.

Special Classes Complete Course

Stirling, May 22—During the past few months a great deal of interest on the part of the junior members of the various branches of the Canada Women's Institutes of the district, has been shown in a special series of short courses prepared and supervised by the provincial head office of that organization.

Forwarding the value of such instruction to the younger women of the district Miss Ethel Mac-Donnell, secretary of the River Valley Branch organized the class several weeks ago and the services of Mrs. Joseph Wilson were secured as special instructor. Sixteen young ladies took advantage of the project. The course was completed on Saturday May 16th and all those taking part were banquet guests at the home of Mrs. Wilson their teacher. The dining room was artistically decorated for the occasion and the hostess was assisted by Miss Aletha Perry and Mrs. Harper Rollins. During the early evening the guests were addressed by Miss Liggett of the provincial head office who congratulated the group on their splendid work and assisted coaching them in their judging. Those taking part will be given an opportunity to compete with other groups at an achievement day to be held in August. When teams will be selected for competition at the Canadian National exhibition for the Inter-Provincial championship. During the supper hour Mrs. Joseph Wilson was presented with a beautiful silver flower basket by the girls in recognition of her excellent services. The remaining part of the evening was spent in interesting games and contests.

The classes have met each Saturday afternoon in the Agricultural rooms with several of the district branches being represented. Those taking part in these special studies were Misses Lealtha Hoover, Lillian Hoover, Laura Tucker, Adeline Rush, Evelyn Rush, Mary Donohue, Alla Hanna, Florence Hay, Dorothy Utman, Pearl Stapley, Ethel MacDonnell, Mary Tucker and Miss Kingston.

Work Started on New Parish Hall

Excavation began on Wednesday morning for the new Parish Hall to be erected in connection with St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling. The new structure will occupy the land at the west end of the famous old church and when completed will have an entrance and hall on North Street.

The addition of a parish hall to the picturesque old stone church is a project that required a great deal of careful planning from an architectual standpoint. Mr. J. Arnold Bennett, architect of Belleville, has been secured for the work and when completed under his specific supervision will be in keeping with the ancient architectural grandeur of the beautiful church.

For the past number of years, the congregation have been without a hall of their own and special functions had to be held in rented buildings. A spirit of enthusiasm on the part of all members of the church toward this project, will no doubt speed up the activity of the work, a large percentage of which will be done by the men of the church. Every type of business man in the congregation was present during the day, bankers, merchants and clerks and even Rev. A. R. McConnell, rector, and did their share of shovelling in the hard clay as the trucks came and went in the process of drawing away the unnecessary earth.

Tennis Club Held Dance

The Stirling Lawn Tennis Club began their summer activities when they held a dance in the Stirling Community Service Building on Wednesday evening May 13th. It has been the custom in the past to hold an annual dance in connection with this organization, but on the night of this event this year a terrible snow-storm blocked all roads and the proceeds were not as large as was hoped for. With the second attempt on Monday evening last rainy weather was largely responsible for a rather small attendance.

A great deal of energy had been put forth by the various committees to make the evening an enjoyable one. The hall was very artistically decorated with an arrangement of checkerboard designs in all parts of the hall relieved by evergreen bows and cut flowers. The committee in charge of the work was decided in their work by Miss Marian Bailey, convener, and included Miss Ruth Martin, Messrs. Stan Exton, George Duffin, Jimmy Ward and Harold Baker. A very dainty lunch was arranged by a committee including, Miss Marie Leary, and Mrs. Harry Lovibond. Those in charge of the advertising were Miss Marie Demorest, Messrs Bill Jones, George Duffin and Harry Osmond.

A very delightful evening was enjoyed by all who attended as they danced to the splendid rhythm provided by Rud Haynes and his orchestra from Belleville.

CABIN TRAILERS MORE PLENTIFUL

Cabin trailers, handy, completely equipped living quarters sufficient for a small family, and now appearing on the roads and highways through this district in greater numbers are believed to be making their influence felt upon cottages and cabins in the northern part of the county, rented to tourists each season.

Although the number of queries regarding conditions throughout the district by those tourists applying at the local Chamber of Commerce are as numerous this year so far as they have been in past years, curiously enough, one of the questions least asked is in regard to living accommodations. Many of the tourists now carry their own cabins with them on wheels, parking where they wish and moving when the mood dictates. Indications point to a record breaking season this year for tourists, although cold weather experienced here and south of the border has delayed the season, in the opinion of the local Chamber.

Paris, May 21 (AP)—Joseph Paul-Boncour, Acting Foreign Minister, declared tonight Italy's expulsion of a French priest from Ethiopia was "inacceptable" and an authoritative source said France would protest vigorously.

FRANCE REFUSES TO WITHDRAW TROOPS

(By Edward Kennedy, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, May 21 (AP)—France refused today to withdraw her ninety colonial troops from Djredawa, key point on the Italian-occupied Franco-Ethiopian railroad.

Official sources said the 120 officials would continue to guard the Diredawa abode on the French owned railroad, despite a summons from Italy that they withdraw.

Such a withdrawal, these sources believed, would be tantamount to recognition of the Italian regime in Ethiopia.

Woman Trapped in Blazing Kitchen

Mrs. M. B. Vail, Tobermory, Died Before Rescuers Could Reach Her

Tobermory, May 21—(CP)—Trapped in a blazing kitchen, Mrs. M. B. Vail of Tobermory died in the flames here early today.

Three other occupants of the big tourist resort home escaped from the fire, a young school teacher from Lion's head.

Mrs. Vail had risen to go downstairs and light the kitchen fire when what happened there may never be known.

The occupants, her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Dunstan, and the school teacher, Miss Blain, of Lion's Head, were roused by the roaring flames.

They dashed down the front stairs but the fire drove them away from the kitchen.

With nearly all the male population of the village away fishing on the lake the women were forced to fight the fire.

They manned a hose and poured water on the fire in an effort to save the structure but it was too late. Finally it necessary to work on nearby buildings in order to stop the flames of a home from shooting out and starting new fires.

Hard work finally prevented further damage but the Vail house was completely razed.

Encouraging Reports Read at 43rd Annual Meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Held on Thursday

J. E. Shortt, Secretary, Hopeful Year Ahead Will be Better

M. P. DUFF PRESIDES

Banquet Held Preceding The Reading of Various Reports

The 43rd annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. was held in the Association's building on Thursday afternoon with many of the officers in attendance and the general secretary, J. E. Shortt reading a most comprehensive report of the activities during the past year. Mr. M. Duff, President of the Association presided at the banquet and Rev. Dr. R. N. Baker said grace. Community singing was held with Elsa Wotten at the piano and the devotional period in charge of Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, James Bankier delighted with a solo, his accompanists being Cherfield Sendler, Mayor Harry Bill praised the association for the fine work they were doing. The Women's Auxiliary report was read by Mrs. Arbuckle, while Lorne McDougall, Jr., reported on the activities of the Y's Men's Club. Mr. Shortt's report was as follows.

Locally,

The Belleville Association has experienced a year of increasing service, of ever widening fields and of unfolding opportunities. Thanks be the Royalty of our friends and members and the co-operation of the leaders in other valuable and commendable services, we have had the privilege of co-operating with and serving the Community in every helpful agency in our community.

With deep concern for youth in turmoil we have sought to conduct a multiplicity of beneficial, "Christ Centered" activities.

Review of Action by Directors

In May last on request of the Clegg Camp Committee), the General Secretary of the Association was released to serve as Camp Director for that season.

In June the Board decided to initiate a drive for funds and membership for the year.

In August the Board approved the re-surfacing of the Bowling Alleys and the enclosure of the Front Lobby.

In December membership rates were adjusted and the problem of the "unemployed" was dealt with.

In February the Board authorized the House Committee to improve the ventilating system and secure prices on the re-surfacing of floors in the shower and locker rooms.

Activities

Space permits only the briefest outline of our departmental activities. Your own imagination will grasp the abounding detail. Boys' promotion, organization and leadership involved in the following:

In the Boys membership we have Preps—Boys 10 to 11 years of age. Junior School—Boys 12 to 14 years of age.

Employed Boys—Boys 15 to 17 years of age.

Noon Hi-Y School Club—Boys 15 to 21 years of age.

The programme for these groups includes, club meetings, hikes, parties, Bible study, hobby groups, basketball, swimming, gymnasium showers and swimming instruction. The groups meet twice weekly and the Hi-Y Boys have a weekly Bible training in citizenship.

Boys' work with junior members includes the Hi-Y Hockey with 17 teams in three sections. Senior Basketball with 18 teams, Y's Men's Boys Club Camp—Bon-Ulton. Camp operation 6 weeks. Boys' Camp Board, Trail Ranger Groups and Service to Church, School and Community Groups. Our annual Hallowe'en Party is another event in which we serve a mixed group of several hundred. The Y's Men did finely in handling this event. We are indebted to the members of Kiwanis for their interest in the financial support of baseball, hockey and camping.

The C.O.G.I.T. Girls of Belleville later occupied the site and equipment for their camp.

Bowling Alleys—Chairman, Ed. Shapiro.

The alleys enjoyed a fair year.

A Ladies' League of 13 teams won by "Y" Ladies.

A Men's League of 8 teams, won by City Offices.

A Church League of 4 teams, The Baptist Church leading.

Other groups were active during the season.

Receipts were slightly down:

Men and Dormitory

Jos. Inniah, Secretary.

The "Y" is as it should be a Great Community Centre. During the year 99 different organizations or groups used the building for a total of 1,500 times. Each room in the property was loaned to other organizations on the occasion. The building and furniture show the effect of steady "hard" service. The placing of doors on the West wing has made a decided improvement. Boilers and radiators asbestos covered, a few new chairs added, insurance carried. Plans for improving the locker rooms are now in hand.

The Dormitories have re-kindled comparatively high occupancy. 1935-36 ..... 1215 nights used.

There was however an increasing demand toward the end of the year, which indicates a good year for dormitories. Some but for a night, were turned away. In addition we have providing food, shelter and entertainment for a very large number of transient young men who come to us day by day. These men seem to be without means or home and desire for an hour or so any comforts they enjoy.

Membership

N. Thompson, chairman.

Receipts show a decline of some $200.00 when compared with 1934-35. The drop is in Senior membership. This is largely the result of employment conditions. It may indicate that we have not served the gramme. Boys, girls, and women have increased somewhat.

Conducted treasure hunts, hikes and other events which form a part of our regular programme within the membership.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB

The Y's Men's Club of Belleville beg to report that we have 23 members—Active, Life and Honorary. The average attendance during the past year has been 15. The membership, with an International record of 75% attendance at meetings in succession.

Our two months' visit to Mr. Jack Marshall and Harry Foote as active members, has been a real proof of the fact that they have achieved a position worthy of commendation.

In the matter of Camp Work we would draw your attention to the fact that at the beginning of 1935 the club undertook the building of cot boys in a group for the purpose of providing a camp for boys. These boys have been guests at our meetings on several occasions and have met each week for instruction and physical education, being assisted by Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Shortt and the pool. Each boy is sponsored by a Y's Man who is delegated to keep in close contact with him. Attendance at the Sunday School by our brother matches and in general not as a big brother to the boy.

In the matter of financial aid to the Camp we have raised considerable money, equipment and furnishings to the value of approximately $150.00 The individual Y's Men have also raised through subscriptions and membership an approximately $225.00 to the Association.

We have also had the opportunity of assisting in the following:

Sunday Midnight Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor co-star with Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession", from the striking new screen team coming to the Bells Sunday Midnight May 24th for a preview presentation of "Small Town Girl" MGM's production of the popular novel by Ben Ames Williams.

The notable cast includes Lewis Stone, Binnie Barnes, Andy Devine, Elizabeth Patterson, Frank Craven, James Stewart and a score of others. "Small Town Girl," is real swell entertainment!

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLS

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" Sensational Color Marks Debut of New Screen Play

Color films, for years the dream of motion picturers, have finally arrived, and the Hudnut process, as demonstrated by Walter Wanger's all-Technicolor production of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," which comes to the Bells tomorrow (Saturday), and Monday matinee daily, far surpasses all the claims which ardent publicity agents have been making for it.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is in full color, but that bold statement doesn't really cover the facts. Color can be vague, or it can be too prominent, but in this film color has been so superbly handled, so intelligently used, that after the first moment of delighted surprise, the onlooker is not aware that he is seeing a film in color. It is natural, so lifelike, so clear that the illusion of watching an actual scene being enacted before one's eyes is created, and maintained throughout the picture.

The film version of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is a faithful adaptation of John Fox, Jr's classic. Fred MacMurray, Henry Fonda and the luscious Sally Eilers are the top scorers of the well-chosen cast being the hero and the heroine, and one feels all the intensity of the struggle between the two mountain families which are the heritage of the simple mountain folk. Nor is the little four-year-old "Spanky" McFarland deserves special mention. This little fellow is a natural born actor with an extremely important role, and Beulah Bondi, Spring Byington, Tolliver clan, and he delivers a thrilling performance.

The story of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is known to everyone, telling of the deadly feud between Tollivers and Falins in the wild Cumberland Mountain region, and the efforts of an engineer to build a railroad to bring the riches of civilization and modern progress to the people of the mountain clans.

Natural settings and photography have been skilfully blended, and director Henry Hathaway, each member of the cast is given full scope in his part; but the real hero of the production is the actors' camera which makes "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" one of the truly great pictures of all time.

The Bells Latest News Flashes, Where's the Virus, Viper and Infantry," will be exhibited on the same program. On Saturday matinee Grant Withers and Adrian Morris will appear in the opening chapter of the action packed adventure story "The Fighting Marines."

Belleville Rifle Vesper Service

Two splendid feature attractions will be presented at the Bells tonight for the last times in "The Moon's Our Home," co-starring Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda, and "Times Square Playboy," featuring Warren William and lovely June Travis and Gene Lockhart. The last complete show begins at 8.30 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL

Westward Ho"

The creaks of covered wagon wheels the rumble of cattle on the trail, the thunder of galloping horses and the roar of crackling six-guns will greet the patrons of the Capitol when it opens its doors on Saturday. A gripping western story filmed against a background of awe-inspiring grandeur "Westward Ho" will long be remembered by lovers of romance and beauty.

The story of "Westward Ho" deals with hardship and dangers encountered by the early pioneers enroute to California.

John Wayne adds further to his laurels as the leader of the "Singing Riders" in "Westward Ho." Lovely Sheila Manners injects a sparkle and vivaciousness into the story that made all the masculine hearts beat faster.

Wayne and his riders sing three stirring Western songs called "Westward Ho" the theme song of the production. "The Tightwad," "The Girl I Love Long Ago," Sheldon has an outdoor drama been graced with such beautiful music. Wayne surprises his fans by breaking forth in a pleasing baritone.

The photography of "Westward Ho" is outstanding. Scenes involving thousands of cattle, long wagon trains, cloud-infested skies and rugged mountain peaks form the background for the thrilling action. A particularly impressive shot is the one showing the "Singing-Riders" mounted on pure white horses dashing out from the windswept mesas in pursuit of the fleeing cattle.

Another Popular Revival On the Same Bill

"Whispering Smith"

Bringing with it the enchantment of Hawaiian nights, the spirit of the United States Army, the thrill of West Point and the romance of the days of "Whispering Smith," first military musical production of the year, Universal's mammoth spectacle is scheduled to open at the Capitol Theatre by Saturday only.

Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler, the million dollar screen romance lovers and Pat O'Brien head an all star cast which includes a chorus of a score of Hollywood's best actors the entire cadet corps of the United States Military Academy at West Point, a portion of the Pacific fleet, and a detachment of the regular army at Honolulu.

Tigers and Cardinals Show Championship Form and May Meet in World Series Next Fall

Cards Back Up First Place And Detroit Wins Six Straight

INDIANS GOING DOWN,

Wes Ferrell Hurls Seven Hit Ball To Down Browns

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Fresh echoes of the thunderous 1934 World Series have begun to rumble through the major leagues as the Tigers and Cardinals are showing something like their championship form for two years ago.

The Cards have been running along in front for a couple of weeks but it took a day in second place to make them believe it won't be dead earnest and wallop the Giants 4-3 yesterday to regain the lead. Meanwhile the injury-riddled Detroit team started the same sort of comeback it made a year and a half ago, turning back the Yankees 10-9 and moving into third place with their sixth consecutive victory.

The triumphs of these two old enemies were the high spots of the big league program yesterday even though Jimmy Foxx hammered out a home run or the season, Wes Ferrell, Boston right-hander, beat Brooklyn, and Roy Henshaw turned in some notable pitching. Johnny Whitehead, the White Sox Sophomore, and Harry Kelley, the Athletics' freshman, clouted the 14 innings before Kelley cracked and the Pirates scored on a fielder's choice inning rally with a homer of Woody Jensen with two aboard to beat the Phillies 7-4.

Cards Had Narrow Escape

Beaten by the Giants Wednesday, the Cards had another narrow escape as Paul Dean and Al Smith battled on even terms for eight innings. The ninth, however, spelled the end of New York's nine game winning streak. Smith passed Peggy Martin with two out. Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize singled and Virgil Davis doubled to bring in three runs. The Giants got one back on singles by Sam Leslie, Mel Ott and Hank Leiber, but Dean retired Gus Mancuso and pinch hitter Bill Terry to end the game.

The Tigers turned on the heat for the late innings, just as they did last year, and likewise won out in the last inning after tying the count with three runs in the eighth. Singles by Gerald Walker, Charley Gehringer and Goose Goslin, the World Series hero, produced the winning run.

Ferrell Wins Game

Wes Ferrell, knocked out in two innings Wednesday, went right back at the Browns and hurled seven hit ball to win 6-2. Foxx' homer, coming with two aboard in the third, gave him invaluable aid. Lanning from Knoxville, pitched a fine game for the other Boston team and came out ahead of the Reds and Lee Stine, 2-2, when the Dodgers and Bill Urbanski doubled him home in the ninth. Henshaw, the Cub Midget, curved the Dodgers into submission with seven hits, winning 4-0 with the aid of Gabby Hartnett's clutch drive.

Whitehead, who was even more of a sensation last year than Kelly has been this spring, came close to being the day's hard luck victim. He didn't allow an earned run but his mates made five errors behind him. He finally won out 3-2 in the 14th when Kelley gave three straight walks and then a single to Luke Appling.

The Senators found their experiment of shifting Cecil Travis from short to right field a successful one, when the youngster contributed a home run to a 7-4 triumph over Cleveland.

Gene Sarazen Tried To Lose Golf Match But Was Unsuccessful

By SCOTTY RESTON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Mamaroneck, N.H., May 22 (AP) Gene Sarazen set out to lose a golf tournament and so far he has failed.

When he entered the Metropolitan open championship here, he said he did so merely to key his game for the United States open at Baltusrol, June 4-6. But there was one thing he told himself, he must not do; he mustn't win, for the Westchester Country Club team winning two big ones inside a month.

But when he went off the tee in the second round of the Metropolitan tournament today, he was one shot ahead of a fine field. He tied the competitive record for the difficult Quaker Ridge course with a 69.

In his long career, Sarazen probably has never played a more unorthodox round of golf than this. He was in the trees, in the sand in the rough, everywhere except where he should have been. Still his recoveries were so remarkable and his putting so good, that he could not fail.

For the last few months, Gene has been concentrating on hitting the ball with his irons on the lowest possible trajectory and still there is a wide margin between making it settle quickly on the greens. At Baltusrol and in the British open at Hoylake he will want to keep the ball out of the wind so he experimented yesterday, and with little success.

He kept the ball down all right, but he was constantly pushing his shots to the right, or muffing them to the left. There times on the first nine he was in the sand because of this, but every time he either exploded out of it or the pin or rammed in a long putt.

Sports Roundup

New York, May 22 (AP)—While baseball fans were busy on the nights back, our plug-chewing Cardinals visited a carnival.... They had one of those six-for-a-nickel throwing galleries and the fun began.... but not for long.... Paul Dean's first hook had wrecked only one set-up, when the management got wise.... Herman Dean, a guy he ordered, recognizing Dizzy, who would his turn..... "This shit no jernt for pros."

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Now that Jack Williams is no longer "forking them up" for Belleville, maybe local ball fans will get a peep at Abber Joyce and George Ada, those mammoth fence busters of the Kingston Ponies who always were conspicuous by their absence, whenever Williams opposed them on the hilltop. The latest reports from the Limestone City are to the effect, that "Chief" Williams will fine-up with the 1935 championship outfit and will be in a Pony uniform, when the Daley-led aggregation move into town on Monday. We have not observed whether Williams has accepted a players' transfer from the O.B.A.A. but a little thing like that never did worry Skipper Daley, that is until he was confronted with a request to produce Williams' transfer. And if he did not have it, would Joe scowl?

Brand new dog-suits will welcome the two contending clubs on Monday at the Pale Grounds. The Parks Board have had a battery of carpenters at work erecting the new fence for the past few days. They are useless and built with the backs to the front of the boxes, but below the railing. Two large portions will be removed from the fence, in front of the stands, in order to allow ample space to enter the dog-runs from the track. These dog-outs will give the patrons a better view of the players and alternate from the field to bat and back. At last, fans the new dog-outs are a reality and a decided asset to the old ball game.

The long-waited for "sour grapes" are beginning to leak out down around Kingston. The Kingston sport scribes suggest, the reason there is so much silence surrounding the Ponies is the fact they have no 'imports' this year. It is really too bad the Ponies could not match another Bud Clancy, at that. The only reason there are no imports loitering around Kingston this spring, is the fact, that there are no "sugar daddies", parading Princess Street this season. The financial pot-pull cannot stand a "thirteen G" reverse every year, you know. The Limestone City sport vets columnists apparently have become affected with the green-eyed monster, especially when they scoff at the Oshawa line-up of new faces. Personally we've liked to see a few players like Riddle and Miller land in Belleville, but just because they procured work elsewhere is no reason to assume the dog-in-the manger attitude.

Apparently the Oshawa sport scribe will go far meet anything, regardless as to whether it is even logical or not. Recently he had his sport column printed on sombre paper, with black borders, as there was se HOT, Mrs. Campbell's little boy, while motoring with his father day, apparently wandered afar from the family fold to pick up a "scrap". The Oshawa scribe put it what that there was a playboy' strike on down in Kingston, and that the batsters in Ernie Gibeard's battery were deserting the ranks to lown the rain from a sinking ship. Nothing there' Belleville lady, Mr. Gibbard denied say such story, 'I mean the Oshawa sport scribe, with the Gibbards were not in the O.B.A.A. this year and maybe that is why Friend Greer was compelled to such a fictitious tale so as to re here the minds of the Chevies and not to have them. Napanee-consolens ten early in the season," added Ernie, Gibbard ... Yeah, yeah, Georgie, who are you trying to bamboozle?"

All team managers in the local Industrial Softball loop are requesting to be at the Aalmas Club at 7.30 p.m. promptly this evening in order to complete the season as quickly as possible. Buddy Walker is set to be managed up by President Bowler and others.

In going over the list of local sporting activities to usher in the season on Monday, we forgot to mention one of the outstanding events of the day, the opening of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, where a club tournament will open the season's activities.

The light-heavy wrestlers will hold the spotlight at the Armories next Tuesday night, we see. Danny McKinnon, middleweight champion of Canada and who proved a crowd-pleaser two weeks ago, returns in the main bout of the evening, when Jim Wilkins, the Michigan Wildcat. The semi-final will be a meeting sheet of a continuation of a bout held in the Armories in fall, when the Red Devil and Bill Handley, of Toledo, wrestled to a draw. This bout will be two out of three falls, the same as the main affair, in order to give the contestants ample time to display their wares at top speed. Both Handley and the belooeded Red Devil have appeared in a local ring before and always proved to be crowd-pleasers with their speed and agility. The preliminary has not been announced as yet, but a suitable opponent for "Irish" Steve Taylor is being sought.

Providing their shells are ready for service, the Belleville Canoe Club will take to the water on Monday for their initial workout of the season. The local paddling enthusiasts have been busing of late varnishing their shells and getting things in ship-shape order for the coming aquatic season. A larger membership is being sought by the club which will probably boast larger quarters for the Canoe Club in the near future. Applications to the Eastern Ontario Canoe Association this year. An increase in the number of young lads to become canoe-racing minded has been noted in Belleville since the Gananoque Club staged their madcap demonstration here two summers ago.

Scoring eight runs in the last inning, the St. Michael's Academy "schoolboys" defeating the Albert College nine 13 to 12 in a senior interscholastic softball game last evening. The win for the "Irish" secured them of first place with still sustaining a single loss. Incidentally the Schneider-coached team were winner between the O.S.D. and Albert College in the Daly-ites.

Well, today we find the Cardinals back perched on the top rung of the National League, after defeating the Giants yesterday. A regular see-saw race these boys are staging.

The Oshawa Times published a splendid supplement in connection with the opening of the C.O.B.L. season in the Motor City on Monday. The paper is published in the field form and contains plenty of reading matter and is well at a bit o' cuts. Apparently the Oshawa diamond moguls feel they are headed toward dizzy heights as individual players of the entire 1936 Oshawa team have been taken and appear in the Oshawa lineup. Dr. Dobbins, a large contingent of local fans will watch the locals in action in the morning and then take the Kingston at Napanee game in the afternoon.

Thirteen Expected to Be Named For 77th Running

EXPECT LARGE CROWD

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—Barring surprise moves, 13 crack thoroughbreds are expected to be named today for the 77th running of the King's Plate.

Training was finished during mid-week and only light exercise has kept the eligible in trim for tomorrow's race. The winner receives 90-guineas, donated by the King, and the major portion of a $6,000 purse.

BASEBALL GRAND OPENING

Belleville Exhibition Park

Kingston Ponies vs. Belleville

ADMISSION: 35c Tax Included

GRANDSTAND FREE

More than 18,000 persons are expected in Jan Woodbine race track for the 14 mile classic, open only to Ontario-foaled three-year-olds and up that have never won a race other than those of juvenile. Of the 13 horses, only two are more than three years of age. R. S. McLaughlin's Epicurus, a starter in last year's event, is a four-year-old colt by Spinard out of Bally Bay and R. G. Vanderburgh's Murry Fox is a nine-year-old horse.

Past Track Prospect

Prospect point for a lightning fast track and clear, sunny weather. A fast track is sought by most horsemen, but it often causes a track on the slow side would enhance chances.

Chalgo, Mrs. R. K. Webster's hope, would stand a better chance to beat the favorites, H. C. Hatch's Sweepcoach, McLaughlin's Sparman, and R. F. Seagram's Samoan. The gelding by Challenger 2nd-Dip 2nd, showed a liking during his juvenile career for a heavy underfoot. Most of the others, however, have had experience in slow going.

Two of the top line riders in the United States will have mounts in the race, Jockey Jimmy Stanley of Vancouver, contract rider for Seagram, will ride Samoan, while Jockey Danny Brammer, under contract to Hatch, will likely have the mount on Monsweep, running mate for Sweepcoach.

Bobby Watson of Toronto will ride Ladymoth, owned by J. A. Smallman of London. Watson led all riders last year with an exhibition of daring and cunning.

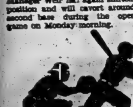
Seniors Await Opening Day With Nearly Home Brew Team

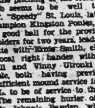
Chief "Jack" Williams Will Likely Oppose "Speedy" St. Louis

Like the lull before the storm, all is tension in the camp of the Belleville seniors today, who are waiting the zero hour, when the umpires will bellow "play ball" and the O.B.A.L. will swing into action at the Belleville Fair Grounds on Monday morning, when those two arch diamond enemies of old, the Belleville seniors and the Kingston Ponies, will cross bats. Presenting the first complete "home brew" team that has represented Belleville in the senior ranks in years Alex Weir, newly appointed manager of the local senior outfit, will head his charges into the fray with the good wishes of the fans.



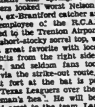
The rise of Manager Weir from the lowest ranks to present heights reads like a Horatio Alger novel. After joining the old Belleville Grand Trunks years ago as mascot, later to become a star pitcher and subsequently reverting to the outfield, where he did yeoman service, Today Manager Weir has again shifted his position and will invert around at second base during the opening game on Monday morning.

As Key Out



Stony Gray is being moved from right to centre field after one successful year as a senior, Cliff Nesbett and Sibner Enfield will battle it out for the left field berth, while doubtlessly Vinny Uhrnski will be used in right field for his hitting prowess. Douglas "Red" McDonald and another player yet to be named will be the alternates used. Doubles "Speedy" St. Louis will be given the pitching assignment for the opening day, St Louis being auxious to down his ex-team mates.

The senior O.B.A.A. champion Kingston Ponies will doubtlessly line up as follows—Pitcher, either Tommy Jamieson or Jack "Chief" Williams; catcher, Jim Arnial; 1b, Joyce; b, Stone; 3b, Bob Elliott; outfield—Scrutton, McQuade, Jerry Arniel, Clarke and also Hewitt Smith. Jack Williams has requested to pitch all games against Belleville, reports state.



Alex Sacks One

With four proven hurlers in the game, the pitching of the local senior club seems to be well taken care of. "Speedy" St. Louis, ace of the champion Kingston Ponies, who hurled good ball for the provincial title-holders for two years, holds the quarterits with Ernie Smith, clouted local right-hander with his fire-ball and Vinny Uhrnski also available, both having previously seen sufficient senior service in the O.B.A.L. to be of service to the locals. The remaining hurler of the staff is Johnny Darden, who is making his debut into senior baseball after two successful seasons in junior company. Darden possesses plenty of speed and a fair breaking curve, that should carry him to heights as a pitcher. All in all the local pitching staff seems to be on a par with that of former years.

"Sticks One"

Coach Roy Fox, who came to Belleville last autumn from Toronto and is assisting manager Weir in the master-minding of the team, was fortunate in the catching department this spring. Just when matters looked worst Jackson "Red" Sipp, ex-Kingston catcher said he was an employee of the R.C.A.F. was moved to the Trenton Airport. Sipp is a short-stocky sorrel top, who will be a great favorite with local fans. By his form from the right side of the plate, and seldom fans too much air, via the strike-out route. Sipp's great fort at the bat is punching out Texas Leaguers over the second baseman's head. He will be a decided asset to the team. Last night Captain "Pinky" Lunnford turned the bat and announced his intentions to catch on as a catcher also. Latchford is a veteran receiver. Earl "Sonny" Green also is expected to join the 1936 edition of the Belleville seniors before the curtain rises on Monday morning.

In The Groove

A few changes will be seen in the infield on Monday. Roy Smith and Art Cole are batting the keystone sack, with the veteran Smith having the edge. Manager Weir is moving in to second, while Chuck Bartlaye, with the brow-arm is back at his old position on third rifling ground balls across to first as per. Ted Johnson, just up from the junior ranks will be given the job of holding down short-stop. Johnson is a splendid fielder, and once he eliminates that certain opening day complex, he will doubtless prove the find of the season. Defensively the Weir-Fox infield seems to be equal-ly as strong as previous years.

RED WINGS HAND BISONS DOSE OF HEAVY HITTING

Lose 8-4 After Winning Fourteen Straight Contests

LEAFS WIN

Leroy Herrmann Blanks Montreal Following Five Hits

(By The Associated Press)

The dizzy Buffalo winning streak, which had most of the International League by the ears, got past the first barrier but it wasn't strong enough to survive when Rochester Red Wings handed the Bisons a dose of their own medicine—hitting. After 14 straight triumphs, the Bisons finally succumbed last night to Rochester's 21-hit assault on three fingers, losing 8-4 despite a couple of late rallies that had the customers believing for a while there would be another last-minute recovery.

The loss didn't do Buffalo any damage in the way of handicaps as concerned for Baltimore Orioles handed Newark a 6-3 setback in the afternoon and the Bears and Bisons remained tied for the lead.

Louis Sheiest Hayah

Meanwhile Montreal Royals went down for the third consecutive time, 3-0 before the flinging of Leroy Herrmann of Toronto and left the fifth place Baltimore Orioles by only one game, Albany had to go 13 innings to even accounts with Syracuse, winning 3-1 on Sinnes' single which scored Bill Lombardi who had crammed the corners.

Ken Adam, who had hurdled five complete games for Buffalo, was the victim of Rochester's assault. He was shelled for 13 hits and went out in the sixth with the Wings leading 7-1. Some expert relief flinging by Lefty Michaels and Tony Kaufmann saved their lead when Buffalo rallied to hit in the latter part of the game.

Cliff Melton outpitched Kemp Wicker in a southpaw duel to give Baltimore its victor although two of the five hits he yielded were homers by Chief Koy and Roy Schalk. Montreal couldn't get any further than seven apiece in their battle. The Leafs, however, had to rally twice, including Les Scarsella's triple, for two runs in the fourth.

GOLF

In an impromptu and friendly golf match between the "Duke" and "Duffers" played a tie at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club on Wednesday afternoon, the score being 13 all. Some 30 players in all enjoyed the day's outing. The Bay of Quinte Club will officially open on Monday.

GEO. E. WATKIN

The official opening of the greens will take place at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The games committee are not drafting any schedule but leaving the afternoon open for the players to get limbered up a little. The regular games will commence early in June. The club house under the supervision of Mrs. Cross of the Ladies' Club has taken on a new appearance having received its annual spring cleaning. New players be on hand Monday and you will be given instructions by some of the older members of the club. We would like some of the members up on Saturday afternoon to give the greens a few cut. The games committee will be called early next week by Bob Dewar the chairman to consider the programme for the season, he expects his committee to turn out 100 percent. Kindly hand in the names of all new players to the president as soon as pcasible so that the executive can consider the applications and pass them on to the games committee. It is with deepest regret we learn of the death of Mrs. W. Walsh, wife of our treasurer. The sympathy of our club is extended to Wally and his family. The grounds committee would ask the members to take care and not walk on newly seeded parts around the greens; it has been impossible to complete the alterations that are necessary. On Wednesday (May 13) at 8 o'clock the executive will be called together for the first meeting of the season

POLICE COURT

Picton—Sixteen drunkenness were dealt with in the today's local police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., all persons charged entering guilty of drunk and being assessed the minimum fine.

Harry Boudreau, who was arrested by the Provincial Police one week ago on a charge of vagrancy and was being held for the Brockville authorities, pleaded guilty to the vagrancy charge and was sentenced to serve seven days, during the time of his arrest. Garry thanked His Worship for his consideration. "I am not a job to go to in Toronto, Sir," added Garry.

"Well, get moving and don't come around town," came back His Worship.

A domestic case, held in camera, concluded the proceedings. The case arose out of an alleged assault of a husband upon his wife. The court room was cleared prior to the appearance of the evidence however.

A number of cases laid under the Public Commercial Vehicles' Act were laid over until June 13th, at the request of the Investigating government officials.

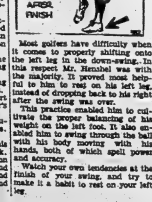
Open Investigation Into Mine Disaster

Moose River, N.S., May 22.—(CP)—Approach to a pump which from the Moose River Gold mine was being used to-day by provincial officials gathered in this desolate village to carry out an investigation into the fatal explosion of three Toronto men, claiming the lives of four.

The investigation before Mr. James F. Chisholm, Deputy Clerk of the Court of Nova Scotia and J. H. Cunningham, Mining Engineer, will commence at 10 a.m. to-day, when witnesses will be called to give evidence with evidence from 15 witnesses.

Chief witnesses to testify in the investigation will be men who had discovered late Sunday afternoon by Provincial Police Constables Hendrigan and Harvey Higgins of Concord, Nova, who worked the mine years ago.

Dr. D. R. Robertson and Alfred Goodfellow, also of Toronto, who were from the mine where their companion, Herman Magill, died of pneumonia, will not be called upon to give evidence.



FARMED HIS CAR, BUT FROM WHERE?

Parking his automobile on a local street and later attending an evening function only to subsequently forget where he had left his motor car, was the tale related in the local police by P. J. Cahill, K.C., Friday morning. "I've got the keys of my car, but I don't know where I remember the street I parker the car on," added Counsel, and the police authorities promised to assist in the search of the vehicle, which was described as a Ford coupe, with beating Bonnor plates number 26 96. Mr. Cahill did not think the car was stolen, but could not determine from whom he had rented upon which he parked his car.

Shortly before noon, however, Mr. Cahill's car was discovered in his own garage at Point Anne. It would seem that Mr. Cahill's brother had observed the vehicle parked and had kept the set of keys to take the vehicle home.

Harry Hensel of Kew Gardens, Long Island, is a very keen baseball player before he took up golf. You'd know this as soon as you saw his swing. Harry played baseball habits and my efforts to eliminate them from his golf swing have resulted in one bit of good which I am passing on to my readers.

Most golfers have difficulty when it comes to properly shifting onto the left leg in the follow-through in this respect Mr. Hensel was with me last summer. It proved most helpful to him to rest on his left leg, instead of dropping back to his right after the swing was over.

This practice enabled him to cultivate the proper balancing of his weight on the left foot. It also enabled him to swing through the ball with his body moving with his hands, both of which spell power and accuracy.

Export cars were busy during the week, taking extra loads for Great Britain and about 400 head for the States during the week, which were shipped on order to Montreal.

A cattle run of 8700 head was cleaned up on Thursday's market as well as some 400 left from last week. Prices in sheep closed steady to 15 cents higher during the trading session at $4.50 to $5.35 for choice lots of 90 to 110 pounds. Closing quotations were based on the light supplies as the British bacon market was weak and United States prices lost 50 to 75% cents exporting from Canada.

Some 400 Western lambs were included in the sheep and lambs receipts this week. Prices on feeder lambs were steady at $10.00 to $10.50 for first grades with culls and medium ranging from $7.00 to $8.00 a cwt. Spring lambs were offered in larger numbers with prices $2.00 lower. Choice spring lambs weighing 60 pounds and upwards sold at $8.00 to $10.00 each with light lambs ranging from $4.00 to $6.00 each. Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 23—Local produce markets were generally steady with the previous day's prices prevailing, Trading was on the quiet side, with little interest in the holiday, restricting volume. Butter held at the advances scored on Wednesday. There were still no new potatoes offering, old potatoes supplying the current needs. Eggs were in plentiful quantity of them on hand. Eggs, cheese and poultry showed little change. Some fine lots of eggs were posted at the Board of Trade at 19 1-2c cases included, 1 box of butter and 696 boxes of cheese.

The cheese market was generally 11 1-2c to 12c last week. A better local feeling was attributed to stronger United States cattle markets, especially in Buffalo. Export cars were busy during the week, taking extra loads for Great Britain and about 400 head for the States during the week which were shipped on order to Montreal.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, May 23 (CP)—Renewal of demand for Canadian wheat imparted strength to wheat futures prices in the grain trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

WALL STREET CLOSE

By Victor Rukeyser
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, May 23 (CP)—A quiet session today found trading in utilities and industrials provided a recovery stimulus for today's stock market.

Among the principal advances were those in American Telephone, American Water Works, North American, Consolidated Gas, Western Telephone, U.S. Steel, Chrysler, International Harvester, J. I. Case, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, Phillips Petroleum, Phillips Morris, National Lead and Eastman Kodak.

The late tone was firm, transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, May 23 (CP)—The mining share market was featured in two waves of buying today with issues showing gains of from one cent to as much as five cents. Volume was the greatest since the middle of last week of recent sessions and the closing price range was not far under the top. Buffalo-Ankerite was sold heavily in the closing minutes and the price broke down from a top of 7.85 to close around 7.60 after it showed a net gain of 26 cents.

Hard Rock failed to hold a gain, but Goldale consolidated gained 1½. Teck Hughes was up 36. O'Brien closed about 2¢ off.

Chibougamau advanced 30 cents. Paymaster, Lebel, Bagamac and McWatters were all heavy traders and the advance in Paymaster, Kirkmar, Sturgeon, Sherbrooke, Reno and Lake Cadillac was also fractional. Red Lake Gold Shore touched 1.24.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS CLOSE

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—The industrial share market ground out a going heavy again today but it finished with a fair list of issues on a skimpy amount of business. Metals, Nickel and Consolidated Smelters showed the former advancing about 3-4 while the oils and liquors were firm. Gold was stronger and Ford A and C.P.R. held about fractional gains. Telephone eased a minor fraction. Utilities, their rails and industrials were narrow down and the steels, foods and implements were generally lower. Gold Dredging was firm, showing a drop of about 3 points from its recent high. Shawinigan also lost its appeal for the trader. Curtailment in the textiles is revealed in the fast moving golds. Sellers of such stocks as Howard Smith, Dominion Steel and Coal, Hydro-Electric, and the equipment issues have had to assert themselves in the posting of their holdings. The continent stands out boldly.

Industrial Stocks Quiet

Toronto, May 23—The demand is sufficient to about hold the better grade common and preferred issues in other stocks in which there is little investment concern, a well defined trend was not in evidence. Consequently, the key to the immediate direction of the market is held by the investment-type stocks. Should these attract an investment demand the market would respond to the well-defined resistance levels which lie immediately ahead. Should the trend of the market may change much sooner than is generally anticipated. Buyers are not yet signs that this "break-through" is imminent. It may be several weeks before broad buying action is advisable. In the meantime, the discerning investor may be able to seize opportunities with the knowledge of the public is being directed elsewhere.

The broad advance in the mining market has resulted in several millionaires being made through their holdings and placing their clients' accounts in a liquid and safe condition to stand any sudden reversal of trend.

Investors would do well to bear in mind that it is a time to realize on their high-grade securities in order to speculate in the penny issues.

It is during periods such as the present that the high-grade salesman reaps his harvest. The public has faith and funds to invest in high-grade securities and in the penny stocks that they have every little realization of losses. Pictures painted by the high-pressure salesmanship of "get rich quick" artists are forgotten. Every "out and dog" is a prospective Lake Shore. Those who have been forcefully to do investigating before buying speculative mining stocks will avoid considerable disappointment.

Newsads Power

The Noranda Power Company Limited, a subsidiary of Noranda Mines Limited, has been granted by the Minister of Public Works at Ottawa, a full description of the power and the plans of which house, dam and appurtenant works are situated or to be built in the Province River at Rapid No. 7. Just how much horse power will be available is not known as yet and no particulars have been given out in respect to the financing of the scheme.

Hoarding

News that the Bank of England had requested London bullion dealers to restrict their buyings in gold coins was looked upon as merely an official attempt on the part of the British to check public hoarding of gold pieces bought at fancy premiums and to relieve Empire countries of the embarrassment of being in the London bullion dealers gold coin hoarded by citizens of those countries. There has been quite a traffic in gold coin of all varieties, even American gold eagles, London serving as a hub of the trade. In Continental countries remaining on the gold standard it is possible to get gold bars at a cost of some $14,000 which places gold coin hoarding within reach only of the wealthy. For several years in Paris gold coin has been cut into bars or pieces and sold to small hoarders at fancy premiums.

The Missing Man

CHAPTER I.

A MYSTERIOUS JOURNEY.

It is the middle of May, 1939. Like a living creature the sentient earth is pulsing with the rush of vitality so long withheld by the reluctant season. The buds are ready to burst, the grass is unabashed, while white-limbed birches and brown-skinned maples are losing their distinctive Aryan and Semitic types under the green robes they is wearing for all. Contradictory elements are abroad this morning in the weather; at all events, here in Crovedale, New Hampshire. There is a stiff northwest wind, a low-reaching fog with the sun struggling to look through it, and a sky that looks like rain. If the sun comes out it will not be directly, and it is nearly time for the seven o'clock train whistle. After that a half hour, and then Mr. Hamilton must go, if he go at all this morning.

Meanwhile, his wife is trying to convince him that he would better wait until tomorrow, it looks so much like rain. A handsome couple, not yet middle-aged, they stand at the window of the dining-room looking out, rather than at each other. A packed valise rests on a chair, and the breakfast-table is left to the children, a boy and a girl. Mr. Hamilton carries a light overcoat on his arm, his hat and gloves in his hand, and yet his wife declares to see that he is ready to go, but talks idly about the weather. He answers in the same way, though it is evident to both that understand their words there is deeper meaning, which neither wishes to make apparent.

"Mind you, when it looks so much like rain!" she asks negligently, untying the ribbon which confines her morning dress, and picking out the lower before looking up. But he see that her hands are fluttering, and that there is a nervous gleam in her eyes, which she lifts for a moment to his face. "Like rain, Constance! Why, who ever knew it to rain, with the wind in the northwest?"

"That is the way it comes lately. It has been remarked, Vane, by a great many people, and if you should get wet you would get cold, and with your weak lungs—"

"Pshaw! Constance! Lungs are as strong as a horse, and so am I."

"But your mother died with consumption."

"Very true. But it isn't going to rain, mark my words; the sun will be out in less than an hour, and, if it should rain, a little sugar or salt, to dissolve with the first drops. Oh, you may depend I shall be all right."

"But you are not as well as usual. You are more nervous. You talk in your sleep, and your appetite has failed lately."

"The more reason why I need a change. The fact is, my business is too much for me; the debilitating spring weather. I suspect I am a little nervous, and, since Mr. Henderson and your uncle have chosen to leave the mill business so much to me, that, with my duties at the bank, has worn me down. They will have to take the reins in my absence, and Toxy will do very well at the bank for the two weeks I am away."

"Always two weeks," murmured his wife.

"Yes; and I am sure it seems like a year."

"Then why do you go."

"Because I must. You would not understand. It is best that I do not explain at present. There goes the whistle. What shall I bring you, Clare?" going to his little girl's side and stooping to kiss her.

A small face, framed in golden hair, with big, dark eyes looking out from fluffy bangs, was raised to his as she sprang to her feet.

"Oh, must you go? I thought mamma would make you stay."

"I must, Clare. Now, what shall I bring you?"

"Um, a ring, papa—a gold ring."

All right, I won't forget. And you, Perley?"

"A writing-book, if you please. Mine is all written through."

"Very well," kissing the boy as he had his sister.

"And what shall I bring you, Constance?" he asked, returning to his wife's side.

"Just yourself, and let it be soon," looking eagerly and earnestly into his face.

"I shall be back soon, never fear. Constance, you are more beautiful than you ever were, and I love you better," he whispered. "I wish I were at home again. I will be soon." And kissing her hastily he took his valise, after putting on his hat, gloves, and overcoat, and left the house.

His wife stood by the window watching him until he was out of sight, when a thrill of superstitious fear shot through her.

She had watched him out of sight.

Away back in her childhood a maiden relative had so strongly impressed her mind with the malevolent influences of such an act that she could never, despite her common sense, get rid of the belief.

It will be well before signalizing her as foolish for the reader to examine his own mind to see if it be free of some yet superstition. Perhaps it relates to Friday as being an unlucky day, or to the number thirteen, or to breaking a looking-glass, or to finding an opal. I think you will find one, though you laugh at all others, and may be at that. Still, you will say to yourself that another day than Friday will do as well, or that an even number, say twelve or fourteen, is at least as good as thirteen, or that opals are not as handsome as other jewels, or if you by any mischance break a mirror your mind runs shudderingly over the state of health pertaining to the various members of your family to wonder which is most likely to die before the year is out.

Be this as it may, Constance, though a clear-headed, sensible woman, was appalled to think she had watched her husband out of sight. But she was cheered the next moment by recollecting her tower. She sped quickly upstairs, then along the corridor and to another flight. This brought her to the foot of the tower, which was built at one side of the house, and rose fifteen feet above it. There were windows in it on all sides, and it gave a commanding view of the country, romantic and unusual, for the house itself was built on high ground. Scattered about were books, a flute, a guitar, and there was also a small telescope there.

Not noticing these objects, however, Constance went straight to the window overlooking the street which led to the station. Far down there was a spot where her husband would cross the street (unless he had crossed it already) to go to the train. Pronling the crossing was a hotel known as the Essex House. She might see him, she thought, at this point. If so, she would just take one look to counteract the malignant effect of having watched him out of sight. Her lips curled at her own folly, but her determination never wavered, even while she whispered, "What fools we women are!"

With expectant eyes and half-parted lips she eagerly watched the turn in the street which he might, or might not, have passed. Ah! there he was, just as he left her, walking briskly. With a sigh of relief Constance was about to turn away when a woman stepped out from the hotel door, and coming quickly down the steps, approached her husband. What could she want of him, she a stranger? or was it some one she knew down the street she was coming to greet? No, it was Mr. Hamilton. Constance was breathless now with interest and curiosity.

The woman was evidently a stranger in Crovedale, young and pretty, if the distance did not belie undue enchantment, and she greeted her husband as if she knew him well—better than her husband knew her, for he stepped back a pace or two as though surprised or not well pleased. There appeared to be but few words between them, and then the woman with slower step returned to the hotel, and Mr. Hamilton turned the corner, and was out of sight.

The fulfilment of her design did not, however, seem to have given Mrs. Hamilton unmingled satisfaction, for she sank into a seat beside the telescope while her thoughts flew backward to the beginning of her married life, slowly reviewing the years until now—years of mystery, ever one of them, its enmity impressed her at this moment as never before.

Eight years ago when a girl of twenty-two she married Vane Hamilton. How well she recollected the first time she met him! She, the niece of the wealthy mill-owner, Mr. Carter, who had but lately come to Crovedale; he soon to have a interest in the same business, though he did not know it then.

She remembered that the young people of the village had planned to climb to the top of the Peaks, the ostensible object being blueberries, but the real one a frolic; and the new-comers were invited. Mr. Hamilton was, undoubtedly, the handsomest man of the party, while Constance Carter was undeniably the prettiest girl. Being both strangers and unacquainted with village matters, they naturally drifted apart from the others, and in the course of the day came to know much more of each other than the rest.

Constance learned that he came from Central New York, that he was an only son, and his mother a widow.

"I suspect there was never a more devoted couple than mother and I," he said, laughing, as he stripped the heads of the thistles with his clinching-staff, and she replied:

"I don't wonder at your devotion. I saw your mother at church last Sunday. She was in the Ellis pew, was she not?"

"Yes," he said, his face lighting up with pleasure, apparent, at her proof of his mother.

THE TARZAN TWINS

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service).

When Inlano leaped at Doc, it was the hand of the cannibal chief who slayed his murderous club. "They must not die," he warned, "until death robs Tarzan of the power of vengeance." And Inlano knew that he cannot live through the Vale of Death!"

But Tarzan's traversal of the Dreadful Valley of Death had begun most peacefully. True, the floor of the valley was strewn with skeletons, but in all the sun-patched expanse there seemed no living thing to challenge or disturb the ape-man's swift progress.

But suddenly, from the opposite fringe of jungle, emerged a towering, necked elephant, tossing his long trunk in wild abandon and trumpeting furiously. That monstrous shape was possessed of a weird unearthly quality, like the wrathful cry of some demon thing of another world!

"Tarzan was unroubled. Of all the beasts of dominion, the loved best these wonderous gentle creatures. He called out now in tones by which he had learned to soothe the wildest elephants. But the giant thing flung high its trunk and roared a mighty challenge.

RESIGNATION OF RT. HON. J. H. THOMAS ACCEPTED

CABINET SHAKE-UP LIKELY TO FOLLOW THOMAS' ACTION

Press Notices Very Guarded as Tribunal Report Not Yet Submitted

MACDONALD CHOICE?

Sir Samuel Hoare May Return as Secretary For Dominions

London, May 23 (C.P. Cable) — A cabinet shake-up, with Stanley Baldwin's return to office of Sir Samuel Hoare was predicted in political circles today in the wake of the resignation of J. H. Thomas.

Prime Minister Baldwin was spending the week-end at Chequers, his country residence. It was anticipated he would not only be called upon to fill Thomas' place as the Colonial office but would have to find a successor to the First Lord of the Admiralty, Viscount Monsell, who has been reported as anxious to be relieved of Whitsuntide, which falls next week.

Sir Samuel Hoare, now out behind Baldwin in seniority, is the "far-seeking prophet" in view of the ominous state of European affairs, might return to the cabinet as Secretary of the Dominions, with Malcolm MacDonald switching back to his old post as the Colonial Secretary.

Elsewhere it was felt Sir Samuel might go to the Admiralty, with Viscount Monsell to Works. First Commissioner of Works, becoming Secretary for the Colonies.

Comment is guarded

The press commented guardedly today on Thomas' resignation owing to the fact that the tribunal, which investigated the alleged budget leak has not yet submitted its report. Nearly all the morning newspapers published editorials in graphic accounts of Thomas' "remarkable career, which carried him from engine-driver to cabinet minister when he took a place in the cabinet and the friendship of the King.

The Times said the resignation must have been anticipated by all who followed the proceedings of the tribunal.

"This does not imply that the tribunal's findings have been prejudiced, still less that Mr. Thomas makes any admission that blame rests on him," the Times added. "He resigns in honorable obedience to broader constitutional considerations.

"As the basis of political authority has always been the standard of conduct of the ministers has proved, and should be, extremely severe, and it is now impossible for a statesman to hold office after Mr. Thomas' words, his name and private affairs have been bandied about.

Hard to Replace

"Mr. Thomas has been shown to have indulged in transactions which by private standards may be quite innocuous, but in a cabinet minister were bound to rank as grave indiscretions."

The News-Chronicle, Liberal said Thomas was right in resigning. "There was nothing else to be done."

"The result of the inquiry is irrelevant," the Daily Herald declared. "The immediate issue is that Mr. Thomas' colleagues have been misled about, which is never expedient in the case of a cabinet minister and the representative of the National Labor Party in the government will be hard to replace."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said the government takes a heavy blow in the departure of Thomas. Stanley Baldwin loses the ever-present and left the government, Mr. Thomas has been the only ex-Socialist leader, who could rally the Labor vote." The Express continued: "National Labor has ceased to be."

The Daily Mail said there would be general endorsement of Mr. Baldwin's letter supressing regret at Thomas' resignation.

Fort Henry Opened for Inspection for Week

Kingston, Ont., May 23—(CP)—The Department of National Defence has agreed to open Fort Henry at Barriefield near here, to the general public for one week, Aug. 2 to 8, to mark the 100th anniversary of the completion of the main part of the fort. Announcement to this effect was made last night at a meeting of the Kingston Historical Society. It will be the first time the fort has been opened to the public since the war.

Sudden application of the brakes, to avoid striking a little girl who suddenly darted out into the path of an oncoming motor car, is the cause given for a serious accident that saw a new Ford sedan completely wrecked and a passenger, Freddy Mallett of Toronto, injured to the extent of a broken wrist when the car in which he was riding left the highway and plunged down a two three miles east of Millbrook yesterday afternoon.

Mr. MacLean was proceeding easterly in the car being driven by John Little, colored Toronto chauffeur. As the vehicle broke over the brow of a hill east of Millbrook little May Topping, aged seven years suddenly darted out from behind a parked truck and ran across the highway in the path of the fast oncoming motor car. Mr. Little immediately applied the brakes and swerved the car to the left, missing the little lass, but in doing so he also skidded some 300 feet before it turned over, completely wrecking the new car.

Mr. MacLean sustained a broken wrist and other bruises and was also taken to the Trenton General Hospital where Dr. G. H. Noble reported the injuries. FARM IMPLEMENT TARIFF STANDS

Dunning Offers Inquiry Any Time Manufacturers Desire

Ottawa, May 23 (CP)—Farm implement manufacturers may have the tariff board inquiry any time they want the car, Hon. Charles Dunning intimated in the recent cut in their tariff protection.

Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance, gave this assurance in the House of Commons last night as he replied to Conservative charges the implement industry had been singled out for unfair treatment.

The discussion took place on the item implement parts, on which protective duty was reduced from 15½ per cent to 10 per cent. It was unfair to make such a drastic cut without giving the industry a chance to state its case before the tariff board.

Regardless of the tariff board the government had to take respon-sibility, Mr. Dunning told Donald Mc-Dunning. In the case of farm implements the government had been made so the government had to use the tariff board. Moreover, the manufacturers would apply for an inquiry so that by another session of parliament they would have been made and a report submitted.

Hon. Thomas Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources, who grew up with Mr. Dunning in Portage la Prairie, Man., and Mr. Kalin of Montreal. Kalin was alleged by the officer to be driving at a rate of speed anywhere from 75 to 90 miles per hour during the hectic race between Shannonville and Marysville. 57 Year Grandmother is B.A. Education Delayed 38 Years

Mrs. Mabel Slocum With 4,000 Others Graduated From New York Univ.

STUDIES SOCIOLOGY

New York, May 23 (CP)— Mrs. Mabel Slocum Fisher, a 57 year old grandmother who interrupted her college education 38 years ago because of family responsibilities, will receive her Bachelor of Arts degree when the 4,000-odd-her graduates of New York University get their diplomas at the special exercises on June 10.

The modern undergraduates, Mrs. Fisher said, are more mature in character and more original and flexible in their thinking, and have long since got away from the Victorian attitudes.

"In the old days," she said, "if a woman got a few crumbs of bread and a bole to sleep in, she was stuck for the rest of her life. But these young people—why, they're perfectly frank to say they don't want as soon quit when they found they had made a mistake. They're making marriages more of a 50-50 proposition, and that's more as it should be."

LOONS FASTER THAN QUICK FISH

Fisherman Who Knows Birds Gives Them Speed Record

Can a loon outswim a fish?

Is it true he is really a deep water diver?

"Yes" emphatically replies Mr. Jack Bedson, one of the district's best known and oldest commercial fishermen.

"They can swim faster than a fish, because they can both paddle with their feet and steer and use their wings to swim under water after it. And as for deep water diving, it has not been unusual for any of us to untangle them out of a gill net that's been down over 100 feet in lake water. They go there chasing fish and get their necks caught in the nets", declares Mr. Bedson.

Fishermen, it was pointed out, dislike the birds because they are dyed-in-the wool net thieves and when caught in a net they invariably bite it and twist it so badly it's the work of an hour or so to untwist it.

FAIR AND WARM ON VICTORIA DAY

Local Prognostication is For Fair Weather Over Weekend

Weather: fair and warm for the holiday.

That was the prognostication today of the city's long range weather forecaster, who, by close observation of his books, charts and a peep at the sky, as well as his careful testing of the winds and scanning of the skies from an upstairs window.

"You can swim, sail, play tennis or bask in the balmy sunshine, even go camping or canoeing without the umbrella", said Monday at any rate. I foresee fair and clear weather from now until Monday and was the further reassuring statement.

STRESS THEME OF EMPIRE DAY

Classes in St. Michael's Academy Observe Occasion

At St. Michael's Academy, in the various classrooms, the significance of Empire Day was observed in special addresses by the teachers during the day. Programs were carried out in the individual rooms.

ALBERT STUDENTS PRESENT FLAG

Principal Howard Accepts Timely Gift on Behalf of College

An impressive memorial service was held on the lawn this morning in front of Albert College when the faculty and students formed a double semi-circle around their flag-pole. The occasion appropriately served two purposes. It paid loyal tribute to Her Gracious Majesty, the late Queen Victoria, whose life is being memorialized throughout the British Empire and the world at this time. And it afforded a fitting opportunity for the student's council to present the generous gift of a new Union Jack to the College.

Principal Howard, on behalf of Albert College, thanked the boys for their timely gift, which is a symbol of their patriotism to the Empire and their sincere appreciation of what the College has contributed to their lives.

As the group stood at attention on the green carpet around the silver flagpole rising from the centre of a bed of tulips, one of the students pulled the flag and anchored it at the top. Here it will be flown in the future every school day directly in front of the main building overlooking the blue waters of the Bay of Quinte. The National Anthem was then sung in unison, while the flag began to fly in the breeze for the first time. There was a touch of distinctive solemnity pervading the service for in the fresh early morning atmosphere under the blueness of the clear sky, the very song of the birds seemed to be lending their sweet notes in spiritutive ecstacy. Those, who witnessed the ceremony were both inspired and invigorated. Joy was manifesting in the open-air worship, not their reverence to the Empire's gracious Queen alone, not their genuine loyalty to the Empire's great sovereign alone, but reverence to Almighty God Himself, under the vast vault of His own Temple.

Hatchings of Pheasant Eggs Sought by Over 40 Persons

Underbrush And Wooded Groves of District to be Filled With Birds

WORK FOR HENS

Underbrush and wooded groves of this immediate district this fall will contain more pheasants per square acre than ever before as a result of the effort of the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries to supply district residents with free hatchings of pheasant eggs, it was intimated by deputy game inspector H. McCabe of this city, as the result of the response to the offer for free eggs.

During the past few weeks more than two score applications have been received by Mr. McCabe for the free settings, all of which have been passed on to the department and filled. Twelve eggs are given each applicant.

"All they have to do is fill out the registration they can get from me, then I send it on to the department, and later on they'll receive their eggs carefully packed in cartons. Any old setting hen can be used, but look out and care for them until they're old enough to look after themselves", stated Mr. McCabe.

In spite of the severe winter last year, pheasants through this section have evidently have wintered well, it was indicated, by a large number of their numbers. Hardy birds, they are well able to shift for themselves, and due to their natural ability to elude their enemies, the guns and the hunter's sight, they have a very keen chance to increase in numbers yearly once they have become established.

They are the farmer's best friend it is pointed out by naturalists, owing to their voracious appetite for grasshoppers, slugs and other destructive insects.

Following their release around the farms after they have been hatched and reared they remain there until they are old enough to care for themselves, the birds thus liberated will be guarded and protected by the district game staff as declared by Inspector McCabe. It will be unlawful to keep the birds in captivity, it was further pointed out.

Prince Edward as well as Hastings and adjoining counties are well in the field and wild and beautiful birds it was stated.

Citizens Prepare to Spend Day In True Victorian Style

Many Sporting Events Carded Officially Open Season

Sails on the Bay of Quinte; the crack of the bat against horsehide at the Agricultural Grounds, as the first baseball game of the season gets underway; the soft sweep of a long drive to the outfield; the rumble on the bowling greens; the click of a reel on a bowed steel rod and the zing of a paddle on the side of a canoe on some northern lake; the rattle of hoofs on the bridle paths; tinders on some out of the way beach; the hum of the motor on local concrete highways; the crackle of undertrash in some wooded grove and the smell of sizzling bacon or hot dogs over a camp fire, all these will be seen and heard in Belleville and hereabouts in this city over the week-end.

For, given good weather, thousands of the people of this district are expected to spend in true Victorian style the holiday week-end, which is also looked and a populace takes to the sports and fresh air.

Seldom has such variety of attractions been offered as will be observed in this city on Monday. Hundreds will throng the ball park to see the first league game of the season. POLICE BLOTTER

Three local young men found themselves in the dock before the police law yesterday afternoon, while enjoying the light summer breeze that blew through the trees. There is no law against lolling in the sun, but when coupled with the drinking two gallon jugs of native wine, well that usually culminates in drastic results, and yesterday afternoon was no exception.

Constables Isard and Evans were patrolling about the city, when they observed a certain amount of undue commotion coming from a shanty in Sandy Hook. Further investigations revealed a number of young men lolling in the beautiful sunlight and consuming native wine. One gallon jug had been consumed, while the latter half of a second was absent from the jug, when the officers arrived. Three young men were later escorted to the police station, where they were held in custody until such time as they were released. Charges of breaches of the C.S.A. are pending, police stated today.

Mr. J. Breadmore, Toronto, consulted to Inspector Frank Gardner O.D.P., that the lights on cottage at Balaam Lake had been entered last night and the electric lighting system stolen. Provincial Police in the vicinity of Balaam Lake were notified of the robbery and are investigating. "There has been absolutely no branch of this practice of stealing property from summer cottages and an example will be made of the first person apprehended robbing these homes, warned Inspector Gardner today.

"COLLAR" DAY AT SECOND LEVEE

Holders of Certain Orders to Wear Insignia of Office

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
LONDON, May 23.—Holders of certain orders will wear their "collars" when the King holds the second levee of his reign at St. James's Palace next Tuesday.

This is because the Levee coincides with the birthday of Queen Mary, and notice announcing it bear the footnote: "N.B.—May 26 is a collar day".

Collar Days—There were 33 last year—are days on which, if decorations are worn, the Riband or the Garter, The Thistle, The Bath, St. Michael, and St. George, The Royal Victorian Order, and certain other orders is replaced by the Collar of the Order.

It is laid down in court regulations, that collars must not be worn after sunset, except by the King's special command, or that they be rarely seen at public dinners or receptions. The collars—with the badge of the Order suspended from it—is worn under the shoulder —O Canada; Recitation — Louise Hodge; Song—Land of Maple Leaf and Blue — Kathleen Mouck.

The presentation and investiture was made by Mrs. Stuart Lester who was introduced by Miss Reading. Mrs. Lester was then president of the Red Cross branch and was accompanied by Miss Hurley, secretary, who addressed the children on Red Cross work. The program continued with an instrumental duet by John Hall and Ivan Church and concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

THE KING AS MUSICIAN

King Edward can be named with such kings as David of old (it is unique enough that one of his Majesty's names is David, the same by which he is known in the royal family). But he is numbered with King David who played the harp, because he is musical. Not so long ago when Princess Marie "Mallorca", a slow march for bagpipes, which has been played by pipers and pipe bands everywhere. The King is a proficient piper and sometimes plays for his friends.

The music is named after a fashionable resort on the Mediterranean, where the King used to spend some of his holidays in winter.

This week it was played in the United States by permission of the King with flutes, violins and oboes pinch-hitting for pipers in the orchestra of Mario Warnow, Russian-born Brooklyn orchestra leader.

The thought is a pleasing one that he who is now King had time as a Prince to learn to play the bagpipes and to take so keen an interest in music as to be able to compose. It gives one a delightful close-up of the King, active in so many spheres, yet with that instinct for companionship and repose which music indicates.

FROM THE ORKNEYS

Queen's University has gone to Western Canada and then back to the Orkneys to secure her new principal. This university's penchant for the Scot is to be expected.

Dr. R. C. Wallace who has spent his mature days in Calgary and is now at the efficient age of 55 years, has already helped Canadian education. He is a geologist, one of those men who are keen to the land development in scientific research. As a geologist he is particularly welcome in Canada. He has been at the University of Manitoba and the University of Alberta.

The Orkneys, typical of the land of the principal, have produced a virile race from that mixture of Viking and Scots forbears.

The Scot abroad has alw ys been welcome in the world wherever he goes. That is especially true with Dr. Wallace.

HER CHANCES

If there is keen competition for boy friends in Belleville, there may be a reason in the blue book because the census shows that this old centre of settlement has the record of other older settlements, a preponderation of the female population. The Sault Ste Marie Star editor has discovered the fact that Toronto, Belleville, St. Thomas, Peterboro, Galt and Guelph are listed "as rather poor ground" for the reason that girls and women are considerably in the majority. If a poor ground for the girls, it is conversely good ground for the boys. Why? Belleville the record is 93.57 men to 100 girls and women.

For every 100 girls and women in the following places, the number of men per 100 boys averages: Toronto 92.03; Belleville 93.57; St. Thomas 92.63; Peterboro 92.39; Galt 91.89; Guelph 91.73.

Ottawa is called "terrible" for girls as the male population numbers only 87.43 per cent that of the women and girls. Kingston and London, old settlements are naturally more fully populated with women and girls than boys and men, the former city's average being 90.86 and the latter's 90.65.

Sudbury and the newer cities, border places such as Windsor and some others give the girl the best chance. Naturally Sudbury leads off with a vast predominance of men, 125.83 men to every 100 women. Timmins is second with 123.87, Fort Arthur third 114.06, East Windsor fourth 118.63, Fort William fifth 112.46, North Bay sixth 108.74, Sault Ste. Marie 106.53, Windsor 104.74, Welland 104.46, Sarnia 102.87.

When one goes down into the next class, the "not so good" in chances for girls, one lands in the older class of cities, with somewhat stable population as with the men averaging: Stratford 95.83; St. Catharines 95.56; Woodstock 94.76; Chatham 94.56; Owen Sound 94.32; Brantford 94.23.

There is a sociological reason for these facts. Mining, border and pioneering centres attract and demand men, and social and family life is not so stabilized as it is in the older settlements where the social relationships are cultivated more and more.

Is it a fact that youths and men go away from older centres and smaller centres to bring down the male proportion? Yet Toronto, a large city, which is supposed to drain from the smaller urban centres and from the rural hillsides and valleys is little better off than Belleville on the score of a girl's chances to wed. Is it that industry in the older centres is such that fewer men are required and so the adventurous have to seek work elsewhere, especially in a place like Sudbury when there is a great demand for men. In the older centres too no doubt a larger percentage of labor is woman and girl labor.

But even if men are in the minority in the older places, it is a proof that the cities where the women predominate is a settled centre where there is a good family life and women have no small share in the control of affairs. These older places are also more in harmony with the general census of the world which gives a predominance of female population as compared with that of males.

SUMMER

Now heavens burn with blueness more intense,
And trees wear denser draperies of green;
Now stillness drowns Spring's prattling innocence,
And pools are mirrors; in them, beauty is seen

Is Summer, peering dazzled by the light
Of twinkling gleams from all her jewels where
Her thoughts are swallows, glancing in their flight
Miraculously, through mirrored blues of air.

OOM PAUL KRUGER, last president of the Transvaal Republic, is one of the oddest figures in history. Shrewd and pious almost to fanaticism his chief characteristic was his hatred for England and the "Outlander" as the red-coated English soldiers were called. Oom Paul refused to give justice to the "outlanders" as the English residents of the rich gold reef country were called, and defied England. The abortive Jamison raid followed and finally war with Great Britain. Oom Paul's kingdom was overthrown after Lord Roberts and Kitchener got on the job of sweeping up the veldt and the aged patriarch left his capital, Pretoria, and fled to Switzerland. Legend alleges that Oom Paul took with him a large treasure in gold but this has never been substantiated and disbelieved by many familiar with the situation at the time. Those interested in the question of the fabled Kruger's getaway with gold or without will find interesting a book dealing with the life and times of Kruger written by Napier Devitt, Police Magistrate of Johannesburg. The book has just been published in London. Dr. "Jim", Oom Paul Kruger, Kitchener, "Bobs" and other leading figures of the South African war by the time the second Great Divide will have a great time comparing notes and wondering what there was to kick up such a tremendous excitement that cost the lives of thousands of lives. Kaiser Wilhelm of Hohenzollern can not join the group because he has been detained at Doorn for the duration, or he might exchange with Oom Paul his congratulatory cablegram to President Oom Paul Kruger when the latter seemed to be triumphing over the British, and then gave him the cold shoulder when he arrived in Europe as a fugitive. Now and then these great shadows of the past flit across the screen of life and revive our interest in things which seemed tremendous importance in our day, but now seem small potatoes and few to the hill.

THE TOWNSEND PLAN TO PAY TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS A MONTH each to all citizens of California and other states which adopt the principle is having hard sledding as the result of the government probe into the finances and methods of the Townsend organization. Dr. E. E. Townsend was the founder and he promises to pay two hundred dollars per month to all good citizens over sixty who must retire from work and spend the money each month, every dollar, within the home state. The organization claims millions of members each of whom pays a monthly fee besides subscribing to the newspaper published by Townsend. Probe of the organization revealed that Dr. Townsend found it an exceeding good, thing bringing him more money monthly than he ever dreamed of. Then accounting was of a very loose order and the whole organization erected on a foundation of phantasy. Dr. Townsend summoned to give evidence before a Congressional Committee at Washington, soon lost his nerve and walked out stating that he would not give any more evidence except under arrest. He will probably be arrested and become a martyr mourned by millions of dupes. One Sinclair made a sensational campaign for the governorship of California on a platform of giving fifty dollars a month bonus to citizens, and that was thought so fantastic that he was defeated. Then Dr. Townsend came along and went Sinclair several times better by offering two hundred dollars per month each to Pa and Ma on condition they stopped working and started spending.

REPAIRS REVEAL SCARS OF FIRE

Number One Fire Hall Set Ablaze Thirty Two Years Ago

Scars of a fire which ravaged the building thirty-two years ago, burning one fire engine, destroying the hair off the back of one fire horse tethered in its stall in the basement of the hall, and causing considerable other equipment, are now being revealed in the Fire Hall as workmen complete the tearing down of portions of the old walls of the building in preparation for a complete remodeling.

Firemen who were clearly remembered by the present Fire Chief, Wm. Lynch, re-

"It's a wonder we saved anything at all that day" reminisced the Chief today.

"The fire happened so quickly, that abandoned most of the contents of the building, that evening, were unaware of the extent of the whole interior had become almost one mass of flames.

"Two little boys happened along with matches. They happened to see the hay and straw in the rear barn and applied a match to it. Immediately the whole was under fire on account of the summer heat burst into flames. They escaped through the hall just as the explosion, and the first thing all residents knew they were rushing out through the hall to the front door.

"First thought was for the horse, and though they had a lot of trouble with him they finally got him out. Every hair on his back was burned off, however, and it never did grow in again. Although the firemen tried to salvage some of the other equipment, it was a case too great and they had to give up. The big Merriweather engine, pride of the department, was a total loss."

Following the removal of most of the brickwork on the face of the hall, new patented roll shutters will be installed. The joists will be further braced with steel to carry the floors and the interior of the hall will be completely remodelled. The present stalls will be moved from their present location to the rear of the hall to make room for two fire trucks.

As theatre-goers, we all instinctively crave a happy ending to the plays we see. And that is why playwrights, managers, actors and the public seek "happy endings" as the problem.

Cannot a play be commercially profitable without the happy ending? Is not the part of the drama demonstrated when the plot is deliberately and artificially twisted around simply to please the sentiment? Why, even, do people go to the theatre?

First and foremost, it is because they wish to be entertained, to get away from reality and lose themselves. The theatre is one of the most convenient methods of escape. The second motive is curiosity. We like to delve into the affairs of others, see how their lives compare with our own, watch the interplay of human emotions and observe the effects of clashing wills.

Thirdly, we are all lovers at heart, and "all mankind loves a lover." Most people have a problem of love. Fourthly, deep down, we are all children, identifying ourselves with every hero and heroine we see on the stage.

For this reason, however, dramatists all the others. The theatre, let me repeat, is a convenient avenues of escape from daily

OIL-SOAKED BODY FOUND CHARRED

Arms And Legs Broken Suggest Foul Play

Chesterfield, N.H., May 23—(AP) —The charred body of a woman, 50, an unidentified woman, apparently the wife of Sheriff Lyman J. Bennett, was found Friday on lonely Mt. Wantastiquet.

A .22 calibre pistol found a few feet from the body, one block ended by smoke, and possibly her teeth, were the only identifying clues.

Robertson said, were the only clues to the woman's identity. She appeared to be between 30 and 40 years old.

Officials and police authorities agreed the woman's death "could not possibly have been suicide".

Forest fire fighters discovered the body with arms and legs broken in a wild section almost six miles from this village.

Bennett said a forest fire which started Wednesday apparently was ignited by the woman's flaming body.

Six buildings were razed and three others badly damaged.

At the height of the blaze 14 buildings were flaming in this little town of 1,000 persons about 150 miles south of Halifax.

NEW NAME FOR GOODRICH COMPANY—AND NEW APPOINTMENTS

F. G. Morley Vice-President and General Manager

Also Announces New Tire Sales and Merchandising Managers

A statement from F. G. Morley, Goodrich Vice-President and General Manager, announces that the official name of the Company is now changed from Canadian Goodrich Company Ltd. to The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada Ltd.

The most important reasons for this change are: First—To more closely associate the name of the Canadian Company with that of the parent international organization — The B. F. Goodrich Company. Second — The inclusion of "Rubber" in the name associates it with the products manufactured by the Company. Third—As the Company is commonly called "Goodrich" the old name was confusing for directory listings—being under "C" as Canadian Goodrich. It will now be listed under "G".

Appoints New Tire Sales And Merchandising Managers

Mr. Morley stated that as a result of the expansion and increasing diversification of activities in the Tire Sales Division of the Company, it has been necessary to increase the management personnel in this Division.

R. J. Devereux has been appointed Sales Manager, Tire Division, in charge of all tire sales activities and tire sales personnel. Mr. Devereux has spent twenty-two years with Goodrich, both in Canada and the United States, and returns to the Canadian Company with a long and outstanding successful record of sales and managerial experience.

In order to permit Mr. Devereux to spend a large proportion of his time in field sales activities in new positions, Merchandising Manager, Tire Division, has been created which position I. G. Needles has been appointed. Because of his long and successful experience with the Company both in United States, and during the past eleven years in Canada, Mr. Needles is well qualified for this position.

reality! We don't, you see, try to escape from something we like. We try always to escape from, on the one hand, cold facts of life because we do not like them.

Then why do we see a play that ends unhappily? Why see a drama that ends in a hopeless, despairing or despondent key. Does not such a play defeat our very object?

That, anyway, is the reason why the idea of playgoers prefer the happy ending. That is why the plays with happy endings continue to be the most profitable.

Plays with unhappy endings are gaining in vogue but gradually they never will supplant the other kind. Why? Because, in the realm of art, under such circumstances we feel, it to be artificial, and our pleasure reaction to the play is therefore disagreeable.

European audiences do not seem to want the happy ending as much as we Americans do. Furthermore, the drama showed, has always been much more of a psychological agency than it has been in America. Art, scientific demands truth rather than fiction.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Dial Hint

Mothers should bear in mind that, so far as a child is concerned, what he wants to eat isn't necessarily good for him; and care should be taken not to overindulge any special food. No matter how enchanting it is itself, in the child's daily diet. Children often have a strong desire to eat certain things. It is well to satisfy such longings to a degree, but guard against overdoing it.

Letters Written by Mr. Geo. M. James Conveying Impressions of His Travels Across The Continent to The Land of The Golden Sun

LOS ANGELES, THE CITY OF ANGELS

In my last article we introduced you briefly to the greatest woman now living, and promised to give our readers more next we wrote. Some before "audition by shirts", but is all such I reply that I am not going to fully agree with every detail of my diagnosis and hence I spot forth with great daring and bold assurance.

These suggest to Christian work, whether leaders, editors of religious press, deacons, other officials or ordinary lay members, that they are leading the people ready for the Kingdom of God, should do as thousands are doing from all parts of the world—come to Angelus Temple and attend the services daily and hourly in Aimee Temple. Then let the results, and the verdict every time will be almost identical with the Golden Rule. Many have come here for the first time through curiosity but in most cases they remain to pray and be baptized. The Foursquare Gospel Temple if you are determined to avoid conviction and conversion, is the worst place

Many of the objective methods adopted for years by Sister Aimee Semple McPherson (and originated by the Spirit of the Lord Himself) would be considered emotional, sensational, radical or out of orthodox good sense by those, who have become almost unconscious, spiritually dead to the Gospel. One would rather expect such people to be insulted just as magnificently and correctly as any Doctor of Divinity, but with professional detachment I do not see how there are so much modern theology done so disastrously to-day. As a teacher of two score years, I know that psychology is the only key of real education; then are the imagination and the emotions, which in the long run are by far the most important in Christian character building. An old man is writing these lines with the utmost sincerity and good-will, but as usual he will not receive a cheerful greeting from those who need reformation by one means or another in Belleville in five years even commended him for what he has written, and that dear brother officiates in a church that is not to be named, but his daily smile and kind greetings are a benediction upon the city.

The Founder and Pastor of Angelus Temple, and her workers, are different than any others we have ever known, and only past articles cover a period of years will show that we have made methods of Christian evangelism our own private property. A comparison will show what we mean.

When on our honeymoon long ago, Mrs. James and I heard Talmadge lecture at Carnegie Hall, Brooklyn, his subject was loyalty, especially to the Czar of Russia, humorously, and gave descriptions of many historical scenes in India and elsewhere. We read his published sermons regularly for years and now the conviction is aggravated to the highest degree only as so many do to-day, and that he made no direct effort so convert sinners.

While a student at Toronto University, I had the opportunity of hearing the great Moody, who appealed very simply to the unsaved, the congregation and the students. Moody told stories with great effect from the Bible, and from recent daily life, but he never once smiled, and invariably his audience as well as himself was visibly in tears. You will never shed a tear in Angelus Temple, except for great joy as old things pass away and all become new. Our Pastor is always smiling and at any moment interjects an unexpected remark that convulses her audience with laughter, for example, last night our Sister was singing beautifully a song of her composition, which she was singing on her way to the Temple mission fields in Japan last year, and, after the first verse and chorus, she paused to her audience of five thousand, "I wouldn't hurt you to say Amen out there." Amid much amusement a mighty chorus of Amens rolled in the dome-shaped ceiling one hundred and twenty-five feet above their heads. Then here is a sample of the stories she tells, better even than the great, mighty Moody of Chicago fame:

To understand this story you must know that Roberta Semple, now a beautiful young woman of twenty-one years, is our Sister's Brother born as previously explained and that she, as well as her stalwart halfbrother, Rolf Kennedy, are both Irish and completely so. Their mother in her great work, involving a thousand details daily. When Roberta was a mere child she was once asked: "Where were you born, and what is your nationality?" She at once promptly with much insistence and candor: "I am Scotch and Irish on my father's side, Canadian on my mother's side and I was born in Ingersoll, Ont., but I am an American now I am a good American citizen." This story illustrated a point perfectly and was received with applause from the audience. We may find space for further illustrations later on.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST WOMAN

With this introduction we shall now give some reasons for saying that Sister Aimee Semple McPherson is the greatest woman living to-day.

1. Only a great soul can struggle for well nigh a lifetime against insuperable difficulties and obstacles to bring to full fruition a glorious vision of God to all and the Gospel of the Kingdom to every creature. The greater the obstacles overcome, the greater the heroine. Our Sister now knows well that success is the result of struggle, struggle, struggle, and struggle against hindrance. Faith is the corner stone of her spiritual structure. Her motto is: "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day and forever." This ideal is often clashed against by the faith words, "Semper Idem."

2. COURAGE AND PERSEVERANCE. Our Sister for years traveled from place to place, preaching the Gospel, and then she went to her own down with her own beautiful hands. When her motor car became dead, she would not despair, but would get out and push it to a garage. Others could scarcely believe all this when you see such a queenly woman on the Angelus Temple platform, but the Lord properly prepares His servants for His great mission. Perhaps there are few outstanding workers in the Lord's vineyard to-day simply because they are too proud or stubborn to submit to the necessary discipline of the years. Like every true pilgrimage, our Sister was pleading with the Lord to give her a Temple in Los Angeles. Faith is mountain moving, impossible answered prayer things. Our Sister has the courage and fortitude of David, and the meekness and humility of Moses.

3. BEAUTY OF SOUL AND BODY. A visitor to Angelus Temple is immediately impressed with the dignity, grace, cheerfulness and physical beauty and perfection of the Sister. Personally, she is the most perfect proportioned, taller than the average, around forty, perhaps a little more, fair skin unblemished, wavy, flashing dark blue eyes, a nose the least bit too long for a side view but otherwise perfect, a long white, form revealing gown which touches the floor, wide sleeves so that the arm is uplifted with every graceful, impressive gesture, a black mortarboard, gold fringed around the neck and displaying on each side a golden cross and circle, emblems of her ministerial office, a silver satin cross on her breast, and white shoes when the toe occasionally is visible. All in all here is nature's queen among women, and beyond doubt the most beautiful in all southern California. We are bringing home two pictures of her, and our friends may judge for themselves.

Although the Lord honors his own superb gifts, yet after all the visitor to Angelus Temple soon discovers that this perfect outward form is only an introduction to the still more beautiful inward soul. Her smiles, wit, wisdom and perpetual revelation of eternal truths soon discloses a very beautiful soul, refined the gold by much tribulation, prayer and service. The devil discovered many years ago that our Sister was dedicated to be a formidable enemy to his kingdom and he did his worst. His tried to discourage her by every means in his power, but now more deadly than calumny. He knew so well that if you can destroy the good name, the purity and sincerity of a beautiful woman, there is nothing more to be feared. This beautiful, innocent woman has come through much as every woman without a blemish, and thousands are now laid contribute to and pray for her work. The writer would greatly rejoice if every woman who reads these lines would write a letter to Sister Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, California, U.S.A., and say that they have read this and the former articles and that they are greatly interested in the splendid work. If you do not write us that you will never regret it.

4. METHODS. As already hinted, the methods adopted at Angelus Temple are different from those in any other part of the world. (a) We were greatly impressed by the Sunday afternoon at the Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Canterbury Cathedral, York Cathedral and a hundred others, but chiefly because they were all as cold and lifeless as the tomb, which they chiefly commemorate. We attended services in many of them, and even the ushers treated visitors as if they were bored to death or were acting in a trance. Not so at Angelus Temple where the hundred hurt is soon melted by love and smiles. We saw workers putting arms of love around strangers and repentant sinners. Last Sunday night of all we saw our Sister kiss a young Mexican girl one Thursday night as she entered the baptistry to be baptized by emersion. A little later we saw her kiss sweetly and divinely a young Japanese girl, who had just entered the baptismal waters in her wheeled-chair. Such sights, and they are countless, remove every doubt from the most obdurate unbeliever and skeptic.

At Angelus Temple they often shout "Amen" and "Hallelujah" and they also beside five several volunteers at a time while singing to express their joy at the sentiment of the song but most remarkable and significant is the common practice of raising the right hand or both hands while singing a song to show that they have accepted all that the gospel song has to offer. Then as the great congregation of over five thousand sang "LOVE LIFTED ME" at once, would keep a right hand uplifted, others would keep both hands up, and others would clap their hands in rhythm with the music. This is one of the many characteristic features of Angelus Temple and it permits expression to pent-up emotions, as necessary in human development as breathing but so rare in orthodox church services. Our Sister is thoroughly acquainted with psychology and human nature. She knows that the ministry of song standing, or Elsie's greatest attribute is her extensive use of visual appeal. In other words she appeals powerfully to the eye in all her work. No lay teacher ever ignored this principle. Bad enough to walk up the aisles symbolic of the redemptive life, but to walk leading to green pastures, symbolized by green carpets on the platform grows, partaking in the feast.

The members of Angelus Temple are known as adherents of the four-square gospel, represented on many banners and on the carpets of the floor throughout the building by a square with the figure 4 inside of it. This great represents Jesus Christ in the eye as

(a) Our Saviour,
(b) The baptizer of the Holy Spirit,
(c) The healer of our bodies,
(d) His second coming.

The square inside are also expressed by many banners throughout the Temple in four strips of colors:

(a) Purple, a royal color indicating the coming of a king.
(b) Blue, the symbol of healing.
(c) Yellow, the holy spirit, derived from the tongues of fire at Pentecost.
(d) Red, the saving blood of Christ.

Our Sister has developed full chest sings genius to illustrate her sermons. We can only give details of one of them. "The Bridge between Earth and Heaven", or "Spanning the Gulf". The first scene showed Heaven to the left with God the Father John in the right of it. At first there was a great intimacy between Heaven and Earth. Then came disobedience and the Father's face was hidden and intimacy and fellowship transformed into a blasting hell. Then the problem of a bridge between earth and heaven over this abyss of sin arose. The first bridge shown was that of the Jewish dispensation and Sister but only went half over and those who tried to cross by it fell into the flames. Then God put forth a bridge from Bethlehem Birth, the various scenes of which were the fulfilment of prophecies, the birth of Christ, His death and resurrection and other details. This bridge was perfect and started right from earth and reached from Earth to Heaven over the grave gulf. All these details and others were represented and put together as the sermon proceeded. The effect which visual illustrations produce on the mind directly and not only the intellect but also the imagination and the emotions. At every service there is something different and inspiring in this respect. We believe this visual method is not only powerfully effective but that it is original also. Perhaps some one else obtained the suggestion from the screen which the man also for the words of congregational singing.

On each side of the Temple auditorium, there are eight full size stain glass windows, costing in the neighborhood of one thousand dollars each donated in every instance. These windows represent scenes in the life of Christ and serve a great purpose in the Temple meetings. Our Sister pointed out before that most modern churches neglect this visual appeal entirely to their great detriment. Every church and Sunday school should have plenty of such stain glass windows, and many religious pictures now so easily obtained.

On the platform, back and right Bible students here, who are preparing for the ministry or the mission field, wear symbolic clothing: white dress, caded cap, and blue or red cape over the right shoulder, the significance of which has already been explained.

Hence we conclude that our Sister understands and uses the visual medium to a better advantage and with more astounding results than we have ever known before.

In a few days we shall continue this general theme because we have a great deal of material already available in our notes.

As an innovation we are sending this article by air mail on May 15th from Los Angeles, the City of Angels, where the past thirteen years our Sister has been busily engaged winning converts. This looks as if she has placed a good many angels in Los Angeles.

Best wishes to all.

Ex-Mayor Panter and Wife Will Mark Golden Wedding

Mr. Panter Optimistic of Future of Native City.

MRS. PANTER ARTIST

The fiftieth milestone of a happy married life (and that has been rich and full for both will be reached on Tuesday, May 28th, when Mr. and Mrs. Panter, two of Belleville's best known native residents, when ex-Mayor and Mrs. W. J. Panter, of Victoria Street, observe in quiet fashion that significant event.

Belleville and district may have reason to be glad on hearing today's Bulletin broadcast from Queen's University, May fifty years ago, but to Mr. W. H. Panter and Miss Frances Northcote, standing in the Confederation Association Building (at Railway-Station Street) home of the Belleville Intelligencer, that evening, the holy marriage vows then mor-ning, it was perhaps the most important day of their lives. The Rev. H. J. Mitchell of the Church of England, officiated. Mr. Panter, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Lillie Northcote was the Misses Northcott, sisters of the bride.

Day is Recalled

Clearly, as if it had been only yesterday, events of the day still remain in the memory of Mr. and Mrs. Panter today. There was the reception held in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Northcote, prominent reaching centre in the section, Thurlow, May fifty years ago. There was also the noise of the 34th, of the Queen's Own Rifles, served that day in no uncertain manner with plenty of gunfire and camouflaging smoke. The officers and men had been used to get up at five in the morning, but that night, for one night, it was recalled by Mr. Panter.

Then there was the honeymoon spent in the west, the newly married couple returned to Belleville and Mr. Panter resumed his duties as Registrar of Deeds for Hastings for one year. The comfortable brick home now occupied by them on Octavia Street was then constructed and it has been the scene of their permanent residence.

Cheerful Life Philosophy

Few have been given that observation of Christian life and faith on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Panter. Both are still take a more than ordinary interest in the affairs of the city and district which surround them. To Mr. Panter, a very advancing years have given only encouragement to the future for Belleville and the city in which he was born and lives. To Mrs. Panter the passing hours have brought only the calm that indulges her artistic pursuits. An artist in oils, water and crayon pencoal, she is possessed of profession-al ability and originality in the form of beautiful and striking paintings done by her hand on the walls of their comfortable residence.

Native of Belleville

Both Mr. and Mrs. Panter are Belleville-born and have resided here since, a son of the late John Panter, who settled in Belleville after his arrival from Cornwall, England, ex-Mayor Panter was born on Bridge Street, west of Coleman Street. After attending Public School No. 2, now the Graham property on the southwest corner of Octavia and Catherine Streets, he assisted his father in the hotel and grocery business in a store on Front Street, directly opposite the store later purchased on the east side where ex-Mayor Panter for many years carried on a large retail trade.

School Days of Old

"Yes, I remember school days," declared the ex-mayor, chuckling reminiscently. "One thing we did learn, among other things, was how to look after ourselves. Wal. Vermilyea was headmaster of the school then, and he had his job cut out for him, too."

"It would be about 1856 that we moved from the first store over the town wall, to the store that was at the same place until 1930, when it closed up for good," continued Mr. Panter, recalling further. "It was a good location and we did our share of business. Then I went to a sch. "I'd never go into the grocery business again. I know how things are now; there's too much red tape and too much time and effort on, and to run a grocery store there is also the matter of being open all the time. It's a good job for the world."

Mr. Panter married in this city after he had established himself in the business, taking as his bride Miss Susan Colling. To this union were born the present ex-Mayor Panter, deceased; Ada Panter, deceased; Mrs. Lorne Orser, also of Belleville.

John Panter died at the age of 33 at the end of a happy and successful life.

The daughter of John Northcott, well known and highly respected, Mrs. W. H. Panter, was also born in Belleville on what is now known as Herchimer Avenue. Their marriage was blessed with four children. Miss Ada at present a teacher at the Ontario School for the Deaf; Mrs. Orser, Belleville; Mrs. Grant S. Pauler, assistant electrical engineer of the Mexican Light and Power Company, Mexico, and Frank Panter of this city.

Record of Civic Service.

An enviable record of service to his native city has been left by ex-Mayor Panter, which would include seventeen years as alderman in the city council and one year as mayor in 1915. He was chairman of the board as well as the new shades of grey. Town let of the finance committee for the most of his term. He was also a member of the Public Utilities Commission and the Belleville Water Commission. He was also a member of the Belleville Hydro-Electric System for a number of years.

Mr. Panter is optimistic of the future of Belleville and district and is confident that the city will go ahead in the years to come. He has always been a booster for the city and has never failed to do his part in any movement that would be for the betterment of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Panter have been prominent in the social life of the city for many years and have been active in the affairs of the Bridge Street Methodist Church. Mr. Panter is a member of the Masonic Order and has been a member of the Belleville Lodge for many years.

Mr. Panter has been a member of the Belleville Rotary Club since its inception and has been active in the affairs of the club.

Mrs. Panter is a member of the Women's Canadian Club and has been active in the affairs of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Panter have been active in the affairs of the Bridge Street Methodist Church. Mr. Panter is a member of the official board and Mrs. Panter is a member of the Women's Missionary Society

PARKING BY-LAW NOW IN EFFECT

Police Will Enforce New Regulations Passed by Council

Belleville's newly instituted parking by-law affecting the main thoroughfares in the city went into force today when the regulations passed by the city council were placed into the hands of the city police department by J. W. Holmes, city clerk. Chief Ellis has issued a circular in the hands of his subordinates, the new rules and regulations with instructions to enforce the new by-law.

The by-law is numbered No. 1260 and is referred to as the by-law to regulate traffic in the City of Belleville. The newly instituted traffic parking by-law was approved by the Highway Department of the Ontario Municipal Board and is now in force in full force and virtue.

The conventional method of marking off spaces will be employed by the local police department. Chief Kidd announced this morning. Only lines of motor vehicles parked on Front street, Bridge street and Dundas will be by the constables on their beats each hour as they proceed through the business section. Upon their return an hour later the officers will be able to ascertain the length of time each vehicle has been parked.

"For the present we have no new parking by-law this morning with orders from the City Clerk to enforce the same," added Chief Kidd today.

Is Over-Speculation Rife in the Junior Golds?

A boom in the "junior" gold mining issues is under way. Trading in the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange is at record proportions on a day. On the Montreal Curb Market trading in gold shares has approached the seven million share mark on several occasions. At first glance this would seem sufficient to call for extreme caution. In our opinion, however, the conditions are not the same. In a number of the most active issues has been the result of splendid ore developments which justifies enthusiasm on the part of the speculating public. In the present situation as such that where enthusiasm has not been provoked by high is certain issues, corrective reactions which are a probability need not affect the general list.

In our experience there is often a tendency for speculative investors should watch carefully as a danger signal and so as to obtain a clear and accurate picture of the degree attained in a mining boom. That is the point at which to begin to absorb new issues". A close check-up on this factor reveals that the situation is not acute. The market is not saturated and although the supply of mining shares, in general, is hungry public, is growing the demand is still larger than the supply.

That the present "junior" mining market has not reached a vulnerable position may be seen by a comparison of the situation that exists today and that which existed early in 1934.

The boom of three years ago was the result of many factors and speculations and the hope of substantially higher prices for gold, together with important cuts on the volume of actual new and old districts. At the present time, however, Exchange restrictions to curb manipulation and excessive promotion profits were not in force as they are to-day.

Today our governments appear to be working hand in hand to increase the gold industry than two or three years ago. Not only has a fair gold mining industry to an extent which has never before existed, been a factor in the mining market in future.

When one recalls the hectic days of 1932 and 1933 when the mining market one comes to the conclusion that the "junior" mining issues now being enjoyed by the "junior" mining industry may easily create a more stable and permanent market than which is at present underway.

Sharpley Production

According to a statement, reports Shawkey Gold Mines in the first 18 days of this month showed production of 27,000 ounces. It is stated that the mill was closed down three days during the month for cleaning. The mill started operation late in February with daily capacity of 136 tons.

First annual report presented by Sherritt Gordon Mines Limited for March 6, 1934, to Feb. 29, 1936. Shawkey started preliminary work in 1931 on property in Sherritt district of Quebec in November, 1934, and after completing surface work and carried on development work on five levels. In August last year a contract for a 125-ton mill was signed and on February 20 this year the mill started operations. Ore being brick, valued at $9.50. During its first month's run $151,944 was spent on mine development and equipment, with administration and general charges of $11,000.

V. M. Ryan, mine manager, in his report to directors, says that the 16' footzie' period in which work proceeded underground, a total of 1,000 feet of drifting has been completed of which 1,994 ft. was in ore, and 702 ft. in prospecting work. There also was a total of 1,218 ft. of crosscutting, of ft. of shaft sinking, and 642 ft. in raising completed. As a result of the above operations, a total of 63,836 tons of ore were put in sight, of average grade of $11.89 per ton, sampled across widths of 41 inches.

Gossip in Deal

Although no information has been given out, it is understood that negotiations are in progress that will mean the reopening of the Parmeer Kirkland gold mine in Dunbar, Timmins is being held May 24th at which meeting is being held May 26th, at which a formal announcement in stocks has not yet been solicited.

Stocks in the industrial section are more or less dormant. There is nothing on the horizon to warrant much activity in the list during the industrial securities. The business pictures continues satisfactory.

MONSTER PARADE TO OPEN SEASON

Mayor Hill, Chas. Cameron, M.P., and Newton Thompson to Perform

King Baseball will reign supreme in Belleville on Monday morning when the O.B.A.-L. will be officially ushered in at the Belleville Fair Grounds as the Belleville senators cross bats with the Kingston Frontenacs, 1935 Senior O.B.A.A. champions. All of the frills and thrills that mark an opening day in baseball will be tacked onto the ceremonies, when notables will face the grandstand crowd as pitchers and batters.

His Worship Mayor Hill has been asked to pitch the first ball, while Chas. A. Cameron M.P., will be the official batsman during the opening day ceremonies. Newton Thompson, veteran secretary of the O.B.A.-L., has been asked to perform the catching duties during this ceremony. Directly following the pitching of the first ball, the National Hay will be hoisted, along with Belleville senior O.B.A.-L. pennants and two senior O.B.A.A. flags, captured in 1935 and 1936. As the flags are hoisted atop the flag pole, the Belleville Municipal Band will play national anthem to be followed by the cry "Play Ball" and then the ball games will be on again.

At 2.30 a.m. a monster baseball parade will be formed at the upper bridge. Headed by the Municipal Band the parade will march down Front Street, over the lower bridge and along West Bridge to the Fair Grounds in time for the opening ceremonies at 3.00 a.m. Fifteen private automobiles are asked to join the procession, in which the two candidates for the city council, the Parks Board, President Clapp, the Service Clubs along with other baseball officials will assist in making the opening of the O.B.L. or 1936 one long to be remembered in Belleville.

Although President Swanzie, of the O.B.L., has not officially made his announcement as to the umpires of the day, it is expected that Pat Corrigan of Kingston and Harold "Twigs" Woodley of Belleville, will be the officials to handle the opening game at the Fair Grounds on Monday. The starting batteries will be Hall or Tate for Belleville—St. Louis pitching and Klopp catching; and for Kingston—Jack "Chief" Williams or Tammy Thompson pitching with the Veteran Jimmie Arnieli catching. The theme song of the day is "Take me out to the ball game".

BROCKVILLE WINS OVER WATERTOWN

Lefty Karkanakas Whiffs Sixteen and Hits Homer in Win

Watertown gets another chance at Brockville Pirates in the Canadian-American Baseball League schedule today but if Brockville pitcher burly Joe Karkanakas again is in good form the Watertown boys have their work cut out for them.

Karkanakas apparently has their number. Yesterday the former Hamilton Tiger footballer held Watertown to four hits. Pirates won 13-4 while Ottawa and Oswego played an 8-8 tie and Ogdensburg shutout Perth 6-0.

Brockville's errors accounted for the four runs Watertown scored in the Pirates' first home stand. Karkanakas' left hand delivery brought sixteen strikeouts and he backed up his pitching with a homer that drove in two runs. Batting honors went to Donahue who got a homer, three doubles and a single in five trips to the plate.

Perth's last game up against a tough pitching proposition when they met Ogdensburg Colts in the United States city. Oscar Robert allowed Perth only four hits while his mates reached Orval Foster for eight to keep Ogdensburg at the top of the league standing.

Darkness called a halt to the Oswego-Ottawa match at the end of eight innings with Oswego pinch-ed home four runs to tie the score. Four bases on balls off Carr and Forster, Ottawa pitchers, paved the way for the eighth inning rally.

Oswego moves to Ottawa and Ogdensburg comes to Perth for this afternoon's fixtures while Brockville's fans get their second glimpse of their entry in action when they move south for Sunday games.

Rivalry Between Detroit and Cleveland Building Up to Fued of Major Proportions

Tigers Gain on Field By Taking Indians 13-10

CARDS MOVE UP

Win Over Pirates While Phillies Wallop Giants

Among the numerous baseball feuds that are kept alive from year to year by the natural rivalry between neighboring cities, that between Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians seems to be building up to one of major proportions.

So far this season the American Leagues haven't followed the example of the older circuit and begun tossing punches but there was plenty of warmth displayed yesterday when the world champions hammered the Indians down 13 to 10 to gain another step on the field. A brief display of peevishness by the fans and players enlivened the game in the seventh when Al Simmons and Rudy Walker started a scrap and Simmons was safe at home when Catcher Billy Sullivan dropped the ball.

Manager Steve O'Neill and the other Indians gathered to protest Umpire Crushy's decision and the fans, evidently prepared for action, heaved fruit and papers on the field but the ruckus soon subsided.

The makings of another feud might be seen in the indignities heaped upon Wild Bill Giahi by the Phillies. The National League relief pitcher marched into the Polo Grounds, sent the converted infielder, Buddy Walker, to the bench with four-ball and slammed out a 15 to 0 victory.

Giants Drop Down.

The defeat dropped the Giants a game and one half behind the league leading Cardinals, who celebrated a one-day stand in Pittsburgh by buying the Pirates 11 to 4. The Phils failed to gain as Brooklyn rallied to the eleventh inning 4-3 decision from Boston Bees. The only other game saw Chicago White Sox defeat the Browns 8 to 3 behind the immobile-ball pitching of the veteran Ted Lyons.

The other clubs in both circuits were idle, following the end of an inter-sectional series, and as a result Detroit Tigers will play host to the game on the Yankees and Red Sox, American League pace setters.

The Tigers let their opponents get the jump and trailed 5-2 after Earl Averill accounted for a three run circuit-clout in the third. They led the Indians by the score, however, and had blasted five pitchers with a 20-hit attack, including Averill's high-soaring ninth-inning circuit swat. Elden Auker, Detroit's starting pitcher had a three hit, five run form but won his fifth so well at bat he was too tired to finish.

Cards Approach Record.

The Cards approached a National League record, hitting five doubles in the same inning, but came short of the mark—and scoring six runs in that frame to present Dizzy Dean with his eighth victory of the year of the season. The Phils had an even bigger inning to open the rout of the Giants. They scored four runs in the first on Fred Fitzsimmons, making his first start in a month, loaded the bases and then tossed a home run ball to Pinky Whitney without retiring a man. Walter Alston's hit over-came with a homer off Dick Coffman and Rookie Ernest Sulik also hit for the circuit.

Johnny Cooney's three run big gun in Brooklyn's victory. His double in the eighth started the Dodger comeback and he singled Jimmy Bucher home with the winning run in the eleventh. In addition to his own steady hurling against the Phillies, Zeno got great support from Mule Haas, who smacked four singles in five times up.

Yesterday's Stars

Elden Auker, Tigers—Connected with three hits and drove in four runs in 5 1-3 innings to help defeat Indians.

Mule Haas, White Sox—Led eleven hit attack on St. Louis hurlers with four singles in five times at bat.

Panky Whitney, Phillies—Hit a home run with bases loaded and two singles to drive in five runs as the Phils blanked the Giants 15-0.

Byron Nelson of N.J. Tourney Dark Horse

Mamaroneck, N.Y., May 23 (AP) Golf experts today looked over the Metropolitan Open championship field for a possible dark horse in the United States Open at Baltusrol on June 4-6, and found one, a fair-haired, 24-year-old former railroad clerk, Byron Nelson of Ridgewood, N.J.

He has been paired in the meet with the defending champion, Henry Picard, and he has matched Picard shot for shot.

He started on the final 36 holes of the tournament today two shots back of him, with a total of 140, two shots back of Gene Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Conn., who finished Nelson's card yesterday, and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N.Y., who broke the Quaker Ridge Course record yesterday with a 67, three under par.

He was paired today with Runyan and Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N.J.
